The crystals are uraninite, found in granite-like rock near the Winnipeg River off Lamprey Falls, 110 miles northeast of here.

For the last 30 years crystals from this area, on the old Huron mining claim, have been examined by geologists to discover more about the world and its make-up.

Age of the rocks is determined by the known rate of decay of radio-active materials they contain. Nowhere in the world have rocks been found and analyzed which are older than those by the Winnipeg River.

They were first brought to light by Dr. S. Delury, former head of the Department of Geology of the University of Manitoba, who sent them to Ottawa for analysis. And in the early 30s, Dr. Arthur Holmes, a British scientist, calculated the rocks from this area to be 1,800,000,000 years old.

Raised Age of Rocks

In 1947, Dr. L. H. Ahrens of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology raised the age of the rocks to 2,400,000 years. He did this by analyzing lithium deposits found in the same area and still is experimenting on samples from Lamprey Falls.

Dr. J. D. Allan, chief provincial geologist, says that scientists believe there was no life in the world when these rocks originated. That includes vegetable as well as animal life. At that time Manitoba was a barren land of mountainous ranges. There was no Winnipeg River.

Besides revealing more about the age and origin of the world, scientists are also interested in the chemical and geological nature of the uraninite.

"If they develop a method of determining the age of common minerals, other than radio-active ones, it may be of great use in mining too," Dr. Allan said.

Tenants Help Quest For Noiseless Flats

Abbots Langley, Herts, England — (CP) — The long search for housing accommodation has ended for 24 local families who have agreed to act as tenant "guinea pigs" in brand-new, modern flats at a rental of about $4 a week.

The families, on the housing waiting list for months, eagerly accepted the bargain, although there is a catch in it.

Their part of the deal is to assist the government's department of research in its experimental program.

The team of architects responsible for the construction of the building are trying to find out how to eliminate sounds made by stampeding kids upstairs, slamming doors, whirling noises of the vacuum-cleaner and the distractions of the next-door radio. The new tenants are expected to turn in reports on what they hear — if anything.

In the search for the noiseless flat the architects have arranged the 24 apartments in six groups of four exactly alike but built with different materials and concealed anti-noise gadgets.

To aid the experiment, which will be continued over a period of several years, some of the families will exchange flats once, others twice. This will permit a comparison of their experiences in the differently-treated apartments.

BIGGEST CABLE

Doncaster, England — (CP) — A rope-making firm here is working on a cable with a diameter of 27 inches which is believed the largest in the world. It will serve as the main cable for the river Severn suspension bridge, with a breaking load of 48,000 tons.

SARDINES FOR FODDER

Oslo. (CP)—The large Norwegian floating herring factory Chepea is scheduled to try sardine catching off the North African coast. The fish won't be canned but will be processed into oil and meal fodder.

Festival of Britain Brings Boom In Clothing Rentals

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Overseas visitors to the Festival of Britain have brought a boom to firms which specialize in renting clothes for special occasions.

So says Cedric Lane, representative of a well-known company which has been in business more than 50 years.

Lane said more men's and women's wear is being rented than at any time since 1939.

The hire system makes it possible for men to pay one to six guineas for outfits that would normally cost 50 times as much. This has a particular appeal for persons who come from North America by air and like to travel "light" because of restrictions on the amount of air-baggage.

Renting clothes is so widespread a practice that one of the best-known firms, Moss Brothers, has become practically a household word. Newspaper columnists make annual guesses on the number of persons at the Royal Ascot meeting whose grey toppers, tails and striped pants are strictly hired for the occasion.

At the last Ascot meeting, a popular bunch was Lord Derby's Mossborough, whose name had a special significance for those in hired clothes. The horse won by four lengths.

In ladies' wear, the latest fashions can be rented including furs, jewelry, shoes and handbags. The jewelry is well-styled paste or French pearls with a hiring charge of 10s 6d. A complete outfit can be hired for £3. Cost of best outfit procurable is £10.

More women are hiring evening outfits in recent times. During the state visit of the King and Queen of Denmark in May, one firm booked 30 gowns for the Buckingham Palace reception.

Gowns can be sent to any part of the British Isles at 14 days' notice.

Bridal wear is in keen demand. From the groom to the smallest page in white satin suit every member of a bridal group can be outfitted in completely rented togs.

Democracy Rules At Summer Camp

Toronto — (CP) — Theories on summer camping, like everything else, have changed considerably during the last 25 years, says Margaret Govan, director of a small private camp for girls in the Muskoka district.

The original concept of a camp —a sort of out-door school regulated by bells, whistles and a host of rules — is almost a thing of the past.

Today the trend is away from that kind of regimentation and more emphasis is placed on the development of individual initiative among the campers.

There's a general move to give the camp back to the campers, Miss Govan says, most camps are self-governing in all matters except health and safety. Campers are responsible for a large part of the planning of programs and an executive elected from members helps govern the group as a whole.

It's democracy in embryo, with children taught that the majority should rule and learning the importance of respecting the rights and views of others.

Camps offer a tremendous release from tensions children encounter in city homes, says Miss Govan. One of the most important features of any camp is the opportunity it gives children to pretend. They can forget themselves completely and with their camp mates be Gypsies, Indians or pirates for a day.

Plumbers Make Second Place By 19-7 Victory

In one of the wildest games seen in the Commercial Softball League this year, Howe and Hagerman downed Ramsay Paints 19 to 7 in eight innings to pick up four points to take a stranglehold on second place in the standings.

This game was one of the most peculiar seen on the Al-Comie Field. And while its playing was bizarre its finish was fantastic. The Painters who hustled about for more than 18 minutes before game time to accumulate nine men, threw substitutes into the game as they arrived, or as fast as other teams could give players their release. Anyway, by the eighth inning they had exhausted their player pool so that when Earl Bush selected too loudly and too loud with umpire Bawden's decision at first base for the final out in the eighth, he was ejected from the game. The Painters had no more substitutes and had to withdraw.

Up to this point the game was setting records of is own in error departments. For three and a half innings the game see-sawed back and forth with Ramsays holding a 6-5 lead. Howe and Hagerman started to rally in the fourth but appeared to have been cut off with one run as the Painters came up with a smart double play, nelling Lum Carson at the plate and picking Don Adams off second base while Don Locke scored. However, Vern Goyer, dived in safely from third base to beat Scanlan's relay from right field on McGregor's grounder. Ramsays objected strongly claiming that Goyer had been tagged. When the decision stood, as usual, the Painters sagged visibly and before they could recover Howe and Hagerman had scored six run.

Seven Out in Sixth

Bush, who relieved Connie Harris in the fatal fourth, fanned off the Plumbers in the fifth but was driven out in the sixth as the Plumbers gathered in another half dozen runs. H. and H. wound it up in the seventh with two to rout Ramsays.

Rex Young started for the Plumbers and was shelled out in favor of Jim Carson. Ramsays used Connie Harris, Mouse Bush, and "Bunk" Young in a vain effort.

Vern Goyer, with three hits in five tries, scored four runs and was a thorn in Ramsays flesh throughout.

Herb Stenn came out of his slump with a rush pounding out a home run, a double and a single in five tries.

Maurice Leforte led Ramsays nine hit attack with two doubles and a single in four appearances.

Lineup—

Ramsay Paints: Scanlan rf, ss; Stirling 3b; Woods cf; R. Young c; Mulholland 2b; Carr 1b; Peters ss, replaced by B. Young p in 6th; Leforte 1f; Harris p, replaced by Bush p, rf, in the fourth.

Howe and Hagerman: Locke 3b; D. Adams c; V. Goyer cf; L. Goyer 1f; McGregor ss; Stenn 2b; T. Williams rf; H. Werchbaugh 1b; R. Young p replaced by Carson in 4th.

Merchants Drop 8-5 Decision To Stirling

Frankford. — Frankford Merchants dropped an 8-5 decision in Stirling Monday night, although they outhit Stirling 11-9. Frankford started off like a house afire, gathering four runs in the initial frame, on two walks, a fielder's choice on which everyone was safe, a single by Cosgrove, and a tremendous triple by Wickens.

Stirling bounced right back for three runs in the bottom half of the first on a single by Bastedo, an intended sacrifice beaten out for a hit by Lanigan and a home run by Rogers.

Frankford failed to score in the second, and Stirling knotted the count on a walk, a single and an error.

The Merchants went ahead again in the third on a walk, and singles by Wickens and Rankin That ended Frankford's scoring.

Stirling got two runs in the fourth on a double by McMurray, a sacrifice and a single by Lanigan. They added two more in the eighth on Zufelt's single, and an error.

Line score:

Frankford	401 000 000	5	11 3
Stirling	210 200 02x	5	9 1

Elsewhere in the league, Trenton edged Wooler 7-6 in a real thriller, in Campbellford, the league leading airmen from Trenton took an 8-6 decision from the hometowners in sixteen innings.

Graziano Wins Over Hudson In Third Round

Kansas City, July 11 (AP) — Rocky Graziano, former king of the middleweight boxing ranks, had another conquest on his comeback ledger today, but there was no particular credit attached to it.

Graziano, 28-year-old swinger from Brooklyn, scored a knockout over 30-year-old Cecil Hudson, San Jose, Calif., in 1:12 minutes of the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder last night.

State Athletic Commissioner Randall Jessee announced that he was holding up $500 of Hudson's purse. He said he is recommending that the veteran negro fighter be suspended indefinitely.

Jessee made his decision after a hearing in which most of the 26 witnesses testified that they felt Hudson had not given his best.

Hudson, who told the commissioner that last night marked the second time in 105 professional fights that he had been knocked out, insisted that he was knocked out by a Graziano right to the jaw.

Referee Benny Kessler told the commissioner he did not believe it was "an honest fight." He said he had warned Hudson for holding and warned him that he must fight.

British Papers Give Prominence To Turpin's Win

London, July 11 (AP)—British newspapers ignored the newsprint famine today and went to town with page one news and pictures of Randy Turpin's victory over Sugar Ray Robinson.

Few morning papers sported less than three columns of pictures of the fight at London's Earls Court arena, and sports writers used adjectives profusely.

"Randolph knocks lumps off Sugar", was the headline of the Communist Daily Worker while the ultra-conservative Daily Graphic topped page one with "Tiger Turpin shakes world."

Sugar Ray, said the Daily Mirror, was up against "a bit of old England that did not care for Cadillacs, dwarfs, professional barbers, golf professionals and what have you.

Robinson's entourage on his European tour included his personal barber, masseur, and golf pro. He also took along his lavender-colored automobile.

The Daily Mirror's boxing writer and Turpin will take Sugar Ray in a return match.

The Telegraph's sport writer, Lalage Wood, observed "Robinson should have had thrashed home to him that charity fights and the gay life of the continent are not the best of preparations for defence of a world championship."

SWEDISH FURS

Stockholm — (CP) — Breeding of fur-bearing animals in Sweden, rapidly growing since its establishment in 1926, resulted in exports valued at more than $3,000,000 last year. Some 35,000 silver foxes and 25,000 blue foxes are bred annually.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Nokomis, Sask., (CP) — The Canadian Legion branch here had to reorganize when membership dropped to two men.

When should a family borrow

A family should borrow only when a loan is the best solution to a money problem. For example, to pay old debts, medical expenses, taxes, fuel, education, car or home repairs. Loans for these reasons are not inflationary, for the money is not used to buy goods in short supply or increase indebtedness.

SOLVING MONEY PROBLEMS

At HFC—Household Finance—we believe a family should borrow only when, by careful planning, the money problem can be resolved, and the loan repaid in an orderly manner. When a family borrows under these circumstances, it is simply "renting" money on terms it can afford. At HFC you may borrow $50, $250, $500 or more on your signature, without bankable security.

The Belleville Redmen, who are running out Canada on a record rush with a remarkable win-loss percentage, entertain the lowly Nanticoke Athletics here tomorrow night and then will be at home Saturday evening to a tourist band of U. S. College All-Stars singularly titled the "Flagish Hobos". The Reboes boast some good players, among them catcher Jim Laeing who has just banked away a $5,000 bonus from the Chicago White Sox for effecting his name to a Chicago contract. All this activity in the city should be just what the doctor ordered to set fig his sitting Redmen who have now moved up to the first division and a three-way share of second place. A win against Nanticoke tomorrow will leave them alone in second place. The Redmen cheer star Al Robertson through the other night, despite the 6-1 setback was good enough to warrant comment in the Lifflock City that a return visit would not more paying customers than a regularly scheduled Windsor League game. The Reboes are walloping all over the league by lopsided scores and apparently the Belleville showing last Monday was one of the better efforts turned in against them this season. The Reboes were scheduled to show their wares here earlier in the season but were rained out. Their game here should prove to be a solid attraction.

The Commercial Softball League A section finally has straightened away its schedule of postponed games. Point Anne will meet Ramsay Paints at the Alemite Field tomorrow night at 6:45. The game is one that was postponed from July 4th. On Friday evening Howe and Hagerman, and Glen Roy Creamery will hook up in their final meeting of the schedule. Howe and Hagerman have won two of their three meetings to date, the last one a 2-1 ten inning thriller. These two powerful squads will be lucky to turn in another stellar performance. Both squads will be at full strength for the contest.

The Alemite Field is due for a face-lifting accordig to plans given the green light by the Parks Board at their meeting last Monday night. The tests along the right and left field lines will be extended to the outfield. A snow fence will be put up around the outfield and fans will be allowed to park beyond the fence. Spectators in the stands flanking the backstop will be given the added protection of screens to be erected on both sides. While all this is jolly fine for fans, the Parks Board has not considered players and a few loads of fill will be put on the infield to smooth out existing hollows. The improvements will be completed, it is hoped, before the city league playoffs commence, and will definitely be ready for the OASA clashes for all divisions.

London, July 11 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, once considered boxing's invincible fighting machine, was stripped of his world middleweight crown yesterday after absorbing a terrific beating by Randolph Turpin, a comparative newcomer to the fistic fraternity's big time.

Turpin, 23-year-old Negro alumnus unknown outside his British homeland, astounded the boxing world by soundly whipping the New York titleholder in 15 rounds as a capacity crowd of 18,000 in Earl's Court Arena cheered in disbelief.

The 31-year-old Robinson's fistic world collapsed around his battered features, but he'll get a chance next September on his home grounds to get his title back.

Immediately after the fight, Robinson's manager, George Gainford, said a return bout would be held Sept. 26 in New York.

"He was better than I was," Robinson said without offering any alibi. "I lost," he said simply.

Un-awed by the champion's dazzling reputation, young Turpin bored in from the start to outpunch, outbox and outsmart the overwhelming favorite who has been hailed in recent years as the greatest fighter — pound for pound — anywhere in the world.

"I thought I was winning all the way," Turpin declared as he ran into his dressing room. "He never hurt me once." Randy was quite right.

Turpin Got Nine

The Associated Press scorecard gave Robinson, who had lost only one other fight in 132 bouts covering 11 years, just four rounds, Turpin got nine, with two even.

Men who watched Sugar Ray storm through Europe and Asia toppling nine foes in two months tried to tell him he looked the shadow of his usual self.

"I felt good," Robinson insisted. "Turpin is a real good boy."

Robinson, three times middleweight champion when he took the middleweight title from Jake LaMotta in Chicago, held the 160-pound crown only five months. He beat LaMotta last Feb. 14, and the National Boxing Association and the New York Athletic Commission relieved him of his welterweight title.

It was the greatest moment in the career of Turpin, whose father was a Negro rifleman from British Guiana.

Randy was paid $28,000, more money than a British middleweight ever has received. Turpin's victorious League brought the 160-pound title back to the British Isles for the first time since Bob Fitzsimmons' reign 60 years ago.

Fought According to Plans

"It went the way we had expected," said Randy's eldan brother, Dick, former British middleweight champ, and his trainer.

"We had taken Sugar Ray to places watching films of him in action. We knew he was good when he was coming forward, but not so hot when he was going back—so we worked on that."

Turpin forced the action for the first eight rounds. He slowed down during the next three, partially explained by the fact he never before had fought more than eight—and then found a tremendous finishing surge that left Robinson completely whipped.

Robinson, who got $84,000 — largest purse ever paid a fighter here — was a 4 to 1 favorite. Odds against Turpin winning on points were as high as 20 to 1.

National League's Home-Run Hitters Feature Nats' 8-3 All-Star Win Over Americans

By JOE REICHLER

Detroit, July 11 (AP)— The National League inner circle today saw an end to the unbeaten League's "reign of terror" and predicted a new cycle shifting the batting power to the senior circuit.

Gil Hodges, strapping Brooklyn first-baseman and the National League's home-run leader, said after yesterday's 8-3 triumph over the Americans:

"It is the National that has the home run hitters now, not the American. Yes, sir, times have changed."

Ralph Kiner, the National's home run king for the last five years echoed this sentiment.

"We're the big guys now and they are the little boys," he said. "I could see that before the game when we lined up for the National Anthem. I looked over at the American League bunch and thought: 'Gee, what a bunch of little guys compared to a few years ago.'

Kiner and Hodges each walloped a home run as the "big boys" bombarded five pitchers for a dozen hits and ran up the biggest run total ever made by a National League all-star team.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cards and Bob Elliott of the Boston Braves also smashed homers for the winners. Those of Hodges and Elliott came with a man on base. George Kell and Vic Wertz of Detroit hit solo four-baggers for the Americans.

The Nationals entered the game with the more robust batting averages and better pitching but belied the 7-4 favoritism of the Americans. The results bore them out. Not only did they outhit the American batters but they outpitched and outfielded them.

Made Brilliant Catch

The emphasis was strictly on the home run, but little Richie Ashburn, fleet-footed outfielder of the Phillies outfielder, brought the Three Rivers Stadium crowd of 52,075 to its feet with a brilliant leaping catch in the sixth inning to rob Wertz of a circuit homer.

National League pitching was not bad, either. Except for an unsteady two-inning stint by Robin Roberts, pouring fire and brimstone, and a couple of home run tosses by Sal Maglie of the Yellow Tribe Giants, the National's four-man hurling corps was excellent.

Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's big righthander, was super as he limited the American League's keyed down with two hits and no runs in his three-inning venture. He was especially brilliant in the eighth when, after yielding a three-base hit to Ted Williams, he relired the next three batters without allowing the Boston Red Sox slugger to budge off third. Newcombe, flashing a burning fast ball, fanned three.

Ewell Blackwell, the "whip" from Cincinnati, held the losers at bay in the ninth. The victory was credited to Maglie, who worked the third, fourth and fifth innings.

Garver Shows Class

Five hurlers went to the Hill for the Americans. Except for Ned Garver of St. Louis, all were pasted freely.

Eddie Lopat, pride of the Yankees, was charged with the loss. The veteran southpaw replaced Garver in the fourth and was shellacked for three tallies in the inning he worked. He got a fine welcome from Musial who whammed his first pitch into the right field seats. Elliott followed with a single, then by Hodges with another circuit clout into the left field stands.

Hodges got his round-tripper off Detroit's Fred Hutchinson who hurled the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Every long range blow was hit off Mel Parnell, Red Sox lefthander.

Manager Eddie Sawyer, whose Phillies dropped four straight to the Yankees in the 1950 World Series, was as happy as a lark over the fine showing of his Nationals.

"Boy, what a club I had out there today," he chortled. "I'd like to run a team like that all the time."

Casey Stengel, pilot of the Americans, took the loss in good grace.

"We were just plain lousy out there today," he said. "Our hitting was bad and our pitching was worse. They simply outplayed us in every department."

The net receipts of $124,294.07 after taxes went to the player pension fund. So did the $110,000 television and radio fee.

Hunt for Talent Is Expanding

Brantford, July 11—(CP)—The hunt by the major leagues for baseball talent is continuing to expand in Ontario.

Brooklyn Dodgers are holding a baseball school which was attended Tuesday by 83 young players from various parts of the province. The school is being conducted by Bill Harris, Toronto, chief scout for the Dodgers in Canada. The school continues today.

At Welland, candidates were on hand from central and western Ontario for the Pittsburg Pirates school. Also included was a large delegation from New York State.

BLACK GOPHER UNUSUAL PET

Battleford, Sask. — (CP) — Emile Bidart has a rare pet — a black gopher.

He found it recently and took it home for a few days to let town youngsters have a look at it.

The black gopher liked the Bidart family food hand-outs and now shows no inclination to leave.

Black gophers are even rarer than the albino or white ones.

Hudson of Leafs Wins Third Game In One Week

(By The Associated Press)

Lefty Hal Hudson of the third - place Toronto Maple Leafs has no difficulty in repeating it as he can continue to chalk up victories at the rate of three a week.

The 24-year-old southpaw, appearing in his fifth outing in seven days, gained revelit for his eighth victory against three losses as the Maple Leafs knocked off the International League-leading Montreal Royals 5-4 last night.

Last night Hudson came to the rescue of starting pitcher Johnny Metzi, who had to retire in the sixth inning because of illness. Hudson took over with the score tied 3-3 and gave up only three hits in four innings to nab up his third victory within a week.

Hudson was aided considerably by his batting mate, Purnell Anderson, who tied the game in the sixth inning with a two - run double and later scored the winning marker after another two-base hit by the eighth baseman.

The second - place Buffalo Bisons lost an opportunity to cut the gap between them and the Royals by dropping an 8-3 verdict to Baltimore. Jack Britton secured 14 safeties in going the route for Baltimore. Anse Moore and Joe Phillips homered for the victors.

Bill Miller of Syracuse Chiefs turned in a glittering second performance as he blanked the last-place Springfield Cubs 1-0 on 5 hits. The only run of the game was scored in the eighth inning by Stan Breard, who doubled and rode home on Pete Ragan's single.

Rochester Red Wings and Ottawa Giants divided a twin bill. Rochester captured the opener 5-4 behind Kurt Krieger, as Steve Bilko poled a three-run homer in the ninth inning to win the game. George Samberger of the Giants yielded only three hits in the nightcap to shut out the Red Wings 2-0.

Border League Will Likely Fold For the Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Representatives of the Border League's last two teams, Ogdensburg and Kingston, Ont., will meet at Ogdensburg Thursday, probably to close out the six-year-old circuit.

Orlin G. Ward, president of the league, called the meeting after Watertown and Auburn withdrew Monday from the league. Geneva and Cornwall, Ont., had withdrawn previously because of financial difficulties.

The Watertown Daily Times said the surviving two teams would vote to suspend the league, at least for 1951.

Further indication that the league would probably fold came from the Ogdensburg team which announced it had signed a pact with a Malone (N.Y.) semi-professional team for tonight in Ogdensburg and at Malone Sunday.

Ogdensburg also released manager Johnny Sosh and appointed first baseman Ivy Schupp to replace him. It said the move was taken for financial reasons.

Mrs. N. J. Carlson, veteran shotmaker of the Toronto Rosedale Club, toured the Toronto golf courses to a neat 82 Tuesday to walk away with top honors in the annual ladies invitation tournament.

Almost 60 golfers from Chatham, Petrolia, Ridgetown, Strathroy and Windsor, played in the annual 18-hole tourney.

At Los Angeles, world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter, 135½, New York, scored a technical knockout over Enrique Bolanos, 136½, Los Angeles, in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round non-title fight before some 8,000 fans at the Olympic Auditorium Tuesday night.

The successor to retiring baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler may be picked by Aug. 1, major league spokesmen said Tuesday at Detroit.

Owners of the 16 major league clubs agreed Tuesday to submit their recommendations for the post in writing by July 30.

Meanwhile, Chandler, who stood down July 15, said he was "leaving the door open for a return to baseball."

A dispute over purses may result in cancellation of racing at Fort Erie after today.

Members of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association voted unanimously Tuesday night to refuse to race Thursday unless the track grants their request for increased purse money for the second meeting at Fort Erie.

Four weeks of racing have been scheduled for the track. The first meeting is from July 4 to July 18, under the auspices of the Niagara Racing Association. The second, from July 20 to Aug. 3, is to be run by the Ascot Turf Club.

A committee of the H.P.B.A. met John Calla, President of the Fort Erie track, Monday asking an increase of $6,400 in purses—about $1,300 a day. Calla offered $3,000 to be graded for races for better-class horses.

At Chicago, Art Larsen, United States champion, Tuesday defeated Bonard Fontana of Toronto 6-0, 6-3 in the first round of the men's singles of the National Clay Courts tennis championships.

North Sydney Hockey Club will not enter a team in any league next winter, it was announced Tuesday night.

A meeting of shareholders and directors of the hockey club and directors of the Forum decided that anyone could have the North Sydney Major Hockey Club franchise debt-free for the sum of $1.00 next season.

The club had a deficit of about $16,000 last season.

Jack Hector, manager of the Winnipeg Buffaloes of the Manitoba Baseball League, Tuesday confirmed reports that five of his team members had been contacted by St. Louis Browns of the American League.

Waterloo Tigers committed four errors in one inning and left eight of their team-mates stranded last night to drop their fourth straight Intercounty senior baseball game.

St. Thomas, practically in spite of themselves, won the game 8-3. It was their sixth victory in 27 tries and did little to get them out of last place in the league.

Tied 2-2 going into the fourth inning, the Tigers committed four infield errors to force in the vital two St. Thomas runs. Wall (Doc) Doherty was given credit for the triumph for the Legion squad.

The loss cut the Tigers margin over the fourth-place Kitchener Legionnaires to ¾-game. The only bright spot for the home squad was second baseman Jim Muldoon's single in the fifth—his 27th consecutive game hit.

Tonight the Legionnaires go to Waterloo to battle for third place and London travels to Brantford to try to catch up on the Red Sox's four-game first place margin.

Up in northern Ontario the last-place Sudbury Shamrocks rose up out of the tail-end mud to hand the high-flying Frood Tigers a 6-4 drubbing in Nickel Belt senior baseball. The win, Sudbury's second of the season, dropped Frood into the third place and ended their seven-game winning streak.

In the Vladaff Major League, Oshawa Merchants defeated Toronto Stafford's 5-2 behind four-hit pitching of Vince Cuchero. Home runs by Jim Rogers and Charlie Wales helped the winning cause.

In the first half of the doubleheader in Toronto, Kingsway Lumber defeated Toronto Crofuns 11-1.

Stan Leonard Wins Title With Good Last Round

Ancaster, Ont., July 11 — (CP) — Stan Leonard putting touch was at his best yesterday and the Vancouver Malibu Drive star had everything his own way in winning the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship.

Leonard shot a 306, four under par over the Hamilton Golf Club's course here, and was the only man in the finishing field of 60 odd to give par a licking for the full distance of 54 holes.

He wound up with a blazing 65 that was only one stroke off the competitive record for the course set by Tommy Armour in winning the Canadian open title in 1930.

Leonard played under great difficulties under a hot sun. He was ill from a touch of influenza that sapped his strength and had him generally upset physically.

He finished the first of yesterday's two 18-hole rounds exhausted. "I did it in even par 70," he said wearily, "but I don't know how."

At that stage he was two strokes behind Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener Rockway. Then he went out for the final round and in sheer determination and courage played what he called one of the best rounds of his career.

It was the second C.P.G.A. win in a row for Leonard and the fourth since he has competed in the tournament. He won in 1940 and 1941.

Tucker faltered after a fine 67 middle round and finished with a 72 for a total of 211 in second place.

Stan Horne of Montreal Islesmere, who won the title three times in a row starting in 1936, finished in a third place tie at 212 with the home club pro, Dick Borthwick, winner in 1948.

Triple Tie for Fourth

There was a triple tie at 213, scored by Bill Ron Gray of Toronto Scarboro, Bobby Reith of Winnipeg Assiniboine and Fred Wood of Vancouver Shaughnessy Heights.

Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon finished with two fine rounds of 69 and 70 for a 214 total and was lone competent of eighth place.

Leonard's win was worth $2,000 to him. Top prize this year through a donation of $1,000 to the kitty by E. B. Eastbourn, Atlantic City president, was $1,000. In previous years it was $350. Runners-up prizes were stepped up accordingly.

Leonard gets another $1,000 from George L. Jones of Chicago as expense money to compete in the $75,000 Tam O'Shanter tournament. May offered the money to the C.P.G.A. winner who automatically enters the big money tournament.

Leonard said he will enter and expects also to play next year in the Professional Golfers Association of America tournament and possibly the Masters tournament.

For finishing second Lloyd Tucker drew down $350, and Horne and Borthwick tied for the next spot, collected $200 each.

Form Players Given a Shock

Toronto, July 11—(CP)—Formplayers, after experiencing a pleasant afternoon for the first five races, were shocked for a loop at Thorncliffe Raceway Tuesday when Caroll Hanover, owned by W. Mountain of Hamilton and driven by Bill Habkirk, won the sixth dash and paid $28.65 for a $2 ticket. It was the largest price of the current harness race meeting.

The feature pacing stake of the day was won by Astra Colby in straight heats. Owned by C. E. Armstrong of Toronto, and driven by Jack Bannerman, Astra Colby was a handy winner of both dashes.

Two short priced winners in the first two dashes accounted for the first small daily double of the Thorncliffe meeting. Peggy May Peters, owned by J. J. Waples, of Phelpstown, won the first and Jimmy Brewer, owned by Frank Conlin, of Oshawa, won the second.

Happy Chandler Would Like To Stay in Baseball

Detroit, July 11 (AP) —Outgoing Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler said today he would welcome an opportunity to get back into baseball but denied a report he would replace Billy Evans as general manager of the Detroit Tigers.

Chandler, whose resignation becomes effective Sunday, performed his last major official act yesterday when he presided over the 19th annual all-star game.

The former Kentucky Senator outwardly appeared his old smiling jovial self as he visited each dugout bidding goodbye to the all-star players, managers and coaches of the National and American Leagues. But to close friends he made no effort to hide his true feelings.

"I don't remember when I've felt as I do now," he confided. "Why should they have done this to me? What reasons did they have? They still haven't told me."

Deep in the dugout, hidden from the players and the vast crowd that jam-packed Briggs Stadium, the tortured commissioner for the first stage his repudiation, wept unashamedly.

Chandler, who received the full $65,000 for the last year of his seven-year contract although his term still has 10 months to go, said he planned to spend the next few weeks fishing and forgetting."

The Kibitzer

The first bidder in a bridge pair promises a definite minimum basis of strength. He gives this information to his partner. And he asks of partner certain information in return.

This is so with opening bidders and their partners. This is so of defensive bidders and their partners. No matter how you please it, giving and taking information is what bidding partners do.

When it comes to defensive bids, know the four kinds: Overcall in opponents' suit, jump overcall, double for takeout, simple overcall. To each his own different set of answers.

South opens with a heart. Your partner has what sticks it as a bid of some kind. It is a defensive bid. North passes. In answer to your partner's defensive bid it is your response with this east hand:

♠ Q 6 5
♥ K 5 3
♣ 7 4 2

If his bid was two hearts (overcall in opponents' suit, jump overcall, double for takeout, simple overcall). To each his own different set of answers.

If his bid was one spade (simple overcall), you are not forced to bid. In fact, you are asked to pass unless you have an unusual hand. With the hand you have, pass.

The fact that opponents have opened the bidding should not get you down with the hand you hold. Do not sit there mumbling into your beard: "I always get poor hands. I always get poor hands."

Be prepared to make the correct response to your defending partner. Even a pass is valuable information for him. Under some circumstances it is as important as a bid.

Just a case of correctly answering simple questions.

Movie Column

By JACK QUIGG
(For Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, July 11 —(AP) — Silence is golden, especially if you can keep mum as artfully as Gale Gordon.

A handsome, fortyish, gentleman with a Clark Gable mustache and the trace of a British accent, he is known in the radio trade as "the master of the eloquent pause."

You undoubtedly know him by voice if you're any kind of a radio fan—he appears regularly on seven big United States network programs. Gordon is:

Mayor Latrivia on the "Fibber McGee and Molly" show; bank president Rudolph Atterbury on "My Favorite Husband;" school principal Osgood Conklin on "Our Miss Brooks;" Mr. Scott, head of R.C.A., on the Phil Harris-Alice Faye show; Mr. Merrzweather, Ronald Colman's rich friend on "Halls of Ivy;" Mr. Bullard, the next door neighbor, on "The Great Gildersleeve," and the girl friend's father on the Dennis Day show.

Stuffy Characters

"These characters are all of a type, pompous, stuffy, opinionated and loud," says Gordon. "Therefore, it is easy to make them humorous if the script writer is skilful."

What is the eloquent pause? Here is an example from, say, the Fibber McGee show:

McGee says something insulting or aggravating. Gordon, as Latrivia, should properly reply with anger or frustration — something quick and sarcastic. But he doesn't.

"I wait. There is a long pause. I am trying to control my temper. The audience knows this and in its mind it is going over all the possible answers I may give.

"Then, at last, I come out with a very flat remark. Maybe something as simple as the one word, 'yes'. It is doubly funny because everyone listening knows that you fought off a temptation to explode into something more violent."

Schooled in England, he broke into show business on Broadway and was a leading man in stock companies before settling in Hollywood in 1926.

Hollywood, July 10 (AP) — Don't despair, girls, you can look like a movie queen on the beach this summer.

Well, almost like one, anyway. Or so claims Edith Head, the ace fashion designer of Paramount Studios. Now that the swim season is here, I went to her for some words of wisdom. First of all, I put her to climb beside me on a limb and select the 10 best bathing suit figures in Hollywood. Her choices: Corine Calvet, Jane Russell, Joan Crawford, Jan Sterling, Mona Freeman, Elizabeth Taylor, Betty Hutton, Esther Williams, Ginger Rogers, Jane Wyman.

Miss Head remarked that she would like to design swim suits for any of these actresses. In fact, she created one for Liz Taylor to wear in "Place in the Sun". Miss Head claimed that Liz would look good in any kind of suit, and who is there to argue?

The Problem

However, most women aren't as well endowed as Liz. How should they go about buying a suit?

"If they shop correctly, there is no reason why they can't look good in a bathing suit," the designer remarked. "Manufacturers have created outfits which will compliment all but the most impossible of figures."

Miss Head classified the various types of suits and offered some comments on each:

1. The plain vanilla type. This is the ordinary one or two-piece suit with straps (she says you can't swim safely without straps, no matter what science has decreed). Like vanilla ice cream, this is the most popular variety —and the safest for most figures.

2. The "sexist" bathing suit. These are attention-getters and should be worn only by girls who warrant attention. Types include suits of black net, gold lace, pearls, etc. Don't try swimming in them or disaster may result.

3. The rotogravure section suit. These are generally worn by models and consist of such things as whipped cream, rose petals, avocados, etc. Not recommended for ordinary use.

4. The one piece suit. This is epitomized by the matching rompers and sunbonnets worn by mother and daughter. Miss Head said such outfits look good on daughter but generally not on mother.

5. The accessorized suit. This is a strip-tease costume that can be worn on the beach or, with some additions, to stores or cocktails. It is a delight of designers but, said Miss Head, who wants to eat dinner sitting on seaweed?

6. The French bathing suit. It consists of two handkerchiefs. Miss Head believes it should be worn only by French models on French beaches.

HAVE NEW FORMULA

Ottawa, July 11. (CP)—The Bureau of Statistics hopes to have a new formula for estimating monthly changes in the cost of living ready early next year.

It reported Tuesday that "considerable progress" has been made toward revision of its cost-of-living index. The name of the index will be changed to "consumer price index" and the base on which it is calculated brought up to date.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Suspense film stars, Richard Basehart and Barbara Bel Geddes are featured with Paul Douglas and Debra Paget in the 20th. Century-Fox production, "14 Hours". The entertaining second feature is M.G.M.'s "Hometown Story," co-starring Jeffrey Lynn and Marjorie Reynolds.

AT THE McCARTHY — Pleasure before business is Joseph Cotten's credo, especially in the case of Loretta Young, the lovely lady in his arms. ¶The romantic couple are reunited in "Half Angel," 20th. Century-Fox's Technicolor comedy of a sleepwalker, which begins a much heralded engagement today at the Odeon, McCarthy Theatre. Cecil Kellaway is featured in top support.

AT THE CAPITOL — Roy Rogers, King of the Cowboys, is pictured above with The Valkyries and their beautiful trick riding horses in a scene from Republic's thrilling western, "Heart of the Rockies," which starts a three-day run Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. And on the same program Gene Autry in "Gene Autry and the Mounties." Don't miss the battle of the western stars in their latest hits. It's a grand family bill and a swell holiday treat.

TO BE DINED

Taipeh, Formosa, July 11 (AP) Chiang Kai-Shek plans to entertain Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York at dinner here Saturday. Officials said Dewey will probably remain in Formosa five days.

AT FULL STRENGTH

Fort Erie, July 11.—(CP)—The provincial police detachment in this border community has been brought to full strength with the addition of Constable A. B. Camb of Chatham, it was announced yesterday.

WILL ADD FLUORIDE

Thorpld, July 11—(CP)—Public utilities officials said Tuesday that fluoride will be added to town water in the near future. The chemical has been found useful in preventing tooth decay.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, July 12

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Excellent vibrations today. Seek to advance on hard intelligent effort and reward will be most gratifying. Heart interests also have an important place in some of today's favor.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—May be reverse of Aries in some instances, Taurus. But never discourage, just pitch in, show your real self and you can beat the hindrances. Do real thinking before acting.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Hold cautiously tight reins on ideas, proposed endeavors till you have weighed them thoroughly. Stars favor wisely conservative attitude now. Avoid personal differences and smile!

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—You can sing a bell of success today if you follow right course. Of course, things lasting come, to you who still work hard, think logically and forget self at times. Good day all round.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Sort of twixt-and-between day. Good for you who know how, try hard, and keep disposition even. Take the hint, Muster your best talents and knowledge for experiences to keep in step.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo) — Some friendly aspects, some otherwise. Will take keen study to find what's really what, but you are capable—take the pattiess. Watch health needs sensibly; take things smoothly, have some fun.

September 23 to October 22—(Libra) — Planetary influences favor business, finances, and especially on your collaterals. Hold back any tendency to take foolish chances, can prove costly.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Be careful how you interpret others' words, contracts, propositions. Bargain (reasonably) when you can, give value for value, and make only just demands—aspects favorably arrayed.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—A careful survey of what is expected of you, and of the essence of our problems, will save time, money, energy. Encourage co-operative public movements. Heed economy.

December 23 to January 20—(Capricorn)—Go along with constructive projects, civic undertakings; do your capable share. Day favors thrifty and benefic deeds to neighbors, those in distress, and your gratitude.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Alternate ideas, methods to get most out of advantages. Look around, see that the other fellow is doing well, keep improving, moving forward. Get out, and stay out of any rut.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Stars favor progressive action rather than wait-and-see attitude. Take things in hand where you feel you should and could make improvement. Gain with initiative.

YOU BORN TODAY: Can become highly successful in business, a professional person, or as homemaker. There will be things that will upset, tend to discourage. Don't let these get the better of your innately happy, humorous disposition. You are versatile, industrious. Rather like to think of the past, though can be very practical about future. Dramatic and musical ability. Can be moved by sympathy, kindness; never agreeable surroundings (don't we all!) Check worrying, assuming troubles before they appear. Pray; be confident.

Birthdate: Julius Caesar, Roman emperor; Jean Hersholt, actor.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

ALL TOO NORMAL

An eastern magazine writer is doing articles on the communities of Canada and I have finally realized what a dull, drab civil servant I am.

I gather from the writer's letter that columnists generally are a colorful, exciting lot, full of inhibited eccentrics. The man is documenting this, he says with sprightly glee, anecdotes of boring clear back to the days of Jimmy Butterfield and Bob Hoodechette, whose extra-curricular activities were almost as entertaining as their writings if not more so.

Even the modern-day columnists are apparently enormously witty men away from their Smith-Coronas and some of the off-stage remarks of Jim Coleman, Andy Bruce West and Teddy Reeves and the rest are downright brilliant. This gills me with awe and gloom. Any witty remark I have ever uttered, and I can think of a full half dozen over the last 15 years, has been hoarded carefully for future use. Why, if I get a good word I keep it to myself.

Only the other day while entertaining my family at dinner in a fashionable hamburger joint I came out with a bon mot—if I say so myself. If you like—that was a veritable bluebird. My youngest daughter, Jenny, had been asking cry for sustenance and I bent down and said "Be quiet, dear, you'll wake the spirit-stove."

Instantly I glanced darkly over my shoulder to be certain that no writers were present to claim this gem for their own. There'll come a time when I'll be able to slip that remark casually into a column and thus have millions of people rolling on the floor, holding their sides.

When I am in the East I occasionally visit with Coleman and other notorious wits in the hope of slithering some of their ad lib remarks, but all they ever say is "Looks like more snow" or "Soda or water?" or "How's the wife?" and then I laugh unreariously at such remarks they never seem as funny when I've gone into a corner and put them in my little black note book.

Just a Name

The magazine writer asks me to note any interesting facts about my personal life, suggesting that the others he's interviewed have been pretty strange. He indicates that columnists are people who go swimming in winter through holes in the ice or breed race horses or fly their own planes or live most of their lives in night clubs.

This leaves me desperately hunting for something bizarre, something characteristic, and all I am confronted with is my dreadful normalcy.

I shave every other day, have an appendectomy scar, eat rolled oats for breakfast, see my dentist twice a year, play the left hand to Joe Turner's Blues and the first eight bars of "Old Black Joe" on the banjo, I have $23 in the bank, a mortgage and four credit accounts, roll my own cigarettes—but why go on? They are slim pickings for a magazine writer.

All I can safely claim is that some subscribers to the papers I write for have got me magnificently confused with a lot of other Jack Scotts. Next to George Jones, it is Canada's most common name.

Because of this I am often confused with the Jack Scott who is the crack golfer, the Jack Scott who has an impressive record for breaking and entering and armed theft, the Jack Scott who drinks and the Jack Scott who is a top actor in Toronto, not to mention several others, at least one of whom seems to have some curious ideas on sex.

Naturally, I encourage this mass outbreak of mistaken identity since it makes me such a many-sided figure and frequently even allow myself to be mistaken for Jack Short, the racing authority, who is a colorful and debonaire type. People are always phoning me up and asking me about horses. Indeed, on my very street there is another Jack Scott, and there are times, when I have to ask my wife which one I am.

I have often thought of changing my name so that I could stand on my own as one person and have typed with the letters succeeding Zachary Scott or just Scott of the Antarctic or Barbara Ann Scott. Anything to become an individual rather than an alcoholic, golf-shooting actor who works as a burglar by night.

Nothing Witty

Lord knows, I'd like to be an eccentric and get written up in a magazine and talked about, but eccentricity seems to demand more energy than God handed out when he came to me.

Telegrams, now. This magazine writer has a whole chapter on the funny telegrams that columnists have sent to their bosses, usually to explain in a highly whimsical way why they have suddenly stopped writing.

I only stopped writing once—I got fuzzed by the grape in Montreal and wrote the Gaitneau Hills—and all I could think to write my boss was the simple truth. "Have stopped writing." I wired him. "Remember you favorably." Hardly the kind of thing to give anyone a niche in the literary hall of fame.

Or their clashes with celebrities. It seems nearly every columnist has an easy way with famous. Me, I haven't been near a celebrity or any account since Almee Semple MacPherson, I always manage to drop Almee's name into my conversation and even into quite a few columns, but it somehow never gets me anything but queries about my age.

About all I can hope is that the magazine writing may be fool enough to think such drabness is refreshing change and that he will mistake it for a kind of scrubfaced nonconformity. I have suggested to him, in fact, that I am the all-Canadian boy, well known as a good listener for saying "That's true" or "You can say that again" and as normal as blueberry pie.

Of course, there's my collection of shrunken heads, but he never asked me about hobbies.

1,300 GUESTS AT PALACE

London, July 11—(Reuters) — More than 1,300 guests, including many members of the diplomatic corps, dined in the white and gold state ballroom at an evening party in Buckingham Palace Tuesday night.

The Queen was present. The King, recuperating from a recent illness, was in the palace but did not attend.

The guests included Commonwealth high commissioners, Prime Minister Attlee and Mrs. Attlee, Winston Churchill, members of the cabinet, and the armed service chiefs.

The Princess danced with Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada.

Says Clergy Marry Unwisely, Too Soon

Wiltverhampton, England — (CP) — Clergymen should marry for money unless they have a private income, says Rev. Wilfred Ellis, 60-year-old bachelor vicar of St. George's Anglican Church here.

After visiting his old theological training college and finding the library lined with baby carriages belonging to student priests, Ellis wrote in his parish magazine:

"Unless the clergy marry unwisely and too soon. The funds of the church are for pastoral work and will never suffice to maintain a social position on an expensive education for children."

Mr. Ellis says that most priests would be better parsons if they remained single. Married, their loyalties are divided between family and church, unless they have private means.

Ellis, who has a private income, is not interested in matrimony for himself.

"I'm happy as I am, sharing a home as a bachelor," he said. "Yet, there are women in my parish who still consider me marriable."

DESERONTO

Yacht Club Regatta Has Fine Attendance

Deseronto—The weatherman was responsible for the good attendance at the Mall Dock on Saturday for the D.Y.C. regatta, the bay was choppy, which stopped some of the lighter "Sea Fleas" from racing, which was unfortunate.

The crowd was given thrills when some of the boats, while racing, leaped clear of the water, and the drivers had a good shower.

Race Results

The results of the races were:

Class 1 for 3 H.P. outboards; no entries.

Class 2 for 5 H.P. outboards, J. Tompkins, Deseronto.

Class 3 for 10 H.P., Don McCabe, Napanee.

Class 3 for 10 H.P. Chamber of Commerce Challenge Cup.

Class 4, 14 H.P. outboard, A. Hyrizak, Deseronto.

Class 5, 16 H.P. outboard, Don McCabe, Napanee.

Class 6, 22 H.P. outboard, Don McCabe, Napanee.

Swimming Races

Boys 10 and under, winners were, Paul McVicker, Napanee.

Girls 10 and under, no entries.

Boys 15 and under, Joe Brant.

Girls 15 and under, Sally Smith.

Open half mile, Joe Brant.

Grosse Fole Event

Great amusement was caused by the effort of the competitors on the greasy pole to claim the $5 w'l:ch was at the top and the bill was still there at the finish of the afternoon.

Aj:the close of the regatta the winners of the boat races received a silver cup, also for the half mile "open swim" a trophy; other winning competitors received cash prizes.

The refreshment booth was well supported. The hosts were, Mrs. Art Hill, Mrs. C. Gordon and L. Hill, Selling tickets for the Johnson outboard motor were Mrs. Stan Moon, Mrs. Jim Moon, and Mrs. Jim Gaulin.

Sid Brown was steward, Art Hill, starter; Hink Maracle, flagman; Stan Moon, timekeeper.

The D.Y.C. wishes to give a special vote of thanks to Herb Maracle for his assistance and co-operation, also to Sid Brown, to Jack White, to Albert Fraser and to Hink Maracle, as well as all competitors.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Lucilla Webb, age 31, started out that April morning to have lunch with an ex-schoolmate she hadn't seen in 17 years. However for a woman who knew where she was going and had exactly enough time to get there, she managed to stall quite a lot.

At the northwest corner of Fourth Street, a block from the Fifth Avenue bus stop, she paused before the Church of the Ascension to read the Thought for Today: Happiness must be watered Like a Plant.

Today, she was too restless, or too weary, to ask herself, "Do I Water Happiness Like a Plant?" Instead she read the other notice. Just below this, on the grass, was a brand-new sign: No Dogs. They might as well add "and no children," she thought, measuring by eye the space between the iron bars of the fence surrounding the church. Sniffles, their spaniel, could easily wriggle through and for that matter, so could Hope, Hope—Hoopy—was it just children's bodies were as pliable as rubber, squeezing eagerly into any shape that seemed expedient.

"I'll be late meeting Charlotte" she told herself, and sauntered across to the bus stop. She kept glancing at her wrist watch till the bus appeared. When she got on, the driver shut the doors so fast they almost spanked her behind, and goaded the bus into a shocking-bronco technique that tossed Lucilla into the first vacant seat.

She glanced in the little paneled mirror to reassure herself that her hat was still straight. Arthur had always liked this hat. She reflected bitterly that when she indulged once like something, he never outgrew it.

Lucilla thought of Arthur as he usually looked that morning: half-dressed, when he called to her, "Mommy, where are my other nylon shorts?" Originally it had pleased and touched her, to have Arthur imitating Hoopy, calling her Mommy, but now she saw it as a degrowing, callous indication of Arthur's feelings toward her: simply a motherly woman who knew where his shorts were. Who was he to call her Mommy? He was three years older, and his stomach was sagging like a —a kangaroo pouch.

A block beyond Best's she laid aside the case against Arthur, like unfinished knitting which she could pick up later without losing a stitch and gave herself a last minute dusting and straightening before getting off the bus. She was pleased to remember that Charlotte had never been smart-looking. As a girl she had been plump and shiny, by now she must be huge.

There may have been the barest crescendo between this idea and the next: it will be nice to see Charlotte again (and let her see me). It resulted from being optimistic, inclined to Wink pleasant thoughts about herself.

She was a small-boned woman, five inches over five feet, but what had been slenderness would now be more fairly called scrawny.

She now halted before the Woman's Exchange. Lucilla entered the hallway, bounded by dark old bannistered stairs on the left and on the right an archway opening into the restaurant. She went upstairs and searched vainly for Charlotte.

She passed a sad-mouthed woman dressed entirely in black who, on her stocking and the woman became in Lucilla's mind, a brave widow who supported three children by selling cakes through the Women's Exchange. Then Lucilla herself became a brave, but much more attractive widow. In the course of 30 seconds, she was working in publishing office to support Hoopy and a tall, dark, tweedy stranger, who was either the publisher or a distinguished author, was smiling at her whimsically from between high cheekbones saying "I know it's too soon for you to think of romance, but so gallant and so little, I want so much to take care of you and Hoopy forever."

Lucilla came to just in time to avoid falling downstairs. She had grabbed the bannister, looking down at a solid female backside, and knew immediately it was Charlotte. At the same time she remembered what they had called that posterior formation in school: rump-sprung.

The recollection made her voice soar gaily, calling her friend's name. Charlotte turned and Lucilla thought, "She is much heavier." She felt wonderfully slender and sure, running down the stairs, and babbling more affectionate greetings than their long-ago sorority friendship warranted.

Lucilla went on making pleased noises as they sat down at the table. Charlotte drank half a glass of water in one healthy slurp, and opened a menu, and put on bifocals. "I notice you've come to wearing your specs all the time," she said, "Well we're all in the same boat."

Lucilla had a furious impulse to snatch off her glasses and stand up, "The sweet potato and chicken with walnuts sounds good." Charlotte went on, unaware of the rocking resentment. The waitress, starched and neat as a parlormaid, stood beside their table, "Two chicken and nut casserole?"

Lucilla's normally small, rather childlike voice was fogged with rebellion as she said, "No, I'll take the avocado salad."

"Mercy, no wonder you're so skinny," Charlotte said.

The waitress brought their plates and Charlotte's fork went with a derrick's regular ups and downs from her plate to her mouth, telling about what Ed had achieved. "He's in Light and Gas" Charlotte said, conjuring up a picture of Ed's head rising out of a meter. "But you haven't even told me what your husband does."

"It's in the ethical drug business." Lucilla had long ago decided that to most outsiders this sounded as if they were saying my husband isn't in a dope-ring. He doesn't smuggle drugs—he's ethical."

"Barrett Drugs is really owned by the Rub-dub Chtel-Rub Corporation," she added, waiting for Charlotte to exclaim, as people did, "Oh, Rub-dub! Of course!"

"Heaven" Charlotte went on. "I almost forgot to tell you the weirdest thing of all. You remember Dorothea's cousin Clarice, the one we didn't want to rush, and Dorothea was so relieved when she went Alpha!"

The name to Lucilla, carried only a sense of homeliness, but she nodded.

"Well, when Ed and I were at Jasper for a reunion last year who should we see but Dorothea with this absolutely glamorous brunette. And you'd never guess who the girl was, Clarice!"

The image that had evaded her came back Clarice was the sallow girl with spots who scuttled sidewise like a crab. "But she's our age."

"I know. That's what I said to Dorothea. I said "What on earth did Clarice do to herself? Well, I nearly died when she told me. Clarice came to New York and went to the Beautiful-You School —you know, the one you see ads for in the magazines, the Before and After."

"But they couldn't have changed her that much." The skeptic'ism was overlaid with hope, as when a child says, "But now could the crab turn into a princess?"

"They did, Dorothea told me Clarice went to the Beautiful-You school every day, all day long for two months. Would you be willing to go through all that rigmarole and pay a lot of good coin to help your looks?"

Lucilla said virtuously that of courses she wouldn't. On top of that she was surprised to hear her voice saying, "how much does it cost?"

Charlotte shrugged. "Plenty I bet."

Lucilla returned to her fantasy. And now the whimsically cheekboned man was saying, "you're so incredibly young and lovely. You must have been 16 when Hoopy was born." And Lucilla gave him a glamorous, enigmatic smile.

If Lucilla had met a friend, or even a friendly enemy, on the street that afternoon after leaving Charlotte, and had been asked "where are you headed for?" she would have said "Boswit Teller," without batting an eye. As it happened, she met no one, and she was careful not to say to herself "why Boswit Teller—when you haven't been up there in years, huh?" To make that whole elaborate subterfuge more convincing, she actually did go to Boswitts, to Schubach's Lingerie. (For some insidiously subversive reason, the word Debutant is used by stores to mean Inexpensive or Budget.)

And if by an amusing coincidence he happened to pass the Beautiful-You School in the block above Boswitts, there was no earthly reason why she should not glance at the lavish poster display around the entrance, merely out of friendly curiosity of course, to see the place Clarice had come to be done over.

The first set of before and after photographs was in the glass display case beside the door. Before—dark—dumpy—after—she dazzling! The blown-up snapshot accompanying she's drab! was of a dumpy, smiling little woman whom the caption described with cheerful candor as "Mrs. Beppinger, a dowdy suburban matron who even looked suburban." The after creature was a tall, pinch nostrilled young woman with high, sculptured hairdo, wearing a white-sheathed dinner dress, Anybody with a head for figures would almost have sworn that Mrs. Beppinger, no matter how done over, couldn't have grown an inch, and must be on stilts under the white folds. Lucilla had only a vague feeling that Mrs. Beppinger looked less friendly in the after. Eying the line and cuts of the white dinner dress, she forgot even this.

Almost all of the classroom pictures featured a handsome blonde in a severely chic black dress. This was Mary Meadows, head of the Beautiful-You school. "Mary Meadows' studies your problems individually and plans exercises just for you—A new and vital you. She will teach you to build beauty on a healthy foundation."

It began to sound soldier and soldier. By now, Lucilla had been drawn into a corridor, like the corridor of any small office building, except that it was delicately perfumed. In between the two-elevators was the directory showing that Beautiful-You occupied all four floors above: Two —Divine Angle Room, Hair Salon, Voice Recardion; Three—Nurse, Pedicures, Food Bar; Four—Registration Desk, Hall of Mirrors; Five—Rollers, Office of Mary Meadows, Wax Baths. Below this was the most discreet notice of the lot: DeLuxe Dayline Course, Eight Weeks, $200.

Lucilla felt the Healthy Foundation yanked out from under her. "That's fantastic." Yet the very largeness of the figure made one realize this was no fly-by-night, send $5 in check or money order scheme. And there was no such sleazy postscript as "if not satisfied in 30 days, return your body and money will be refunded." No, it was a cut and dried business proposition, stating, by inference, that if one invested such highly negotiable, gold-edged securities as Health, Beauty and Happiness, one would do well to pay for them.

Reds Break Off Cease-Fire Negotiations

Refuse to Allow U.N. Newsmen At Parley Site

There Is No Indication When Talks Will Resume

Tokyo, July 12—(Friday) — (AP)—The Chinese red radio in Peiping today confirmed the suspension of cease-fire talks in Korea and said there was no indication United Nations representatives would continue the negotiations.

By JIM BECKER

Munsan, Korea, July 12 (AP) —Korean cease-fire negotiations were broken off today on the issue of United Nations press representation at Kaesong, site of the conferences.

Up to 10 p.m. tonight (8 a.m. EDT), a U.S. Eighth Army communique said, the reds had not replied to an allied ultimatum that U.N. peace convoys pass unchallenged.

There was no indication when talks would be resumed.

Sessions scheduled for today were cancelled after communist guards refused to let a truck load of 20 newspaper men pass a check point with a U.N. convoy.

Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate, said there would be no more cease fire talks until the reds agreed that "my convoy, bearing the personnel of my command, including such press representation as I consider necessary, will be cleared to the conference area."

Joy ordered the entire 17-vehicle convoy to turn back from the red check-point.

The U.N. commander, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, said it was "all or nothing."

The five allied armistice negotiators did not leave Munsan Thursday for their scheduled session in Red-occupied Kaesong 12 miles away.

They won't return, Joy announced, until the reds permit the U.N. party, as selected by U.N. representatives, to proceed intact.

Joy so informed North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head of the communist cease-fire delegation, in a strongly worded statement delivered to Kaesong by helicopter.

Triple Alliance For Defence In Pacific Area

Washington, July 12 —(AP) The State Department announced today the United States, Australia and New Zealand have agreed on terms of a mutual-defence pact in the Pacific.

A formal ceremony to record the three-way agreement was arranged for 4 p.m. EDT. Ambassador John Foster Dulles, representing the United States, Australian Ambassador Percy Spender and New Zealand Ambassador Sir Carl Berendsen will attend.

The text is to be made public soon afterward.

The security alliance is part of the general Second World War settlement in the Pacific sponsored by the United States and Britain. The basis for it is the proposed Japanese peace treaty unveiled today.

Another part of the settlement is a proposed arrangement by which Japan will be free to retain troops and bases in and near the Japanese homeland pending the ultimate creation of a broader security setup in the Pacific.

The new defence treaty is understood to provide that each party will consider an attack on Australia or New Zealand a threat to its own security in much the same terms as the 12-nation North Atlantic Pact.

Maurice Petsche Asked to Form New Government

Paris, July 12—(CP)— President Vincent Auriol today asked Maurice Petsche, Independent finance minister, to form a new government.

Petsche succeeds Premier Queuille, who resigned as a formality Tuesday in the wake of the June 17 elections and then declined to serve again for reasons of health.

Queuille had been premier seven months. He is a member of the middle-of-the-road radical socialist and headed a coalition centre parties in the government Petsche told President Vincent Auriol he would consult party leaders and give his reply Tuesday.

Premier Refuses To Succeed Self

Paris, July 12 — (AP)—President Vincent Auriol's office announced today that Premier Henri Queuille's resignation has been accepted himself for reasons of health.

He resigned Tuesday as a part of the formality of organizing a new government in the wake of the June 17 elections. Queuille had been premier four months. He is a member of the middle-of-the-road radical Socialist party and led a coalition of centre parties in the government.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 12 (CP) Synopsis: The cool air which invaded Southern Ontario Tuesday night has pushed below the lower lakes, but its southward march has been restrained, and as a result cloudiness and some showers are in prospect for southern regions today and Friday. Over central and northern districts there will be some periods of cloudiness, but the sun will shine for a good part of both days.

HARRIMAN WILL TRY TO SETTLE IRAN OIL ISSUE

U.S. Trouble Shooter Sent by President

Washington, July 12—(AP)—W. Averell Harriman will leave for Iran in a day or so to see whether there is any possibility of salvaging an Anglo-Iranian settlement out of a situation which most officials here regard as little short of desperate.

The White House announced yesterday that President Truman's diplomatic trouble-shooter would leave within 48 hours; Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh had accepted Truman's offer to send Harriman to discuss the dispute over oil nationalization.

Highlighted officials said Harriman will carry no instructions that would serve as a key to end the impasse. Instead, they said, Harriman's initial task will be to try to determine whether there is any possibility of working out a basis for settlement at this late date.

The most hopeful thing about his mission, it was said, is the fact that he will be what diplomatic authorities call a "new element" in the situation. A fresh viewpoint, a different personality, a man with Harriman's prestige and special relationships to the President may perhaps turn up an approach which has not yet been tried.

Nothing has been formally opened. That at least is official Washington's hope.

Hope Dimmed

Flickering hope for a settlement of the Iranian oil dispute was dimmed further July 5 when Mossadegh turned down the findings of the International court of justice. The court proposed freezing the British Oil Company's Iranian assets pending continuing company operation of the big Iranian oil installations while new talks were being made to negotiate on the question of ownership and legal control.

FAIR ARRAIGNED

Cornwall, July 12 — (CP) — Lionel Gratton, 34, Ottawa cab driver and Wanda Gough, 22-year-old waitress, were fairly arraigned in magistrate's court at nearby Winchester July 12. The pair face charges arising from a fatal shooting near Winchester last June 28.

Gratton, held on a warrant under the Mental Patients Act, underwent a mental examination by a psychiatrist from the Ontario Hospital at Brockville.

'Bill the Bishop' Recalls Great Forest Fires Which Took 71 Lives

Timmins, Ont., July 12 (CP)— Bill the Bishop reminisced about the time 40 years ago when the safest place he could find during the midst of a raging forest fire was a spot in the middle of the mile.

The outlook at the time—July 11, 1911 — was a bit grim, he recalled.

Bill, now a wrinkled, 84-year-old pensioner, is one of a handful of survivors of the fire which claimed 71 lives, according to official records, and in which 100 persons disappeared. Scores of others perished.

Bill fled Wilson and Sam Crawford were trapped down the shaft when the great fire roared overhead.

"The bottom of the shaft was flooded. We sloshed the water into the air as we sat on four submerged cases of dynamite for five hours," Bill said.

The great fire was first visible at 9 o'clock in the morning from distance of 50 miles. Acres of flame were flying through the air. Hundreds in the town rushed for the lake at the Hollinger Consolidated Gold mine.

Some threw themselves by standing lip deep in the lake.

Another of the survivors, James P. Bartlemus, Timmins councillor and former mayor said:

"I ran from my cabin and clung to a log for two hours. You could breathe if you kept your lips just at water level. The reporting thermometer made oxygen."

Bill, flies between the town and mines which had shortly before been the scene of Ontario's greatest gold rush.

Bill explained, in an interview, how he happened to get his nickname.

It was during construction of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

"Some jinborra were playing poker and I stood looking at them. One said, 'What are you, a clergyman?' I said, 'No, I'm a bishop.' Bill recalls.

The name stuck.

Red Handling of Cease-Fire Talks Cited as Evidence Peace Outlook far From Bright

Washington, July 12 (AP) — Communist propaganda treatment of the Kaesong truce talks was described by officials today as evidence that the outlook for peace in Korea is far from bright.

They held this view even before a new incident led to at least temporary breaking off of cease-fire talks.

The contact with which official Washington approached the opening of the negotiations earlier this week has been dispelled by the red use of publicity as a weapon at the bargaining table.

Adding to this feeling was the temporary snag the reds threw into the talks when they barred 30 allied correspondents from going to Kaesong. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander, said the talks have been broken off temporarily because allied newspaper men were not allowed to pass a communist check-point.

Washington authorities emphasized that nothing has been agreed on so far except some procedural matters. Meanwhile, that the communists already are fixing their negotiating position by public statements and that meanwhile the military build-up in the field continues.

State department authorities have been most deeply disturbed by the Peiping and Pyongyang radio broadcasts of a three-point demand for a cease-fire agreement which the red negotiators assertedly introduced at Kaesong.

The terms thus presented call for a flatter zone on the 38th parallel, re-establishment of the conditions existing just before the great set-to, division of Korea) and withdrawal of all foreign troops.

These specific points are all the subject of negotiation, or will have to be negotiated. It has been understood that the United Nations side has in mind a buffer zone not on the 38th parallel but along the present battle line north of the parallel. Furthermore, there is no intention to withdraw all "foreign troops" and leave South Korea open to another attempt at conquest.

But the publication of the red statement is not so much in the specific terms as in the general implication that the reds are trying by publicity to bring into the negotiations pressure which may in the end wreck the talks.

There appears to have been some difference of opinion in the government here over what to do about the communist propaganda.

One view is that this propaganda line is not of primary importance, that if peace comes to Korea the world generally will know why and if it does not come the world will place the blame where it belongs.

Another view is that the reds may convince some of the people of the world that the world that they have won a military victory in Korea and that the U.N. forces have been compelled to back down.

Second Seaway Session Fails Works Committee in Tumult

Washington, July 12. (AP)— The House of Representatives public works committee engaged in a bitter, inconclusive row today over legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power project.

Rep. Tom Pickett (Dem. Tex.), an opponent of the project, angrily told witnesses that the simultaneous closed-door session that chairman Edwin Arthur Hall (Dem. N.Y.)—who favors the legislation—had pursued "dilatory tactics".

The committee, meeting for the second straight day on the seaway proposal, again failed to vote on the legislation.

Pickett declared:

"I am going to do everything in my power to force continued hearings on this measure until this matter is disposed of and, in keeping with my opposition to it, I'll do everything to kill it."

Buckley declined to discuss the committee session.

Everybody's Mad

Pickett, still seething, said Rep. George Dondero (Rep. Mich.), a supporter of the bill, remarked to reporters as he left the committee room:

"We're all mad."

Concerning yesterday's initial meeting Buckley announced only that the committee agreed to restrict itself to consideration of two of eight seaway bills. These include the original measures introduced by George Dondero (Rep. Mich.), and Edward Hutchinson (Rep. Mich.)—both committee members—are virtually identical except for minor details.

However, it was learned from other members that opponents who cannot be named that it had held at least two roll call votes on motions.

One motion, made by proponents, proposed that the bill be reported favorably. This motion, had it been accepted by a majority of the committee, would have had the effect of killing the proposal for this session of Congress.

Seaway proponents held the view that could consideration have been delayed—as proposed in the first motion—an opportunity might have presented itself to replace with seaway supporters possibly two anti-seaway committeemen who are reported ready to resign to accept other committee assignments.

Blatnik, commenting to a reporter on yesterday's action, said he had "never seen such jockeying."

Not Amusing

"It would be amusing", he said, "if it weren't for the fact such an important matter. This (seaway) proposition is so vital to the welfare of the nation that it should be given an opportunity to decide."

The legislation before the committee provides that the St. Lawrence River be dredged to permit ocean-going ships to navigate the Great Lakes and that a 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric plant be constructed on the International Rapids section near Massena, N.Y.

Prior to the start of the present secret sessions the committee, by a vote of eight to six, held extensive open hearings to listen to testimony for and against the proposal.

A majority of the 27-member public works group toured the seaway site from Duluth, Minn., to Montreal, early last month.

Threat of Rain Thins Orange Ranks at Walk

Toronto, July 12—(CP)— The skirl of the pipes gave stiff competition to the traditional fife and drum band today in the glorious 12th parade, parade from Queen's Park to the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand.

The threat of rain thinned the Orange marchers' ranks, but more than 2,200 men, women and children joined bands, cars and the white horses of several King Billies swarming over Queen's Park as the parade gathered for its long walk.

There were 1,470 men, 500 women and 137 children representing 73 men's lodges and 137 women's lodges marching to the music of 100 bands, many of them bagpipers.

TWO SOLDIERS DIE AFTER DRINKING METHYL-ALCOHOL

Drink Thinner Stolen From Army Workshop

Kingston, Ont., July 12—(CP)— Police and medical authorities said today that two soldiers died here Tuesday from methyl-alcohol poisoning.

Police said John Joseph Leeman, 47, of the Royal Canadian Engineers at nearby Barriefield, Ont., and his friend, Lance-Bdr. Thomas Whitehead, 58, of Kingston, both died after drinking methyl-alcohol taken from an Army paint shop at Barriefield.

Leeman had been attached to the R.C.E.M.E. school for the last year as a painter in the training staff section.

Leeman was admitted to hospital early Tuesday after complaining to his wife that he was ill. He died a few hours later without telling medical officers what he had been drinking.

At least three one-quart cans of the alcohol used for thinning paint were stolen, police said.

Autopsy Performed

Dr. J. E. Kihn, Kingston coroner, said today that an autopsy performed on Whitehead showed death was due to alcoholic poisoning.

Army medical authorities said the same of Leeman's death, adding that he would have had a good chance of survival had he told them he had been drinking alcohol.

Police are awaiting the decision of the Crown as to whether an inquest will be held. An army court martial has launched a court of inquiry, second in a week, to determine circumstances leading to Leeman's death.

Earlier in the week, the army began an investigation into the death of Crewman J. W. Johnson, R.C.E.M.E. soldier from Hamilton, who died last week after drinking found unconscious early July 4 near railway freight sheds here.

Victoria, B.C., July 12—(CP)— Two golfers of a three-some sank their tee shots into the same hole at Victoria Golf Club Wednesday.

R. D. Clay aced his tee shot on the 125-yard eighth hole. H. E. Hepburn then stepped up and duplicated the feat.

Two Soldiers Mentioned in Despatches For Risking Lives to Save Refugees

Ottawa, July 12 (CP)—Two Canadian soldiers—one of Japanese ancestry—were awarded mentions in despatches today for risking their lives to save six Korean refugees who wandered into a minefield in their trek back home.

They are Sgt. Frank Henry William Taylor, 30, of 5735-2nd Ave., Rosemount, Montreal, and Pte. Masao Kanamani, 26, of Vancouver and Toronto.

Bill Boyle, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea, told of their bravery in a story at the time of the incident on June 5th.

The army said their awards are the first mentions in despatches awarded to Canadian soldiers for service under United Nations command in Korea. Earlier one officer won the Military Cross and two other ranks won the Military Medal.

Sgt. Taylor is a member of the Army Medical Corps attached to the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and is in charge of sanitation and hygiene for the unit.

Biggest Flood In State's History Due to Heavy Rains

Trains Stranded, Motorists Marooned, Water Knee-Deep

Topeka, Kas, July 12 (AP) — Flood waters poured over eastern and central Kansas in the torrent in the state's history today and lapped over into parts of Missouri leaving seven dead and five to eight missing.

At least five persons were dead in Kansas, and two in Missouri. Two more were killed by lightning at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., which was not affected by floods. Army engineers estimated damage from the floods totalled at least $15,000,000. It likely would go higher.

The Kansas River Valley was hardest hit. Many of the state's major cities were deep under the waters of the swollen river, including the North Topeka and Oakland sections of Topeka, the state capital; the northern section of Lawrence, home of Kansas University; Manhattan, Abilene, and parts of the Argentine section of Kansas City, Kansas.

Hundreds of residents of North Topeka who ignored evacuation orders yesterday were trapped by water that poured through two levee breaks.

Thirty-eight persons died in a similar flood at Topeka in 1903.

Surface travel in eastern Kansas was virtually halted today except for short highway spans by bridges.

Trains were stranded. Motorists were marooned. The armed forces and the Red Cross joined volunteers in aiding evacuees and patrolling dikes.

Boats were flown to some flooded areas and dropped by parachute.

The majority of 10,000 residents of North Topeka, across the river from the state capital, evacuated the area.

Heavy rains also sent flood waters of the Kansas River pouring into North Topeka today. Water was knee deep in the business district and deeper in some areas close to the river.

The river is expected to reach its highest level in history—33 feet—Topeka time today. North Topeka merchants sandbagged stores and carried stocks to safety. Residents fled to higher ground.

Flooding already has inundated large sections of Kansas City, Ottawa, Council Grove, Manhattan, Marion, Strong City and Florence are among the hardest hit.

$25,000 in Jewels Stolen From Hotel Suite of Actress

Toronto, July 12 (CP) —Police questioned an unidentified man today in connection with the theft of $25,000 in jewelry from actress Gloria De Haven's hotel suite last night.

The Hollywood star said the loss would have been $10,000 more had she not been wearing other jewels.

Police said the lock on her door was either slipped or opened with a key. The empty jewel box was found in the bathroom of her suite.

Miss De Haven, who left by plane for New York today, said the most prized piece was an antique watch with a bracelet of five diamonds on it.

A solid gold charm bracelet, a gift from her husband, actor John Payne, also was among the missing jewelry, she said.

Orangemen May Get Wet Feet

Toronto, July 12 — (CP) Glorious Twelfth parades marching to the strains of fife and drum may end on wet feet today.

Weather officials said there is an indication this day — of days for the Orangemen will be related out in many parts of the province.

Heavy rain and widespread showers was predicted for all of Southern Ontario north to the Muskoka district.

Occasional sunshine was forecast for North Bay regions and a mostly sunny day farther north in the Kirkland Lake area.

Board Hearing Is Adjourned On City By-Law

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 12— (CP) — A hearing before the municipal board into a by-law on the city's application for approval of a by-law setting up a slum clearance project was adjourned sine die.

The by-law was opposed by residents of property adjacent to the area, who claimed it would devalue their property and create dangerous conditions for their children. A petition containing more than 400 names was submitted to George A. Lister, municipal board representative.

Approval of the by-law would open the way for erection of a new structural steel mill by the Dominion Bridge Company of Canada. The company's subsidiary, Sault Structural Steel Company, located here for about 14 years, operates a plant employing about 200 workers. The new $1,750,000 plant would employ about 400 shop workers and more than 200 office workers, the company said.

Crown Attorney Declines to Act In Court Case

An alleged assault arising out of disposal of garbage on a neighbor's property at Cherrytree was listed on the court docket today for hearing before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, the case being laid over until next week.

Complainant in the case was Mrs. John Downey of Cannifton with Arthur Palmer of the same village being charged with assault.

The case was laid over for one week to allow the complainant to obtain counsel after the Crown Attorney declined to act in the case.

The wounding charge against Gerald Goodwin of Trenton, was again laid over until July 17th on which date it is expected the two will proceed. Goodwin is charged with wounding LAC Ally of No. 2 R.D., some weeks ago.

Nine speeding charges were listed on the docket, the majority of them being settled out of court with fines and costs ranging from $8 to $18 being laid. A number of other traffic charges ranging from driving without a tail light, passing, failing to signal and careless driving were dealt with.

Miss Helen Owens Wins Silver Trophy In Dance Competition

Last evening, marked the final exercises of the Morrison School of Modern Ballroom Dancing for the summer season in the form of a dance competition among the pupils.

Mr. Harry Morrison, director of the school and Mrs. Peggy Trainer served as adjudicators and scored the dancers, as they whirled about the floor in formal attire in a waltz and quickstep (foxtrot) heat, taking into consideration such points as poise, carriage, footwork, technique and consistency of execution.

For her relentlessly flawless performance, gracefulness and adaptability, the women's silver trophy was awarded to Miss Helen Owens, a more recent member of the studio.

Mr. Jack Trainer and Mr. Roger White jointly shared first place among the male competitors, and the disposition of the men's silver trophy having been decided by casting lots, went to Mr. White.

All contestants then joined Mr. Morrison and Mrs. Trainer in a merry demonstration of the rhumba, samba and tango as adapted for ballroom by Mr. Morrison.

Dancing classes will resume in September at which time another competition evening will be held to which the public is cordially invited.

Man of His Word When Electricity Is Turned On

Ottawa, July 12 (CP)—For 20 years Allan Moses, 63, lockmaster on the Rideau canal in suburban Hartwell, dreamed of the day he would have electricity in his house.

Last night a hydro worker stepped up.

Mr. Moses, your dream is about to come true."

Looking up from his job of "locking" a canal craft, the lockmaster snorted: If you get the electricity in tonight, by cracky I'll jump into the canal!"

Some time later the house, which had been previously wired, was ablaze with lights.

I'm a man of my word," said the elderly lockmaster. Then he leaped, clothes and all, into the canal's 20 feet of water.

His assistant, 56-year-old Fred Sankey, with the help of a rusty iron chain, towed him to safety.

Adam, Eve Involved In Lindsay Court

Lindsay, July 12 (CP) —"Adam and Eve" were mixed up in a court case here on Wednesday where George Pinet of Toronto, was charged with flying a shed at Albert Playter, also of Toronto. Pinet was given suspended sentence.

The shot was fired when Playter went to his estranged wife's house.

Said Magistrate A. E. Gee: "Things occur which—there is a triangle—it dates back to Adam and Eve."

Body of Youth Drowned in Bay Not Yet Recovered

Although dragging operations have been carried on almost continuously during daylight since Sunday there still has been no success in the search for the body of Frank Hazzard, 20, of Plainfield.

Hazzard was drowned in the Bay of Quinte Sunday afternoon when he took a cramp as he swam after an oar lost from his boat.

Today Deputy Fire Chief Frank Orr said that since Sunday from seven to 10 boats had been out a greater part of the time during the daylight hours. Off shift firemen as well as citizens had dragged thoroughly in the area adjacent to where it was considered the drowning took place. It was difficult, however, to determine the approximate location.

L. E. McLean, Gordon Edwards Win Trophy

The district doubles tournament held at the Belleville Bowling Club was abbreviated by rain on Wednesday after the games had been played. The prizes were awarded on the strength of two-game winners. Rinks from Belleville, Kingston, Stirling and other centres were represented. Smith, President, Fred Harper welcomed the visiting bowlers for a fine afternoon of bowling.

L. E. McLean and Gordon Edwards won the Belleville heat and the prizes accompanying it with two-game totals. Other two game winners were Fred Harper and Gordon Watkin, Ray Graves and Ken Smith, Wilfred Price and Joe Legault and Doug Roe and Wilbur Ross. The one-game winners were Garn Dobbs and A. R. Symons.

The greens were in excellent condition but many of the players were caught by downpour just as the second game of the afternoon was ending.

Ray Hamilton and Gerald Hyde conducted the draw.

Attacking Forces Run Into Stubborn Red Resistance

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, July 12—(AP)—Attacking United Nations forces ran into stubborn red resistance on the east-central fighting front today.

An Eighth Army communique said allied troops attacked southeast of Kumsong against light resistance but soon became "heavily engaged" with an undetermined number of reds. The communists used semi-automatic and automatic weapons and mortar fire. Kumsong is about 15 miles east of the reds' old "iron triangle" staging area.

The action was continuing in late afternoon.

To the east, allies threw back two light red probing attacks.

Only light enemy contact was reported by Eighth Army patrols along the rest of the war front.

U.N. naval units kept up their strategic bombing of the east coast yesterday.

American destroyers pounded targets at the long-besieged transportation hub of Wonsan.

The British frigate Morcambe Bay blasted communist supply routes around Songjin far up the north Korean coast.

KEEL WILL BE LAID SOON

Washington, July 11—(AP) — The keel for the United States navy's new carrier with a disappearing "island" to enable it to handle big atom bomb planes will be laid soon.

Moreover, there is talk around the navy department that even before the big carrier is finished, Congress may be asked to authorize the construction of one or two more of the same kind.

Estimates on the cost of the 60,000-ton vessel have ranged around $225,000,000. Building of the ship was authorized by Congress earlier this year.

Canadian Govt. Arranging Peace With Japan

Ottawa, July 12 — (CP)—Canada's capital, now to put diplomatic relations with Germany back on a full peacetime footing, looked ahead today to a similar step with regard to Japan.

Publication in Washington and London of the terms of a proposed Japanese peace treaty meant, officials said, that the 50 or 60 formally ending the war with Japan and re-establishing normal relations is on its last lap.

It is possible, officials said that External Affairs Minister Pearson, will represent Canada at the signing of the treaty in San Francisco around Sept. 3.

That step would open the way for return to normal diplomatic relations. Canada would elevate her present mission in Tokyo to an embassy and the Japanese would open an embassy here. They now have a trade mission here.

Action is expected shortly to elevate the Canadian mission in Bonn, capital of Western Germany, to an embassy and the German consulate here will undergo a similar change.

Seven Per Cent Drop in Butter Production

Ottawa, July 12—(CP)— Production of dairy butter in continuous decline for the last 18 months is down again in June to register a seven-per-cent drop for the first six months of 1951, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

At the same time, output of margarine also eased slightly.

Butter production in June declined to 40,041,000 pounds from 43,057,000 a year ago, bringing output for the first six months of the year to 110,675,000 pounds against 119,079,000 in the corresponding period of 1950.

Margarine production in June was 7,380,000 pounds against 7,733,000 in May and 6,115,000 in June, 1950. The six-months output was 54,870,000 against 49,037,000 a year ago.

Half-year output of cheddar cheese fell from 39,282,000 pounds last year to 31,376,000 while June production was down to 14,184,000 from 18,302,000.

Smaller Cities Getting More Industry Than Formerly

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Toronto, July 12 — (CP) — Do you want a new industry for your smaller city or town?

Apparently the chances are good for getting one, if general experience in Ontario can be taken as an indication. But, first, there are some things the average city or town must do, if it expects the industry to be running and not give it the go-by.

The Ontario experience, and some of the things that must be done, are outlined in the annual review of the new industry and branch of the Provincial Department of Planning and Development, submitted by F. J. Lyle, director, to Hon. William Griesinger, the minister in charge.

For one thing, an area must make itself known to industry, and, further, things that must be done, are outlined in the annual review of the new industry and branch of the Provincial Department of Planning and Development, submitted by F. J. Lyle, director, to Hon. William Griesinger, the minister in charge.

For one thing, an area must make itself known to industry, and, further, things that must be done, are outlined in the annual review of the new industry and branch of the Provincial Department of Planning and Development, submitted by F. J. Lyle, director, to Hon. William Griesinger, the minister in charge.

"It is coming to be recognized that industry will only locate in municipalities with adequate physical services, good schools, serviced land for housing and improved recreational facilities," the report adds.

"The popular misconception that 'most new industries land in the metropolitan area' is borne out by the record of branch-plant establishments (in Ontario) in 1950.

"Of 77 new branch plants employing at least 10 persons and having at least 5,000 square feet of floor space, no fewer than 51 chose locations well outside the metropolitan area . . .

Number of Factors

"A number of factors influenced this trend, including the availability and cost of housing and labor. Proximity to consumer markets will always be an influencing factor in some types of production, and in heavy manufacturing the source of materials also counts. But, nevertheless, a substantial number of manufacturers are now actively seeking favorable locations in favorable locations in smaller cities and towns . . .

"Industry is showing an increasing interest in the Eastern Ontario area. This apparently is due in part to congestion in the built up areas of central and southwestern sections, but more particularly to the regional promotion in the area.

"Some 32 municipalities have sponsored joint development with the leadership of the Eastern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, supported by grants by the municipal division of the trade and industry branch. One staff member now devotes full time to assisting those active in the industrial development of Eastern Ontario.

Shortages Being Felt

"The progressive attitude of industrial commissions and municipal officials throughout the province has been responsible for much of the decentralization of industry in recent years."

Of current conditions, the report says:

"Shortages of such base materials as steel, nickel and chromium have affected the main manufacturers who do not possess defence contracts, and their consequent priorities for materials. Restrictions on consumer credit have cut some manufacturers a market.

"Conflicting pressure are likely to produce a variety of results, including peak employment and production for some industries and high unemployment and loss of business for others. Companies beset by materials shortages have been advised by the trade and industry branch to explore possibilities of pools contracting as the quickest solution to their problem."

Woman Spends Winter as Trapper In Northland

Big River, Sask — (CP — Mrs. Fred Derbyshire spends 10 months a year trapping in the lake and bush country of northern Saskatchewan.

It's a hard, rugged life with little comfort.

But she is interesting and "you both love it and hate it at the same time," she says.

Mrs. Derbyshire and her husband spend a brief summer at their home in Big River north-west of Prince Albert.

Late in August they start back to their trapline in the north.

Winter supplies include staple foods like flour, sugar, beans, dried fruits, macaroni, salt pork and tea. Having no chance to grow a garden, they have no vegetables — not even potatoes.

For winter Mrs. Derbyshire — a tall, slim, blue-eyed woman — travels on the trapline with her husband. It is her chore to stretch the pelts and trim them.

In her spare moments she knits mitts and socks — with winter temperatures often 50 below zero they use a lot of them.

The 100-mile trapline is covered every two weeks. Some travel by dog team and carry a canvas tent and sleeping bags which they set up for shelter at night.

Mrs. Derbyshire doesn't ride much but runs most of the time. It's no cinch to maintain a body keep moving to keep from freezing.

They catch fish for dog food and for themselves try to kill a moose which is smoked and their main food during the winter.

The nearest neighbor is a trapper about 25 miles away.

One winter Mrs. Derbyshire decided not to go north. But she found the winter spent in civilization was harder to take than being north with her husband.

French Ambassadors Instructed to Express 'Strong Objections'

Paris, July 12 — (Reuters) — French ambassadors in London and Washington have been instructions to express France's "strong objections" to the Japanese peace treaty draft, a French Foreign Office spokesman stated here today.

The objections, he said, were:

1. The associate Indo - Chinese states or Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos not participate in the signature of the treaty because they suffered today from the Japanese occupation.

2. France objected to certain economic clauses in the treaty draft.

Objections in the wording of the draft. These objections were purely on phrasing, the spokesman said.

New CPR Diesel Engine Taken Over CNR Tracks

City residents who Wednesday noon saw a shiny new diesel railway engine pass down the Pinnacle Street tracks may have wondered if the Canadian National Railways had dispensed with the smoky steam locomotive for switching purposes inside the city.

But such was not the case. The new diesel locomotive was the property of the Canadian Pacific Railway and was being delivered from the Kingston Locomotive Works at Kingston.

With C. P. R. having no connecting tracks through Kingston, the new diesel engine had to be run over C. N. R. tracks as far as Belleville, the first centre where there was a connecting link between the two railroads.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 12—(CP)—Base Metals advanced over a broad front in an otherwise fairly mixed stock market today. Trading was again extremely quiet.

Consolidated Smelters was an extraordinary standout in Base Metals as it jumped $4.50 to $150.25. Hudson Bay was up 1 1-8 and Noranda, Waite Amulet, United Keno Hill, Steep Rock, Sherritt Gordon, Quemont, Golden Manitou, Labrador and East Sullivan added fractions.

Industrials held about even with price changes mostly in small fractions. Papers, steels, utilities, agriculture, foods, and refining oils showed a majority of gains in the groupings. Liquor weakened and the rest of the board was mixed.

Western Oils were fairly mixed but the majority of issues were in the plus column. Golds attracted little attention.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 12 — (CP) Early sales were too few to establish the market trend today at the Ontario stockyards. Receipts, cattle, 60; calves, 10; hogs, 100. No sheep or lambs were received. The holdovers was 400.

Medium quality weighty steers brought $22.25-$25 and common to medium steerers $20-$23.

Calves were steady at $35-$36 for choice vealers.

Grade A hogs were $40; sows $32 dressed.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Buffalo, N.Y., July 12 (AP)—Cattle 100; good dairy type cows 28.00-27.00; cutters 22.00-28.00; fat yellow cows 22.00-25.00; canners 18.00-21.50; good dairy type heifers for slaughter 27.00-30.00; good weighty sausage bulls 30.00-31.00.

Calves 100; good and choice handyweight calves 39.00-42.00; medium to good 37.00-39.00; culls and bobs 30.00-37.00.

Hogs 100; good and choice nearby hogs 19.00-24.50; top 24.50; good sows 17.00-19.00.

Sheep and lambs; salable receipts too few to establish a market not established.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, July 12 (CP) —Produce prices on the spot market here today: Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged.

Supplies were ample and demand slow at the egg market. Graded eggs, cases free, delivered Toronto, were: grade A large 75-76; A medium 73-74; A small 69-70; grade B 66; grade C 50. Wholesale to retail: grade A large 80-81; A medium 79-80; A small 73-74; grade B 68; grade C 55-57.

Butter solids: first grade 63 1-2 cents; second grade, not established; western 64 1-2 cents.

Egg Prices Take Big Increase In Past Week

(By The Canadian Press)

Egg prices have jumped from two to 12 cents in the past week, a survey of major Canadian cities showed today.

The biggest jump was in Montreal where grade A large sold at 93 cents a dozen. Toronto prices were up five cents to 85-88 and Ottawa's size 84-86.

Shortages caused the increases.

Halifax reported a 10-cent rise in two weeks to 85 cents and Edmonton a jump of one or two cents to 72-76. At the coast they sold for 82 in Vancouver and 85 in Victoria. Large dollar-a-dozen eggs were predicted.

Help for Greece Urgently Needed Ambassador Says

Athens, Greece,, (CP) —Canadian Ambassador George L. Magann, has left for home on a long-deferred leave bearing an urgent appeal for help from the poverty-stricken people of war-torn Greece.

Before he sailed with his family for his native Toronto, the ambassador revisited many of the bombed-out villages of northern Greece where families are still housed in the ruins of shattered homes and living under conditions of abject poverty. In some of the more remote mountain communities he found the people not only subsisting on meagre rations but without many essential household necessities.

In co-operation with the Greek community of Ontario and other organizations, the ambassador arranged for immediate shipment of blankets and other urgently-needed supplies.

"The Greek War Relief Fund of Canada," Mr. Magann said, "unfortunately is in the process of being wound up. But while I am in Ottawa I will take what steps I can to revive this organization or find some other means of channelling practical help to those areas in most need of it."

Erroneous Reports

The ambassador deplored what he described as misleading reports in the press of the country about large-scale emigration to Canada of surplus Greek population.

There is at the moment no special agreement between the Canadian and Greek governments for mass emigration," he said. "There has been some preliminary discussion but nothing definite has been settled.

Press statements implying that mass emigration has become a matter of official policy have been most misleading. Unfortunately, they have resulted in disappointment to many people, who, believing they had only to present themselves at the embassy to secure a Canadian visa, sold their possessions and arrived in long queues outside our doors."

At present, he said, emigration of Greeks to Canada was proceeding at the normal rate of approximately 200 persons each month. Carefully selected, these were mainly farmers, domestic workers, artisans and technicians. "Most of them were sponsored by relatives or friends already in Canada or by prospective employers.

While in Canada, the ambassador said he would also seek some arrangement to solve the acute newsprint problem which confronts publishers in Greece.

Busmen's Holiday, 18 Months With Pay

Dublin, July 12—(CP) — For more than 70 weeks two Dublin bus drivers, Edward O'Leary, 28, and Owen Monaghan, 37, have been signing for their pay envelopes for doing precisely nothing. Both are more than anxious to settle down to work but they can't.

The trouble started back in February, 1950, when the two men decided to leave the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union to join the National Union of Railwaymen, with headquarters in London.

On the morning that Monaghan and O'Leary made their move, their colleagues at the depot, 310 strong, went on strike. They insisted they would only work with members of the Transport Union.

The strike lasted five weeks and then was halted only by an agreement to give the two recalcitrant drivers leave of absence with pay until the dispute was settled.

But agreement between the two union is still as far away as ever.

Meanwhile, Monaghan, father of three children, has drawn salary exceeding $1,350 and O'Leary $1,250, including pay packets for four weeks' holidays.

A year ago both received an issue of new uniforms which were locked away in moth balls. They are due for another issue soon.

The two men would like to put an end to their enforced vacation, particularly O'Leary. Two years ago he decided to marry but the wedding day has been postponed until the dispute is settled.

"Naturally, I'm hoping this farcial affair will end real soon," he said. "But one thing is certain —Owen and I will stick it out to the end. All we ask is freedom to join the union of our choice.

Full Five-Day Work Week In Store for Workers

Windsor, Ont., July 12 (CP)—A full five-day work week is in store for all Ford of Canada workers next week, barring unforeseen circumstances, a company spokesman said today.

Stocks of materials are being rushed into company's Windsor plants to augment shortages in numerous stockpiles while personnel department men are busy adjusting work schedules and seniority slates to re-allocate men in various departments as a result of the layoff of 629 men last week.

On Tuesday and Wednesday two of the company's plants were partially shut down when production schedules got "out of balance" because production was behind in certain departments.

The company ordered general production to be stopped today and tomorrow because of stock shortages and the need for adjustment of the working force because of the layoff last week.

Charles Marshall, vice-president of Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) charged the company's action in discontinuing production operations for varying periods Tuesday and Wednesday, followed by a suspension of operations affecting some 7,500 men today and tomorrow is part of a company program of "intimidating" the workers by a production speed-up.

Wilson is a 32nd degree Mason. Shriners are Masons although the Shrine is organized independently of the Masonic order. Marshall M. Porter of Calgary was elected Imperial Outer Guard.

Eight Persons Burned to Death In Plane Crash

Paris, July 12 —(Reuters) — Eight people were burned to death today in an air crash at Gao airfield, French West Africa, an Agence France-Presse dispatch from Dakar reported.

The report said the plane, a French military Dakota transport, crashed and caught fire soon after taking off. It was on its way to France.

There were 17 persons aboard. The nine survivors were taken to hospital severely injured.

HOW GREAT IS OUR PRIDE?

It is a strange thing, the loopholes one can find in the laws of a democracy. There are two cases in point that prove that statement, right in Canada, and they leave one wondering whether or not the law is right or wrong. In one case, newer and tighter legislation is being considered by parliament.

The first case is that of Fred Rose, ex-member of Parliament, ex-espionage agent, and still communist. Mr. Rose was convicted of being a member of an espionage ring which operated with some efficiency in Canada. The ring was communist-inspired, and was thus quite in tune with Mr. Rose's sympathies. He was sentenced to six years in penitentiary, and will be released from his jail home in August. Mr. Rose was a member of the Canadian parliament, as a Labor-Progressive. Labor-Progressive is the polite way of saying "communist party in Canada." Now it appears that Mr. Rose will not be deported, and may run for re-election to the parliament of this country, if he so chooses.

We pride ourselves on free elections and the operation of a democratic country. But does our pride overcome the feeling that perhaps a man of Mr. Rose's calibre should be barred, not only from the election proceedings of this country, but from Canada itself? And always.

The other case concerns the activities of the wife of a Windsor lawyer, also a communist sympathizer. This woman, under the guise of a peace mission, and in truth sponsored by the communists, took a trip to Korea. While there, she apparently visited the battle lines. She saw men of many countries fighting aggression in its most naked form, and had the audacity to come back to Canada and say that United Nations soldiers were the most guilty in the atrocity field.

Here is a woman whose husband makes his living in a free country. She has not said that she wishes to leave the country for Russia or any of its satellite states, but she does put the United Nations soldiers, among others, are committing the atrocities in the Korean fields.

The question again arises: Do we value our pride in the freedom that this woman enjoys more than we do our own safety? And the answer again is "no, always."

Under the existing treason laws, nothing can be done, in a punitive way, to this woman. She is allowed to travel as she sees fit, and to say what she likes. Legislation is being considered to effectively deal with such cases.

We Canadians are under no obligation to extend our freedom to those who fight to destroy them. If laws are necessary for the control of these people, let us have them.

IS IT A COMMUNIST TRICK?

Perhaps one of the most distressing notes in the ceasefire negotiations now taking place at Kaesong is that they are considered by some as merely another step in the pattern of communist world aggression. Ideas are now being expressed that the Korean armistice, if it should come off, will be just the advance notice of a communist stab in Europe.

If that is the communist strategy behind the request for a cease-fire, then it is obvious that the 38th parallel would in fact be a defeat for the United Nations. But if there is no trickery involved, the cease-fire, despite the beliefs of many men high in United States and British governments, will be regarded as a U.N. victory. The basic fact is that the United Nations will have done what it set out to do — clean the communists out of South Korea, and save that part of the country for democracy.

There was no real indication when the start that the U.N. had any intention of doing anything more than that. When the battle was first joined more than one year ago, it was enough to know that the main purpose was to drive the communists out of the southern end of the republic. Outgunned and outmanned from the start, the U.N. forces took a beating. But they eventually pushed their way back to and over the 38th parallel. Even then, there was not too much concern as to where they would stop. They drove on, but were finally reversed, when the power of men and ammunition. Then the long trek started again, and was successfully completed again. And it was only when the communists realized that the U.N. forces would come again and again, until they achieved their objective, that they offered the white flag.

For a long time, Russia disclaimed any knowledge of the Korean fight, and claimed that the war was a simple North Korean-South Korean matter.

The communists crowed over their victories for quite some time. They found that their star was fading, however, and a cease-fire was in order. Now, if they figure the armistice to be just another stall, another trick, then the world is in for more of their dirty tactics. We cannot count on Soviet honor any longer, for there is none. And if they break out again, somewhere else in the world, it may be that the free forces of the world will have more battles to fight.

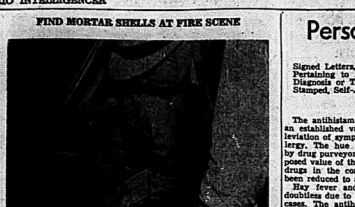
FIND MORTAR SHELLS AT FIRE SCENE



Possibility of sabotage was being checked by U.S. intelligence officers and the F.B.I. following the series of gas tank blasts that rocked the Newark, N.J., waterfront and set off the worst fire in that city's history. Mortar shells were found near the scene of the original explosion in the Warran Propane Gas Company yard. Here a shell is taken by investigators for laboratory examination. — Central Press Canadian.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 12th., 1931

The Ontario Intelligencer softball team defeated the Kiwanis team by a close margin. The game was played last evening on the old cricket grounds, the score being 23 to 9. To "Pop" Robinson goes the credit of making a home run with the bases so left field. The types certainly hit old girl Bill. The Kiwanians tried two pitchers to stem the tide of the printers, namely E. Shapiro and E. Fahey, but could not do so. The following composed the teams: Printers, — Brockington, Manning, R. H. Hardwick, B. Brown, C. Hardwick, Barlow, B. Hardwick and Eggleton; Kiwanis: Wray, Logan, McIntosh, Holway, Shaw, Fahey, Smith, Young, Womacott and E. Doyle. The umpire behind the plate was W. Knott and on bases H. Bawden.

Natural gas was discovered in this city some years ago and here is an interesting item from the first copy of July 13th., 1891. "The natural gas operations in the rear of the Smith Manufacturing Company's place are progressing slowly. The drillers state that the drill does not take well up to 40 feet in this location. The outfit may be moved to the property owned by Mr. J. P. Thompson on the Trent Road, near the Devil's Elbow, where gas was struck several years ago and burned for several weeks; the excavation had to be cemented over".

Ald. Panter has given instructions to the workmen on the great crop of burdocks which line the city streets. This is a good idea.

At the close of the inspection the officers tendered a banquet to Col. Otter at Hotel Quinte.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE JOY OF MANY INTERESTS

The most interesting of persons is that one who can tell us the most about the largest number of interesting things. We keep travelling on the train in a club car where I listened with silent enthusiasm to a gentleman who was entertaining the entire room with his tales about famous people, countries he had visited jobs he had held and books he had read. With others, I was puzzled as to the line of work that he was engaged in, so when all had left the room but this man and myself, I asked what his business was—and he said that he was a scientific farmer.

All people who have many interests are healthier and happier. They don't get time to worry about themselves or possible troubles. There is always something interesting to do or to discover. One or more hobbies are life-savers. Most of my life I have had some hobby to take up my time that might otherwise be wantonly wasted. None of these hobbies need to be expensive.

Many interests keep the mind alert and active and every day is welcomed with greater zest for there are then so many things to look forward to. With many different interests to occupy one's time and energies we never want for something to do. We keep happiness aboard and other people welcome us as companions.

I have a dentist friend who has what is probably the finest collection of wood carvings in existence. He is a famous dentist, yet in addition to his china, he has many other hobbies, etchings and paintings of cows by a fine American artist. He is also a lover of books and many have been the delightful talks that we have had about favorite authors.

With us all there is always the fear that we may gradually get into a rut and unhappily slowed up. One or more interests outside that which takes most of our time, help to make us better workers, no matter what we are engaged in. We can never know too much about a number of things. For the past few years I have taken up with cameras and there are few interests so fascinating or that return so much in satisfaction. Method gives so much pleasure to others,

Banquet Honors 100th Anniversary Of Reuters Agency

London, July 12—(Reuters) — One thousand persons, including the world's leading newspaper men, gathered here Wednesday to salute the basic principles of truthful reporting—freedom and accuracy—at a banquet honoring the 100th anniversary of Reuters News Agency.

Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, delivered the keynote address. Cooper said that the truth is a groundswell for international peace — and countries get the truth wherever newspapers co-operate without government control to collect and distribute the news.

Both the AP and Reuters gather and distribute news on a co-operative basis under newspaper control. The AP marked its 100th anniversary three years ago.

Among the guests at the dinner were Prime Minister Attlee, members of his cabinet, and prominent figures of the arts, law, literature, industry, sport and entertainment.

In the newspaper field representing Canada, were Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press, and Mrs. Purcell; Edwin S. Johnson, chief of CP's London bureau; W. H. Woolnough and W. G. Matters of the London office of the Toronto Star and Mrs. Matters.

Increase Price Delivered Milk To 21 cts. Quart

Toronto, July 12 (CP) — The Ontario Milk Control Board Wednesday night increased the retail price of home delivered milk in Toronto to 21 cents a quart, from 20 1-2, but ordered a cut to 19 cents a quart in the over-the-counter price.

The new maximum delivered price may be charged immediately. The store price will remain at the present 20 cents a quart for 14 days.

The board also set a new price for the producer. As of Sept. 1, this target is set at a hundredweight instead of the present $4.20.

J. B. Houck, secretary-manager of the Toronto Milk Distributors' Association, described the board's decision on milk prices as "completely unrealistic."

Scattered Rain Reduces Amount Of Hay Crop

Toronto, July 12—(CP)—Scattered rain in southern Ontario Wednesday continued to reduce the amount of the provincial bumper hay crop that can be cured. Agriculture department officials, who said recently that crop losses due to the wet season might reach $10,000,000, said additional loss during the last few days might run to $4,000,000.

Hay losses due to the wet weather have already been high, but farmers still feel that a good crop can be harvested if the sun stays for a couple of weeks. Mould has hit much of the hay standing in fields.

Rainy weather has also caused 40-per-cent reduction in the apple blossom crop. Agriculture department officials say wet weather has given scab a chance to get started and almost half of the McIntosh crop this year will have to go for cider.

The wet has also affected other fruit crops. Cherries have been suffering, and peaches and later fruits have had sprays washed off almost as fast as they can be applied. Removal of many by repeated downpours has given both insects and fungus diseases an opportunity to cut into fruit yields.

Sugar beet and tobacco growers have found it difficult to work their fields but the rain has made the weeds grow.

TWO BRUNETTES SOUGHT

Woodbridge, Ont, July 12—CP —Police said Wednesday they have learned that two blondes sought in connection with a $10,000 bank robbery here are really brunettes.

A farmer near Woodbridge told police that two women had parked in a sideroad where the three masked gunmen ditched the car they used in the Dufferin Trust day of the Royal Bank of Canada branch here.

The farmer said they believe the women supplied a second escape car for the three gunmen first reported them all blondes but police said Wednesday that the women were definitely brunettes.

Police said they have found no trace of the robbers.

BRITISH CASUALTIES

London, July 11—(AP)— Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell told the House of Commons tonight that total British casualties in Korea up to midnight, July 9, were 200 killed or died of wounds, 819 wounded and 1,101 missing.

HAY FEVER AND ASTHMA

The antihistaminic drugs have an established value in the alleviation of symptoms due to allergy. The hue and cry raised by drug purveyors as to the supposed value of the antihistaminic drugs in the common cold has been reduced to a low rumble.

Hay fever and asthma are doubtless due to allergy in many cases. The antihistaminic drugs have proven to be of value in the relief of hay fever symptoms, much less so in symptoms of asthma.

The current thought today, in the approach to the hay fever and asthma problem, is that every case should be investigated from the standpoint of allergy, including various tests for sensitivity to "allergenic" substances.

Treatment, based upon the concept of allergy, consists in "desensitization"—removal of sensitivity to specific substances by the injection of increasing, small amounts of the substances involved. Testing and treatment call for experience and skill. Under private care the process is not inexpensive. Furthermore it uses up much time.

Many victims of hay fever, after a few bouts with the allergists, have hit upon the expedient of "waiting it out" with such drugs as have appeared to relieve, find their most troublesome symptoms. Despite the notable success achieved by allergists in their approach to many of these cases, there are always those who for one reason or another decide not to "follow through" if quick results are not obtained.

Calcium and vitamin D appear to be of considerable value in the treatment of hay fever and asthma as attested my many persons who have written me to that effect. Their opinions have been substantiated by reasonably scientific research on the subject.

A victim of hay fever or asthma—even one undergoing treatment —desensitization—can under no circumstances take the slightest chance of harm by "dooping" his vitamin D and calcium intake. For pamphlet on Hay Fever or one on Bronchial Asthma and stamped self-addressed envelope, if you ask for both inclose ten cents. The theory and mechanism of the action of vitamin D and calcium, not only in hay fever and asthma but in several other disorders is discussed at some length in my booklet, The Calcium Shortage — hich you may have upon requesting it by name and remiting 25c in coin together with an addressed, stamped return envelope.

WEDDINGS

MacGILLIVRAY—OSIER

At the rectory of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, July 4th., at 11:00 a.m. by the Very Reverend Dean B. Gavin, when Violet Mary Osier, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Osier, became the bride of Wallace A. MacGillivray, formerly of Harrisburg, Ontario, now of Belleville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter MacGillivray. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively attired in an ankle-length gown of white nylon embossed French lace over taffeta. She wore a headdress of white carnations, stephanotis and lilies, and carried a round-style cascade bouquet of cream roses and white lilies.

Mrs. Roger Gardner, of Detroit, Michigan, sister of the bride, gowned in an ankle-length gown of baby pink embossed nylon marquisette, with headdress of pink rosebuds. She carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds, baby's breath and blue cornflowers.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Roger Gardner, of Detroit, Michigan.

The reception which was held at the Golden Acres Inn, Kingston Road, was appropriately decorated with pink and white streamers, wedding bells and summer flowers. The bride's table, daintily lovely with its three-tiered wedding cake topped with flowers making the bride's bouquet, and was surrounded with a fluff of pink tulle, and flanked with tall ivory cathedral candles in silver holders, and the bridal bouquets.

The bride's mother received in a gown of navy sheer with white accessories and corsage of red roses. Following the reception, the guests assembled at the home of the bride, where flowers, white wedding bells, pink streamers and baskets of red roses added their individual beauties to the lovely gifts on view.

Later, the young couple left by motor for Western Ontario and Michigan, the bride travelling in navy crepe faille with white lace trim, white accessories and corsage of white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. MacGillivray will reside in Belleville upon their return.

Out-of-town guests were present from Detroit, Kingston, and Cornwall.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a dinner given in her honor by the girls of the staff of the Bank of Montreal, when she was presented with a table lamp and a walnut Duncan Breath and blue cornflowers.

The bridegroom was attended by members.

19 Year-Old Dutch Girl Beauty Queen

Toronto, July 12 (CB) —A 19-year-old Dutch girl who can't speak what some of her own set, but who can speak six languages fluently, won a beauty contest last night.

Phyllis Greenaway, an attractive blonde is dazzling white sharkskin dress, was chosen as a finalist in the Miss Toronto contest from Miss Etobicoke, Toronto suburb.

In remarking on the three oak trees which stand in front of the house, which passed, laden with a generous supply of good things, the chairman compared them to the three cardinal virtues of Faith, Hope and Charity. Two minutes of silence were observed in memory of those members who had passed away during the past year. As it was the Sabbath, family prayer preceded the dinner.

Three new members were added to the family circle, the last tables were placed, laden with a generous supply of good things, the chairman compared them to the three cardinal virtues of Faith, Hope and Charity. Two minutes of silence were observed in memory of those members who had passed away during the past year. As it was the Sabbath, family prayer preceded the dinner.

Regrets that some were unable to attend were also expressed; Mrs. Cooke, who is now in California, who were arriving one week too late for the reunion; Mrs. Cooke, of Madoc, who is ill in hospital; and Mrs. Allan Brooks, who is recovering from a recent operation and unable to be present.

During the afternoon, boating, swimming, races, and contests were enjoyed by young and old, as well as a candy scramble and balloon scramble. The winners of races and contests were: Mrs. James Johnstone, Mrs. Frank Francis, Mrs. Frank Francis, Mrs. Donald Cook, Mrs. Charles Cooke, Mr. Ronald MacInnis, Mr. Jack Cooke, Mrs. Ronald Cook, David Hoffman, Richard Hoffman, Mrs. Bill Wells, Mr. Charles McGuire, Molly Jolliffe, John McGuire, James Johnstone, Jr.; Jack Hanna, Jr.; Douglas Parker, Linda Cooke, Larry Truman, and Bobbie Hanna. The prize for the youngest member of the clan went to Susan Maribeth Cooke.

Two wedding anniversaries, those of Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire, whose 25th anniversary was on July 19th, and the 35th of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Boyle, on the 13th, and one birthday, that of Mrs. Jean Johnstone, of Springfield, Illinois, on July 9th, were also celebrated.

Mrs. Jack Cooke tendered appreciative thanks to the host and hostess whose kind hospitality made the occasion possible.

A sing-song around a huge bonfire brought a happy time to a close.

Cook Clan Holds Family Re-Union At Three Oaks

Three Oaks, summer home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanna, Hugh's Island, was the scene of a gala event when the Cooke family members met for their annual reunion last Sunday, mid cloudless skies and a temperature of 80 degrees. Mrs. Jack Cooke was chairman for the occasion, assisting with arrangements were Mrs. Cooke, who had assembled from afar, including Toronto, Oshawa, Toronto and Nova Scotia.

Women's Activities

CANNIFTON WMS

The July meeting of the Canniffon WMS met at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Williams.

Business followed when the minutes and correspondence were read.

Mrs. Williams gave a vote of thanks to all who in any way helped to make the sale of homecooking a success. A donation from Mrs. Clayton Benedict and also from an anonymous friend was much appreciated.

Mrs. Williams then called on the different secretaries for a few remarks or reading in connection with their work. Mission Monthly, secretary Mrs. O. Brenton, told of some interesting things that could be found in the Mission Monthly. In Christian Stewardship Mrs. Holgate gave an interesting reading and the Christian Citizenship secretary, Mrs. J. Pullen also gave an interesting reading which appealed to all Mrs. Brenton then closed the reading. Mrs. J. Williams read a brief article on stewardship which reminded us of the most reading some of the missionary books in the summer months. The August meeting will be withdrawn.

Worship-Work

The theme for the worship service was "Worship and Work" taken from the Missionary Monthly. "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only" and "faith by itself, if it has no works is dead. Faith is completed by works." Scripture was read by Mrs. W. Brenton and Mrs. Lobb.

Mrs. Williams asked some questions on the study book which were answered by Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Matthews and Mrs. Holgate. Prayer by Mrs. Mills. Mrs. D. Brenton, after a brief address on Mrs. Howard who has moved from the community, and on behalf of the W. A. and W.M.S. presented her with a small gift, for which Mrs. Howard graciously thanked all and said she would try to visit the society often. Rev. Mr. Merrick closed the meeting.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. D. Brenton called a short meeting to plan for the W.A. church service on Sunday July 15th when Mrs. Bobbs of Belleville will be the guest speaker. The YMCA boys choir will be in attendance and a cordial welcome is extended to all.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers.

Dainty Afternoon Tea Honors Bride-Elect

The specious home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jeffrey, in consession of Sidney, was a profusion of beauty yesterday afternoon, with baskets of lovely summer flowers, when Mrs. Jeffrey entertained at an afternoon tea in honor of Miss Sandra Jean Winters, of Toronto, bride-elect of this month, and fiancee of Sidney eldest son, Donald Jeffrey.

Receiving with the charming guest-were, the hostess, Mrs. Jeffrey; Miss Winter, the bride-to-be; her mother, Mrs. David Winters, of Toronto; while the Misses Ellsworth Hamilton and Carol Denyes, opened the door.

Mrs. Eric Denyes, of Belleville, was tea room hostess, extending a most gracious welcome to all. The daintily tea table was particularly attractive with its Madeira linen cutwork cloth, centred with Dahelia roses arranged in a silver-edged crystal bowl. The silver services were presided over by the two grandmothers of the bride-elect, Mrs. Winters and Mrs. Mellish both of Winnipeg. Later, they were relieved by Mrs. Fred Denyes, of Brighton and Mrs. Will Harry, of Trenton.

Those who served were, Mrs. Garth Sine and the Misses Luella Cronan, Alma Cronan, McCullough and Geraldine Harry, and Rose Marie Denyes, while the dainty arranged trays included, Mrs. Kenneth Denyes, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Wesley Denyes, of Belleville; while Mrs. George McCullough was in charge of the kitchen.

Many were the kind wishes extended to the bride-to-be for her future happiness in the years that lie ahead.

Full-Skirted Suits With Petticoats In Vogue for Fall

New York, July 12 (AP)—The hemline is at grandmother's day are with us again, as even the most ardent followers of the boys and bobby sox soon will be aware.

With less a designer than Jane Derby, noted for elegance and conservative taste, is showing full-skirted suits for fall, trousers panied by petticoats not only befrilled and ruffled with bobbed hair bows but also quilted.

A sensation of her collection, shown today in the visiting fashion press, is a suit of mauve tweed with plum velvet collar and cuffs. The skirt flares like a morning glory at the bottom and there is petticoat of plum-colored quilted satin, designed to peek out in a beguiling manner when the wearer mounts a high step or crosses her knees.

Sterling after a year of straight-line-skin-tight skirts, the new silhouette may be all the rage. It may make girls study up on the feminine arts and graces once more, learn how to swish a petticoat and flirt a fan and stop borrowing all the clothes from their brothers' wardrobes.

While most designers are showing one or two full-skirted suits for fall, Mrs. Derby shows a majority of her styles with flaring hemlines and makes petticoats go with all them.

Also in today's fashion line-up was Christian Dior, the Parisian credited with fathering the "new look" of several years ago. Dior now changes his mind about sit-down look, showing suits with skirts still pencil-slim and narrow and even deserting his beloved hip-padding. He does, however, achieve a rounded feminine line in suits by means of pockets, peplums and such, and keeps the shoulders in natural dimensions.

This year Dior calls in the arched silhouette—and it's all done without benefit of pads, bones or hidden girders.

WILL SET TORCH

New York, July 12 — (AP) — Civil defence officials will set the torch to abandoned buildings and set off explosions in the bombing Saturday of Rochester, New York state civil defence authorities want to learn just what to meet the emergency of an atomic attack when and if it should come.

Women Work In 30 Groups For Red Cross

Lethbridge — (CP) — Displaying the kind of organization and zeal that makes men blink with surprise, women here are going all out for the Red Cross.

More than 30 different groups have been enlisted by the women's work committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. C. B. Macdonell.

The groups include all varieties of religious, racial, vocational and social organizations. Even inmates of the provincial jail have been enlisted to help.

After the war, only one Red Cross group has continued to work for the society. But with the war abroad and major disasters such as the Winnipeg floods and the Rimouski, Que., fire occurring in Canada, the feeling developed that the humanitarian work of the Red Cross should not be allowed to lag, and the set-up was reorganized.

Some Dollycrates Made

Sterling silver and wool are delivered to women who are unable to attend meetings.

Country women telephone collect to the Lethbridge headquarters and material is shipped out to them.

The Red Cross room has a present and packing department with two pressing tables donated to the society.

There's even a "disaster cupboard" now, filled with quilts, sheets, hot water bottles, bandages, mattresses and pillows.

"All this is for emergencies," Mrs. Macdonnell said. "The Red Cross is a sort of 'Johnny on the spot' and when disaster strikes we want to be right there to provide the immediate relief necessary."

The men help, too. Off-duty R.C.M.P. officers assist in tying up large cartons of articles.

TWO SOLDIERS KILLED

Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., July 12—(AP) — Two soldiers were killed and 10 others sent to hospital yesterday by a lightning storm at Fort Leonard Wood. The accidents occurred in two separate sections of the training area at the fort. At one spot, a bolt of lightning resulted in the two deaths and injured eight others, and at another spot two men were injured when lightning struck a shack in which they had sought refuge.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The July meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Bartindale, with 14 ladies present. The president opened the meeting.

During the business, final plans for a bazaar, sale of home-cooking and afternoon tea to be held July 24th., at Oak Lake, were made.

The members reported making ten calls and having sent thirteen cards.

Mrs. R. Searles gave a stewardship reading and a poem "Counting on You".

The theme for July was "Meet the People of Trinidad".

Mrs. Bracken read "With Friends in Trinidad".

Mrs. Mills and Mrs. F. B. Finkle told of men and women serving in Trinidad and Mrs. Searles told about the work of the schools there.

From these schools, many leaders in Christian work come, and Mrs. D. Hollinger mentioned some of the work the leaders are doing.

Mrs. Farley Lindenfield read "The Four Freedoms".

Mrs. Alex Turner told about some of the work of the Trinidad W.M.S.

The worship service outlined in the Monthly was followed. The theme was "Tell Me About God". After the benediction the hostess served refreshments.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Marrying may be serious—yes or no?

This column is in answer to all the girls who have written me about one particular type of problem. For purposes of stating the problem, let me quote a couple of the letters. Says one:

"I am engaged to a fellow who is in the service. We became engaged about five months ago, after going with each other for the six previous months.

"We are truly in love with each other and have planned on a wedding in June, but our plans were broken up by my fiance's being transferred.

"Now our problem is this. My parents want us to wait until he gets out of service before getting married. We want to get married on his furlough, and have decided that we will be married regardless of parental objections. I have been dating other fellows while he was away, but I can truthfully say I love him more than ever. We are wonderful to me and always write me long letters, and I feel they are being terribly unreasonable. The question is, would we be doing the right thing if we got married against their wishes? We are both 21 years old."

Writes another: "My boy friend and I have been going together for a year, and planned to be married. However, he has now received his notice for active duty and has to leave before long.

"We love and trust each other very much, and he always said that if he ever had to go into service before we were married, he wanted to marry me before he left. But now he is hesitating a little, because he may have to be gone for such a long time. He's afraid I'll get lonesome by myself and look for somebody else. But I know others have been married under the same circumstances and managed all right, and I can, too. I think that if he loves me as much as he says he does, he should want to marry me before he leaves and know he's got a wife waiting for him. We are both adult twenty. I would very much like your opinion on this."

Unsettain Future

Now what makes this problem so complicated and hard to decide, of course, is that there is so much that seems equally right on both sides of the question. It is only natural that two young people in love want to have the satisfaction and security of knowing they are man and wife, when they are about to be separated and face such an uncertain future. On the other hand, the very uncertainty of the future is often a sound reason for postponing the marriage, as feelings often change in the course of a long separation.

I am very much against teenage marriages under these conditions for there is very great probability that when a teenager asked for lasting love is actually only a passing fancy. Next thing you know, one of these famous—and devastating—"Dear John" letters is on its way to the boy in Korea or wherever.

But if the young people have suffered at or passed the 20-year-old mark, and have known each other long enough to be as certain as it's possible to be that they know their own minds; if they have the wisdom to plan wisely for the period of their separation and for their future together, so that their parents will not be forced to assume financial responsibility for them, then I see no objection to their being married while the young man is in service.

In the specific case of the girls who wrote the letters I have quoted, since one couple is in the early twenties and the other just entering that period, and since they have known their fiancees a reasonable length of time, it seems fair to assume that they know their own minds and their hearts pretty well by now. So I think if they qualify in the ways I have mentioned, they should be allowed the privilege of making their own decisions. And I think the same applies to any other young couple who can qualify in the same way.

Fashion Flashes

WATCH THE SURFACE of the latest cotton for new fabric interest and texture. While cotton, woven in tucks, is used for a pretty resort dress. It is sleeveless and has a deep, pointed collar. Halter top is flanged by wide revers.

The FAVORITE fabric for beach and play wear is terry cloth, plain or print. While terry, with a neat navy blue print woven with a jersey back, is used for a bra and bloomers suit. With it a wide stole of knotted navy blue yarn.

GOOD MANNERS

Today's Good Manners Hint

It's very easy . . . and extremely thoughtless . . . for a group of people to ignore newcomers, pretend-ers, bicycle riders and so forth, when asked in a place where inevitably they will impede pedestrian traffic. Let's annoy the courteous person in the group who will suggest that they move their carelessness or thoughtlessness.

And I think the same applies to any other young couple who can qualify in the same way.

At the proper moment in the ceremony, the best man may untie both rings; or the best man may until the bride's ring, handing it to the groom, and the maid of honor may until the groom's ring, handing it to the bride.

4. Not at all necessary to serve ice cream. I suggest: serving hot coffee, if convenient; and, to supplement the wedding cake, perhaps small cakes and/or cookies.

A loving daughter is a sorrowful father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My beloved mother passed on two years ago, and my father and I have lived together in our family house. He has been so devastated by sorrow over mother's going that he could not face having any guests here. But in August we are taking a small house in a country village where quite a few of his friends live in the summer, and he has consented to have me invite them to dine with us or to luncheon after church on Sunday. Have you any suggestions as to how I should best go about extending these invitations?

Father's Daughter

Good news . . . I know how grateful and comforted you must be at your father's decision to step forth again into social contacts with his and your friends. I suggest that, as the house is in your father's house, write your invitations, in his name as well as yours. For example, in your note of invitation to "Mrs. Hill" begin, "Father so very much wants to see you and Mr. Hill again (it has, as you probably know, been very difficult for him to see even his closest friends since mother went away), and he has asked me if I would ask you if you two dear friends will come to dine with us here on Friday evening, August 17th, at 7 o'clock. This would give us both special happiness. Sincerely,

BEAUTY

Danger lurks in sunburn

Every year there are more and more sun-worshippers. They weekend in the country, they lie on beaches, they camp in a backyard and on roofs peeking in the sweltering city. Some of them acquire the color of a lifeguard, which may be becoming or not according to one's idea on the subject.

There is no doubt that exposure of the human hide to sun and air has a healthful effect when done in moderation, but it can be overdone. The medical profession has discovered that too much of this pastime may result in the appearance of skin maladies. Everybody knows, of course, that blistering sunburn is like any other burn and can result in infections if not treated properly.

There are no benefits whatever to be gained from prolonged exposure to sunlight, which reddens the skin, violently. The real state of affairs should be avoided; this can be accomplished by the application of a suntan oil. There will be no burning, but a pleasing golden color will eventually appear.

Too heavy a tan will have a deplorable effect upon the texture of the skin. As a protective measure nature will toughen it, it will lose its fine transparent quality and the pores may become enlarged.

Tan is quite a different thing from sunburn. It often happens that those who burn do not tan. Still others still more seldom are brown, but will collect freckles. Thin, delicate, white may flake after several exposures. Next

British Papers Praise Play By Canadians

London, July 12—(CP)— The Manchester Guardian today praised Toronto's touring Upper Canada College players for an "excellent performance" of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

The Canadian company is presenting the play at a number of British schools and colleges in what sponsors describe as an unique experiment.

The Guardian said the all-male cast was curiously convincing, even when playing spinsters or young girls. The Daily Telegraph, in similar vein, gave the Canadian company credit for a "sensitive and delicate" performance.

"We have a high standard of school acting (in Britain)," the Telegraph critic said, "and so I intend a high compliment when I say that Upper Canada College could compete in our highest class."

The reviews related to the company's performance Tuesday night at Cripplegate Theatre.

Today the 27 Toronto players went to Harrow, Conservative leader Winston Churchill's old school, to give another performance. Tomorrow they will have lunch with Sir Edward Peacock, British financier and native of Glengarry, Ont. Sir Edward, sometimes referred to as Canada's leading "export," was English master and senior house master at Upper Canada College from 1895 to 1902.

QUADS BORN PREMATURELY

Bolton, England, July 12. (CP) — Quadruplets, three boys and a girl, were born three months prematurely Wednesday to Mrs. Hilda Watkins, 36, wife of a Bolton truck driver.

The quads were in oxygen tents and their condition was said to be satisfactory.

Only four sets of quadruplets out of 19 born in Britain in the last 15 years still are living.

A total of 343 new corporations were registered in Finland during the month of February alone.

Group of Fast British Frigates Ready for Trials

London, July 12—(Reuters) — First of a new group of fast British anti-submarine frigates, specially protected against atomic radiation will be ready for trials within a week, it was authoritatively learned today.

Officially described as being able to deal with any submarine which a potential enemy is likely to be able to put to sea for many years, the new frigates are redesigned and streamlined for atomic warfare.

The first to be ready for trial will be the converted destroyer "Relentless."

Design of the ship has been modified to present a smaller silhouette. Superstructure has been cut to a minimum.

The ship is controlled from an operations room with the aid of a wide-range periscope. In action, most of the men will be protected from radiation effects.

Quads Making Good Progress In Incubators

Bolton, England, July 12—(Reuters)—Britain's latest quads, three boys and a girl born within 12 minutes last night, were making good progress today in special new-type oxygen incubators.

Hospital authorities said the mother, Mrs. Hilda Wilkins, 36, of Little Lever, and the four babies, born three months prematurely, were "in a satisfactory condition."

Peter weighs three pounds, James three pounds, 10 ounces, David three pound, 11 ounces, and Ann three pounds, nine ounces.

They have two sisters age 12 and eight. Twins born to Mrs. Wilkins some years ago both died.

The quads are the second born in Britain this year but one of those born to Mrs. Rita Prior, of Wolverhampton, did not survive.

Fires on Dump Cause Concern To Industry

Campbellford — The regular meeting of the Campbellford town council was held on Monday evening, with all members present with the exception of Mayor Ayrhart. Reeve Locke occupied the chair.

Routine business took up the majority of the session, with the matter of fires being lit at the dump occasioning considerable discussion.

The Gair Co. requested action on the part of the town to forestall any fire or sparks spreading to their property. It was pointed out that signs and other warnings have been issued against the lighting of the fires at the dump without avail. The chairman of the property committee was empowered if it is deemed advisable, to put a watchman at the premises to prevent the lighting of such fires, and to prosecute any one apprehended in so doing. The fire brigade will be asked to extinguish the fire when deemed necessary.

The by-law respecting concreting links and their upkeep cost was passed in accordance with the agreement signed by council and councils' council.

The auditors' report was received, after which council adjourned until Monday, August 13th.

SEVEN CRUISERS DESTROYED

Hamilton, July 12— (CP) — Seven expensive cabin-cruisers were destroyed in a fire which gutted a section of Kerr's boat house here Wednesday night. The fire took more than three hours to extinguish. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Wing Commander P. S. Turner Takes Over Unit

Ottawa, July 12—(CP)— Wing Cmdr. Percival Stanley Turner, D.S.O., D.F.C., 38, a colorful RAF pilot of the Second World War, will take over the RCAF's operational training unit at Chatham, N.B., shortly, it was learned today.

He will succeed Wing Cmdr. E. B. Hale, D.F.C., 37, of Hamilton, Ont., who has commanded the Chatham station since April, 1949, and now goes to England in connection with the projected establishment of RCAF fighter squadrons in Europe.

Wing Cmdr. Turner was in the Battle of Britain with the RAF "All-Canadian" Squadron 242 and in various theatres throughout the Second World War. He was credited with shooting down 14 enemy planes, three of them in one day over Dunkirk. A native of Devon, Eng., he attended Toronto schools and the University of Toronto. He transferred to the RCAF in July, 1940 and since 1947, he has commanded the RCAF tactical wing at Rivers, Man.

HOBBIES FOR SEAMEN

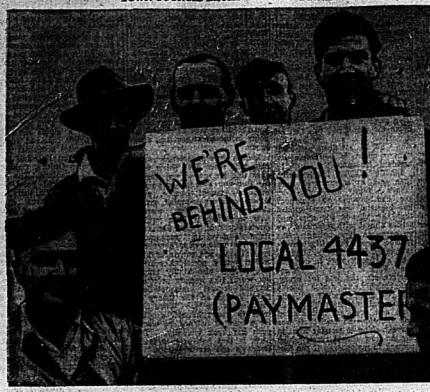
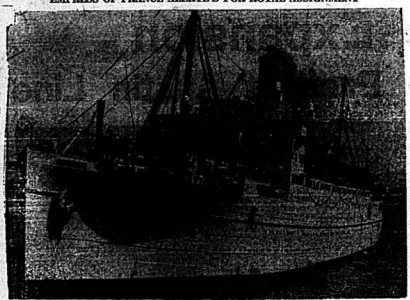
TOWN COUNCIL BACKS TIMMINS' STRIKE IN MINE DISPUTE



Asking both federal and provincial intervention, town council at Timmins, Ont., has joined workers in neighboring mines in support of the two-day walkout of some 1,600 Hollinger mines' employees. In a telegram sent to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, the council said that the government's policy of adhering to a fixed price for gold was basic cause of the walkout and asked Ottawa to intervene in the dispute between the employees and the mine owners. The strike, said to be "the most orderly" in the history of the mining camp, was called when the company refused to grant a check-off of union dues and a 13-cents-an-hour wage increase recommended by a conciliation board. — Central Press Canadian.

EMPRESS OF FRANCE ALERTED FOR ROYAL ASSIGNMENT



Already famous for her record during World War II when she travelled 413,000 miles as a troopship, and sank a submarine, the Empress of France is now being prepared for assignment number one. The 20,000-ton ocean liner, seen above, has been designated as official carrying craft to transport Princess Elizabeth and her husband, Duke of Edinburgh, across the Atlantic. Every rail and smokestack of the 700-passenger liner is being polished, the royal ensign hoisted, in preparation for Sept. 25 when the royal couple will set sail for Canada. — Central Press Canadian.

"Relieved" of Duties

Prime minister of the communist puppet state of Romania, Dr. Petru Groza, above, has been "relieved of his executive duties by his Soviivet masters, although he still holds his formal title of premier. Under close surveillance by Romanian security police, Groza has been accused of deviating from communist party line for some time by Romanian foreign minister Ana Pauker. Groza's previous duties are now being carried out by a special committee appointed by Romanian party's politburo, which takes direct orders from the Soviet embassy. — Central Press Canadian.

For eight members of the crew of Empress of France, catering to royalty will be a repeat performance, as they served on Empress of Britain, which carried the King and Queen back to England after their tour of Canada in 1939. Forty-five of the liner's crew of 350 will work in the kitchen preparing tasty delicacies for the young royal couple. Talking over old times when they accommodated the King and Queen are Edward Griffith, second steward, left, and John Gilbert, deck steward. — Central Press Canadian.

"Perra" Believed Found

Object of one of the largest dog hunts in Canada, three-year-old "Perra," is believed to have been captured at Ste. Genevieve, Que. The Alsatian had been missing for three days after it made its escape shortly after it arrived in Montreal by plane from Holland. The famous dog is credited with saving his master, Joseph Silih, and family, seen above, from captivity as they fled from their native Yugoslavia to Austria in June, 1950. The Silih family are now en route to Canada to join their pet. — Central Press Canadian.

Three Sisters Own Race Track In Montreal

Montreal — (CP) — Three sisters are the big powers behind horse racing in Montreal and they say they have as their object the improvement of racing in Quebec.

The women are Mrs. Jeanne Seremba, Mrs. P. Yvon and Mrs. Lucien Chartrand. They have owned Blue Bonnets race track here for the last seven years.

"We are proud that this year we have the best horses that we have had in 20 years," Mrs. Seremba said recently as she watched the races.

"We want to improve the quality of racing here and so we hope to make our track really modern."

The result is that gradually old Blue Bonnets is having its face lifted and is being generally improved. It's part of the sisters' 5 year plan to bring their track up to the pitch they think proper.

Last year the sisters established an electric tote board. This year they are building new barns so that at least 100 horses can be quartered here.

The sisters inherited the track on the death of their father, Joseph Cattarinich. Native Montrealers, they have refused large offers for it.

Said Mrs. Seremba, "We have been with racing ever since we were little. We wouldn't be happy away from it."

When the 42 - day season closes in Montreal she goes to Toronto to follow races there and off to Florida for the winter for the same reason.

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

The elevator nearest her whirred and the door slid open. Lucilla stepped back, feeling as if she'd been caught naked, until astonishment at the vision emerging from the elevator blotted out everything else. If anyone had been caught rather naked, it was the newcomer, yet she couldn't have looked calmer. Cerise-satin trunks and a sleeveless satin blouse resembling a child's panty-waist revealed her extraordinarily beautiful figure With her short curly hair and young sweetly wholesome face, the effect was a startling blend of Miss Atlantic City and a Varsar undergraduate. She walked past Lucilla toward a door at the end of the corridor marked employees lounge, then turned. "Are you looking for the Beautiful-You Registration desk?" she asked, as casually as one would ask a freshman on campus "are you looking for the biology lab"

Lucilla stammered, "thank you but I don't really think. . ." Her unfinished sentence floated off in the perfumed air.

"We might have one more vacancy for the spring term. Classes start day after tomorrow."

Lucilla was silent, digesting this.

"My name is Miss Willit, if you'd like to ask for me."

"Miss Willit," Lucilla repeated, her light throat relaxing, because the whole process sounded so normal, like asking for a special clerk in a store.

"How did you happen to hear of us?" Miss Willit asked genteelly. Lucilla was so taken back she came near saying "but your ads are plastered all over the magazines, and you've got signs all over the front of the place." Something about the girl's genteel manner stopped her.

Put on the defensive and needing references to establish herself, Lucilla glommed onto Clarice. Miraculously, she even remembered Clarice's last name — Tompkitts.

The girl first looked blank, then radiated pleasure. She clasped her hands between the protruberant portions of her satsar undergraduate. She walked past Lucilla toward a door at the end of the corridor marked employees lounge, then turned. "Are you looking for the Beautiful-You Registration desk?" she asked, as casually as one would ask a freshman on campus "are you looking for the biology lab"

Lucilla stammered, "thank you but I don't really think. . ." Her unfinished sentence floated off in the perfumed air.

"We might have one more vacancy for the spring term. Classes start day after tomorrow."

Lucilla was silent, digesting this.

"My name is Miss Willit, if you'd like to ask for me."

"Miss Willit," Lucilla repeated, her light throat relaxing, because the whole process sounded so normal, like asking for a special clerk in a store.

"How did you happen to hear ax.

In the foyer of the apartment, she stopped to glance at the telephone pad, which was blank except Gretel had used invisible ink, an act Lucilla wouldn't have put past her. "No messages for me?" she called, bending to scratch Sniffles, the sad-eared spaniel, under his chin. Gretel came out of the kitchen. "Nobody called you all day," she announced with morbid pleasure "Not even Mr. Webb."

"Oh good, I was later than I expected." The cool-mistress-of-the-house act never cut any ice with Gretel, but it made Lucilla feel she was at least hiding scars incurred in daily skirmishes. They had had Gretel, or been had by Gretel, ever since Arthur had received his first raise, two years before. She was Bavarian by way of Milwaukee, and not only knew her own mind, but professed to know everybody else's. She was an adequate cook an overadequate housekeeper, and Hoopy, for some baffling reason, adored her.

Hoopy, said Gretel, had been invited to spend the afternoon at a schoolmate's.

the bedroom to complain "everybody in the school's got tellyvishun except poor Hoopy, and its' got so she don't hardly come home at all," the implication being that if the Webbs cared for their child, and for the sanctity of the home, they too would have tellyvishun. She forebore saying that she herself would be happy to sit indoors and watch prize fights and roller derbies seven days a week, Lucilla who had spent an exhaustingly emotional day being a widow, grandmother, schoolmate, potential beauty, and finally a mere house, cpt Gretel off with, "I'll be in the tub, if anyone wants me."

"Not that you've told me what we'll be having for dinner," Gretel said darkly. Lucilla was shocked, or at least felt she ought to be shocked, by her remissness. Goading herself she managed to suggest salmon loaf, Gretel listened, then announced she had already bough veal for wienerschnitzel. "Mr. Webb likes wiener schnitzer."

Lucilla was so annoyed she said, "even Mr. Webb might get sick of it." This was a dig at nationalist pride, and at Gretel's best dish.

When Gretel was mad, her face didn't flush, but only looked flatter and more doughty, ready to be crimped around the edges and stuck in a hot fire. Lucilla said hurriedly, "how nice the furniture looks! Did you just polish it?" It was a pointless question in that no such sop ever appeased Gretel, and besides, the whole place reeked of furniture oil.

Gretel snuffled, a more contemptuous sound that a sniffle. and went back into the kitchen.

Lucilla running her tub, thought, "I ought to get out those bath salts Josie gave me for Christmas," and then forgot, as she always did. When she dressed she omitted rouge, and thought self-pityingly, "I look tired." Then she put her face so close to the mirror she had to squint cross-eyed, and told herself. My skin's a lot better than Clarice's to start with. The name of Miss Willit, and Registration Desk bobbed to the surface, but this was too definite, and the memory of the blue-satin panty-waist was too overpowering: Her mind dove for cover. . . Haven't read the last New Yorker.

Lucilla dislodged The New Yorker carefully, then sprawled on the couch looking listlessly at cartoons, Suddenly the Beautiful You advertisement hit her eyes with the impact of a flash bulb. This time, they had turned on the inner fountain of youth for a Mrs. Chittledock, and washed half of her away. In the after her torso was as sinuous as a blacksnake, her profile was eagerly chin-up, and she carried a fur cape over one arm, as if she'd dashed to the photographer's between a cocktail and dinner date. One could almost feel the after giving off waves of joie de vivre. Lucilla, absently stroking Sniffle's up-thrust head, thought, I'd look nice in a fur cape. The whimsically cheek-boned man appeared, to say fondly, to a vivacious, laughing, fur-caped Lucilla: "You never seem to get tired."

A key clinked; Arthur's voice called "Hi Mommy." His wife's mind tore off in furs gullilly. Arthur came in from the foyer. "Have a good lunch?" The hand not carrying the evening paper patted her shoulder. Lucilla said "Mmm. O.K." He looked around expectantly until she reminded him Hoopy was at the Cantwells.

The dining end of the room was at the opposite end from the foyer, up three raised steps, with the table against the middle of the three windows. When Lucilla and Arthur first looked at the apartment, Lucilla had been charmed with the steps. Hoopy had been even more charmed. She had flung herself down them at intervals of 30 seconds and littered them with dismembered dolls, empty cold-cream jars, and other booby traps for unheeding feet. Now that Hoopy was old enough to keep her toys in her own room, at least theoretically, Gretel carried on the tradition of Live Dangerously by waxing the steps to a fare-thee-well.

Arthur went up them cautiously, as if he were digging cleats into ice, and put his head into the kitchen. Sniffles padded after him, although there wasn't a chance of his being fed before dinner. "Good evening Gretel. Something smells good." Gretel said loudly, "well, at least it's not canned fish loaf."

"Mind if I open a window?" Gretel said it wasn't her who would have to est soot and them penny little flies all over her food.

The window squeaked open. Arthur careless in victory, skidded down the steps, slid two feet on a scatter rug, and grabbed the side wall. He sat down and said: "There ought to be employers' accident insurance."

Lucilla giggled involuntarily, then said in a surprised tone, "that's a funny idea." Somehow she had become so convinced her husband was literal-minded that she viewed his occasional sallies almost with resentment, as an error in type-casting. She fancied herself the witty conversationalist of the family, although most of it took place in her own head. Face to face with new acquaintances, she was too prone, unknowingly, to divide people into two groups: rather dull, and worthy only of items about children and dogs, or sophisticated and therefore so critical it was nerve-racking to wonder what to say or how they'd react, which seemed to mater even if she disliked them. Arthur had never come under either category.

They had met three years after she came from Billings, Pa., (population 13,000) to New York. Her older brother Lyle was working in the export division of Rub-dub, and had got the 22-year-old Lucilla a job doing research reports. It consisted of going through trade papers and medical journals and writing synopses of pertinent articles for Rub-dub executives. Lucilla so recently an English major that flecks of purple passages still clung to her hair, was frustrated by the fact that she could not use adjectives in synopses. However, she was conscientious enough to do what she was hired for, and young enough to feel that living on one's own salary of $25.50 was to dabble one's feet in success and romance. Unfortunately, during the third month at work, she met Rodney Mool, and the effect was as painful as going in the water too soon after lunch.

Rodney was an intense young man who wore dark shirts with dark ties. He spewed out slogans for Rub-dub because, as he immediately taught Lucilla, publishers were small-souled, gross-stomached, capitalist morons who would never dare publish masterpieces of truth. She read Rodney's novel in manuscript with the unfocussed, new born eyes of love, and convinced herself it was a powerful, searing job. Rodney also kindly taught her words like lumpen proteteriat and several mispocutions from Veblen on the theory of conspicuous waste. When she tried to assert herself, groping for a kind of balance, he would push her back violently. The truth is that half-balance made Rodney's ego teeter wildly.

No one had been more dumbfounded than Lucilla's brother Lyle when Hollywood bought Rodney Mool's novel as an original. Rodney was invited to come out to write the screen play, which turned out eventually to be a comedy melodrama.

Lyle had been unexpectedly tactful. He brought home several kinds of B complex pills, and several kinds of uncomplex young men not forcing her to take either. He didn't bring Arthur for Lucilla, but for himself.

Arthur had come to Rub-dub from a rival concern, and had spent two years as a representative in Latin American countries. Lyle not only admired Arthur, but wanted to get his advice on how often those Latin temperaments took cold, and how fast they could be converted to Rub-dub. To Lyle's genuine bewilderment, Arthur seemed more interested in his kind sister's description of a movie she'd seen than in Lyle's reasoned analysis of the potential bronchial upsets (and subsequent Rub-dub sales) in all French Guinea, Colombia, and Santo Domingo. The next time, Arthur asked point-blank if Lucilla would be there, and suggested they all have dinner together first. Instead of getting down to hoarse chest colds in Colombia they went to a movie and got Mae West's own brand of hoarse chest.

In his physical format, Arthur was neither tall not short, thin nor fat, although even then his middle was solid. He had medium-blue eyes, medium-blond hair, and a face that curved out at the sides in an affable cheekline, and was boxed off above and below by a square chin and squarish forehead. His mouth was wide and lip-color, rather than arrogantly, wetly red as Rodney's had been. He was a white-shirts and dark-suits man.

Bonn Motors Distributor Of Hudson, Reo Truck Dealer

A big step in a Belleville business which first entered to the public in 1945 came this week as Jack Bonn announced a distributorship for Hudson cars and a dealership for Reo trucks. Mr. Bonn, in adding the two new units to his showroom floor, can now provide products for all classes of car buyers, and for men who have heavy-duty trucking needs.

Mr. Bonn, who started his business in 1945 at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets with himself and one other man, now employs 18 persons. He has three salesmen to serve the public. Coincident with his gaining Hudson and Reo, he has enlarged his parts department, and has hired skilled mechanics to give the public efficient service. His immediate policy will be to give fast delivery on the units in which he deals.

Mr. Bonn will continue to operate his used-car sales lot east of his present business.

Covers Three Counties

The Hudson distributorship covers three counties—Hastings, Prince Edward, and Northumberland. Under his contract with the Hudson company, Mr. Bonn will appoint sub-dealers throughout the counties. His Reo deal is a straight franchise. Mr. Bonn will retain his status as master dealer with the Austin organization. This also allows him to appoint sub-dealers in Hastings county.

Mr. Bonn's first venture into the automobile field came in 1946, when he secured the Willys Jeep franchise. He switched to Austin in August, 1948, and moved to his new building in November 1950. His foresight permitted him, in this his new building of large enough to accommodate any new franchises.

Mr. Bonn feels he is in a position now to provide service to blanket the automobile field. He has the Hudson to satisfy the "big-car tastes" of many, and the Austin to satisfy the rest of the demands of the auto-purchasing public. And in addition, the Reo truck provides a fine service to truckers.

Dismissed Rector Willing to Leave On Certain Terms

Toronto, July 12. (CP)—A six-month dispute that has rocked a strife-ridden Toronto Anglican parish appeared near settlement today with the resumption of negotiations.

Rev. Henry W. Garbutt, ousted as rector of St. Barnabas Church for infractions of Anglican canon laws, said last night he is willing to leave peacefully —provided Bishop A. R. Beverley of Toronto meets certain terms.

Bishop Beverley removed the 49-year-old clergyman from his post last Monday on the advice of a diocese commission on differences. The commission recommended Mr. Garbutt's dismissal as the only means of restoring peace.

Following the dismissal order, Mr. Garbutt charged that the commission "pre-judged" him. On succeeding days he stated he was going to "stand by my parish whatever happens", seek a position with a United States Episcopal Church; take his case to a higher church authority.

Then last night following a three-hour meeting with his lawyer, R. J. Wilson, Mr. Garbutt said he was willing to give up his rectorship if certain conditions were met.

Asks General Demit

He asked for a "general demit" from Toronto diocese declaring that he leaves as a priest in good standing in the Church of England in Canada.

In addition he sought settlement for the money he spent on his church apartment—one report was $15,000—and permission to remain in his apartment until October 1. He said he wanted an allowance for four months' holidays he didn't take during his term of office and three months salary in lieu of notice.

He also asked return of his pension contributions and of papers he forfeited the diocese several years ago on his return from the diocese of Nigeria in Africa.

Chancellor R. M. Soward, of Toronto diocese is to meet with Mr. Garbutt and his lawyer tonight to discuss the terms. So far, the chancellor has agreed to the demit and is reported ready to grant the pension request. He has declined comment on the other conditions.

Meanwhile, H. C. Cox, Toronto diocese hospital chaplain, is scheduled to take over the rectorship this Sunday.

Negro Family Not Allowed To Move In

Chicago, July 12 — (AP)—Police remained on duty all night near an apartment building in suburban Cicero after a disturbance last night at a Negro family prepared to occupy one apartment.

But the Negro who rented the apartment told Cicero police he would not move his family into the apartment. His message was broadcast by police to a crowd of about 3,000 which milled around the area of the three-storey building.

Policeman Robert Canek, 25, was injured last night when hit by a brick. Windows in several apartments were broken. Vandals entered the apartment rented by the Negro family and destroyed some furniture and tossed it out of windows. Later vandals burned the furniture.

Police later used tear gas to halt a group of about 100 from entering the building. Firemen were called to extinguish a blaze started in a vacant lot near the 20-apartment building. About 80 policemen were at the scene.

Harvey R. Clark, Jr., 29, a bus driver for the Chicago Transit Authority, moved in furniture earlier this week. But he and his wife and two small children left the building Thursday. Other families also remained away from the apartment last night.

No Negroes live in Cicero, a community of 70,000.

Clark has filed a $200,000 federal court suit charging Cicero police with marshanding him when he first tried to move into the $90 a month apartment.

Journey Home Boosts Morale Of War Brides

Toronto — [redacted] important that war [redacted]st home once in a while, that's why the Canadian War Brides Association was formed.

"Most of them like Canada and would never want to live any place else," says Mrs. L. A. Preston of Toronto, a member of the Association executive. "Once they see home again, they are more satisfied to return to life in Canada."

Every time a British girl who married a Canadian in the Second World War heads home for a visit, she brings the C. W. B. A. a step closer to its objective: special rates for groups of war brides going home to see their relatives.

"We could guarantee to fill the planes and steamships," says Mrs. Preston.

Many of the women were young girls when they came here as brides. They didn't fully realize how far they were going from their own people.

The Association is a branch of the Federation of Trans-Atlantic Brides and Parents Associations, formed three years ago in Britain. In Canada there are between 5,000 and 6,000 active members of a potential 50,000.

Dominion-Wide Groups

The groups are scattered across the country. In each members co-operate on such money-raising projects as bazaars, dinners, dances. Profits are divided among the women, to go toward the funds needed for that return visit to the homeland.

"We're not a philanthropic organization," explained Mrs. Preston.

However, where necessary, the groups have helped individual members.

The CWBA group in the Toronto area recently contributed toward the return fare of one of its members doomed to die of cancer. The British-born wife of a Canadian soldier lived at near by Alex. She wanted to go home to die.

Funds were raised to send her, her husband and three children to Britain. The young Englishwoman died the day after he reached home.

The Toronto group plans to publish a bulletin similar to the monthly pamphlet distributed from headquarters in England.

The British bulletin carries lists of parents coming to Canada and their destination. This is distributed to associations throughout the country. Similarly, the Toronto bulletin will carry the names of war brides visiting in Britain.

Mrs. Preston says "quite a few" of the girls now are back home. Others plan a visit this autumn.

Pool Room 'Vagrant' Now Kitchener Chief of Police

Kitchener, Ont., (CP) — A stranger picked up in a city pool room 11 years ago on a vagrancy charge now is Kitchener's chief constable.

John Patrick, now 36, was arrested by police officers serving under him in his present job as chief constable when the pool room proprietor reported there was a suspicious stranger hanging around. Patrick was hauled in and charged but was released when he told his story to the deputy chief.

That was May 18, 1940, when the Ontario attorney-general's department was investigating the Kitchener police force. Patrick had been working as an undercover investigator for the criminal investigations branch, who brought him to Kitchener.

The 200-pound chief is keenly interested in sports, particularly as a means of combatting juvenile delinquency. His men, many of them former athletes, supervise baseball and hockey teams.

Patrick, himself, is a former athlete. He played football for the Regina Rough Riders in 1934 but a broken shoulder halted his playing career almost before it started. He is also interested in baseball but was up after he "beaned a guy and nearly killed him."

The chief has done much to streamline the force since he became chief. He formed the city's first traffic squad this year and recently reorganized the morality squad.

He permits officers to patrol in shirtsleeves during the summer. New open-neck coats have replaced the old unconformable closed jackets.

Foreign-speaking citizens find Patrick an understanding chief. During his 16 years as a police officer he has been called on numerous times to interpret in court. Besides English, he can speak German, Czechoslovak, Polish and a smattering of French.

U.S., Britain Formally Unveil 'Peace of Reconciliation' With Japan to be Signed by 50 Nations

Washington, July 12 (AP) — The United States and Britain as co-sponsors formally unveiled today a "peace of reconciliation" with Japan they expect to be signed by some 50 nations.

Ambassador John Foster Dulles in charge of negotiations for the U.S., said it still was hoped Russia would join in the settlement. But he gave notice the other countries otherwise will make peace without Moscow.

The treaty, which Dulles termed "unique" in history, is due to be signed at San Francisco the week of Sept. 3. It strips Japan of its pre-world war two overseas holdings, but permits the Japanese to rearm and in other major respects restores the defeated empire to the status of a sovereign equal in the free world.

The signing is to be followed by a U.S.-Japanese pact permitting the U.S. to retain troops and military bases in and near Japan, pending the future creation of a system of collective security for the Pacific. A similar mutual defence pact among the U.S., Australia, and New Zealand and a separate commercial treaty between the U.S. and Japan are parts of the general settlement.

Dulles predicted the draft will be "generally acceptable to the 50-odd nations that fought war with Japan."

"No one will be 100 per cent satisfied but almost everyone should be about 95 per cent satisfied," he said in a statement.

Impossible to Wage War

Dulles listed as unique the direct negotiations by which the terms were worked out without a general peace conference, the restoration of a free Japan without any attempt to impose permanent restrictions, and the principle of collective security under the United Nations. Of this latter arrangement, he said, "there will be a combination of U. S. and future Japanese forces, and perhaps others, so that it would be materially impossible for Japan to wage a war of revenge."

When the treaty comes into force, perhaps early next year, American occupation payments to Japan of $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year will cease. Dulles told reporters it depends largely on Korean developments whether the U. S. then will be called upon to add Japan to the list of nations receiving American aid. Japan now is supported from war orders from the Korean fighting.

After keeping aloof, Russia four months ago started intervening in the treaty plans. Moscow insisted that the big powers, including communist China, make the treaty terms. Moscow said they should include withdrawal of occupation forces in Japan and return of Formosa to red China.

At a press conference, Dulles said he hoped Russia will sign. He said that further contact will proceed in any event and noted that Moscow has no veto.

LOTS OF ROOM

Kirkland Lake, July 12 (CP) —Reeve Ann Shipley today said in an interview that Kirkland Lake is not one of the municipalities asking for assistance under the proposed Ontario Housing Scheme.

She said there were enough empty houses in Kirkland Lake to take care of the population in the district.

"Sudbury," she said, "has asked for approximately 1,200 units, and is complaining because it is to receive only 300 houses."

United Church Urges Control Of Breweries

Toronto, July 12 — (CP)— The United Church Observer, twice monthly magazine of the United Church of Canada, today called for nationalization of Canada's liquor and beer industries.

The editorial charged that the "little fellows" had been "squeezed out" of the industries, making nationalization much simpler than it would have been some years ago.

"All the government would have to do would be to take over the management of a business that had already been prepared—albeit unwillingly — for nationalization by men like Samuel Bronfman (president of the board of directors of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Ltd.)."

The editorial said the leader in the drive "for monopoly control" of the brewing industry is "Canada Breweries," under the direction of E. P. Taylor. (It) is bending every effort at the moment to get control of Norman Dawes' National Breweries interests."

Naked Man Being Sought As Attacker

Southampton, July 12 — (CP) — A naked man who was given a suspended sentence last week for one appearance in the nude is being sought as the unclothed attacker of a 13-year-old girl here Tuesday.

Police of this village 20 miles west of Owen Sound swore out a warrant for Albert Leroy, 37, Dromedary - born Northern Ontario bush worker, who was fined in police court at Owen Sound last Saturday for parading nude at Meaford June 29. He is said to use four aliases — Lenard, Lenoir, Lennox and Sienard.

Police Sunday a naked man was seen in the Allenford district near here and on Tuesday the young girl was molested near a summer cottage here. When she kicked her attacker he ran for the bush.

A well-tanned nude man was later questioned near a girls' camp at nearby Miramichi Bay and train residents organized searches for him.

Charge Screen Star With Manslaughter

Lehighton, Pa., July 12. (AP) —Actress Carol Bruce was charged today with involuntary manslaughter in the death of a truck driver in a highway accident.

Miss Bruce, who gave her age as 31, was freed on $1,000 bail.

She was involved in a collision yesterday with a coal truck. The driver, Sherwood Fehnel, 22, of Nazareth, Pa., was crushed to death.

The car Miss Bruce was driving was damaged but she and a companion, actress Sylvia Kaiton, escaped with minor injuries.

50,000 Gallons Of Gas Tipped Onto the Water

Vancouver, July 12 (CP)— Potential disaster by the thousands of gallons stalked the Vancouver waterfront early today.

A barge tilted twice yesterday and spilled some 50,000 gallons of gasoline onto the water.

The North Vancouver fire department said an attempt would be made to beach the barge, owned by the Home Oil Company.

A spark could touch off a major blaze. Firemen patrolled the waterfront throughout the night. Police barred the public from the danger area.

Vancouver's new fireboat stood by. City council rushed through an emergency resolution yesterday authorizing the board to operate outside city limits.

All ships in the harbor have been warned of the danger. If crew members throwing lighted cigarettes or cigarette butts into the water, Industrial plants were warned, too, and one lumber mill closed down.

The danger will last until the gasoline evaporates or is washed away. The outgoing afternoon tide carried some of the inflammable liquid away yesterday, but incoming tides increased the hazard again.

Garbutt Sought Interview With Bishop Lyons

Kingston, July 12. (CP)—Rev. H. W. Garbutt, dismissed rector of St. Barnabas Anglican church in Toronto, talked briefly here yesterday with Bishop King, chancellor of the Ontario diocese. He also visited the office of the Ontario Synod. Today, Mr. King had no comment about the interview except to say it was a brief one.

The Toronto rector was dismissed from his pulpit Tuesday by Bishop A. R. Beverley, of Toronto diocese following weeks of controversy.

Archbishop Lyons was not available. He is resting at his summer home at Lake Sutherland Lake, recovering from a heart ailment.

Deaf Folk Prove Expert Weavers

Calgary (CP)—Mrs. C. S. Bang of Montreal decided in the depression year of 1933 to aid deaf people.

She set up a trashing school to teach the deaf to weave.

Now she has a thriving school and a thriving business under her managership.

Mrs. Bang began teaching her students the art of weaving, but in 1940 when the demand for woven carpets and rugs increased so much, she opened a studio to sell woven articles to the public. Today a total of more than 100, the studio now employs as many deaf students as the school can train. Operated on a non-profit basis, the studio turns over its net profits to the school.

After 19 years of teaching deaf pupils by written directions and demonstration, Mrs. Bang speaks highly of their ability.

"They learn much faster than normal people because they can't hear distracting noises and are interested in using their hands," she said.

Of the 89 pupils at the school, more than half are Albertans. The high percentage is due to the fact that Alberta has no deaf school, Mrs. Bang said.

All looms used in the school are made by deaf boys in the school.

Truth, Foundation for Peace, Free Press Vital, Cooper Says

London, July 12—(AP)—Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, said last night the peoples of the world will better understand each other's problems if their newspapers, free of government control, give them the truth.

Cooper was the principal speaker at a banquet marking the 100th anniversary of Reuters News Agency. Truth, he declared, is a foundation for international peace, and countries get the truth where a free press co-operates to disseminate the news.

Both the AP and Reuters gather and distribute news on a co-operative basis under newspaper control.

Cooper said the AP, which marked its 100th anniversary three years ago, developed "a method by which the people assuredly can get the truth while freedom lasts."

"This method," he said, "is the control of the collection and dissemination of the news by the newspapers themselves, rather than by opportunists or by governments."

"Such widely distributed sponsorship of a news agency by the newspapers means it is supported by a large group of individual who hold diversified views and suspicions of every proposal under the sun. As the news service is their own responsibility and with each newspaper jealous of its own individual views on matters of public interest, the more quickly will untruth be recognized and measures of correction be taken."

Atlee Pledges Support

Prime Minister Atlee, who also spoke at the dinner, pledged the support of the British government in the fight for freedom of information.

"A great hindrance to peace," Atlee declared, "is the ignorance of one people about another, ignorance breeds suspicion. A great service performed by Reuters is that it lets us know what other people think."

Other speakers included Christopher Chancellor, general manager of Reuters; Sir Lloyd Dumas, chairman of the Australian Associated Press; and Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Representing Canadian newspapers at the banquet, attended by about 1,000 guests, were Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press, and Mrs. Purcell; Edwin S. Johnson, chief of CP's London Bureau; W. H. Woolnough, vice-president of the Southam newspapers, and Mrs. Woolnough; and W. G. Matters of The Toronto Star's London office, and Mrs. Matters.

Fifteen Beaver Families Must Leave Homes

North Bay, Ont., July 12 — (CP) — Fifteen district families will soon be evicted from their homes. But don't raise a fever—they're only beavers.

R. J. Haskins, fish and wildlife specialist, says the animals have caused district waters to rise in the wrong places. So, the beavers must move.

The animals will be caught in traps resembling huge suitcases. Then the Indian Affairs Department will be asked for permission to release the beaver in the Indian reserves west of North Bay.

HEAVY BLUEBERRY CROP

Sudbury, Ont., July 12—(CP)— Sudbury wholesalers are looking forward to the heaviest blueberry crop in years. They're basing their predictions on the heavy shipments they already have received from district pickers.

One dealer said he received his first shipment June 27, earliest date in his records.

Iran Trying To Obtain Large Loan From U.S.

Tehran, July 12 (AP)—Iran, hard-pressed financially because of her dispute with Britain over the vast Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, moved today to obtain a $25,000,000 loan from the United States export-import bank.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh introduced a bill in the majlis (parliament) urging ratification of the loan, which was first discussed last September. At that time, Iranian officials and newspapers complained that the $250,000,000 was insufficient and far below economic assistance given other communist-menaced nations.

Mossadegh's government now is living on a hand-to-mouth budget because its oil royalties from the British - Anglo-Iranian company stopped several weeks ago, when it refused to let Iran nationalize the oil industry.

Acceptance of the loan follows Mossadegh's decision of yesterday to accept President Truman's offer to send W. Averell Harriman, special presidential assistant, to Iran in an attempt to assist in settling the oil dispute.

Calgary Paper Boosts Price To Seven Cents

Calgary, July 12 (CP)—The Calgary Albertan announced today that its single-copy price in the city of Edmonton, and the province of Friday issues will be increased from five cents to seven cents.

The announcement said: "The increase is made necessary because the present distribution costs in Edmonton and will be put into effect rather than discontinue the edition of the Albertan that serves Edmonton, thus depriving that city of a morning newspaper."

The increase is effective Monday. The price of the Albertan's Saturday issue remains at 10 cents.

Britain Re-Opens Comic Railroad For Festival

London, July 12 (Reuters) — Festival of Britain authorities today re-opened the comic railroad in London's midway which ended after a head-on collision last night which killed one and injured 12.

But the two eight-mile-an-hour engines which crashed "Nellie" and "Wild Goose," sidelined after a head-on collision last night, are not there to carry passengers.

The one remaining undamaged engine "Neptune," did all the work.

"Nellie" and "Wild Goose" crashed on a 500-yard stretch of single-line track which is supposed to carry only one engine at a time. There will be an inquiry.

Top U.N. Delegates Discuss Appointment of Neutral To Supervise Cease-Fire

United Nations, N.Y., July 12 (AP)—Appointment of a widely known neutral, possibly from Sweden, as United Nations representative to supervise a cease fire in Korea is being considered by some top U. N. delegates and secretary-general Trygve Lie.

No individual is being mentioned at this time. It was said authoritatively, but the possibility of asking a Swede to take this ticklish job is being studied. Sweden has recognized communist China and is one of the few countries maintaining a ranking envoy there.

The Swedes have a tradition of neutrality. The feeling in the U.N. is that a Swede would be acceptable to both sides.

Persons discussing the cease-fire representative also mentioned that an Indian might be considered.

The U.N. representative, they continued, should be a civilian. With powers as needed from many military men as needed from both sides to supervise the cease-fire. This would be to make certain that the terms of the armistice are being obeyed. The United Nations has a stake on the cease fire and make reports to the U.N.

Any report on a cease-fire likely will be made to the security council through the unified command, which is the United States government.

What is significant here is that the affair will wind up in the general assembly, where the 60-country political committee given the responsibility of talking over the next move and hammering out a decision.

No one here professes to see any solution that will unify Korea at this time. All that some delegates are willing to say is that the U.N. will have to support the Republic of Korea in the south and that the fighting must continue to back the Moscow-supported North Korean regime.

Used Car Dealer Going to Prod Man's Conscience

Baltimore, July 12 — (AP) — John Wilbanks got $1,400 in cash in the mail today. He told reporters about it. He's still looking for another $250 in money and $10,000 in guilt.

Wilbanks, a used car dealer, lost his wallet with $12,650 in negotiables last Saturday. He put an ad in the newspaper telling the finder to keep $1,000 as a reward, but he needed the rest of the cash and the cheques.

Then came a telephone call from an unidentified man Tuesday.

"My conscience is bothering me," moaned the caller, and he told Wilbanks he'd return the cash and cheques, minus the $1,000 reward.

The $1,400 in bad conscience returned yesterday. Wilbanks said the negotiables were in a newspaper ad to prod the mystery man's conscience some more.

26 Players Invited Back For Final Session

Brantford, July 12 — (CP) — Twenty-six players were invited to return for today's final session of the Brooklyn Dodgers' baseball tryout camp.

The Dodgers officials expect to sign one or two after watching them in action in a game today.

The players asked to return include pitcher Dean Ayrheart of Stratford; catcher Herb Simmons and Neil McDonald, Preston junior hurlers; Bill Weir, Toronto boy who started the season at first base for the Kitchener Legionaires; infielder Don Rowe and outfielder Ken McDowell, all of Brantford, and pitcher Bill Mucles of Paris, Ont.

Pitcher Jackie Bowes, Guelph, came into the camp late Wednesday. Bowes, reportedly has been approached by several other major league scouts but as yet has not signed with any pro organization.

U.S. Intervention Given Cautious British Welcome

London, July 12 — (AP)—Britain gave a cautious welcome today to President Truman's intervention in the British - Iranian oil crisis.

A Foreign Office spokesman, asked to comment on the impending trip of Truman's special adviser, Averell Harriman, to Tehran for talks with Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, said:

"Certainly any step that can be taken to break the Iranian deadlock and to persuade the Iranians to accept the findings of The Hague court will be welcome."

The spokesman emphasized Britain's view that Harriman would not be acting as mediator but only would "talk over" the dispute with Mossadegh.

It was clear that British took a cautious view of Harriman's trip because:

Britain wants to avoid giving an impression it is seeking to settle at any price.

It does not want Iran to get the idea that it has enlisted the aid of the United States to gang up diplomatically on Mossadegh.

Britain Boosts Capital Exports To The Dominion

By HAROLD MORRISON (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 12. (CP)—British aid is adding to Canada's investment boom and is making controls on exports of capital.

Prime Ministers and western provinces are changing hands and new ones are being built as a result of a more generous approach to capital shipments by Britain's Foreign Exchange Control committee.

A gradual process, the relaxation—officially signed at Britain's dollar position becomes stronger —has a two-fold purpose:

It is to encourage sterling area goods in Canada by having United Kingdom subsidiary plants operating "right where the market exists."

It is to give Britain a bigger opening to scarce materials needed to support its $2,000,000,000 rearm-production program.

The move is expected by experts to change drastically the face of Britain's investments in this country. Drained by the demands of war, Britain has been forced in the past to dispose of many assets and to buy investments in Canada to pay for goods.

Now, a matter of 20 years, investments in Canada have been sliced more than $1,000,000,000—from $3,768,300,000 in 1930 to $1,752,-000,000,000 in 1949.

Shipments Doubled

Britain now making a comeback. Where, in the estimated were available, it was expected she would increase capital shipments in the current year possibly, by $50,000,000 to $100,-000,000.

Manufacturers are purchasing electric engineering companies in Ontario and British Columbia; the U.K. government, not to be outdone, is investing $40,000,000 in the coastal city aluminum production program.

This investment is in the way of a loan to the Aluminum Company of Canada, building a $200,-000,000 aluminum - producing project in the heart of British Columbia.

Later, there may be a decided flow of capital towards other resources developments, particularly copper and zinc, badly needed by Britain's war machine.

The situation is not only helping the big manufacturer but the farmer, too. Britain now is increasing the amount of capital which an emigrant may take. Previously it was $1,000 for four years. This has been increased by £400 for each dependent.

One U.K. official said the new taxation is changing Britain's whole mental outlook.

"More Britons want to get out here," he said. "More of them are making investments here. Many more are really building down a stake in Canada."

PERISCOPE IN REVERSE

With his "waterscope," right, Peter McLean of Windsor, Ont., hopes to investigate sunken vessels in Lake Erie. The telescopic tube is equipped at the lower end with a 3,000-watt lamp which is expected to give good visibility in a 60-foot radius at depths up to 100 feet. Mirrors and surface eyepiece will permit a view of the lake bottom in all directions. Here inventor McLean points out features of the "waterscope" to 103-year-old Capt. Welling ton Sphears, a former diver. — (CP Photo.)

CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford — The Baptist Young Adults of Campbellford held an outdoor service on Sunday evening on the grounds of Edgewater Park in Campbellford. Fine sacred recordings were played over a public address system, with Mr. G. I. Blair at the controls.

President Roy Ford, in his opening remarks thanked all those responsible for the service, for their co-operation, and welcomed his listeners to the service.

Music for the occasion was supplied by Mary Nicholas on her piano accordion and Mrs. Stapley was song leader for the singing several hymns.

Mrs. Clarence Young read the Scripture and Rev. Staples gave an inspiring message entitled "Where There is Darkness." The speaker reminded his listeners that the church is the greatest medium for the cultivation of fine character and stated that the time to cultivate this character is now.

Many people who find it impossible to attend regular church service find this type of service ideal, since they can enjoy it from their cars.

Carnival

The Rotary Home Week Carnival got under way on Monday night with a parade of bands and decorated bicycles through the streets of the town. The R.C.A.F. band from No. 6 R.D. Trenton, led the parade, followed by a number of army vehicles of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Next came the Havelock Pipe Band and a number of decorated bicycles. Bringing up the rear of the parade was the Campbellford Citizens' Band.

Prize a were awarded for the three best decorated bicycles in the parade, and Sandra MacDonald took first prize, Shirley Mark second and Joy Ireland third.

The various booths were fairly well patronized but a number of blaring loudspeakers, set up at various points along Front Street, met with the disapproval of many citizens. One group even rented a cottage at Healey Falls, six miles out of the town, so that they could get some sleep in the evenings. The carnival is slated to last all week.

This summer, take along a jar of Nescafé, and avoid the old-fashioned drudgery of coffee-making.

You can have truly fine coffee in a matter of seconds, when you use Nescafé. At mealtimes, for lunches, anytime, it's so easy to make, so sure to satisfy. Nescafé eliminates the nuisance of coffee pots, the bother of messy grounds, and it requires much less space to pack than regular coffee.

Whether you use a cup or a coffee-server, just measure out one teaspoonful of Nescafé for each cup desired, and add boiling hot water. That's all there is to it. *Nescafé gives you delicious coffee every time, and you can serve it iced or hot.

The 4 oz. jar saves you up to 40¢ a pound, the 13 oz. jar saves even more.

Drink NESCAFÉ and enjoy the finest cup of coffee you ever tasted

*Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAF'AY) is the exclusive registered Trade Mark of Nestlé's Milk Products (Canada) Limited to distinguish its Pure Soluble Coffee Powder. It is composed of spray-dried coffee extract, soluble sugar, added vacuum-packed chicory, maltose and dextrins, added solely to protect the flavour.

Man Committed On Murder Count At Brantford

Brantford, July 12 (CP)—Donald Devereux, 19, Wednesday committed for trial at the fall assizes on a charge of murder arising from the death of Mrs. Violet Thomson, 32, at preliminary hearing.

Reuben Farr, testified that Devereux and Mrs. Thomson were together in Devereux's truck and "very good humor about an hour before Mrs. Thomson died of stabbing on the night of June 15-16."

Farr said that about midnight on June 15 Devereux drove up his truck to buy cigarettes and gasoline, accompanying him was Mrs. Thomson.

"They were very happy, both of them," Farr said in answer to a question from Crown Attorney C. C. Slemin, "they looked like they had been drinking a lot."

At three a.m. police were called to the laneway outside the home of Charles Thomson, estranged husband of Mrs. Thomson. They found her dead in Devereux's truck. Coroner Dr. F. D. Clarke testified she had been dead about two hours.

Water in which Devereux washed after his arrest was entered as an exhibit at Wednesday's hearing. He asked for the water after being taken to a cell in Brant county jail.

Also entered as exhibits were a bloodstained knife, the clothing Devereux wore when arrested and an empty cigaret package.

RAWDON

Rev. Carmen Bechel Inducted at Milford

Rawdon — The many Rawdon friends who remember the family of the late Rev. J. E. Beckel who was minister on Rawdon Circuit six or eight years will be interested to know that his youngest son, Rev. Carman Beckel, was inducted at his first charge on Friday evening at Milford United Church. Rev. Boyd Beckel of Ivanhoe Circuit is a brother.

Rev. A. Poulter conducted the service with Rev. Stephen Spurrell and Rev. A. E. McCutcheon assisting.

United Choirs

The united choirs of Milford, South Bay and Black Creek sang two anthems at the service. The Milford Circuit have redecorated their parsonage, installed a new bathroom and modern kitchen. They insulated the building and put in new walls and floor in the kitchen. The total cost will be around $1,700 and the Rawdon congregations furnished most of the labor gratis.

Mrs. J. E. Beckel will reside with her son at the parsonage. A sister, Gwen, married Rev. Harold Burgess. There are two other sisters, Misses Phyllis and Wilma, in Kingston.

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Bateman spent the week-end at Watertown, the guests of the latter's daughter, Mrs. Thomas Turner and Mr. Turner. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman visited Mr. and Mrs. P. Christensen at Dundalk.

ELDORADO

Eldorado — On Friday evening a large crowd of friends and neighbors of Eldorado and Harts gathered at the Orange Hall in Queensboro to tender a shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McCann, who were recently married.

The evening was spent in dancing by the younger folk, while the older enjoyed themselves in visiting.

About 11.30 Clayton and Mary were invited to the platform and Mrs. McCaffrey read a suitable address and the young couple were presented with a lovely breakfast suite.

Both Clayton and Mary thanked the community for its part in making such an enjoyable evening, and also for the lovely gifts, inviting all to visit them in their future new home in Peterborough.

Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in a social get-together.

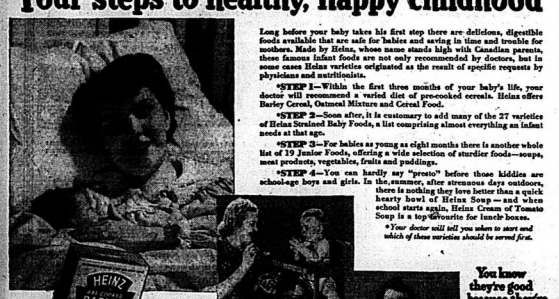
Four steps to healthy, happy childhood



Long before your baby takes his first step there are delicious, digestible foods available that are safe for babies and saving in time and trouble for mothers. Made by Heinz, whose name stands high with Canadian parents, these famous infant foods are not only recommended by doctors, but in some cases Heinz varieties originated as the result of specific requests by physicians and dietitians.

•STEP 1—Within the first three months of your baby's life, your doctor will recommend a varied diet of pre-cooked cereals. Heinz offers Barley Cereal, Oatmeal Mixture and Cereal Food.

•STEP 2—Soon after, it is customary to add many of the 27 varieties of Heinz Strained Baby Foods, a list comprising almost everything an infant needs at that age.

•STEP 3—For babies as young as eight months there is another whole list of 19 Junior Foods, offering a wide selection of sturdier foods—soups, meat products, vegetables, fruits and puddings.

•STEP 4—You can hardly say "presto" before those kiddies are school-age boys and girls. In the summer, after strenuous days outdoors, there is nothing they love better than a quick hearty bowl of Heinz Soup—and when school starts again, Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup is a top favourite for lunch boxes.

*Your doctor will tell you when to start and which of these varieties should be served first.

Considered Right

Gen. Ridgway informed the communists Wednesday that the "presence of a selected number of newsmen at a conference of such major importance is considered an inherent right by members of the United Nations."

At that time he said flatly they would be "an integral part of the United Nations command delegation to any and all future sessions beginning 12 July."

Thursday morning the communists replied that they would like to have press representatives —but not yet. The convoy, including correspondents, already was on its way.

When armed red guards insisted, politely but firmly, on cutting the newspaper men out of the convoy, all vehicles were ordered back.

The general impression here was that the break was temporary.

The opinion among many military men and some correspondents was that the whole situation was the result of a communist misunderstanding, although delegates have been arguing over press representation since talks started Tuesday.

Additional message to Gen. Nam, dispatched immediately after the convoy returned, said:

"Your General Nam Il, North Korean Army.

"1. At 0600 12 July 1951 (7:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday) my motor convoy proceeding along the Munsan-Kaesong road, bearing personnel desired by me at the conference site, was refused passage to pass your control post by your armed guards.

"2. I have ordered this convoy to return to the United Nations lines.

"3. I am prepared to return with my delegation and continue the discussions which were recessed yesterday upon notification from you that my convoy, bearing the personnel of my choosing, including such press representation as I consider necessary, will be cleared to the conference site."

Three-hour Talk

Gen. Ridgway, Admiral Joy and Gen. Sir Horace Robertson, commander of British Commonwealth troops in Korea spent three hours in conference after the convoy was halted. Their meeting ended 30 minutes after the helicopter returned from delivering Joy's message to General Nam.

There was no explanation of Robertson's presence.

Thursday's developments brought to a head a request originally made by Admiral Joy Tuesday that 20 Allied press representatives be allowed in Kaesong but not in the conference room itself.

An army announcement said Gen. Nam at first accepted this but later reversed himself on instructions from the top red command.

Wednesday Joy raised the issue three times. In his first statement he said the U.N. command must "insist that newsmen be admitted to the area of conference without further delay."

Newsmen Not Desirable

The U.N. announcement said Gen. Nam "still considers the presence of newsmen desirable at this time" with sessions being held under war conditions and the agenda still uncompleted.

The second time Nam said, "I don't mean to say I refuse . . . but for the time being the matter must be reserved."

Then, near the end of the session, Admiral Joy read Ridgway's statement announcing that "no press representatives would become "an integral part of the United Nations command delegation" starting Thursday.

Joy said the communists still objected, they should let him know by 7:30 Thursday morning "on what day it will be possible to resume the conference with newsmen present at the conference."

At 7:30 a.m. Col. J. C. Murray, pilot of a helicopter to the red checkpoint between Munsan and Kaesong. There a North Korean captain gave him the red reply:

"We are in favor of having newsmen from both sides in Kaesong at the opportune time."

Directed to Return

"When agreement is reached on your proposal that we shall welcome newsmen...We wish that we could state a definite date. But the situation and the efforts made by both sides during the conference."

Col. Murray replied that the convoy, including 20 correspondents, already was on the road "on the assumption that you would not agree to the conference and delayed over the issue of admitting 20 newsmen to the conference area. The convoy shall return to the control point where the officer in charge has been directed to return to our lines."

Gen. Ridgway himself had sent the correspondents on the way. He seemed confident there would be no hitch.

But the convoy was stopped as it pulled into the red outpost nine miles from Kaesong.

Could Not Pass

The convoy came promptly over a jeep radio:

"Tell them all or nothing" Joy and the other delegates, meanwhile, had remained at the Kaesong camp waiting to see what happened.

Then the convoy was starting out, Ridgway had said the cease-fire meetings develop "no serious friction." It was too early, he said, to tell whether they might be successful.

"Success hinges on them," he said, "for any prediction to be made."

HARRIMAN WILL

Iran contended the court had no jurisdiction over a dispute between a sovereign state and an industrial firm. The court refused to accept this claimed to be a party to the dispute because the British government owns a majority interest in the company.

Although Mossadegh, turned down the court's opinion, it was hoped here that some of the ideas put forth by the court might be employed in attempts to work out a settlement.

More Pessimism Than Hope

Actually however, in responsible quarters of the American government there is considerably more pessimism than hope. The dispute, which Russia has helped to aggravate when possible through the communistic Tudeh party inside Iran is regarded here as having aroused bitter nationalistic feelings in both Iran and Britain.

This poses a spiny problem for the U.S. In its middle-of-the-road role should reach the point where oil production stopped and economic collapse threatened to throw the Iranians into the lap of communism, the U.S. might have to decide whether to try to man and run the oil fields denied to Britain. It would be a decision of the utmost gravity since positive action would probably arouse in Britain anti-American feelings without precedent in modern times.

HOOKED WALLET

Aurora, July 12 — (CP) Don't let anyone tell you fishing doesn't pay. Jack Pennock, an Aurora barber, added to his line expecting to find a good-sized fish. Instead, his catch, in Hoe Lake, near Minden, turned out to be a wallet containing $33.35.

BIGGEST FLOOD

Water 16 Feet Deep

This was the picture in just one small town—Marion:

Muddy waters 16 feet deep flowed over 15 blocks of main street. The town's water supply was cut off. Windows in virtually every building in the business district were shattered.

Cows and pigs floated down the streets, occasionally bumping against boats, merchandise and tree limbs.

Marion County Sheriff Jim Kline said the damage was "tremendous," then added:

"Figure the number of stores and houses in a town of 2,300 and figure them all wiped out, and you've got it."

In addition to damages suffered by towns, farmers have lost millions of dollars in crops and the use of rich bottomland for the remainder of the growing season. The wet weather has bogged down the wheat harvest.

Cloudburst occurred at Ellsworth, Emporia and Manhattan.

Two men were trapped into a flooded creek at Ellsworth, drowning three San Diego, Calif., tourists. Bad Severstorms

At Emporia, a man drowned when his boat overturned as he was fishing for work. Another man died of a heart attack in a flooded area at Manhattan.

Two men were reported missing after their boat capsized on a rescue mission near Strong City. At Junction City a 12-year-old boy was reported missing.

A car was swept downstream in the Verdigris River near Toronto and witnesses said at least two persons, and possibly five, were in it. At Emporia, 130 mile southwest of Kansas City, six Sante Fe trains were stranded with more than 200 passengers.

The high waters in Kansas caused a train snarl at Kansas City, a major rail centre.

The neighboring state of Missouri, which suffered from floods last month, also flooded high waters again.

Showers and thunderstorms were forecast for both states today and tomorrow. And the forecaster indicated worse flooding is yet to come.

McIntyre Mine May be Forced To Close Down

Timmins, Ont., July 12 (CP)— The strike of 1,600 workers at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines may force closing of the neighboring McIntyre-Porcupine Gold Mines within a few days.

McIntyre officials said last night they had only two days' supply of backfill, used to replace ore removed in mining operations. The Hollinger strike which started Tuesday closed down an aerial tramway carrying sand to McIntyre.

Hollinger workers walked out to enforce demands for a pay raise of 17 cents an hour and a union dues check-off recommended by a conciliation board. The strike also put 500 office and managerial employees temporarily out of work.

The upcoming Belleville Redmen will meet Napanee Athletics this evening under the lights at the Fair Grounds. A win for the Mimico outfit here places them in undisputed possession of second place in the COBL standings while the Naps, should they be scuttled, will be even deeper in the joggo basement. It is a golden opportunity for the Redmen to gain some valuable points on the league runners. Manager Wallace will be using on the hill is not known but they have Hooper and Brady. Toss a coin and take your pick. Manager Wilson of the Redmen has Stewart, Strahan, Brewer, Fordham and Noakes. Since Brewer pitched last Saturday, and Noakes, Strahan and Fordham went in the exhibition game in Peterborough, it looks as though Stewart will draw the starting assignment. Sam Maidenhead has had a turn on the mound so don't discount Sam as a probable starter. However, any of the starters are ready and the Naps can enjoy a rousing comeback until game time because Pal is not divulging any decisions.

Tomorrow night in Memorial Arena two of the biggest and fastest men in the mat game will be battling each other in the main bout of the weekly wrestling round-a-lay. Lord Athol Layton, 236 pounds of pugilistic peerage, will go hunting Zebra with a mixture of speed and specialty holds known as the 'English Octopus' (usually South African English) and the 'Kinship Slash'. If this sounds gory and you like your wrestling rugged, then the Zebra's 'flying body smasher' should be just the fillup needed to assure a good night's orgy. Lord Layton, who painfully worked his way to the top in the British Empire title and the Whipper Watson, only to be shunted aside by the Whip, is back on the prowl for a return engagement. He needs a victory over the dashing Zebra to promote his comeback campaign.

Flanking the principals in the two preliminary bouts are Mike and Ben Sharpe, who will wrestle Dan O'Connor and Pat Flanagan, respectively.

The sizzling American pennant race resumes today with the rising Cleveland Indians meeting the sagging Yankees in a three-game set-to in Cleveland, while the red hot Red Sox, pitcher strong enough to go with their vaunted power, meet Chicago in the Windy City in a four-game series. The Red Sox, who took a three-game series from the Yankees before the lay-over for the All-Star game, have not been impressive on the road to date, losing 19 games while winning 17, against a healthy 30-10 record in friendly Fenway. However, the tenacious White Sox, who look as though they are going to be keen to dislodge from their present place in the junior circuit, have compiled only a so-so showing at home, winning 25 and losing 16. Their road record of 26-13 is something else again. The Yankees, who love Yankee Stadium with a love professed, are not so good on the road either, having lost 20 and won 18 for a .474 average. The crucial test of strength for both the Yankees and the Red Sox comes this week. Cleveland has Vancelous Lolad Easley back at first base and a stanog record at home. Should they jolt the Yankees three times it may be only a matter of days until they take over, as it is not to be expected that Boston can sweep the Chicago series. With Bob Feller having his best year in a long time, and the Yankee pitching staff in a slump, the Indians may just march to the head of the class. We still like the Red Sox but anything is likely to happen.

White Sox, Red Sox Twin Bill Tops Ball Schedule as Clubs Return to Action After Layoff

(By The Associated Press)

Major league baseball, after taking time out for three days to settle its annual all-star game swings back into action today with most of the interest centred on four teams battling for the American League lead.

The next two weeks in the race will go a long way toward settling the pennant, and Chicago White Sox, Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians well know it.

Boston, one game back of the leading White Sox, tackles Chicago in the main fellah as hostilities resume with a twi-night doubleheader at Comiskey Park.

The other top drawers attraction is a night game at Cleveland, where New York Yankees hope to get back on the victory trail after dropping three straight Boston last weekend. New York at Boston last weekend. New York is two games behind Chicago while the Indians are four.

Meanwhile, the high-stepping Brooklyn Dodgers with an 8 1-2 game edge on the second place New York Giants in the National loop open a twi-night stand at Chicago Cubs open Ebbets Field festivities tonight.

In the Polo Grounds the Giants are prepared to defend second place against St. Louis Cardinals in an afternoon encounter. The Cards are in third, one game back of the Giants.

Boston Red Sox plan to send Mel Parnell (10-5) and Leo Kiely (7-0) against the White Sox in the first game of their four game series. Chicago has Rogovin (5-4) and Joe Dobson (6-3) ready to shoot at Boston.

Allie Reynolds (9-3) is the Yankee hurling choice against the Indians' Bobby Feller (12-2). New York's pitching staff is shaky, and the once great Joe DiMaggio is riding the bench with torn tendons behind his left knee. Joe may be out 10 days or more.

Ralph Branca (7-2) has been assigned the Brooklyn hurling duties against Paul Minner (4-7) of the Cubs.

In other National League games, Cincinnati is at Boston and Pittsburgh at Philadelphia tonight. In the American circuit, Washington plays a day game at Detroit, while Philadelphia is in St. Louis for a twi-night double bill.

Ashbee Reinstated After Suspension

Brampton, Ont., July 12 (CP) —Don Ashbee of Peterborough, Wednesday night was reinstated by the Ontario Lacrosse Association. Ashbee missed five senior games after his suspension for a brush in Mimico with referee Piper Bain during which the official's shirt was ripped.

However, an O.L.A. executive session decided to keep the suspension of Harry Fergus. Fergus in effect until Toronto West York's Pat DePippo is able to play again. DePippo was injured in a clash with Kazarian at Fergus.

The Brampton and Fergus clubs, who each claim the services of Owen Sound's Don Campbell, were given until July 15 to settle their dispute. The association recently awarded Campbell to Brampton but Campbell said he would rather join other former Owen Sound players now at Fergus.

2 MONTHS FOR STABBING

London, Ont., July 11 (CP) — Mrs. Laura Belle Johnson, 46, was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate Donald Menzies today when convicted of stabbing William Merryless, 32, on York Street June 30.

Crown Attorney C. C. Savage, K.C., said the woman's record included a one to 14 year term for manslaughter in Chicago in December 1945. She was deported to Canada in 1950.

Amazing White Sox Meet Tartar In Boston Team

Chicago, July 12 (AP)— Boston's speed-gathering Red Sox tonight move in for another peek down the smoking barrel of the American League gun nobody thought was loaded—the first-place Chicago White Sox. And the dare is worth the league leadership.

A twilight-night twin bill opens a crucial four-game set between second-spot Boston, trailing by one game, and the White Sox, who slipped slightly out of high gear the past three weeks with a 13-13 record. A double verdict tonight would hoist Boston into first and give them eight in a row.

If the go-go guys from Chicago have another charge left, the time to blast it has come—against an upper-crust foe over whom they hold a 7-6 edge for the season.

The White Sox have sad memories of their last series with the Red Sox in Boston, June 22-24, when they dropped two of three—out-of-four pasting.

But the last time the Red Sox were in Chicago, they won the opener, then dropped four straight.

This series will be critical for the miracle men of Paul Richards as they haven't exactly wide open as many predicted after 14-straight splurge the last two weeks of May, but who obviously have lost some zing.

The White Sox still are hitting a snappy .284 as a team and six players are belting above .300. Their pitching rotation has slackened. Then, too, rival batteries have taken a shot for base-running capers by the Sox speedsters. With the opposition taking them more seriously at every phase of the game, the Chi-Sox are finding the battle a bit uphill.

The current White Sox-home stand will continue through July 22 with the pesky Philadelphia Athletics following Boston into town for a doubleheader Sunday and single game Monday. The A's have split 10 games with the Pale Hose.

The New York Yankees come to Chicago for a night game Tuesday and day games Wednesday and Thursday. Winding up the invasion by easterners the Washington Senators, beaten 10 times in 11 meetings with the White Sox, will appear for four games.

AUTO BURNS

Bothwell, Ont., July 11 — (CP) — A 1950 model car, believed stolen, was destroyed by fire near here early this morning when it turned over and burned.

The accident took place just north of Glencoe, which is five miles south of Bothwell.

The car license number was B3725.

Brantford Red Sox kept their home park winning streak intact last night, defeating the second-place London Majors 6-5 in a Senior Intercounty Baseball game.

The Sox, gaining their 26th consecutive win at home, dropped the Majors five full games behind them in league standing.

All Gavory scattered nine London hits over the nine innings to gain his sixth win in seven starts. Bud Black took over in the seventh with the score tied 5-5, was charged with the loss for London.

Tonight, Galt plays at St. Thomas in the only game scheduled.

Meanwhile, Kitchener Legionnaires are awaiting action on their request for a league meeting to discuss their action on baseballer Jerry Creasey, a college player from Lockhaven, Pa.

Team officials said Creasey, who signed with Oshawa Merchants of the Viaduct Senior League, was refused a transfer to Kitchener, by an Ontario Baseball Association sub-committee following a lengthy delay and despite previous approval by the Intercounty League.

League officials said a meeting will be called when two other clubs back the Kitchener request.

Ezzard Charles A Bit Huffed Over Remark

Pittsburgh, July 12 — (AP) — Heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles is a bit miffed over a remark by Jersey Joe Walcott, who will meet Charles here July 18 in title go.

Walcott laid off a sparring partner long enough to tell other fighters he had been robbed on decisions on two occasions when he fought Charles. Ezzard came within one gasp of the sixth-pick yesterday, with:

"I've beaten him twice before and had him in trouble and had him down in both fights. If he's going to pop off like that, I'll be sure and kayo him early in the bout."

Both fighters are training near Pittsburgh.

Buffalo Bisons Fail to Gain On Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

Inability to curb the home run hitters of Baltimore Orioles cost Buffalo Bisons a chance to close in on the pace-setting Montreal Royals of the International League.

As the result the Bisons now trail Montreal by 9 1-2 games. The Orioles, however, moved within one game of the sixth-place Ottawa Giants.

Mack Rickert was the big gun of Baltimore's 10-hit attack. He pounded out two homers and a single and drove in three runs. The other homer was hit by Myles Gollat, recently sent down to the triple-A club by the parent Philadelphia Phillies. Arch Wilson also homered for Buffalo.

Lou Possehl received credit for the victory but it was little Blix Donnelly that put down the Bisons' eighth-inning uprising. Buffalo had one run in, two on base and one out when Donnelly stepped to the mound. He allowed only one hit the remainder of the game.

Strong Field Will be Gunning For Seagram Cup

(By The Canadian Press)

One of the strongest fields in its 13-year history is expected to tee off for the Seagram International amateur tournament at the Stone Road Golf Club, conveners Stan Richardson and Ken Redmond said today.

Richardson, who has been in touch with leading amateurs in the province, says close to 150 entries are expected including Nick Weaver of Windsor and Bob Goldsbery Tony Matlosh of Kitchener and Bobby Fair.

Competition in the amateur tournament will start July 18 with an 18-hole qualifying round which coincides with a 36-hole final round the next day. Close to 200 rounds have been scheduled over the nine-hole course.

John Palmer of Wellington, playing a speedboat he had designed and built, Wednesday took top honors over fellow contenders from Prince Edward county in a regatta staged by the Campbellford Rotary Club.

Second and third event for boats of the super-lluminum type were Doris Mitchell of Toronto and Dr. Ross Richardson of Campbellford.

W. F. Morrissey, National President of the Horsemen's Protective Benevolent Association said Wednesday night, following settlement of the proposed strike at Fort Erie race track, that he would not stand for re-election as head of the Horsemen's Association.

He was commenting on the acceptance by the horse owners of the compromise offer to their demands for purse increases of $1,500 daily. Earlier Wednesday members of the association voted to accept an offer by John Celia, track president, of an $800 a day increase.

With one of the largest crowds in history of the track in the stands, rain came down and cancelled the annual meet of the Kelter Trot Club Wednesday after only one heat had been raced in each of the classes.

The meet will be concluded today when eight heats will be run off.

J. Knowles' Beamsville rink won the seventh annual Hamilton City Lawn Bowling Association rinks tournament Wednesday night at Kitchener with an aggregate score of 67.

The Beamsville foursome won three games and recorded a plus of 26 to defeat the 99 Rink in the competition. Together with the Mutual Life Trophy, the bowlers picked up some $300 worth of prizes.

Second place and the Kitchener-Waterloo Lawn Bowling Association Trophy went to R. D. Hamilton's Crown Bound rink, with an aggregate of 61.

Cam MacLelland, chief scout for the McGill University senior intercollegiate football squad last year, will take over as head coach at St. Michael's College this season, it was announced Wednesday.

MacLelland succeeds Lew Barnes who resigned to coach suburban East York high school team.

The National Football League, a 12-club circuit for 1951, will open its schedule Sept. 20 with games at Green Bay, San Francisco, Chicago and Detroit.

The league announced its 1951 schedule Wednesday, listing 72 games in a season that ends Dec. 16.

Bobby Lee, Negro quarterback with the University of Pittsburgh from 1946 to 1949 has been signed by the Toronto Balmy Beach Football Club, Manager Paul McGarry said here Wednesday. He will report at the start of training Monday July 16.

Bill Veeck, new owner of St. Louis Browns, said Wednesday he had talked to George Weiss, New York Yankees' general manager, and other Major league club owners while at the all-star game at Detroit and that he expected early action on player deals.

"After all," Veeck said, "the season's only half over and we want to improve the Browns now."

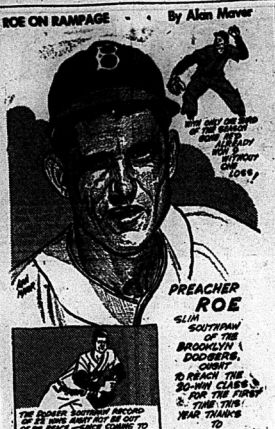
$1,500 WORKERS IDLE

Detroit, July 12 (AP)— Some 11,500 automobile workers were idle Wednesday in two production disputes.

Chrysler Corporation said 6,000 employees walked out of its Plymouth plant protesting the firing of a worker accused of failing to do the work assigned to him.

Subsequently, Briggs Manufacturing Company sent home 5,000 employees because the bodies it produces for Plymouth begin to pile up.

For the 22nd straight working day, Hudson Motor Car Company sent its 10,000 employees home in a dispute over production schedules.



Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, July 12 (AP) — Sal Maglie, the pitcher who received credit for the National League's all-star victory, and who also gets a lot of credit for the Giants showing this season, visited the Cardinals' tryout camp some 15 years ago and begged to sign up for $65 a month. . . Branch Rickey and scout Pop Kelchner looked Sal over and decided he couldn't win in class D ball. . . Maybe it wasn't such bad judgment. In 1943-44 Sal was pitching for Welland, Ont., in the Niagara district league and the Canadian teams were pounding him pretty hard. . . If Fritzie Frazier, whips Kid Gavilan convincingly in Milwaukee next week, manager Tex Sullivan says he's going to start "pushing people aside and hollering for that title shot." . . Fritzie, Tex adds, comes from the home town of Jim Norris, St. Catharines, Ont., so it shouldn't require too much hollering.

Sports Before Your Eyes

When Monmouth Park turned up a record $2,631,40 daily double recently, one lucky ticket holder explained he had been stuck in a traffic jam en route to the park behind an 81 license number so he had to play the 8-1 combination. And another said he had just played her age. . . Vernon Law, the young pitcher who has been doing some good work for the Pirates, was recommended to owner Bing Crosby by an old college classmate. Senator Herman Welker of Idaho.

End of the Line

Slim Harbett, who started teaching Doris Hart to play tennis when she was 11 years old, predicts: "She will stay on top for several years now that she has the confidence that comes with winning a big one." . . When South Carolina's Steve Wadiak was selected by a chewing gum manufacturer to appear in a football photo series, sports-writer Jake Pensland quipped: "If the picture shows Wadiak smiling, sales might drop off for that brand." . . Steve lost two front teeth in a game with Furman.

Rocky Marciano And Rex Layne Trade Punches

New York, July 12 — (AP) — Rex Layne and Rocky Marciano, each hopeful of injecting young blood into the heavyweight championship picture, trade punches tonight in what promises to be 10 rounds or less of real slugging at Madison Square Garden.

A shot at the heavyweight title awaits the winner. And the men who make the betting odds figure it'll be Layne. He is the 8½ to 5 choice.

The 23-year-old Layne, flashy pride of the Rockies from Lewiston, Utah, and the likeable quiet 27-year old Marciano from Brockton, Mass., have almost identical records.

Layne's record shows 34 victories, one setback, two draws and 24 knockouts. Marciano has stepped into the ring for 35 scraps and climaxed out with 30 knockout victories and five decisions.

But the experts like Layne because of the quality of opponents he has met. They like the way the chunky, aggressive youngster outpaced aging Jersey Joe Wolcott and came off the floor to stop hard-hitting Bob Satterfield.

Marciano, a crude fighter with a fair left and a power right, has been fighting on the New England circuit since his surprise split decision over previously undefeated Roland La Starza in the Garden a year ago last March.

Both fighters have trained to a fine edge. Layne expected to weigh in today at 192 pounds and Marciano seven pounds lighter or thereabouts.

In anticipation of a slugging match rivalling the recent Jake La Motta - Irish Bob Murphy brawl, some 18,000 fans are expected to pack the Garden. Top dog the gate will run between $100,000 and $250,000.

There will be no home television or radio broadcast. The 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, fight, however, will be telecast in 11 motion picture theatres in eight U. S. cities.

Four Men Killed In Blast, Fire At Indianapolis

Indianapolis, July 13 (AP) — An explosion and fire in the jet engine plant of the General Motors Corporation, early today killed at least four men and injured another severely.

Charles Gregory, assistant chief of the Indianapolis fire department said four bodies had been found in the debris.

The explosion was in a jet engine testing cell for the General Motors' Allison division.

A detachment of military police was sent to the plant, which sprawls over several acres five miles west of Indianapolis.

Carl Gartner, 33, an employee, was taken to hospital and treated for severe burns.

The explosion tore the roof from the concrete testing cell. Huge blocks of concrete were hurled several hundred feet and scattered over a nearby parking lot.

The testing cell is a one-storey building measuring about 75-by 100 feet.

Parliament Will Be Dissolved On Friday

Wellington, New Zealand, July 13 (Reuters).—Parliament will be dissolved tomorrow and the Nationalist government will call a general election between Aug. 25 and Sept. 8, Prime Minister Sidney Holland announced today.

The election is regarded as a means of testing public opinion on the government's handling of the dock strike for the last five months.

Holland said the exact election date could not be determined until electoral rolls were amended and printed.

The present government took office in December 1949, and could continue without an election until 1952 if it chose.

The Nationalists now hold 46 seats and Labor 34 in the House of Representatives. New Zealand's Lower House.

Girl Describes Quarrel Leading To Knife Slaying

Toronto, July 12. (CP)—A "two or three minute quarrel" between a man in black and a man in grey was described by Gloria Kilpatrick as the preliminary hearing Wednesday of John Lomax, 32, of Saint John, N.B., on a murder charge.

Lomax is charged with the spring-knife stabbing of George Hobbs, alias Mulholland, 33.

The pretty 20-year-old nursing student told of the brief quarrel on an early-morning streetcar.

It was the man in black, she said, the man in grey on the left side of the neck with his fist; she said, saw spurts of blood coming from the man in grey's neck.

Detective Sergeant Edmond Tong said Miss Kilpatrick picked Lomax out of a police line-up as the man she saw on the streetcar.

Lomax gave no evidence during the hearing, which is continuing.

British Embassy Being Guarded By Police Squads

Cairo, Egypt, July 12 (Reuters)—Squads of steel-helmeted police stood guard today over the British embassy and consulates in Cairo, Alexandria and Port Said.

A state of emergency declared yesterday— anniversary of the British bombardment of Alexandria in 1882— was extended throughout today.

Anti - British demonstration were banned. Guards were mounted on the Egyptian Broadcasting House and at other key points in the main cities.

The anniversary passed off quietly except for a token transport stoppage yesterday.

But today the atmosphere was electric after Britain's protest over the boarding by an Egyptian armed party of the British ship Empire Roach.

(Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison said in the House of Commons yesterday that Britain will demand substantial damages from Egypt for halting the vessel in the Red Sea July 1.)

Egypt explained that a warship was ordered to halt the British vessel because she was in Egyptian waters.

Egyptian shore batteries had orders to fire on her at sight, Egyptian war minister Fuad Nosrat Pasha stated.

"The ship must consider herself fortunate on being stopped in time," he added.

Conservative Member Dies

London, July 12—(Reuters)—A new parliamentary by-election was made necessary today—One second within a week — by the death of the 77-year-old Earl of Home. The Earl died last night.

Theheir to his earldom is Lord Dunglass, Conservative member of parliament for Lanark, Scotland who will now go to the House of Lords.

Monday, a parliamentary by-election was also caused by the death of Rev. G. S. Woods, Labor member of parliament for Droylsden, Lancashire. This reduced the Labor government's effective majority to four.

As a result of Earl Home's death, the Labor majority goes back to five.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribitzer

Good bridge, like good manners, is common sense. Your bid of one must take seven tricks. With only two tricks expected from partner, you should have the other five.

This is so whether you are opener or first defender. However, opener promises four high cards with two suits among his tricks. A defender cannot wait for that many highs and sures.

Defender must be willing to stick in a bid with as few as two highs only one of which is sure. Consequently, his other three tricks are expected to be short cards; trumping tricks.

To be able to ruff that many tricks, defender must have a suit that is longer than four cards. Thus, it is common sense that rule requires a simple overcall to have a suit with at least five cards.

Of course, it is possible for a defender to have four highs and two sures in his five tricks. Or even better. If so, he shows this with a signal. The signal he uses is double (for takeout).

A double, therefore, need not have a suit of more than four cards. Why? Because he shows as good as an opening one bidder. So, he denies such a holding when he bids a suit (simple overcall).

South opens the bidding with a heart when you have this west hand:

♠ A J 10 8 6
♥ K 9
♦ 7
♣ 6 J 8 7 4 3 2

You have not enough higgins to signal with a double. Not enough high, cards. Not enough sure tricks. But you do have enough tricks, high cards, a sure for a simple overcall of one spade.

There is where the common sense comes in again. From your bid of one spade, partner knows you have a five-card suit in spades; only two of your cards may be high; only one may be sure.

He knows you have not four highs with two sures. How does he know? If you had them you would have said double instead of one spade.

Say it with bids or somebody may say it with flowers.

GIVEN 24 HOURS TO LEAVE HUNGARY

Albert W. Sherer, Jr., U.S. legation secretary in Hungary, and Ruth Tryon, information attache in charge of the United States information service library and film program, are shown as they arrived in Vienna, following their ouster by the Hungarian communist government. The communist regime in Hungary charged that the American legation officials were working against the red regime and hinted that some legation officials had carried out espionage activities and insisted that Sherer, Jr., and Miss Tryon leave the country within 24 hours. The U.S. closed down that branch of the legation, but accused the Budapest regime of brazen falsehoods and ruthless terrorism against its own people. — Central Press Canadian.

Movie Column

By JACK QUIGG
(For BOB THOMAS)

Hollywood, July 12 (AP) — Combine in one man the talents of Danny Zanuck, Errol Flynn and Cecil B. DeMille, and a dash of F. Hugh Herbert, and what have you?

The answer is a one-man movie studio. And that's just about what Manuel Conde is.

Conde operates in the Philippines where they have a thriving picture industry.

Last year, in a poll of island flicker fans, he won four top awards—best picture, actor, character actor and director. All were for his production "The Seven Devils," which he also wrote.

As a reward for his virtuosity, the Philippines Herald, sponsor of the poll, is treating him to a free trip around the world. He is stopping over here to negotiate an American release for his prize-winning film.

A kala

It's apparently a lulu: Manuel says 17 actors were injured, some seriously, in the making of it. A tale of adventure and intrigue in 16th century Spain, it featured Manuel in a dual role (hence the two acting awards) and an all-Filipino cast. It cost $1 million.

His epic runs two hours, 10 minutes, and a good part of the footage is devoted to violence.

Manuel, 35, is handsome and the father of five boys, all named Manuel, and a girl, Manuela. He calls the boys Manuel One, Manuel Two, etc., and when he yells they all come.

A former lieutenant in a Philippine unit of the U.S. army, he went underground after the Japanese conquered the islands in the last war. He became an actor in 1947.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday come and find what your outlook is, according to the stars....

For Friday, July 13

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—No really unfavorable tendencies. Jupiter and Pluto warn wisely against reckless handling of money, investing any valuable. Day can be productive of good if things are handled sensibly.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Day highlights seven substantial matters, useful activities, your occupational duties, home and other essential affairs. Still, it is a time for caution, checking. Rest, too.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—The Sun's position sending favorable rays can be helpful to all who think and plan intelligently and conscientiously follow through — honest endeavors, of course. Be cheerful.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Your Moon and the Sun in excellent aspects, promising indications of a happy, useful and progressive day, if, of course, you work earnestly and co-operate where, when you should.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—You, like Cancer, now have most encouraging influences. Don't worry or doubt achievement. If at your duty do your very best, and store up some treasures, spiritual and temporal for future.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo)—Day may not be all you wish for material betterment, for original ideas, etc. But it can be good for difficult work, matters requiring strength, endurance, courage. Good day generally.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—You are under benefic Moon rays which should help domestic, family relations. Aim at pleasant understanding. Artistic professions, personal attainment, abiding love, help.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—A big "no" to some things. Watch each proposition, each lead and each intended job before entering. Hold everything until sure of what you are about. Don't be alienated from right.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Vibrations mixed. Important matters should come first, be carefully handled; in finances, hold back for thorough study. Go safely, slowly in heart affairs.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Can be successful period if you use your innate patience with tedious things. Industrial workers, bankers, those handling transportation, foods: Honest headway deserved? Favored.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — Need essentials, sane rules; don't try things unless familiar with the possibilities. Confidential, family matters favored. Be rightly but not fretfully concerned and you will achieve.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Extra caution stressed in extensive changes, expansion, new partnerships, handling tools, machinery and human cargo. Take a few minutes rest during pressure time, will pay in long run.

YOU BORN TODAY may want to make changes in position or home location without due consideration for the true benefits or disadvantages. When upset or nervous you tend to restlessness. Take things more philosophically, be not over-serious; let your fine inborn humor have sway. You possess ability as conversationalist musician, actor, public official. Keen imagination. Education, religion and a helpful life-mate will speed you on way to lasting happiness. Have confidence in God's goodness. Love, help.

Dramatic 20-Hour Air Search Has Been Dropped

Port Huron, Mich., July 12—(AP)—A dramatic 20-hour air search for two missing fishermen, part of a four-member fishing party, was dropped late Wednesday.

It appeared that the treacherous winds and currents of Lake Huron had claimed the lives of three of the party, which set out from Lexington, 30 miles away.

The missing men are Clarence Smith, 60, of Detroit, and Ambert Kraa, 54, a lay brother at the Roman Catholic St. Joseph's Boys' school in Buffalo, N.Y.

The body of a third person, Mrs. Muriel Koerber, 35, of Detroit, was washed ashore at midnight Tuesday. The fourth, Mrs. Gretchen Davis, 34, was rescued shortly after winds upset their rowboat.

Three RCAF Dakota aircraft from the Radar and Communications School at Centralia returned to their base at Centralia having covered the area of the lake recessed. The planes covered the lake from Grand Bend out to the international border and south to Sarnia.

SYNDICATE HEAD RELEASED

Los Angeles, July 12—(AP)—Brenda Allen, erstwhile head of a swank, Hollywood prostitution syndicate, was released from the county jail yesterday after serving eight months of a one-year term. The brunette was freed on three grounds: Her "exemplary" conduct as a prisoner, her plans to marry and her need of surgery for a kidney ailment.

42 ALIENS SEIZED

New York, July 12—(AP)—Forty-two more aliens were seized yesterday as government agents continued a round-up of seamen suspected of entering the United States illegally by jumping ship. The arrests by immigration and naturalization service officers raised to 178 the week's total in the New York harbor area. About 675 have been seized in the last month.

WOOLER

Wooler — Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gooding visited Peterborough friends on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Scott have gone to their cottage on Weslemkoon Lake where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. Bert Richards, of Toronto, is visiting Mrs. Leland Bryant and other friends for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bowen, of Bowmanville, visited Mrs. Easterly on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fitzgerald, of Toronto, are holidaying with Mr. Wooler friends.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Putnam and family spent Sunday at Quin-Mo-Lac.

Mr. Milton Bryant, of Toronto, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Leland Bryant.

Master Lawrence Peister of Telephone Road, visited his aunt, Mrs. B. Vanalstine, last week.

Billy and Richard Stacey spent last week at Oak Lake.

Wesley W.M.S. Arm.

Mr. Percy Gooding opened her home on Tuesday afternoon for the July meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society. The president, Mrs. J. McMaster, presided and conducted the business part of the meeting. The treasurer, Mrs. C. Dunn reported $150 had been raised to date. Mrs. D. Jenners presented the treasurer with $10 received from the sale of the picture painted by her son, Mr. Roscoe Jenners, and donated to the Auxiliary. It was decided to send a parcel of clothing to Korea. Some arrangements were made for the August meeting when a neighboring Auxiliary will be entertained.

Mrs. Clarence McMaster convener of the program conducted the worship service after which a vocal solo was given by Patsy Brown. Many interesting readings and talks were given in response to the roll call "A Temperance Thought."

Some highlights of the recent sectional rally were given by Dunne who attended.

A dialogue. "Material Aid for the Needy" was presented by Mrs. McMaster and Mrs. M. Walls with Mrs. Gooding reading an appropriate Bible passage.

Miss Cicely Cox, of Montreal, gave a short talk after which the meeting was dismissed.

Delicious refreshments of strawberries, ice cream, fruit bread and lemonade was enjoyed by the 20 ladies present. The lunch committee was Mrs. C. McMaster, Mrs. M. Walls and the hostess.

On Tuesday afternoon the Evening Auxiliary entertained their children in the village park. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent in games, races and contests with inexpensive prizes, followed by a picnic supper.

SHANNONVILLE

Shannonville — Mrs. Wilbert McKenzie Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ashbury, Belleville, and Mr. Alvin McKenzie, attended the funeral of the former's brother, the late Mr. Alex Cadeau, Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan.

"Rundown, Always Tired" Woman Tells How Syntona Helped Her

"A Few Weeks Ago I Felt So Worn out, Nervous and Got Such Awful Heartburn and Dizzy Spells I Didn't Know What to Do, But Now I Am Like a Different Person," Says This Woman.

Mrs. Rose Guthrie, Mt. Brydges, Ontario, is glad to pass her experience along to others, that she knows what it means to get relief after being in poor health for a long time and not find any real relief from her suffering. She hopes her experience will be the means of helping others.

"I was very badly rundown condition, had tried nearly everything I heard of, but, got no better," said Mrs. Guthrie. "My nerves were so on edge at times I could scream, all the time I had awful heartburn and would get such dizzy spells I didn't know what to do. I had no pep and was so do my work.

"A few weeks ago a friend of mine advised me to try Syntona. At first I thought this medicine wasn't helping me any better, but all the other things I had tried but after a while I began to feel better. I kept on taking Syntona and now I am like a different person. Can do my work and I'm like as I did before, nerves are calmed down, and I am free of those awful heartburn and dizzy feelings. Now I get sound, restful sleep at night and really feel like myself again.

"I hope others who suffer this way will take my advice and try Syntona."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

MADOC

Rev. J. F. Lance Gives Interesting Talk To Missionary Society

Madoc—Mrs. Russel Lewis was hostess for the July meeting of St. Peter's W.M.S. which was held on Thursday afternoon. The psalm "Unto the Hills" was used to open the meeting.

During the business period it was reported that five cases or books had been sent away for use in the Junior camps and the money raised to help the congregations out west, who had lost their church by fire was gratifying.

Mrs. Dave Blakely had charge of the devotional period. Mrs. Alvey read the scripture lesson and a meditation on "Faith." A duet "Have Thine Own Way Lord" was rendered by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Alvey.

The members were privileged to have as guest speaker Rev. J. F. Lane who spoke on the words of the prophet Moses, "Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion." He said "we, as professing Christians, do not regard our Christian life as a struggle but are too much at ease regarding our own faults and the example we have on the younger generation. We are also too much at ease regarding our fellow men and the unfulfilled tasks of Christ's kingdom."

A vote of thanks was moved by the president and seconded by Mrs. Walden. The singing of "Jesus Calls Us," was used to close the meeting.

A social half hour was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Lane during which time the hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. Mackintosh served bountiful refreshments.

Miss Vankleek, Mrs. W. Gray, Mrs. R. Bristol and Miss Leslie Bristol spent Monday with friends at Lake Chemong.

Miss Mutton, of Peterborough is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Drinkwalter.

Mrs. W. Brown of Uxbridge is spending the summer in Madoc.

Mrs. J. McCaffrey has returned home after spending some weeks with her sister, Mrs. E. Bregley at Windsor.

Mrs. W. A. Wynn received word that her sister, Mrs. Arthur Wood of Montreal had passed away after a long illness. Funeral services, were held on Wednesday.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View—Misses Maureen and Pearl Neal accompanied friends to Montreal on Sunday returning in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague attended the funeral of the late Mr. George Wilson of Deseronto, formerly of Mountain View on Saturday.

Miss Betty Ellen Sprague is spending holidays with her cousin Miss Donna Rowe of Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morris and family spent Sunday in north Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson and Miss Lillian Anderson were Sunday evening callers of Miss Lillian Sprague.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wood and family of Rochester, N.Y. are spending holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wood and Mr. Charles Wood.

Mrs. Marguerite Sprague and Mr. Billy Sprague of Big Island, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague and George.

Master Richard Wilson and sister Susan, of Belleville, spent several days at the home of Mr. J. G. Sprague and Miss Elizabeth Jordon.

Mr. Charles Sprague was a super guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste and family.

UN TELLS REDS TO PULL TROOPS FROM KAESONG

Evacuation of Industrial Area Ordered

Kansas City Levees Holding But Water Backing Into Sewers

20,000 Forced to Flee Homes in Topeka, Kas.

Kansas City, July 13 (AP)—Complete and immediate evacuation of the central industrial district on the Missouri side of the Kansas River was ordered today during a city manager L. P. Cookingham.

This district includes the stockyards, railyards, packing plants and the livestock exchange building.

The city manager said the levees on the east side of the river still were holding but water was backing up in sewers.

Cookingham said all residents of the Kansas City, Mo. metropolitan area, more than 600,000 to conserve the water supply.

Floods Spread Misery

Topeka, Kas. — (AP) — Swirling flood waters and continuing rains spread new misery through sodden Kansas on this grim Friday the 13th.

Kansas City, Kas. — the big $40,000,000 industrial area of the mid-west's sprawling metropolitan centre — and this capital city of 100,000 suffered the newest blows. Kansas State College at Kansas University and 20 miles downstream from Topeka were beginning to feel maximum pressure.

Aircraft from many areas, including the coast guard from New York City, were busy at rescue efforts but lowering skies made flying difficult.

The floods claimed nine lives in Kansas and two in Missouri earlier this week.

An early morning overflow by the Kansas (Kaw) River flooded the Armourdale and Argentine districts of Kansas City, Kas., licking at the heels of the last of 8,000 residents who had been herded from Armourdale during the night. Some fled with only the clothing they were wearing.

Stanley Catches Fire

Gasoline from a half-submerged filling station caught fire during the wild dawn exodus and spread to a lumberyard and warehouse. Firemen, fighting their way through the swift flowing streets, succeeded in controlling the blaze after nearly a four-hour battle.

The conflagration broke out in an area filled with huge freight yards, grain elevators and other plants. Water damage to these properties was unestimated.

HEAD-ON CRASH

Huntsville, July 13 (CP) — James Arnold Andrews, 35-year-old Nova Scotia lumberman, was killed in a head-on collision today near Clear Lake, a few miles north of here.

Stephen Zabos of Sudbury, driver of the automobile which crashed into Andrews' vehicle, suffered two broken legs.

Huntsville is about 110 miles north of here.

Hamilton Man Goes on Search For Wartime Pals

Hamilton, July 13 (CP) — A wartime friendship has sent Jamie Stewart of Hamilton into northern Quebec to search for two missing prospectors.

The two prospectors, James and Michael Walsh, were flown into a camp April 18 about 300 miles north of Rimouski on the Moisie River. A pilot returning to the camp June 26 found it empty saying the brothers were running short of supplies and were going to try to sail down the Moisie River by raft to the St. Lawrence River.

They have not been heard from since.

Pearson, supervisor at the Hamilton branch of the National Institute for the Blind, left here Monday but has been grounded at Rimouski because of bad flying weather. He and James Walsh served in the Lake Superior Regiment.

Americans Begging on Fifth Avenue As Dog Lives in Luxury: Soviet

Washington, July 13 (AP) — Moscow told the Russians today about a little dog Toby which it said "sleeps on a golden bed" in New York's Fifth Avenue neighborhood by a staff of servants and six lawyers."

The United States government monitors reported today this picture of the American way of life drawn for Russian radio listeners:

"The streets of New York are full of the children of the workers, dressed in tatters, with pale, hungry faces. They stand for ages at the doors of luxurious hotels and restaurants, begging.

"They often appear on Fifth Avenue in search of something to eat in the rubbish here they find a little dog Toby which it said "sleeps on a golden bed" in New York's Fifth Avenue neighborhood by a staff of servants and six lawyers."

GUARDSMEN JOIN POLICE TO BATTLE RIOTING MOBS

Racial Housing Dispute Sends 11 to Hospital

Cicero, Ill., July 13 (AP) — Bayonet - wielding National Guardsmen and police battled a booting, jeering, unruly mob of hundreds for a riotous ten hours in Cicero streets last night and early today.

Eleven persons, including three soldiers and three policemen, were sent to hospital in the fighting which stemmed from a racial housing dispute. Some of the civilians were cut by bayonets. Others were injured by stones and bricks hurled at soldiers and police from the throng of about 4,000.

An undetermined number of civilians suffered bruises and cuts in the melee between the mob and steel-helmeted soldiers and police in one of the worst riots in the Chicago area in several years.

Police cars were overturned, lighted flares were tossed into the windows and onto the room of a two-storey building, focal point of the disturbance. Firemen dodged a barrage of rocks and sticks to douse the fires.

Police rounded up 50 persons after the crowd had dwindled during the early morning hours. They were taken to the nearby police station for questioning and were held without charge.

Order was established at the scene—a residential district in this community of 70,000—shortly before 2 a.m. EDT, more than two hours after the fighting broke out.

Restraint Order Denied in U.S., Hayman Claims

Montreal, July 13 — (CP) — Lew Hayman of the Montreal Alouettes said today a restraining order aimed at preventing George Trafton, coach of the Los Angeles Rams, has been lifted in the United States and a temporary injunction denied.

The court moves were taken by Tex Collins, owner of the New York Yankees Football Club.

Ratterman, ace quarterback, was signed by Alouettes a week ago last Monday.

This is the first court case to have been started by the move by American players coming to Canada.

Hayman said that Ratterman, a resident of Englewood, N.J., is on his way to Montreal.

The restraining order was taken out 10 days ago in Newark, N.J., and last Tuesday, Jersey City, N.J., the Yankees sought a temporary injunction against Ratterman, who claimed his contract option with the Yankees lapsed May 1.

Iraq to Supply Domestic Needs If Iran Cut Off

Bagdad, Iraq, July 13 (Reuters)—The Iraq Petroleum Company said today it will look after Iraq's oil needs if the supply from Iran is cut off.

A part of the company's plant at Kirkuk will be modified to supply the Iraq market. Normally all oil produced is exported.

The company is owned jointly by the American Near East Development Corp., the Compagnie Francaise Des Petroles, Royal Dutch Shell and by Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. The dispute with Iran is threatened with closure in the British-Iranian oil war.

Judge Complies With Appeals Court Ruling, Orders Release Of 15 Red Leaders Under Bail

New York, July 13 — (AP) — Judge Sylvester J. Ryan today complied with a United States appeals court ruling and ordered release of 15 communist leaders under bail previously supplied by the Civil Rights Congress bail fund.

Ryan previously had revoked the bail, totalling $175,000, on the ground trustees of the bail fund were "unworthy of trust."

He had sentenced three of them to jail for contempt of court for refusing to reveal identities of contributors to the fund.

The 15 communists are charged with conspiring to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the United States government and are awaiting trial.

Ryan jailed them Wednesday with instructions to obtain bail from another source.

U. S. appeals court Judge Learned Hand yesterday ordered the bail from the Civil Rights Congress reinstated.

Hand held the full, three-member appeals court previously had ruled bail from the Congress as acceptable.

The Congress is listed by the Department of Justice as subversive.

Comes Out of Bush To Give Self Up For Robbery

Kalkaska, Mich., July 13 (AP) — For two nights and two days 100 state troopers hunted the woodlands around this northern Michigan town for a desperate robber who held up the Kalkaska State Bank Tuesday.

The manhunt ended late Thursday when Raymond Joseph Turcotte, 41, came out of some roadside underbrush near here and meekly surrendered.

He was hatless and bedraggled from his long stay in the woods.

Turcotte, alias Wayne (Muddy) Waters, a Canadian with a long police record, carried a paper bag containing $126 in dollar bills. That was all the loot the gun, police said, when he nervously held up the bank and fled into the Fife Lake forest.

At Traverse City, Police Capt. Earl J. Hathaway said the prisoner admitted the hold-up.

Police said Turcotte has a criminal record covering more than 18 years and that he served time in prison at Kingston, Ont., for manslaughter.

U.S., Britain, Sign Pact to Aid British Colonies

London, July 13—(Reuters)—An agreement providing for assistance to British dependencies under the Truman's plan for aiding underdeveloped areas was signed at the Foreign Office today by Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and United States Ambassador Walter Gifford.

Several projects to help British colonies and overseas territories in the Caribbean area, under the U.S. State Department, a Foreign Office statement said today.

A housing project in Antigua, Leeward Islands, had been approved by the U.S. under the point-four technical aid program, it added.

Plane Crash Kills Three Starting On Fishing Trip

Dannyville, Ont., July 13 (CP) — An investigation was started today into a plane crash yesterday that killed three Sudbury area men on a fishing trip.

The single - engined plane, flying with two persons aboard, hit a tree-top height as it nosed downward through rain and mist, and crashed and burned in a field on the farm of Harold Elliott, about 25 miles northwest of Hamilton.

Killed were its owner, Dr. William R. Mantell, 34, of Sharpesburg, Pa., believed to have been the pilot; and Richard E. Boyles and W. N. Steitz, both of Pittsburgh. All carried pilot licences.

First to reach the crash scene were Gordon Rowe, 18, a neighbor, and Gordon Elliott, Willisham Rowe; and his brother, George, 15. They found two torn and broken seats in the wreckage and the third thrown clear.

The plane ploughed a deep hole in the field 20 feet from where the fuselage was piled up.

Farmer Harold Elliott, 21, said he saw the plane explode. Then, as it came down, fishing tackle and camping equipment streamed from the ripped fuselage and showered down on trees and bushes.

PAIR ARRAIGNED

Cornwall, July 13 — (CP) — Lionel Reig, 34, Ottawa cab driver and Wanda Gosselin, 22, Montreal waitress, will be arraigned in magistrate's court at nearby Winchester July 19. The pair face charges arising from a bizarre shooting near Winchester last June 28.

Reig, held on a warrant under the Mental Patients Act, underwent a mental examination by a psychiatrist from the Ontario Hospital at Brockville.

TEN TRAINEES KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN BRITAIN

Falls After Takeoff, Bursts Into Flames

Lyneham, England, July 13—(Reuters)—A twin-engined R.A.F. transport plane crashed near here early today, killing all 10 persons aboard.

The plane crashed shortly after taking off from the airfield here. It burst into flames immediately and was completely destroyed.

The 10 victims were all air force trainees.

An R.A.F. crash crew from the air field dashed to the wreckage but the fire was so intense they were unable to get close. The blaze was extinguished more than an hour later, after several fire companies had been called to the scene.

The plane was a military version of the widely-used Vickers Viking. Known as the "Valetta" it was developed as a plane for several different types of work—troop transport, glider, paratroop or freight carrier.

U.S. Air Force Will Use Canadian Base

Ottawa, July 13 (CP) — The United States Air Force will use Canadian air bases in the Arctic for training purposes, Defence Minister Claxton announced today.

Mr. Claxton said the agreement was reached during recent talks in Washington between Canadian and United States defence officials.

He said the agreement would be similar to one under which the U.S. Navy has been using Canadian bases in the Arctic for training purposes.

Damage Millions, Eight Dead In Jet Explosion

Indianapolis, July 13 (AP) — An explosion and fire at an Allison jet engine plant yesterday caused $7,500,000 damage and killed out eight lives.

The official figure was 15 times the previous, unofficial calculation.

Allison division of General Motors made the damage estimate today. The eighth victim died last night, 18 hours after the blast wrecked a jet engine test building west of Indianapolis. He had been the only survivor.

The explosion touched off 20 cells about one-half block long and a quarter-block wide —all re-inforced concrete with walls 18 inches thick.

Montreal Councillor Unseated by Court

Montreal, July 13 (CP)— Mr. Justice Ephegre Marier in a suit brought by Conservative Party candidate Harry Binder from Montreal city council.

Binder, said to have communist leanings, was elected at the municipal elections seven months ago. Action to unseat him was taken by unsuccessful opponent who claimed Binder has served prison terms and therefore was ineligible to sit as a council member.

Sloop Crew Member Lost 30 Hours, Kills Shark Before Pacific Rescue

Honolulu, July 13—(AP)— A crew member in the Los Angeles-Honolulu yacht race was rescued dramatically from the tossing Pacific yesterday, 30 hours after he fell overboard from the sloop L'Apache.

His rescuers said he had killed a seven-foot shark while he drifted in a life-saving ring.

Seaman Jack Sierks, 22, of Avalon, Calif., was picked up exhausted but uninjured. The rescue was made by the U.S. destroyer-escort Douglas A. Munro after it was instructed by authorities apparently hopeless search.

The Munro sighted Sierks on its final sweep of the area.

"I felt it was almost a miracle," Sierks was quoted by the skipper, in a radiophone interview.

A dispatch from the Munro to the Hawaiian Sea frontier said Sierks' greatest difficulty was with breaking seas and sharks.

The message did not explain how he killed the shark. Sierks was believed unarmed.

Sierkes toppled off the racing sloop Wednesday, 810 miles northwest of Honolulu. He was buoyed by life jacket and high waves by a life ring tossed to him by L'Apache crew members as he disappeared.

Five other yachts near L'Apache hailed their 2,235-mile race to hunt for Sierks. A navy escort carrier and seven destroyer-escorts joined the search by Wednesday and a B-17 search-and-rescue plane flew out from Hickam Field.

Armistice Talks Stalled for Time By Allied Demand

Ridgway Insists on Taking Correspondents to Parley

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aboard Allied Peace Train July 13 (CP)—The allies told the reds today to take their armed guards out of Kaesong or agree to a gun-free site for armistice talks in the Korean war.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway also insisted on freedom to name accredited correspondents, and said unless the communists accept this point" "We will not pass any reporters or newspaper representatives unless we reach agreement on His message was in reply to a demand sent 30 hours earlier by Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate.

Nam's position was contrary to both of Ridgway's new demands. It presented the reinforcement of red guards. And it insisted on negotiation at the exact position of the allied party. Joy said the newspaper men were an integral part of his delegation.

Nam's message was not a direct reply to Ridgway.

The supreme commander had taken the question out of the hands of the chief delegates.

Directed to Premier

Ridgway directed his new demands to the North Korean premier and supreme Chinese commander in Korea.

Fresh Air Camp At Roblin Lake Officially Opened

Thursday evening, saw the official opening of the Salvation Army Fresh Air Camp for middle-aged at Roblin Lake, Ameliasburg. The camp is being conducted for the benefit of underprivileged children and will be operated under the supervision of Brigadier R. W. Gage.

Following Brig. Gage's welcome to visitors, Major H. Honeychurch introduced the chairman His Worship, Mayor Dr. R. T. Potter. After Mayor Potter's remarks, he introduced one of the speakers of the evening, Mr. R. S. Followell, M.P. for South Hastings.

Mr. Followell commended the Salvation Army for their work in helping under-privileged children and in bringing up Christian Canadians. In his address he outlined the history of the camp from the time the present Roblin bridge handed the 18 acres of land over to the Kiwanis Club up to the present time.

Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, general-secretary of Canada, addressed the gathering and gave two reasons, why he was happy to welcome the Army. For

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 13 — (CP) Prices held steady as the session progressed on the stock market today.

Industrials were up fractions. Papers, utilities, foods and liquors led the way and steels, textiles, refining oils, retail stores and manufacturing companies followed. Banks, constructions and agriculturals were mixed.

In the firm base metal section Sherritt Gordon, International Nickel, Quemont, Mindamar, Consolidated Smelters and Falconbridge showed moderate increases. Western oils became mixed after early gains. Golds attracted little interest and showed little trend. Senior producers were mixed and almost unchanged and moves in the secondary list were mostly of the one-cent variety.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, July 13 (CP) —Produce prices on the spot market here today:

Churning cream and butter print grades were unchanged.

The egg market was weak with little buyer interest and light receipts. Graded eggs, cases free, delivered Toronto, were: grade A large, 70-75; A medium 72-73; A small 63-69; grade B 60; grade C 50. Wholesale to retail: grade A large 80-81; A medium 79-80; A small 73-74; grade B 68; grade C 55-57.

Butter prices: first grade 63 1-2- 64 cents; second grade, not established; western (asked) 63 1-4-65 cents.

Hereford Breeders Establish World Council

Hereford, England, July 13 — (AP)—Hereford cattle breeders of nine countries including Canada decided today to set up an international organization to be known as the World Hereford Breeders' Council.

The council will draw together in a world fraternity numerous Hereford associations of various lands. Its objectives include improvement of the breed and standardization of regulations governing international trade in breeding animals.

Breeders, who voted unanimously to form the World Council, represented breeders from Britain, the United States, Argentina, Uruguay, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and Ireland as well as Canada.

Canadians attending the conference are led by W. J. Edgar of Innisfail, Alta., and D. A. Andrew of Calgary, secretary of the Canadian Hereford Breeders Association.

It was agreed the council should meet once every three years, and the Americans accepted the invitation of Dr. E. L. Scott, president of the American Hereford Breeders Association, to hold their first meeting at Kansas City. A date has not been fixed.

Headquarters of the council and its secretariat will be here, the historic home of the Hereford breed of cattle.

Helicopter Used In Attempt To Locate Body

A helicopter from the Trenton Air Station was pressed into service today in an attempt to locate the body of Frank Hazard, Plain field, drowned in the Bay or Quinte on Sunday.

For an hour this morning the helicopter with F.O. Tom Causey of Vancouver, and F.O. Henry Brown, Charlottetown, P. E. I., hovered over the drowning scene near Cow Island without success in locating the body.

The search will be continued this afternoon from the air.

Remand Given On Theft Charge

Pleading guilty to a charge of theft, 23-year-old Victor Bowers of St. Catharines and Oshawa today was remanded for sentence when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court.

Bowers, a night cook at a local restaurant, was charged with stealing pillow cases, bed sheets, slips and ladies stockings from 210 Coleman Street where he was rooming. Police said screws were taken from a trunk to obtain the articles stolen. The remand was given to allow an opportunity for police to secure Bowers' record.

Board Hearing Is Adjourned On City By-Law

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 13 (CP) — A hearing before the municipal board here Wednesday on the city's application for approval of a by-law setting up a limited industrial area was adjourned sine die today.

The by-law was opposed by residents of property adjacent to the area, who claimed it would devalue their property and create dangerous conditions for their children. A petition containing more than 400 names was submitted to George A. Lister, municipal board representative.

Approval of the by-law would open the way for erection of a new structural steel mill by the Dominion Bridge Company of Canada. The company's subsidiary, Sault Structural Steel Company, located here for about 14 years, operates a plant employing 200 shop workers. The new $1,750,000 plant would employ about 400 shop workers and more than 200 office workers, the company said.

Toronto City Council Loses $4,000 on Deal

Toronto, July 13 (CP) — City council found today it has to pay $5,100 for a piece of land it sold a year ago for $1,100.

The 16-foot wide lot was bought by Harold Groves who started to build a duplex on it. Council decided to buy back the property when neighbors complained about the structure.

Dr. Magnus Spence, one of the neighbors, has offered $2,000 to assist the city buy back the land.

THE FINE ART OF HAGGLING

Haggling is a fine art, practiced to its finest degree by men of no honor. It is not surprising, therefore, that the current peace negotiations have broken down through Russian haggling. The point upon which the Soviet chose to base its rupture of the negotiations was one which concerned the presence of newsmen from the United Nations at the conferences.

Whether or not the U.N. commander, General Matthew B. Ridgway, made a mistake in his "all or nothing" demands to the red forces will never be known. When the communists refused to allow the press, they were providing themselves with an excuse they might have found elsewhere in the negotiations. In other words, they would have put a stop to the cease-fire talks in one way or another, and the mere fact that they picked the press to bear the brunt of the blame is no indication that it is the fault of the correspondents.

The truth is that the communists, with their usual attitude, are afraid of a free press. This has been demonstrated on more than one occasion, and in recent days at the trial of William Oatis, sentenced to jail terms of ten years. Curtain for "espionage" by reporting. They have been condemned throughout the world for that piece of trickery, as they will for one that may see the fighting go on in Korea.

But this side of the world, we view the rupture of negotiations as tragic. But for those people who live in South Korea, it must be heartbreaking. They have seen their country literally torn apart by the arms of foreign men. If they are interested in the U.N. peace proposals, for no where is there a habitable house standing. Food is at a premium, and the natives have been forced to flee more than once from their homes. They are harried and hunted in their own land, and must have surely lost and found their faith in the free forces time and again.

Now, when it appeared that they might be able to see peace in their land again, the machinery has been stopped — for how long, no one can know. The Canadian people cannot feel the presence of the press for stopping negotiations. If the reds had not found their haggling point there, they would have found it elsewhere.

PERON WANTS RE-ELECTION

Much of the tumult and the shouting that surrounded President Juan Peron's murder of La Prensa has died out, but it appears that the Argentine dictator is still making his own rules. Senor Peron, ever anxious to give Argentinians the opportunity of having him as head of their country again next year, first moved the date of the next election from February, 1952, to November of this year. This, in itself, seems harmless, but when associated with Peron, it is a certainty that there is an ulterior motive.

Peron was very quiet in his latest move. He presented his bill to congress, perhaps in the hope that it would not be noticed by too many people. The powerful part of the bill dealt with the abolishment of the proportional representation system in congressional elections.

It is a wonder that Senor Peron left such democratic measures in the makeup of his country for so long. For, like every other dictator in history, he has tried to eliminate all those things which would not work in his favor. He forcibly took La Presna away from its owners, and turned its presses into propaganda mills for himself and his wife. He has threatened to collect retroactive taxes from the one other semi-free newspaper in Argentine, La Prensa, if the great amount that the paper would be forced to shut down. Which, of course, is exactly what Peron wants. He cannot stand criticism, and takes the surest way of eliminating it.

Before Peron's latest move, the Chamber of Deputies of his government was made up of men chosen from the fourteen provinces and one federal district of the country. By various political string-pulling, Senor Peron made sure that his Peronista party would always have the edge. At the last election, it controlled two-thirds of the represented seats, with the Radical party of the country occupying the rest. This was not good enough for the mighty dictator, and he now has changed the system.

Political experts feel sure that the Peronistas now have a controlling hand in almost all the constituencies, thus accounting for the dictator's new bill. Since the last election, Peron, through vacancies created by deaths, resignations and expulsions, has lost 26 of its original 44 members. There is good reason to believe that the 18 Radicals who have survived since the elections of 1946 will not hang on much longer.

Peron's latest personal legislation is hardly an indication that he feels he is losing his grip. Why should he be losing power? The man, like all dictators, has absolute rule over his subjects, and expects nothing but acquiescence from them at all times. His career is still in the blossom stage. But like all other dictators, it will soon become withered and sere, and he will find that one man cannot be supreme for too long.

NO MULLIGANS!

As we were on the starting tee,
The Reverend Bishop said to me:
"A mulligan?" and I replied;
"Never until the day I've died."

A mulligan in golf is this:
A drive allowed for one you miss;
A bit of cheating for the score
By taking five and claiming four.

"A mulligan?" To one and all
I say: "Get up and hit the ball.
No Bishop from a Holy See
Can get a mulligan from me.

"If you should wear a cardinal's hat
You'd get no mulligan for that.
Until the final putt is made
Play golf the way it should be played."

Owen Lattimore Called Before Senate Board

Washington, July 13 — (AP) — Senate internal security investigators called Owen Lattimore, teacher and writer on far-eastern affairs, for questioning today. There was talk they might also check later into state department suspension of two high - ranking career diplomats while their loyalty is investigated.

Lattimore was summoned to a closed hearing for quizzing about the politics of the United States Pacific Relations regarding communism. He is a trustee of that organization and once was editor of its magazine, "Pacific Affairs."

He is a professor at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Lattimore has served occasionally as a consultant to the state department. He was a central figure last year in the Senate Inquiry into charges that the state department was harboring communists and fellow-travellers.

Senator Homer Ferguson, a member on the Senate's Internal Security Sub-committee, also said the committee might look later into the State Department's suspension — pending hearings on security charges — of two key officers linked with U. S. policy toward China.

The department announced last night it had suspended:

John Paton Davies, Jr., 43, a member of State Secretary Dean Acheson's top-level policy planning staff and a veteran of diplomatic service in China.

Oliver Edmund Clubb, 50, director of the department's China Affairs office.

In a statement, the department said suspension was mandatory under the law once it has been determined that "security charges should be preferred and formal hearings conducted." The department emphasized its action did not carry any implication of guilt pending outcome of the hearings.

Davies' hearing was set for July 23. Clubb's for July 31 before the department's Loyalty Security Board.

The nature of the charges was not disclosed.

Nepal Govt. Sends Troops To Quell Revolt

Katmandu, Nepal, July 13 — (Reuters)—The Nepal government today rushed troops to the northern district of Bhutawal, about 70 miles from the capital of Katmandu, to quell a revolt headed by a former Nepal Congress Party leader, K. I. Singh.

Singh, who escaped from jail earlier this week, had been sent to prison for leading lawless elements in the countryside. He was rescued by armed followers estimated at 2,000 strong and raided the district prison.

Official reports received here said Singh controlled the district governor's office, seized it and proclaimed himself Governor of Bhutawal.

Unconfirmed reports here said the Nepal government asked the Indian armed assistance to quell the revolt.

Letter to the Editor

Cites Relations As World Example

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May I congratulate you on your splendid editorial of a short time ago as to the relations between the United States and Canada. As the fight against Communism is waged the world over, our two countries remain as just about the last strongholds of free men and as such, we must strive to work together and to strengthen the various ways of life that make Canada and the United States among the top leaders in world endeavor for peace.

For each of us to really know our neighbor is very important, and if sometimes we may disagree with each, others view on how our individual governments operate, we must strive to try to think of the question as the other side sees it. Above all, we must help strengthen the entire nation by the fault of a single person or action of a single government member.

In Canada today," and right here in Belleville, we have a few types of Canadian who at every opportunity, condemn everything American and make it their hobby to down all statements and actions of anything coming from the United States. These people are real and true enemies of democracy, and by their deep prejudice are destroying the very idea of understanding and good relations that have been built up over the years between the two peoples who are an example to the world of how nations should regard each other. Let us evolve, as individuals and private citizens, to try and educate these ill-informed types that Canadians and Americans must, at all times, remain friends and together wage the fight against world dictatorship.

If, as a Canadian, you do not like Americans, keep it to yourself and do not endeavor to trailer to our common cause of freedom, and at least attempt to understand the American way of life and not try to destroy something that you have not got, or like.

The Ontario Intelligencer has always fostered friendly relations between the two great countries of North America. Please keep it up. It's a worthwhile effort.

Ron Harmon.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An old commercial traveller of my acquaintance carries only one book with him in his travelling bag. A dictionary.

"I read the Bible in my hotel room," he says, "and this dictionary gives me all the words I thought I need." Years ago, I used to take a selection of books along on my trips, to while away the time and relax with. But when I found they were all much the same—same plots, same people—I got tired of them. Magazines the same. They don't answer questions: they just raise them.

"But the Gideon Bible can always be counted on to give you some kind of an answer. I don't attempt to read it systematically like a scholar. I just open it at random, put my finger, at the page, and start reading where my finger touches. It is astonishing how this little trick results in finding something that bears on your troubles or thoughts at the very time. Besides, it is lovely old English. Especially Job. I can open a Bible at Job almost every shot.

"And the dictionary? Well, I do the same with it. I open it at random, stick my finger on the page, and start reading. You can read ten, twenty pages without losing interest for a second. It is fantastic, the words we have in the English language. There is a word for everything. But that I found they were all in A dictionary. is an index of ideas. Ideas that never would have entered your head, otherwise, come floating through to you from a dictionary's pages. I read from all tired out after a day of selling to a lot of cagey, cautious, foxy customers, I just go to bed early in the hotel, take up the dictionary, go wandering through a sort of gale of ideas old and new for an hour or so. Then I take a dip into the Bible, and go to sleep as fresh as I wake up the next morning."

Sentenced to 60 Years, Will Serve Only Two

Toronto, July 13 (CP)—Joseph John McMahon was sentenced to 60 years in penitentiary Wednesday on 30 charges—15 of forgery and 15 of uttering. But the 43-year-old Toronto man will serve only two years. The two-year terms on each charge were concurrent.

Police said McMahon signed his brother-in-law's name on 15 cheques for a total value of $550 and cashed them for gambling purposes.

HOME TREATMENT OF RUNNING EAR

Many correspondents apologize facetiously for sending a clipping. They misapprehend what I said about that. I am grateful to readers who take the trouble to send me a clipping in reference to health or medical subjects. What I can't abide is the lamebrain who clips part or all of my news column and sends it to me in lieu of his written request for some thing. Were it not for the happy proximity of the bowling green this sort of thing might play havoc with my cardiovascular system.

Here is the new printing of the pamphlet on Running Ear. Ask for a copy and inclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

For years readers have been reporting the satisfactory effects they have had from the use of the ear drops described in the pamphlet. The extraordinarily large number of such reports received in recent months prompted me to talk about home treatment of running ear today.

One bit of advice I offer to every one with running ear, unless you think you know more than I do about it, is this: Never wear a gadget in the ear of any kind or other material in the outer ear unless your doctor tells you to. Just how to insert it and when to discontinue it. Some poor geeks with chronic ailing ears (mediciese for inflammation of the middle ear) have destroyed all of the eardrum, where the hammer, anvil and stirrup are located) with the resultant that the inflammation from possible spontaneous infection in the ear discharging, by wearing a plug of cotton, gauze or other material constantly in the ear, literally have a quaint notion that an ear plug is necessary, or at any much to absorb the pus in the discharge but rather to prevent the discharge of the pus.

It is always better to permit free ventilation than it is to have anything that plugs the outer ear and prevents natural dissolution and elimination of the pus and the oxygen in the air.

I'd give here the helpe and directions for use of the ear drops I recommend in the pamphlet if I could see how to work it out print what I write. I learned by unhappy experience years ago that I can't. I still cringe when I recall the great guffaws a typographic foreman let out as he showed me a collection of errors his men had made in my column. Never put any kind of oil in the ear, except castor oil, olive oil or any food oil you have at hand to drown a live insect.

Never put an implement or object smaller than your finger in your ear.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nanby-pamby Huskies

Feed our two husky boys raw egg for breakfast—whipped with 2 heaping teaspoonfuls malted milk and one spoonful chocolate syrup and hot milk. Was told raw egg alone is indigestible. (N. P.)

Answer—A small portion of the white of egg escapes undigested, but not any of the yolk. Raw egg is one of the most all practical purposes as digestible as it is cooked. If you like it raw. On the other hand, if you prefer it cooked one way or another it is often the easiest to digest. If your nanby-pamby huskies eat raw egg for breakfast give 'em eggs, raw or cooked as they prefer. Spare the poor kids the lollipop substitute for good nutrition.

Safe Heart Tonic

I am happy to report that the safe heart tonic you recommended for my husband is taking with or in place of digitalis he's proved wonderfully beneficial. Only a year now I have been free from the frequent irregularity and trouble of the heart and I feel so much better without digitalis. (M. J. S.)

Answer—Optimal ration of B in our plan is the better heart tonic. Digitalis medicine in my opinion. Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for anxiety troubles—C V D.

How to Gain Weight

Mother of 3 children, age 33, underweight, tired, look in every mess, anxious to gain weight, F. A.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet How to Gain Weight.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

UNPRAISED, UNREWARDED

THERE are certain people who are forever being praised—and a few rewarded—but the vast majority are never praised or rewarded. This is not because the most worthy are always in the limelight. More great geniuses die unheralded and unsung than this world will ever know.

The fact remains that it is this very group—the unpraised, the unrewarded—that is responsible for the work of the world. They are the great employed, the workers. And these our great country the pride of ourselves and the envy of others. They are the ones who shape public opinion and elect most of our office holders and they are the ones who fight our wars; though there is only about one in a million who will become in w... Most of them abhor and loathe it.

But while this great gathering of upraised and unrewarded gets small attention, they receive what many a millionaire knows nothing about. You will find them at the movies, at the theatre, at the baseball games and at the seashore in season. And their simple pleasures give them joy and happiness. And this great group is generous, coming promptly to the aid of the unfortunate when emergencies arise.

Down in my town a group of distinguished people put wreaths upon the equestrian statue of the great Simon Bolivar. I can understand their pride and their love for the man who brought freedom from Spain to the countries of South America; but the unpraised, unrewarded—very simple—that stands over a little grave in New England and it reads below the name: "She was so pleasant." And there is another grave near Grand Island in New York City dedicated "To an Amiable Wife." I could not say that the unpraised, unrewarded are the least of this world. They are one in the kingdom of earth.

The mothers of our great men and women have rarely been praised. Some lived in life, but they have been among the greatest givers and benefactors to mankind. Their only prayer and hope was that their influence might continually reach out into world through those to whom they gave life. What could be nobler?

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE WIDER CIRCLE

Jesus was born into a generation which believed that a man should love his friends and hate his enemies. Moses had taught man how to draw a circle around himself and his neighbor, and within that circle he had said that love must operate.

Jesus came to enlarge the circle. He said that the teaching of Moses was all right as far as it went but that the circle must be enlarged until it took in every one. His hearers, no doubt, scoffed at the idea that a man should love his enemies. Surely it was absurd to expect that a man could entertain a feeling of good will toward one who had injured him. But Jesus made no exception to the application of this rule. He insisted that a heart really governed by the Spirit of God was a heart in which love reigned supreme; and when love reigned supreme it was his contention that no one was outside the radius of its influence.

To Jesus there was just one rule for the living of a godly life and that was the rule of love. He was not willing to deal in single instance, or in the case of a single individual, this should be disregarded.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT SCRAPS

Message Offers No Settlement Of the Issue

Tokyo, July 13—(AP)— Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said tonight a communist reply to the question of permitting allied newspaper men in the Korean cease-fire conference city of Kaesong has been received but offers no settlement of the issue.

The red reply was in answer to a message yesterday by Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief allied cease-fire negotiator, demanding that allied newspaper men be permitted in the conference city.

(The reply was delivered to a United Nations Liaison officer at 10:35 a.m. (8:35 p.m. EDT Thursday), the headquarters release said.

"This reply," headquarters said, "offered no settlement of the issues contained in General Ridgway's message to Generals Kim Il Sung and Peng Teh-Huai, which was then in preparation and later broadcast at 1:15 p.m. today. No reply to General Ridgway's message has been received."

Text of Message

The text of the communist message as released by Ridgway's headquarters:

"To Vice-Admiral Joy, United States Navy.

"I have received your leiter. The following is my answer.

"1. We did not stop your group of delegates from coming to the meeting at 0748 12 July. Since we had not agreed concerning correspondents who had come along in the vehicles, naturally we could not allow them to come into the area of the meeting. It is without reason that your group of delegates refused to come to the meeting because of this.

"2 Our opinion on the problem of news reporters and representatives of the press is that neither side's news reporters or news representatives can come into the area of the meeting until both sides have agreed.

"3. We proposed that the meeting will be continued at 0000 (Pyongyang time) today.

"Signed General Nam Il, senior delegate, Korean People's Army, Chinese people's volunteer army delegation.

"0000 13 July 1951."

Message Broadcast

A similar message was broadcast tonight over the Peiping and Pyongyang radios.

The allied release said the Chinese representatives presented the following verbally in addition to the prepared message:

"Due to the difficulty of communication and because the helicopter did not come at 0630, the 0900 (6 p.m. EDT Thursday) time of meeting suggested by the senior delegate was passed. I am instructed to inform you that the suggested time for meeting is 1300. (10 p.m. EDT Thursday).

No meeting between the U.N. delegation and the communists was held today.

$150,000 BLIND CENTRE

Toronto, July 13 — (CP) Plans for a $150,000 rehabilitation centre for the blind in London, Ont., and district were announced today by A. N. MacGill, Ontario superintendent of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. At least 400 blind persons will benefit from the centre, Mr. Magill said.

STIRLING

Capt. Nessie McBride Tells St. Paul's W. A. Of Work in Bermuda

Stirling—The July meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held at the summer home of Mrs. Walter Elliott, Oak Lake with a splendid attendance.

Mrs. Maurice Bell presided. The Goodwill secretary, Mrs. Wills, read letters from Mrs. Wilkins, Potter family, Mrs. Glen Bush and Mrs. D. Duffin and the calling committee reported 13 calls.

Mrs. Patterson opened the devotional part of the meeting with a hymn and Mrs. A. Armstrong offered an impressive prayer for the people in war torn cities in their helplessness and hunger. Mrs. S. Williams read the Beatitudes for the scripture lesson followed by a prayer by Mrs. H. Stapley "A Guest for Happiness."

Miss Jerry Jerome of Belleville, delighted the gathering with two piano accordian solos, "There is no Secret," and "Thirty Pieces of Silver."

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Capt. Nessie McBride, of the Belleville Salvation Army, widely told of her work among the people of the Bermudas. The audience was carried to those islands of beauty and scenic wonde; by her descriptions of the coral houses and the wonders of the deep.

One could picture her walking among the dark people of those islands as an angel of mercy teaching the girls and boys Christ's way of life.

Mrs. J. L. Good expressed the appreciation of the W. A. to the guests for the contribution they had to the success of the meeting.

Refreshments served and the ladies enjoyed a social hail hour with the guests from Belleville and around Oak Lake.

Allied Troops Advance Up To Three Miles

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, July 13 (AP)—Allied troops today advanced up to three miles through heavy communist gunfire in a limited objective attack on the east-central front.

The fighting southeast of the red base of Kumsong was the main ground action in the Korean war.

U.S. night fighter planes shot down two small red planes near the allied peace camp at Munsan, one Thursday night and the other Friday.

While cease-fire talks in Kaesong remained stalled, there were persistent reports of red buildings behind the lines.

But an allied officer on the western front said there was nothing to indicate the reds were preparing to launch an offensive in the immediate future.

He said however, their "capabilities are increasing."

Latest estimates placed enemy strength at 350,000 men across the front and immediately in reserve.

An allied patrol in the west Thursday observed a Chinese communist company southeast of Kaesong, at the edge of the neutral zone between Munsan and Kaesong.

Further southeast of the neutral zone, the same allied patrol was fired on by about 50 reds.

Success Unlikely For Harriman, Say British Officials

London, July 13—(Reuters)— A foreign office spokesman today took a gloomy view of Averell Harriman's mission to Iran and said Britain had gone to the limits of conciliation in the oil dispute.

He said he does not think a visit by President Truman's Foreign Affairs adviser to Tehran could alter British policy—based on acceptance of the world court call for a standstill by both sides in the dispute. Iran has denied the Court's authority.

The spokesman added that he was "not laying down any inflexible principles," and said he wished Harriman every success.

HIGHEST IN HISTORY

Cornwall, July 13—(CP)—Cornwall's 1951 tax rate was set Thursday night at 46 mills, highest in the city's history. It is a 12-mill boost from last year. Increased educational and public service costs were blamed by Mayor Aaron Horowitz for the first tax boost in four years.

KANSAS CITY

The population of Kansas City, Kas., is 130,000.

In Topeka, the state capital, refugees poured into the municipal auditorium, the Masonic hall, hotels and private homes. Almost 20,000 persons in the city of 80,000 have been forced to flee their homes.

Bridges Swept Away

Two bridges linking the north and south sections of the city have been swept away by the Kansas river.

Wichita, the State's largest city, was preparing for flood waters. The Little Arkansas river was expected to sweep into the city tonight. The smaller towns were taking a beating also.

Army engineers estimated damage more than $85,000,000.

The Santa Fe's deluxe train, the El Capitan, has been stranded near Cedar Points, 120 miles southwest of Kansas City, for two days. Buses are attempting to take out the passengers. A few of the 345 passengers have been flown out. The remainder were reported in no immediate danger.

Planes were being used to drop boats, rations and other supplies throughout the eastern and central parts of the state.

WEDDINGS

POKRZYWKA—MUSGROVE

On Thursday, July 5, at 7:30 p.m. Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, a pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. F. R. Hardback, minister of the church, when Mabel Tyron Musgrove, of Belleville, youngest daughter of Mrs. Isabella Musgrove, and the late Mr. John Musgrove, became the bride of Peter Paul Pokrzywka, of Toronto, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jan Pokrzywka, of Tarck, Poland.

The bride wore an ankle-length gown of white, French lace over taffeta with shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion held by a coronet of lily-of-the-valley. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Norman Noyes, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a blue flowered nylon marquisette gown with matching shoulder-length veil held by a coronet of blue rayon net and Sweet Williams. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and sweetpeas.

Miss Gloria Noyes, niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a pink silk frock trimmed with white lace and carrying a nosegay of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Norman Noyes, of Belleville, was groomsman.

A buffet luncheon was served to the home of Mrs. Noyes, 148 Dunnan Noyes, where pink and white decorations adorned the rooms. The bride's mother received, wearing blue with grey accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto and Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Pokrzywka will reside in Toronto.

WIGHT—NOURSE

Before a bank of fern, dracena and baskets of gladioli and delphinium, vows were exchanged between Dorothy Constance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Nourse, Johnson Street, Picton, and Roy Stewart Wight, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wight, of Thedford, Ontario, in Picton United Church, Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The Reverend A. E. McCutcheon performed the double-ring ceremony and A. A. Benvie, M.C., played the wedding music.

Following the exchange of vows, Mr. Ronald Colliver sang Malotte's setting of "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, Grieg's "I Love Thee".

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore an ivory, satin floor-length gown with full skirt and short train. The fitted bodice featured a scalloped, off-the-shoulder neckline. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a rhinestone brooch. Her finger-tip veil of applique illusion was held in place by a bandeau of white carnations, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis, prettily arranged with small, white, satin bows.

Mrs. Gerald Prettie, of Trenton, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. She wore a gown of nile green net, with full skirt, and off-the-shoulder neckline, gathered in Bertha effect. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Ben Carman, and Miss Dorene Nourse, were gowns fashioned on similar lines in yellow and mauve, respectively. The latter carried yellow roses tied with yellow ribbon and Mrs. Carman, pink roses tied with green, while the matron of honor carried Talisman roses tied with rose ribbon. The bride's father, Sharon Prettie, in a pink net gown, was flower girl, and carried a nosegay of pink roses. All were crownless picture hats in matching shades.

The groomsman was Mr. Graham McDougal, of London, Ont.

A reception was held on the layn-at Riekarton Castle following the ceremony. White streamers with a white bell in the centre, were arranged from the ceiling by the pool, the fountain being filled with garden flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Nourse with Mr. and Mrs Wight, received with the wedding party. Mrs. Nourse chose a navy, nylon chiffon net with matching cocoa brown accessories, and a corsage of Better-mine roses; while Mrs. Wight wore a gown of mauve georgette with white accessories, and corsage of gardenias.

Friends of the bride, who assisted in serving were, Misses Diane and Sandra Goodwin, Miss Kathleen Anderson, Miss Mary Margaret Douglas, Miss Mary Pidgeon and Miss Nancy Carman.

A buffet luncheon was served at the bride's table which was centred with the three-tier wedding cake, topped by a bouquet of roses. Tulle and roses surrounded the cake.

The Reverend A. E. McCutcheon introduced the toastmaster, His Honor Judge W. R. Lane, who wished the bride all happiness, to which the bridegroom responded.

For travelling to Manitoulin Island, the bride donned a smart off-the-shoulder dress in two shades of mauve with matching jacket. Her hat was in matching shade with mauve veil. She wore a corsage of white carnations. On their return, they will reside in Belleville.

SHKWMAN—HADWEN

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 7, in the United Church parsonage in Brighton, when Doris Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hadwen, was united in marriage with James Earl Sineman, son of Mrs. Dora Sheaman, of Codrington.

The bride was gowned in pale blue rayon gabardine with white accessories and wore a corsage of red roses. Her attendant, Miss Shirley Calwell, of Brighton, wore a beige gabardine suit, brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Robert B. Hadwen, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Prince Edward Street, when Mrs. Hadwen, in grey silk crepe and a corsage of white blossoms, received the guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a blue gabardine suit and red roses. Pink and white ribbon streamers and summer flowers decorated the home.

For their wedding trip to Toronto the bride chose a blue gabardine suit with white accessories. They will reside in Codrington.

Guests were present from Toronto, Bloomfield, Codrington, Smithfield and Belleville.

MacDONALD—TRIPP

At two-thirty on the afternoon of Saturday, July 7, standards of white hydrangea, blue delphinium and pink peonies were attractively arranged in Bayview United Church as a background for the marriage of Beatrice Rowena Tripp, and Clarence Augustus MacDonald. The guest pews were marked by white bows and red rosebuds. Rev. R. McEachern officiated for the ceremony.

Wedding music was played by Mr. George Downs, and the soloist, Mrs. William Dunning, sang "O Promise Me" before the ceremony and "Because", during the signing of the register.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad L. Tripp of Batawa, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus MacDonald.

Mr. Tripp gave his daughter in marriage. She was becomingly gowned in white bracaded satin, the fitted bodice featuring a Queen Anne collar, and long sleeves pointed at the wrists, the skirt sweeping into a long train. Her fingertip veil fell from white satin bells, was held by a coronet of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Mrs. Clarence Carley, sister of the bride-groom, was matron-of-honour. She wore a floor-length gown of blue silk bengaline with panels of Swiss lace. She wore a cap of matching lace with clusters of bridal roses, and carried a nosegay of matching carnations and roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Lucy Johnston and Miss Lois Crosby, both of Trenton, the former wearing a gown of green silk bengaline and lace, with matching cap and mitts, and the latter in pink silk bengaline and lace, with matching cap and mitts. Clusters of bridal roses adorned the caps and both attendants carried nosegays of carnations and roses to accent the tones of their gowns.

Junior Miss Linda Carley made a demure flower girl in yellow with a crown of bridal roses; and carried a matching nosegay.

Mr. Raymond MacDonald, of Cobourg, was his brother's groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's cousin, where Mrs. Tripp received, wearing a blossoming gown of royal blue nylon marquisette, with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother also received with the bridal party, wearing a navy blue ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

A color scheme of pink and white included streamers cascading from a wedding bell to the bridal table, backed by a bouquet of pink, white and blue garden flowers.

Serving were Mrs. Harry MacDonald, Misses Donna Mitchell, Lorraine MacCauley, Betty Freeman and Patricia Jones.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace and to the groomsman a Bible, while the bridal attendants received lockets and chains.

For motoring to Quebec, the Adirondack Mountains, U.S., and other eastern places of interest, Mrs. MacDonald donned a suit of mauve wool, with navy accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will later reside at Batawa.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Belleville, Madoc and Foxboro.

KARLSON—ZUFELT

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in the rectory of St. Francis Xavier Church, Brockville, recently, when Rev. W. A. Dwyre united in matrimony Eleanor Zufelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Zufelt, of Brockville, and John Herbert Karlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Karlson, Hanover, Ont.

The bride was attractively attired in navy with white accessories.

Miss Nancy Hunter and Jerome Meyer attended the young couple.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Out-of-town guests were from Hanover, Owen Sound, Ont.; Belleville, Syracuse, N.Y.

Following the reception the young couple travelled to Syracuse, N.Y. They will reside in Brockville.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Oakville, Ont., July 13 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lawrence, accused of leaving their four young children alone in their home in nearby Bronte while they went to a beverage room here, yesterday were given a year's suspended sentence on a charge of neglect. The court was told the children were alone and unprotected for four hours.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She shares with her husband—he doesn't with her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am very disappointed in my marriage. I married a man who already had a home, so I never think of much of as if he were really mine. I have been married to him almost six months, and I'm dis—gsting on 25.

I have a job and don't make too much money, but it helps out with our expenses. I never know how much my husband makes and he never gives me any money unless I ask him for it, and then it's usually for something we need and not for my personal use.

I do my part by him. I share my money with him, and I come home from work, and work in the house until I am dead. We live with his mother, who is very nice to me, but I can't understand him. He never even wants me to go out with him, and I have to almost beg him on my knees to even take me on a ride. I never go anywhere unless I take the child along.

B. N.

Dear B.N.:

Have you talked your problem over with your husband's mother? If so, and she is nice to you, she must be fond of you, so it sounds as though she would be sympathetic and want to help you have a happy marriage.

Do you think there is any possibility that it might make your husband feel his responsibilities to his wife and his child if you stopped working, or would that simply make things harder for you financially?

I don't see any reason for sharing your money with your husband if he doesn't share his with you. It seems to me it would be wise for you to do this, as you are probably making him more selfish by doing it. Try to avoid quarreling with him over money, but make it plain that if he doesn't do the right thing by you with this, you will feel justified in not giving him yours or spend it on him.

If you can't figure this out by yourself or with your mother-in-law's help, then I suggest that you go to some organization in town, whose business it is to help people solve family problems.

If you don't know where to go, write me again and I will send you the information.

Her returning boy friends creates problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Two years ago, while on summer vacation, I met a boy I liked very much. Soon after, he had to leave for army duty and he is now in Korea.

My problem is that he is soon to come home under the rotation plan, and he tells me in his letters how much he loves me and that he wants to come to see me. His own home is about 400 miles from where I live, and he seems to expect me to invite him to stay with me when he comes. I don't think my father would like the idea of him coming such a long distance to see me. Do you think I should let him come, but tell him that he must make his own arrangements about a place to stay?

D.D.

Dear D.D.:

If your parents understand that you and this boy have been corresponding with each other for the past two years and have become good friends, I shouldn't think they would mind his paying you a visit. Most people are glad to be hospitable to a boy who has been far away on the battle front so long.

I would feel that it would be nice if your mother would write him a note herself, and invite him to come and see you. She could wait until he got back to this country, then send him the invitation, simply saying that if he found he had time for a little visit to your home, he would be welcome. Or you could issue the invitation yourself, saying that you and your mother would be glad to have him come. Talk it over with her and ask her advice and suggestions. If she feels you are confiding your problems to her, she will likely want to do everything she can to co-operate with you.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

There were too many cows, so they made ice cream.

Although ice cream was known as a luxury food about the time of Marco Polo, it was not manufactured on a wholesale basis until the 19th century when the surplus of milk and cream was used to found the profitable ice cream business.

Any ice cream will taste smoother and richer if it is not served too hard. Plan, if possible, to serve it when it can be scooped easily but is not turning to liquid.

Ice cream with any kind of sweetened berries is a luscious dessert in July weather. Ice cream with fresh blueberries, sweetened and cooked slightly, makes a delightful cool ending to a dinner.

If you want to bake a trey of light lacy fingers, these will provide a pleasing contrast in taste and texture for the ice cream—berry combination.

Ice Cream Blueberry Royale
Serves 6,

2 eggs
1-2 cup sugar
1-2 cup sifted self-rising cake flour
2 tablespoons melted butter or vegetable fat
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Confectioners' sugar
1 cup cultivated blueberries
1-4 cup sugar
1-4 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 pint vanilla ice cream

Put eggs in the top part of a double boiler. Beat with a rotary beater until lemon colored. Gradually stir in sugar. Put the pan over simmering water in bottom part of double boiler. Continue to beat until batter is slightly warm. Remove from heat. Pour batter into a mixing bowl. Cool. Add cake flour by hand or machine until batter is cool.

Fold in the flour. Fold in the melted butter and lemon rind.

Preheat oven at 350 degrees. Line a baking sheet with ungreased paper. Force cake batter through a plain hole pastry tube onto a baking sheet. Form into portions about 2 inches long and 4 inch wide. Dust with confectioners' sugar. Bake 12 to 15 minutes. Remove from oven and cool.

Mix 1-4 cup sugar with the cornstarch. Add water and stir until smooth. Bring to a boil in a saucepan. Add blueberries and cook, covered, about 5 minutes. Remove and cool.

Spoon ice cream into serving dishes. Add lady fingers alongside ice cream. Spoon blueberry sauce over ice cream.

GOOD MANNERS

Your manners while hospital-visiting

(1) Be considerate. (2) Be pleasant. (3) Be brief. These are the Three Graces that should guide you if you would like to be a welcome hospital visitor.

Two friends who don't agree about two questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are very close friends —each unwilling to yield to the other's opinion! So we've come to you to settle our discussion. (1) I am to be a member of a wedding party. The bride-to-be (only casually acquainted with my friend) sent her an invitation to the wedding ceremony only, no invitation card enclosed for the reception, which is not going to be a very large affair. I think this was gracious as well as correct. But my friend, maintains that this is wrong, and that the bride should send only to those many invitations to the ceremony as she sends to the reception. (2) I also say that it is not necessary for my friend to send a gift when she received an invitation only to the ceremony, that this is entirely a matter of her choice. Right or wrong?

D.

(1) Indeed you are right in your point of view. The bride-to-be made a very gracious gesture to your friend, whom she knows only casually, by inviting her to the ceremony. There was no reason to invite her to the reception, since the guest-list was limited.

(2) You're completely right here, too.

New homes . . . housewarmings for same

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are going to move into our new home within the next two weeks, and we are wondering about giving a housewarming. (1) Some of our friends have asked us about this, some calling it a "housewarming", others calling it "open house". Which is the correct term? (2) Are gifts expected as an affair of this kind? (3). Just what would be served.

W. C.

(1) "Housewarming" is the delightful and "come hither" word that is used for the party in which the hosts-of-the-new-home welcome their relatives and friends to their new home. It is just as correct to call this party "open house", but, since a housewarming is such a special kind of "open house", the latter term is usually applied to parties given on other occasions, perhaps a large tea or reception, or a wedding anniversary party or any other occasion where the invitations are less formal and inclusive.

(2) In general, gifts are not "expected", but some guests very generously do bring gifts to the new home. (Incidentally, if a gift is brought, the hostess should open it at once, or as soon as possible, so to show her enthusiasm and appreciation.)

(3) Afternoon hours, generally on Sunday, from 4 to 6 or 7 are the usual hours for a housewarming, and so a tea-menu is usually the order of the—and/or coffee and/or punch or any other drinking preference, small sandwiches with simple fillings; small cakes and/or cookies; perhaps some accessories as potato chips, popcorn, nuts, candies, or other nibbly items.

Guest of honor reads cards enclosed with shower presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a bridal shower who reads the cards that are enclosed with the gifts?

AB

The bride-to-be. She opens the package, reads the name of the giver, looks (enthusiastically!) at the shower present, and oh's and ah's about it (enthusiastically!).

Women's Institute

PLAINFIELD W.I.

Plainfield—The ladies of the Plainfield Women's Institute held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Harrison. The meeting was conducted by the president Mrs. Kerr. Community singing was led by Shirley Kerr.

A birthday card from Mrs. Hazzard was read and Mrs. Joe Gow expressed her thanks to the institute for remembering her in her recent bereavement.

It was decided that Mrs. Simmons of Foxboro, be made a life member of the Plainfield W.I.

A meeting connected with frozen food project is to be held in the Orange Hall at Plainfield. Several of the neighboring institutes are to be invited.

There is also a chest clinic to be held in the near future.

The Homemakers Club then took charge of the program. Several of the girls demonstrated dresses, scarfs and bedspreads that they had made and they also gave a demonstration of making salads.

A vote of thanks was tendered the girls and their leaders after which the hostess and her helpers served refreshments. There were 38 present.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Maintaining the stream-lined shape

Activity is a law of life; it is also one of beauty's laws. You have to have it if your blood streams are to match, if your complexion is to retain its youthful bloom. Exercise out of doors provides one with a sense of well-being. A lot of morbid cushion-sitters would crawl out of their ditches of depression if they would stop being self-indulgent. Let them get better acquainted with Mister Al Fresco, drink in the fresh air, bask in the sunlight, give their lazy muscles an occasional workout.

When a woman stops being active she starts to get old, and she feels old. Unused muscles become soft, and soft fibres may be the cause of poor posture, a spare tire, chaft the waistline heavy thighs.

Use energy when exercising.

Calisthenics pick one up like a tonic. The woman who has ten minutes of setting up exercises every morning doesn't feel right if she misses them. Even five minutes of deep breathing before an open window will be found refreshing and stimulating. If duties are pressing and time is at one's heels, one can do stretching exercises in bed upon awakening and before going to sleep. Watch the cat when she rises from her nap. No matter what happens, or how near it is to her meal time, she will do her stretching act. Every movement is graceful. Her body keeps lithe and beautiful. Be catty. Follow her example.

Start by stretching your fingers and toes. Extend them, relax, and repeat. Lift your hands as high as you can, stretching your muscles and the skeleton of your chest. Extend your legs keeping the knees rigid, pulling hard on the fibres of the thighs and calves. Work on your torso, lifting your chest and extending your legs again, as if you were trying to pull yourself apart at the hips.

Five minutes of this and your flesh will glow. You'll be ready to hop out of bed and start the day with courage; you will have a sense of strength and exhilaration.

While waiting for the -bathtub to fill, lift your chest, flatten your tummy and extend your arms straight out at the sides on a line with your shoulders, palms of the hands facing downward. Swing one arm forward and the other backward, pivoting at the waistline.

Use energy when exercising. Don't just make casual movements.

ARMISTICE

He told them conferences would be resumed as soon as they met three basic demands:

1. Conference near line of armed parachutist—either Kaesong or elsewhere. Kaesong, site of the armistice talks Tuesday and Wednesday, is communist controlled.

2. "Complete and equal freedom" of movement of cease-fire delegations.

3. Freedom of each commander to select his own party, including newspaper men.

Ridgway's broadcast to North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Pei-Tai Hua was the strongest statement yet made public in cease fire exchanges.

Ridgway made three proposals to implement his demands. If they are met, he said, the conferees can get down without delay and with some expectation of progress.

Wants Area Neutral

He proposed:

1. A circular area radiating five miles from Kaesong be declared neutral. (There is no mutually agreed neutral area now.)

2. The conferees and the roads the delegations use "be completely free of armed personnel." (Armed red troops now guard Kaesong and nine miles of road leading to it from the U.N. peace camp.)

3. Delegations be limited to a maximum of 300 each unarmed to send whomever he wants, but those in the conference chamber to be mutually agreed upon.

The breakdown came when Chinese guards refused to permit 20 correspondents to go to Kaesong with the rest of a U.N. convoy.

Ridgway's statement laid the blame for interruption of the talks squarely on the reds. He said:

Equality Lacking

"Since the opening of the conference it has been evident that the equality of treatment as essential in the conduct of armistice negotiations is lacking.

"Since the first meeting at Kaesong, our delegation has placed restrictions on the movement of our delegation.

"It has subjected our personnel to the close proximity of your armed guards.

"It has delayed and blocked passage of our couriers. It has withheld its cooperation in establishment of two-way communications with our base even though it agreed to do so immediately.

"It has refused admittance to the conference area of certain personnel in our convoy which I desire and whose conduct I stated I assume full responsibility.

"Extension of the present recess and the delay in resuming the conference . . . is solely due to those unreasonable and unnecessary restrictions against which my representatives have repeatedly protested."

Establish Good Faith

Ridgway made it clear it was impossible to negotiate "an honorable and enduring settlement under these conditions".

He said the U.N. delegation had established "beyond any shadow of doubt their honorable intentions and good faith at every stage of the proceedings."

Ridgway said his five representatives were ready "to continue our discussions in the same spirit of good faith at any time that we receive assurance that your delegation will proceed in like spirit."

The assurances which I require are simple and few.

"They include as primary prerequisites the establishment of an agreed circumference area of suitable extent completely free of armed personnel of either side.

"Each delegation must have complete reciprocity of treatment to include complete and equal freedom of movement to, from and within the agreed conference area and complete and equal freedom at all times in the selection of the personnel in its delegation party to include representatives of the press."

He then made his proposals for designating a neutral area around Kaesong, and added:

"Should you continue to insist that restrictions are necessary for our personal safety or for any other reason, I propose that the conference site be moved to a locality which will afford the few simple assurances I have specified herein."

Asks Fo: Quick Answer

The U.N. commander asked for a quick answer in the interest of saving lives. The war has gone on throughout the armistice negotiations.

Ridgway indicated that even before the actual start of talks the communists ostensibly were calling the moves. Their main demand and acquiescence all set bout followed.

When talks began, red forces were in control of Kaesong. They provided an armed escort for U.N. negotiators from their back-copter land strip to the conference room. The reds provided housing facilities. Armed communist troops stood guard, with their backs to the road, along nine miles of the highway travelled by Allied parties to Kaesong.

All U.N. convoys passed through a red road block—until communists tried to cut a truck load of 20 newspaper men out of Thursday's convoy. The entire convoy turned back and the U.N. broke off negotiations until its convoys were guaranteed unrestricted movement.

GUARDSMEN JOIN

Three Nights of Violence

Last night's fighting climaxed three nights of violent disorders at the apartment building.

The first disturbance came after Harvey F. Clark, Jr., 29, a Negro bus driver for the Chicago Transit authority, and his family moved furniture into the apartment he rented. The furniture was dumped out and burned by a mob Wednesday night.

No Negroes live in Cicero, a suburb west of Chicago.

The 450 National Guardsmen arrived on the scene last night a few hours after Governor Adlai E. Stevenson declared martial law in the Cicero trouble area.

Before their arrival, 300 police were having trouble keeping the mob from breaking through police lines.

The crowd pressed forward as the troops arrived but the guardsmen pointed their rifles, machine guns and pistols at the mob, halting the advance. Some of the mob were close enough to hurl heavy firecrackers or dynamite caps into the building.

Missiles Hurled

Sibices, bricks, flares and fire bombs were hurled by the shouting and frenzied mob. Police said the rioters' object was to break the police lines and set fire to the apartment building.

The soldiers and police finally succeeded in forcing the mob to retreat.

Clark Wednesday told police he had abandoned plans to move into the apartment but his lawyer said yesterday Clark is planning to move in later.

Clark has filed a $200,000 suit charging he was man-handled by Cicero, policemen when he tried to move into the building June 6.

Cicero authorities are under a federal court order to protect Clark and his property.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Domestic Termites

By ROY L. SMITH

The fire industry has grown until the business of exterminating insects which destroy the houses in which we live. Science has been drawn upon quite heavily as householders have sought some kind of protection against the day-winged creatures which eat away at solid timbers until the roofs fall in.

One of the interesting aspects of the case is the healthy appetite some building may present to the uninstructed. To the untrained eye the beams and timbers look to be as stout and dependable as the day they were cut out of the forest. But to a "termite exterminator" there are certain telltale signs of weakness which spells catastrophe.

Disloyalty Disrupts Home

The foundation of any home is the mutual trust upon which it rests. There can be no real home life inside that house in which all parties hold one another under suspicion.

The Old Testament story of the mother who taught the son to deceive his father can be duplicated in many a modern home, and the tragic results are always the same.

A mother, who rebelled at the stingy discipline of her husband taught her daughter to deceive the father, the two women joining in intrigue to cajole out of the miserly man a little extra cash, which they expended according to their own judgment.

It was a case in which all parties were guilty. The husband was a tightwad. The mother lied. The daughter deceived. And yet all three were terribly shocked when the day of tragedy dawned and the father had to rescue the daughter from the hands of the police and save her from the law."

No parent who teaches a child to deceive the other parent ought to complain if the bright child applies the principle of deception to both parents.

Divorce and Disaster

Every divorce represents disaster in some form. Never do we hear a divorced person joking about his divorce.

In the case of children, the dispersing of parents leaves a scar which never heals. There may be some argument among the sociologists about the relation of broken homes to juvenile delinquency, but there can be no question about the wounds that are left upon the souls of little ones when parents separate.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 15: "Safeguarding the Home," Genesis 27:5-20; Matthew 19:3-6; Luke 10:38-42; I Corinthians 13:4-7.

Nor can there be any question about the scars that are left upon the soul of the divorced. One may remarry and establish a new home, but the shock that has inevitably attends the breaking up of any marriage continues unto the day of death.

The church and the state may not have found the solution to the divorce problem, and it may be necessary to change many laws before the millenium has come. But one law will never be repealed: the spiritual damage of divorce represents unalloyed tragedy.

It's the Little Things

It usually happens that homes which are broken up go to pieces on the little rocks.

The great tragedies of life — overwhelming disasters—seem to have a way of driving couples together. The little irritations separate them.

One young couple appeared in a court of domestic relations asking that their matrimonial bonds be dissolved because the young wife did not cook potatoes the way her young husband liked them. In another case a marriage was threatened because the young husband did not hang up his clothes.

It can probably be said that at least half the divorces now in our courts could be avoided if the parties involved could learn to laugh when there is no joke.

Religion and Divorce

A genuine religious interest which induces a young couple to pray together is the cure for a large percentage of our domestic difficulty.

Case of Champagne Awaits Fishermen

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—There is a case of champagne and a bottle of whisky waiting for a deep-sea angler, as some argument among the sociologists about the relation of broken homes to juvenile delinquency, but there can be no question about the wounds that are left upon the souls of little ones when parents separate.

But the donors of the trophy are confident that it will be unclaimed for years. Many broadbills have been seen in the area, but the last one caught was in 1926.

Large numbers of swordfish are caught off the Bay of Islands each year, but they are all either black, blue or striped marlins. The Bay of Islands is one of the world's finest deep-sea fishing grounds and anglers come from all parts of the world to try the sport. Many world's records have been established in the area.

But the great broadbill swordfish continue to elude fishermen. On other fish the swords grow to about three feet in length, but on the broadbill the swords are always at least six feet long. To catch one is regarded as the pinnacle of achievement for a deep-sea fisherman. The man who finally lands one will probably have to add a good deal to the case of champagne to provide for the celebrations that will mark his catch.

DIFFICULT OPERATION

New Delhi — (CP) — A former Kerala — ridden jungle in the Nainital area of Utter Pradesh now is humming with agricultural activity. Government tractors reclaimed more than 80,000 acres and altogether it is expected 120,000 acres will be turned into good farm land.

BOUNTY FOR BEARS

Cardston, Alta. (CP)—The Pole Haven Community Pasture Association is paying bounties of $50 for grizzlies and $25 for black and brown bears killed in pasture.

Alberta Tough On Common Fly

Lethbridge, Alta. (CP)—Flies are finding things mighty tough around here this summer.

What with the recent big June snowfall and now a war on their hands, the carefree life of a fly is hardly worth living.

For the citizens of Lethbridge and nine other communities in this part of Southern Alberta have launched an all-out war on the common house fly.

Health authorities say the campaign is the first major effort in fly control in Canada.

The idea was started by Dr. Margaret O'Meara, former Lethbridge Medical Health officer, and the first spraying was carried out last summer, using DDT.

Results were so successful the city decided to carry out an operation DDT every year. Then the provincial and federal governments got behind the idea and provided grants for the purchase of a spraying machine.

Provincial entomologist J. H. Brown of Edmonton, suggested setting up a fly-control area, so the towns of MacLeod, Cardston, Magrath, Raymond, Stirling, Coaldale, Taber, Picture Butte and Barons joined the project.

Health authorities feel that by getting rid of flies, one of the greatest health menaces would be removed.

400,000 Eligible For $40 Pension, Many to Register

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 13. (CP)—The Federal Welfare department soon will ask approximately 400,000 Canadians to register if they wish to qualify for a pension of $40 a month, payable to all 70 and over, regardless of means.

Application forms will be made available late this month through post offices across the country. Anyone 70 and over not now in receipt of a government pension will have to complete one of the forms if he or she wishes to obtain the federal pension, starting next January.

In brief this is the situation:

1. If you now are receiving an old-age pension you need not fill out an application form. Your records will be obtained from the provincial government and you will automatically start receiving a pension under the federal program next January.

2. Others 70 and over—rich or poor—who have lived in Canada for at least 20 years must fill out an application form to get the pension.

3. Announcements will be made by the department through newspapers, radio and other media when the application forms become available.

Approximately 715,000 Canadians are expected to qualify for the universal federal pensions. Of the total, 515,000 are receiving pensions under existing legislation.

At present, pensions of $40 a month—some provinces pay a bit more—are paid to persons 70 and over who have lived in Canada for at least 20 years and who can prove their need for such a pension. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

Under the new program, the cost of the pensions—approximately $350,000,000 a year—will be paid mainly out of contributions from the taxpayer. Anyone who can, will have to pay something toward the cost of the pensions, possibly through a special stamp security tax. Legislation providing for the pensions and for collection of the contributions will be passed at a fall session of parliament.

Pensions at 65

Other legislation passed provides for federal-provincial participation in the payment of $40-a-month pensions to the needy between 65 and 69 and to needy blind persons 21 and over.

At present there are three categories of persons 70 and over. There are those not now receiving a pension because they are in receipt of an income beyond that allowed in the present old age pensions act; those receiving a partial pension, and those receiving a full basic pension of $40 a month.

The immediate effect of the universal pension will be to guarantee to all over 70 an income of $40 a month. For the first time people 70 and over will be allowed to earn, without having their pension reduced, any amount of additional income by taking part-time or full-time jobs. The welfare department expects the wealthy will apply for the universal pension since, through taxation, they will pay not only their own share but part of the pensions paid to others.

Under existing legislation there are few cases where a man and his wife can both qualify for a full pension. But under the new program a husband and wife will each receive $40 a month on reaching the age of 70. If more than two persons of 70 and over, eligible for the universal pension, are living together each one will receive $40.

At present, people now virtually destitute in homes or various kinds either receive an old-age pension on their own account or it is paid in trust to those in charge of the institution on the understanding that some part of it be given to the pensioner for his personal needs apart from board and lodging. Under the universal pension, $40 a month will either be paid directly to the individual or in trust to those in charge of homes for the aged.

At present, old-age pensions are not paid to those in mental institutions. Under the universal pension, it is probably that this exception will be removed. This will mean that the provinces, which now pay almost the entire cost of the care of mental patients, will receive a considerable amount of assistance.

LAST WORD IN LUXURY IN 1766

One of the most valued exhibits of the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa is the newly acquired coach used by Sir Guy Carleton, Lord Dorchester, one of the most famous figures in Canadian history. Well preserved and "good for a few centuries more," the coach was used by Sir Guy between 1766 and 1796, then became part of his estate in England. The present Lord Dorchester presented it to the museum. Barbara Riley is standing by the coach, which, in its day, was the last word in luxurious transportation. — Central Press Canadian.

Timmins Begins To Feel Pinch Of Mine Strike

Timmins, Ont., July 13 (CP)—This one-industry town today began to feel the pinch as a strike at one of its biggest gold mines went into its fourth day."

A union official criticized the latest move of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines which yesterday announced the working force had been relisted in 223 classifications. The company also announced pay increases for many of the jobs in the classifications which had taken 18 months to prepare.

Leo (Buck) Rehle, organizer for the United Steelworkers of American (CIO) said that in 45 classifications the pay of the men actually had been reduced. Basic pay had been 93 cents an hour, plus a cost-of-living bonus of three cents an hour.

Meanwhile there have been no direct negotiations between company and union.

About 1,600 Hollinger miners are on strike to enforce demands for a 17-cent-an-hour pay increase and a union dues checkoff both recommended by a conciliation board. The company offered a raise of two cents an hour, plus increases based on the new job classification plan which it said would average eight cents an hour.

Five hundred office and managerial employees have been put out of work temporarily by the walkout.

Officers Make Up Unique Army Unit

London. (CP)— Col. V. A. M. Richardson, prominent London consulting engineer, has been elected to command the strangest unit in Britain's Territorial (Reserve) army. The unit exercising this exclusive right, the Engineer and Railway staff corps, has enjoyed the privilege of electing its commander since its formation in 1865.

The corps is unique in other respects as there are no non-commissioned officers or other ranks. Its complement consists of 10 colonels, 20 lieutenant-colonels and 30 majors, all experts in engineering, waterways or road and rail transport.

It is also the only army unit permitted to impose a charge for enrolment. By authority of the war office the officer-recruits pay a fee of 10 guineas (about $31.50) for the privilege of enlisting. The members serve without pay, but they are also excused from lectures, drills and parades.

3 Navy Officers Awarded Mention in Dispatches For Services In Korean Theatre

GETTING READY FOR ANOTHER RED PLUNGE

Reports of gigantic enemy concentrations of men and war material being built up on the central front finds the U.N. forces preparing for the onslaught. Toting a load of mortar shells to the place where it will do the most good is Pte. James Blake, U.S. infantryman.—Central Press Canadian.

Ottawa, July 13—(CP)— The department today announced that three officers of the Royal Canadian Navy have been awarded mention in dispatches for services in the Korean war theatre.

The officers are Capt. Jeffery V. Brock, D.S.C., of Winnipeg and Vancouver; Cmdr. Robert P. Welland, D.S.C., of Victoria and commissioned engineer E. V. Dear of Victoria.

Capt. Brock commanded HMCS Cayuga during her first tour of duty in Korean waters and was commander of the three Canadian destroyers during this eight-month period.

The citation said in part that Capt. Brock "led his destroyers well and has kept them at a high state of efficiency. During the Inchon landings he was in command of the southern blockade element and contributed a great deal to the early rehabilitation of the islands on the south west and west coasts of Korea."

Cmdr. Welland commanded HMCS Athabaskan in the Korean theatre for more than nine months. The Athabaskan was also one of the ships supporting the invasion of Inchon last September.

The citation accompanying his mention in dispatches said Cmdr. Welland had shown "great dash and skill and his ship was "a fine example of efficiency."

It also noted that "on Aug. 22, 1950, HMCS Athabaskan landed a party of sailors and with the aid of local carriers, captured the islands of Taish Cheku To and Ryank To and destroyed by demolition a W/T station on Hachibi To."

Commissioned engineer Dear served as chief petty officer in the Athabaskan through her period of duty in the Korean theatre. Serving engine room artificer in the destroyer, he was promoted shortly after his return to Canada. He now is attending an officers' training course at HMCS Cornwallis.

His citation said he displayed "outstanding devotion to duty in most trying conditions imposed on engine-room personnel in the naval operations of Korea."

The award of mention in dispatches to the three navy officers will be published in this week's Canada Gazette. They will each be entitled to wear an oak leaf on the general service medal ribbon.

12 BODIES SOUGHT

Rio De Janeiro, July 13—(AP) —Seachers waded into the South Atlantic surf today seeking the bodies of 22 persons killed when a Rio-bounde airliner crashed just off shore.

The plane, en route from Natal to Rio, went down yesterday off Aracaju, about 900 miles northeast of here—just after take off from the airport near the mouth of the Sal River.

Cause of the crash has not been determined.

DIAL DIRECTLY

Toronto, July 13 — (CP) Bell Telephone officials said today that toll dialing now is in operation in the Niagara peninsula and will soon connect Toronto, St. Catharines and Welland. The toll system allows operators to dial phones in other cities directly.

United Nations Making Progress In Korean Talks

Munsan, Korea, July 13—(AP) —Lt.-Gen. Sir Horace Robertson, commander of British Commonwealth forces in Korea, said today the United Nations "has made considerable progress—quite distinct progress toward a cease-fire and armistice."

The white-haired Australian General told reporters:

"The allies are making a sincere effort toward a cease-fire, and I don't know about the other side."

Sir Horace visited the press train at the United Nations Peace Camp here to spike rumors that the Communists is attempting to force Gen. Matthew Ridgway into the United Nations cease-fire delegation.

"I can assure you interests are completely safeguarded along with those of other nations," he said.

Shriners Start Saying Goodbye To Broadway

New York, July 13—(AP)—A hundred thousand Shriners started saying their goodbyes to New York today after showing Broadway how to put on a real extravagnza.

Twenty thousand of the nobles treated the town to a five-hour fun fest that wound up at times Square at 1:20 a.m.

Police estimated that 2,500,000 persons watched the Shriners parade.

The parade was studded with bands, colorful costumes and every sawy bit of showmanship the fezzed visitors could think up.

It was the last big public show of the 77th annual convention of the ancient Arabic order, nobles of the Mystic Shrine, which ends today.

Glen. Douglas MacArthur, himself a Shriner, and Mrs. Mac Arthur rode at the head of last night's parade and then took places in, the reviewing stand. Loud cheers greeted their arrival.

BEGIN ROUNDUP

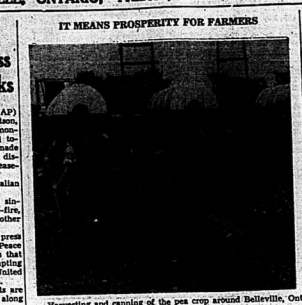
Fort Erie, July 13 — (CP) — Police said today they have begun their annual roundup of vagrants who come to this Fort Erie town during the summer racing season. Police said residents have complained of being pestered for handouts and by touts at the races.

WISHED, WORSE FATE

New York, July 13 — (AP) — Bernard Weiss, 43, awaiting federal trial on a counterfeiting charge, shot himself to death in his Bronx apartment yesterday. Police said Weiss, free on $25,000 bond, left a suicide note, asking friends to forgive him. To his friends, Weiss wrote:

"I wish them a worse fate."

IT MEANS PROSPERITY FOR FARMERS



Harvesting and canning of the pea crop around Belleville, Ont., is in full swing now. The product of over 2,000 acres flows into the canning factories, is trucked away in cans a few hours later. This is one of the modern machines which strips the vines fast as they are delivered. Farmers of the area realize close to $100 an acre from their peas. — Central Press Canadian.

Principal Advisor Will Make Tour With Princess

London, July 13—(Reuters) — Princess Elizabeth will take Lt.-Gen. Sir Frederick Browning, her principal adviser, with her on her October visit with the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada, it was announced today.

Other members of the royal suite will be Maj. Martin Charteris, her private secretary, Lieut. Michael Parker, equerry-in-waiting, and Mrs. Andrew Elphinstone, lady-in-waiting.

Browning, 54, is comptroller and treasurer of Clarence House, the Princess's London home. He and Charteris, 37, look after all arrangements for her public engagements.

Browning's wife is novelist Daphne du Maurier.

Meanwhile, the Royal couple awaited formal delivery of President Truman's invitation to visit the United States before accepting it.

Palace sources had indicated earlier that they would go to the U. S. after completing their Canadian tour.

It was announced in Washington that the invitation was sent yesterday.

REMODELLING NEEDED

Hamilton, July 13 — (CP) — Members of the Hamilton Police Commission meeting last night inspected a recent break from their city jail, agreed unanimously that a thorough remodelling is needed. The prisoner who escaped knocked out a section of wall and escaped down a corridor.

Three Killed As Govt. Troops Fire on Rioters

Guatemala, Guatemala, July 13 —(AP)—Three persons were killed and at least 30 wounded last night when government troops fired on anti-communist demonstrators, climaxing two days of anti-red disorders.

Last night's shooting began when soldiers in trucks tried to scatter the anti-red marchers after an automobile had been overturned and burned in Guatemala's Central Park.

Violence first flared Wednesday afternoon at the National Orphanage. University students and market women beat up the director and four other members of the orphanage staff whom they accused of being communists.

In clashes with police which followed the incident, at least seven anti-communist demonstrators were injured and several others arrested.

The demonstrations came on the heels of a recent communist-directed bus strike which stranded about 40,000 Guatemalan commuters and caused wide resentment.

TO MAKE NEW ATTEMPT

Horley, Surrey, England, July 13 — (Reuters) — Donald Campbell, 30, son of Britain's water and land racer, the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, will make a new attempt this summer to wrest the world speedboat title from the United States.

He will have to better the mark of 152.323 miles an hour, set by Stanley S. Sayres.

Navy League's Summer Camp Ready for Cadets

Midland, Ont., July 13—(CP)— A 57-acre island in Georgian Bay near here is the summer headquarters by junior sailors from all over Canada.

Princess Alice Camp, operated by the Navy League of Canada on Minnicog Island, has already withstood the impact of its first 200 sea cadets of the season and is ready for the 325 who will replace them next week.

That's pretty good for a camp that was sold to the League for $1 back in 1949.

The island was turned over to and Gordon Lailch for use as a the Navy League by James Norris, naval training base during the Second World War. As many as 15,000 Sea Cadets a season were trained for emergency use by the Navy League in co-operation with the Canadian Navy.

This year it has been reclassified from a provincial camp to a junior camp accommodating cadets from all over Canada. Cadets trained there qualify for the senior camp at Latona, B.C.

Hamburger Costs Man $10 Plus

Walkerton, July 13 —(CP) — "The Case of Mildmays' Miniature Meatballs" in court here today cost Ernest Wolf $10 plus costs after a youth was fined $10 for creating a disturbance.

Evidence showed the young Mildmay resident ate the small quantity of meat in a hamburger served in a Mildmay cafe.

The youth bowed loud and long for a free replacement until the cafe operator ordered him out. The would be hamburger gourmet continued his waits on the street and found himself in the hands of the law.

In finding the accused, Magistrate E. D. McClevis said that the price of meat is enough to rile anyone. He suggested however, the accused should have ordered eggs as he knew the meat in meatballs is fighting a losing battle.

MAIN LINE BLOCKED

Hamilton, July 13—(CP)—The Canadian National Railways main line between Hamilton and Niagara Falls was blocked today when a westbound freight train struck the rear of another freight at Grimsby during dense fog.

Two cabooses and about five cars were derelicted.

The caboose on the front train was smashed and plowed into the car ahead of it.

First reports said none was injured.

Shipyards in Maritimes And Quebec to Put 36 World War II Ships Back in Shape

Ottawa, July. 12—(CP)—Shipyards in the Maritimes and Quebec are to put 36 Second World War fighting ships back in shape for a new career with Canada's expanding peacetime navy, the defence department said today.

All of them have been in reserve for some years and are being brought out and modernized. They are to help the navy meet its planned objective of 100 warships plus a lot of smaller ones in service by 1956.

Sixteen of the vessels are frigates and 18 are minesweepers bought as war surplus by Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que., and now purchased by the navy. The other two are Bangor minesweepers, the Digby and Granby, that have been in reserve at Halifax and which are to be refitted by Lunenburg, N.S., Foundry Co.

Delivery of the frigates and Bangor minesweepers from Sorel for refitting and reconditioning has started.

The Prestonian, first ship to leave was allocated to Canadian Vickers, Montreal, Kierans, which will be the prototype establishing the standard for the other frigates. Ultimately the frigates will be brought up to current navy standards in respect to habitability and anti-submarine armament.

The minesweeper Drummondville was second to leave Sorel and the third was turned over to Steel and Engine Products, Ltd. at Liverpool, N.S. The minesweeper will be refitted and reequipped to their previous standard with certain minor alterations.

The program includes the frigates Cap de la Medeleine, Pontoise, Toronto, Buckingham, Victoriaville, Lauzon, New Glasgow, Penetang, Stettler, Shawinigan, Three Inch Arran, Lanark, Outremont, Fort Erie, Prestonian and Rossmay ex. The minesweepers include Sarnia, Kenora, Fort William, Red Deer, Blairmore, Nipigon, Maplejeur, Medicine Hat, Westmount, Port Hope, Swift Current, Mahone, Cananoque, Miramichi, Kentville, Goderich and Drummondville.

All ships will be towed to the shipyard assigned to convert or refit them as the yards are ready.

FUNDS LACKING FOR RELIEF

Cap Chat, Que., July 12—(CP) —Mayor Gerard Cole said today "funds are lacking" for the relief of some 300 persons left homeless by fire that swept this Gaspe peninsula town July 5.

Fire destroyed more than 40 homes built in the west side of this fishing and lumbering village.

The mayor said the homeless are living with relatives and friends but cannot do so indefinitely.

Population of Cap Chat is about 2,500.

British Peers Decide to Cancel Tour of Pubs

London, July 13 — (AP) — A pub crawl by two peers to see how London compares with Paris in the open air drinking department was called off by mutual consent today.

The peers said they were only kidding, really, when they agreed last night in the House of Lords to the guzzling expedition.

Lord Mancroft had remarked that tourists dote on open air cafes, such as abound in Paris, because they like to drink in the health-giving sunlight. He complained that a shortage of such places in Britain is hurting the tourist trade.

Forest Fires Stop Logging In B. C. Woods

Victoria, B.C., July 13 (CP)— The woodsman's ax was silent today in the forest stands of south western British Columbia, where much of the province's wealth is harvested.

A forest closure went into effect at midnight Thursday at two serious fires burned after more than a month without a measurable fall of rain.

Forestry officials feared that a fire burning over 200 acres of Sooke Logging Company property on Vancouver Island would sweep into the Sooke Lake reservoir, source of 60 percent of greater Victoria's supply.

A total of 19 fires was burning in the Vancouver forest district.

The closure order threw thousands of loggers out of work. It prohibited all logging, sawmilling, mining, construction, roadwork, travel, hunting and fishing in the woods of the southern coastal area and Vancouver Island.

Main highways will be kept open but automobiles are not allowed to make stops in wooded areas.

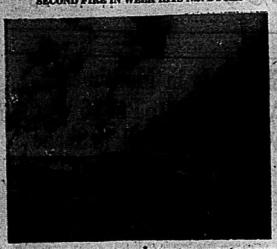
SECOND FIRE IN WEEK HITS N.J. DOCKS



This dramatic airview shows blazing flames sweeping a group of coal barges in a fire which broke out recently along the docks of Woodbridge, N.J. Heavy damage was done before local firefighters, including a New York city fireboat, got the flames under control. An unidentified barge captain was reported missing in the blaze. This was New Jersey's second fire disaster in a week, following closely upon the propane gas explosion in Newark, causing $3,000,000 damage and injuring 11 persons.—Central Press Canadian.

Japan Develops Real Attachment for Neutrality

By WILLIAM JORDEN

Tokyo, (AP)—Where will Japan stand once she regains her independence.

Many United States observers have made the easy assumption that the Japanese, having benefited by the "exit" of occupation and millions of American aid dollars, are permanently on the side of the west. Others are convinced Japan has no future unless she plays on the western powers' team.

Statements by occupation leaders, from Gen. Douglas MacArthur down, have given the impression, that Japan is a democratic nation and a permanent and trustworthy ally of the west.

But not all Japanese agree that this nation must fall into line as an enemy of the communist world. Their reasons are varied, but they add up to a potent body of opinion against taking part in any struggle between East and West.

In the early days of the occupation, when it was United States policy to demilitarize Japan and eliminate any chance of her fighting again, the Japanese were told their only hope for security was to remain neutral.

Then American policy changed. It became important that Japan would not be neutral. It was argued that in an all-out battle with world communism, the democracies would need Japan's industrial strength and fighting manpower.

Many Japanese, sold by the earlier arguments for neutrality, have not adopted the new policy as readily as some Americans had hoped. The Japanese people, with the memory of bitter defeat and war's devastation still fresh in their minds have developed a strong attachment for neutrality.

Among those most concerned with the problem of Japan's future are the men who once led her mighty armies. Purged from official life, these military leaders nevertheless have maintained close ties with their old friends and subordinates. In recent months, with the relaxation of occupation policy, they have begun to speak more freely.

Some of the ex-militarists accept the view that Japan must ally herself closely to the west to prevent Japan's failing to the communists. They are convinced the U.S. and her allies will win any foreseeable war with the Soviet Union. They want to be on the winning side.

Others, however, are sure Japan will lose any war in the near future, no matter which side wins. And they are not convinced the democracies can beat the Russians.

Officer's Argument

One of the leading spokesmen for the latter school of thought is former Col. Masanobu Tsuji, one of Japan's most brilliant staff officers during the Pacific war. In speeches and pamphlets, Tsuji outlines his argument this way:

1. War is inevitable between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., probably before 1953.

2. The Far East will be of secondary importance.

3. There is no fundamental conflict between Japan and China, but only between the U.S. and Russia. Therefore Japan should not involve herself.

4. There is little chance that the U.S. can win a Third World War.

5. The Japanese should take a "passerout" attitude toward the communists, adopting the good parts of their program without actually becoming a communist nation.

Tsuji says his estimate of the east-west conflict is based on extensive material on Russia's economic and military strength gathered by Japan's army before the end of the Second World War.

One of his conclusions is that, because of the Soviet's planned decentralization of industry, "perhaps 50 atom bombs in Russian hands would be more destructive than 500 in American possession."

Tsuji also believes any heavy industrial system built in Japan now would only be destroyed by American forces on their withdrawal to prevent those industries from falling into enemy hands.

He reaches this conclusion:

"We should never be involved in (war between the U.S. and Russia) at any cost. Fortunately Marshal Tsuji is in become the Switzerland of the Far East. We should stick to this advice. However hard it may be, it will be much better than being involved in the catastrophe."

U.S. Military Men Aid Koreans to Build up Army

By SAM SUMMERLIN

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, —(AP)— A small team of United States military advisers is welding the south Korean army into a fighting force that some day may be capable of defending this battle-scarred republic.

The team is attached to K.M.A.G.—the U.S. military advisory group to Korea—since war began last June 25 these advisers have managed to hold the Korean army together despite staggering losses.

Today, through an intensive training program, K.M.A.G. is forming a nucleus of professional Korean soldiers. Republic of Korea forces have lacked this solid core.

Two big questions now are:

What would be the role of K.M.A.G. if and when a cease-fire developed?

Would this south Korean army be able to protect this country?

Both questions were posed to Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army. The answer to the first question, he said, must come from Washington.

As for the second, Van Fleet said the K.M.A.G. training program will create an effective army for the Republic of Korea which will be sufficient to maintain peace within the country and defend it against any aggression from a neighbor."

K.M.A.G. was set up in August 1948, as a provisional military advisory group in expectation of the withdrawal of U.S. occupation forces then stationed in Korea. The group's mission was to advise and train the south Korean army. Each high Korean officer had an American officer as an adviser.

This army, however, was prepared only to maintain internal security when a year ago the north Koreans swarmed across the 38th Parallel.

Despite overpowering enemy strength, K.M.A.G. members stood alongside the South Koreans in their desperate effort to stem the communist onslaught.

Little War Experience

Although the Koreans suffered some 40,000 casualties in the first few days of the war, K.M.A.G. managed to replace these and at the same time boost the army from about 90,000 to nearly 250,000 men.

The recruits got little training —usually from four to four weeks. The Korean army lacked both equipment and good officers. Controlled by Japan for years, South Korea had little experience in war.

Shortly after the third South Korean corps collapsed in the communists' May offensive, Lt.-Gen. Chung Il Kwon, its chief of staff, diagnosed the trouble: "A lack of heavy equipment, lack of training and inexperienced officers."

A new program was launched to attack this problem. A military school system, modeled along American lines, bore down on non-commissioned officers and officer candidates to improve the quality of junior leadership. Units up to division size were rotated from the front for instruction.

K.M.A.G. gained a new chief June 1 when Brig.-Gen. Garrison H. Davidson succeeded Brig.-Gen. Francis Farrell, who had served in the position since last July.

Davidson, white-haired, handsome former head football coach at West Point, stressed that K.M.A.G. now has shifted the emphasis from quantity to quality for the Korean army.

"When the war first broke out," he said, "the demand was for lots of men in a hurry. Now that the situation has become more stabilized, we can concentrate on quality."

Davidson said the full effect will not be felt for another six months, but "we can feel certain that the South Korean army in the future will be far more capable of sustaining any aggression than it was before the war."

Libyan Airfield Vital U.S. Link In North Africa

Tripoli, Libya; (AP)—Waving date palms and the Mediterranean sea provide a frame for Wheelus Airfield in North Africa — Major U.S. Airforce installation on that dark continent.

Wheelus Field is one of the largest bases of the 3,000 ship mission of the Military Air Transport Service.

It funnels men and materials to U.S. installations in the Mediterranean and Middle East area. Its service extends into Italy and Germany, to American units there, in time of emergency, Wheelus —with its long improved runways and supply and maintenance installations—could shift overnight to wartime conditions.

Flanking major shipping routes and within bomber striking distance of the heart of Russia, Wheelus Field would have great strategic value.

Today, however, it is a peacetime way station for transport planes with the atmosphere of any similar base at home—if you stay on the base, that is. A quite primitive Africa is only a few miles away.

There are some 1,200 officers and men stationed here, 4,000 miles from home. More than 200 have their wives and families with them. The families started to come in on Christmas Day 1948, a little more than six months after the Air Transport Command reactivated the former Italian Fighter base.

Many Live in Tripoli

A score or so of the families live on the base. But base housing quarters are limited and the rest are scattered through the city of Tripoli, seven miles away.

The base has schools, a chapel, cinema, bank, laundry, hospital, nursery, beauty shop and post exchange.

There is baseball and football, golf the year around on a sand course dotted with cactus and palm trees, and some of the best swimming in the world. The special beach on the Mediterranean has a snack bar, outdoor pavilion, volley ball courts, barbecue pits and parking shelters.

The field is named after Lt. Richard Wheelus, an air transport command pilot who was killed in a crash near Abadan on the Persian Gulf in February, 1945.

The U.S. has a lease arrangement with the government of Libya, former Italian colony which is now under British administration but in the process of becoming independent under United Nations auspices.

Presumably, a new lease will have to be authorized by the new Independent Libyan government which is scheduled to take over at the end of this year.

Wheelus Field is equipped with Douglas C-54 Skymasters. Col. Fred O. Easley, Jr., of Fordyce, Ark., the base commander, is proud of the field's record of no fatal accidents in transport operations in its three years of activities.

Australia Fights Witchcraft Menace Among Aborigines

Sydney, Australia, (CP)—Dr. R. A. Brock, government "walkabout" doctor to the aborigines is having medicine-man trouble.

Dr. Brock was appointed to investigate the health of the nomadic aborigines in North Australia by travelling with the wandering tribes and studying their life.

He has just returned to Darwin after his first walkabout and reports that many aborigines are living at "half throttle" because disease lessens their energy.

Dr. Brock found many suffering from hookworm, tuberculosis, yaws, ringworm and leprosy—the reasons for their seemingly lazy attitude.

Most of the disease has been caused by native ignorance of hygiene, and Dr. Brock is battling against native witch doctors to help wipe out illness among the tribes.

On the surface there is no apparent competition between the white doctor and the black medicine man.

When they meet at villages or in the bush, medicine or treatment is never mentioned. Friendly conversation is usually kept strictly to topics such as hunting and fishing.

Because of the power still held by the medicine men, many natives refused to be examined, but health department believes this attitude will eventually change.

Dr. Brock also used aircraft, launches and native canoes during his visits.

Picturesque B.C. Woos Old Sailor, Buys Luxury Boat

Vancouver, (CP)—When he retires, the usual old seadog spends his day on the beach, watching the ships moving out to sea and the gulls chasing them. If he smiffs a squall blowing up, he'll wander back to his snug little land-locked cottage.

That's the tradition of the old seadogs.

But last week retired Skipper Herman Thorsen broke that tradition. It was the only switch from the success-story pattern he made, and success stories are common on the Pacific Coast.

Instead of settling down to a tranquil life ashore, Mr. Thorsen bought himself a floating home—the most luxurious seagoing houseboat on Vancouver's waterfront. Unlike other old sailors, he intends to keep on sailing.

Vancouver was a raw town when the young, penniless Norwegian arrived here in 1901. He knew no English, but that didn't stop him. He signed on a tug, learned all about nautical engines, then switched to cannery tenders for awhile.

He shipped on a coastal freighter as fireman, got his first month's cheque for $94 and never looked back.

He leased a towboat. That led to a fleet of his own. Then, finally, like all old seadogs, retirement.

A few weeks ago, Mr. Thorsen, ruddy with twinkling eyes, found the vessel he had in mind ever since he first saw the quiet coves of Nelson Island as a boy.

Swap House for Boat

He and his wife traded their land-based home for a 52-foot houseboat on the sturdy hull of a war surplus landing barge.

Insulated completely, the houseboat boasts a kitchen that would credit the pages of the most modern magazine, a bathroom equal to it, a bedroom and a cozy day-panelled living room with huge, picture windows.

Engineer Thorsen is busy in overalls these days, adding a few touches of his own.

He's installed a 300-gallon water tank and an electric pump to supply running water to the bathroom and kitchen. Under a cupboard on the verandah deck, he's stowed a powerful motor to run the 32-volt electrical system—power for lights, radio, refrigerator, washer, and even Mrs. Thorsen's sewing machine.

His 50-foot mahogany yacht, with its twin 200-h.p. engines—capable of cruising at 18 m.p.h.—will supply the motive power to the houseboat.

Some old sea-dog he'll hitch his floating palace astern of the yacht, head out under the Lions Gate bridge, and steer north for some quiet adventure.

He'll move from cove to cove up there, dropping anchor against some of the most spectacular scenery on the continent. He'll spend the summer feasting on clams, oysters and succulent salmon—Norwegian style.

Judge's Release Fails to Free Indicted Reds

New York, July 13 — (AP) — Eleven indicted communists languished in jail cells today despite a federal judge's order that they be released.

The 15 were ordered freed yesterday by Federal Appeals Judge Learned Hand, who over-ruled the action of U. S. District Judge Sylvester Ryan in revoking the $175,000 bail bond posted by the Civil Rights Congress. They remained in jail, however, because U. S. attorneys questioned whether Judge Hand's order specifically reinstated the once - cancelled bond.

Judge Ryan, whose attempts to locate four fugitive convicted reds started the bail issue, scheduled a resumption today of hearings on the right of the Civil Rights Congress to post bail.

Judge Ryan sent the 15 reds back to jail Wednesday when he revoked their Civil Rights Congress bail. He said the Congress was "irresponsible" and no longer would be permitted to serve as a bondsman in his court.

Jailed in Contempt

Judge Hand's ruling yesterday was that the hearings had not been concluded by Judge Ryan and that the judge should not have acted.

Action against the Congress came after three of the group's bail fund trustees had been jailed by Judge Ryan for contempt of court because they refused to tell who contributed to the bail fund.

The judge said the identities of those who posted $80,000 bail for the 11 reds on trial might provide a clue to the fugitives' hiding places.

Yesterday, two of the trustees — mystery writer Dashiell Hammett and W. Alphaeus Hunton — were granted $10,000 bail each pending appeal of their six-month contempt sentences. Judge Hand set the bail after the two had spent three nights in jail. The bail was not posted, and they remained in jail last night also.

The third trustee, millionaire Frederick Vanderbilt Field, is free in $10,000 bail pending appeal of his 90-day contempt sentence.

FOUR MEN KILLED

Somerset, Ill., July 13 — (AP) — Four men were killed last night when a ton or explosives went off at the Du Pont powder plant. All that remained of the small frame building where they worked, authorities said, was a hole in the ground.

D. E. Montgomery, assistant manager of the company, said the building was a gelatin cartridge unit in which explosives in a gelatinous form were placed in paper shells for manufacturing small cartridges.

SERVICE STATION MAN SAVES CRIPPLE ENVELOPED IN FLAMES

Leslie Burtt, of Bronte, near Hamilton, Ont., dashes into garage fire to rescue 75-year-old victim

1. Arthur Smith, an elderly cripple whose condition requires the use of two canes, was in the habit of sitting in the back of Leslie Burtt's service station. Often he helped by answering the phone when Burtt was busy. One day, however, his help inadvertently made trucks for a sale place . . . realizing that a dangerous explosion might follow at any minute. But Leslie Burtt's only thought was for his trapped, crippled friend.

2. Leslie Burtt had gone outside to serve a customer, when suddenly he heard a curious hissing sound. Turning around, he took in the terrible sight at a glance. Inside the garage flames seemed to be shooting from every side. By now, however, he had instinctively made tracks for a safe place . . . realizing that a dangerous explosion might follow at any minute. But Leslie Burtt's only thought was for his trapped, crippled friend.

3. Dashing in through the flames, Burtt found the old man still in his chair, his hands already scorched. Working quickly, the garage operator dragged the crippled Mr. Smith out to safety. We are proud indeed to add the name of Leslie Burtt, of Bronte, Ontario, to the list of Canadians who have won The Dow Award for outstanding bravery.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The sports page is a wonderful institution. Every survey of reader interest in just about every paper you can name shows that the sports page is one of the most widely read sections of the paper. Even women read it. Now while all this is fairly flattering to the ink-stained wretches of the Sports-writers Benevolent and Protective Association, it also gives rise to many problems that the sportswriters would never suspect had any connection with sport. For instance, if the page has wide reader interest then naturally advertisers are interested in it. And when advertisers get interested in anything then watch out.

* * *

The advertiser, a crafty soul with money and the certain knowledge that money not only talks but gives the orders, suggests to the powers-that-be that perhaps their advertisement for rubber tires would look good on the sports page. He is followed by the fellow peddling shirts, gloves and socks, who in turn is followed by the government recruiting officer looking for soldiers. Into this jolly throng elbows the gent pan-handling razor blades, shaving soap, and hair oil, and since the great family journals usually decline liquor advertisements, the soft drink men are next. As the line forms on the left, there are tradesmen peddling used cars, fishing tackle, men's shoes, cigarets, cigars, auto rugs, excursions, radios, travelling bags, suits, gasoline and a miscellaneous assortment of merchandise ranging from Bombay butternut bananas to refrigerators. Occasionally there is room left for an announcement of a sporting event but not very often. The ad men know that anything of interest to the public is worth a search as they bury it somewhere near the back in a jumble of apricot ads from the corner grocery store.

* * *

As a result there is often not enough room for sport. Consequently the news of the day is scattered over three or four pages humorously labelled the "sports pages". When things are done this way it also allows more room for advertisers interested in seeing their selling hocum alongside Joe Blow's batting average. However the worried sportswriter will be pleased to learn that the sports pages are infinitely better off than the sports writer. They at least know what they are selling. The sports writer never knows what is going to wind up on the "sports page". He has no choice as to what is said by this unsavory wedding of words and words and more often than not he couldn't care less for the products it they were one way rides to Siberia.

Tonight in Memorial Arena, Lord Athal Layton, a peer among wrestlers, will attempt to straighten out the stripes in the Zebra. The hooded horror, who has defied all attempts to unmask him, will have his stiffest test in meeting Layton. His Lordship, who had his bid for the British Empire Championship to Whipper Watson, is confident that a victory over the powerful Zebra would do much to assure him a return match. The Zebra, who has little concern for title wrestlers, the fans, or the referees, but does think very positively about keeping his identity a secret, is in no mood to trifle with anyone, even when he is a lord.

In the main preliminary Dangerous Dan O'Connor will find things tough against Mike Sharpe. Ben Sharpe, the other half of the handsome Hamilton pair will tackle Pat Flanagan in the opener, Friday the 13th, a spine-chilling episode for the superstitious. The count Irishmen in the card holds no terror for the Erie emigrants, O'Connor and Flanagan, so they say. None the less it is a dandy night for something unusual and perhaps the Zebra's unveiling is in store for the faithful.

Weather permitting, the Redmen will play an exhibition game under the lights tomorrow night against the "Florida Hoboes", a touring band of U. S. All Stars. The Hoboes have already played Brockville, of the COBL Brockvilles, and defeated the league leaders 8-1. They were so entertaining that the citizenry persuaded them to stay over another day for a second game. Included in the lineup is Frank Servier, the leading college hitter in the U. S. in 1945 and a member of the St. Louis Browns in 1947. Jim Loring, a catcher with five thousand Chicago White Sox dollars to ward off the wolf is another outstanding college player with the 'Hoboes'. It should be a good do. Prior to the senior event, Walker Hardware and Schwab's of the Belleville Pee Wee Baseball League will play a league game which was held over due to rain. The Pee Wee game starts at 7.00 p.m.

Tomorrow afternoon stock car racing returns to Speedway Parkland, complete with spills, chills, and hair-raising driving. A full program of racing is scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p. m. Cars from Toronto, Oshawa, and points west are expected to augment a growing field of local cars. At the July 2nd meet 14 cars lined up for the feature with only six finishing. A pileup on the first turn took out three racers, a burning engine and a blowout took out two more before the end of the first lap. In practically every race there was excitement galore as the drivers hurled their cars around the half-mile oval in quest of gold and glory. There is every reason to expect that the action will be as swift tomorrow.

Reynolds Pitches No-Hitter Against Indians, Red Sox Oust White Sox From First Place

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A no-hitter by Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees and the surge of the Boston Red Sox into the American League lead shared top billing in the baseball world today.

Reynolds' masterpiece was doubly dramatic since it came over Cleveland's Bobby Feller, king of the no-hit pitchers.

Feller, only hurler to fashion three no-hitters since the turn of the century, surrendered only four hits himself. One, however, was a seventh inning homer by ex-Indian outfielder Gene Woodling that gave the Yankees a 1-0 triumph.

The Red Sox took a full game lead over the White Sox by sweeping a twilight-night doubleheader in Chicago 3-2 and 5-4. The Red Sox won the nightcap in the 15th inning to establish an American League night game record. Philadelphia and Cincinnati established a major league mark of 19 innings Sept. 15, 1950.

Outfielder Clyde Vollmer produced the most telling blow in each game. He homered with one on in the seventh inning to snap a scoreless duel in the opener. His long fly in the 11th scored Lou Boudreau with the winning run in the afternoon. Boudreau had opened the frame with a single and had raced to third on another one-bagger by Billy Goodman.

Brilliant Relief Win

Ellis Kinder hurled a brilliant relief win, yielding five hits in 10 scoreless innings to gain his fifth triumph without a setback. The two victories increased the Red Sox' streak to eight straight and 15 wins in their last 19 games. On June 14, Boston was in third place, seven games behind Chicago.

Saul Rogovin was the unfortunate Chicago loser in the second game. He pitched the entire 17 innings and allowed only 10 hits. His own error, a two-base wild throw, enabled the Red Sox to tie the score at 4-4 on an unearned run in the eighth.

Reynolds walked three and fanned four to become the first Yankee pitcher to hurl a no-hitter since Johnny Murphy did it Aug. 27, 1938. Pearson's victims also were the Indians, Pearson, Reynolds and Woodling, who hit the game-winning homer, all played with Cleveland before coming to the Yankees.

Third No-Hitter

It was the third no-hitter of the season. Feller pitched one against Detroit July 1 and Cliff Chambers wove one for Pittsburgh against the Boston Braves May 6.

The victory was Reynolds' tenth. The triumph boosted the Yankees into second place, a fraction of a percentage point over Chicago.

Feller himself had a no-hitter until Mickey Mantle doubled in the sixth.

Gus Zernial struck out six times but he also hit a grand slam homer to lead the Philadelphia Athletics to a sweep of their double header in St. Louis 9-7 and 13-6. Elmer Valo's two homers won the first game.

A homer by Hoot Evers provided the difference as Detroit limped Washington 5-4 to give Bob Cain his eighth victory against six losses. Fred Sanford was the loser.

Brooklyn increased its National League lead to 9 1-2 games, whipping Chicago Cubs 2-1 while the St. Louis Cards blanked the New York Giants 2-0. Homers by Roy Campanella, Carl Furillo and Billy Cox highlighted the Dodger victory.

Gerry Staley blanked the Giants with four hits as the Cards slipped past New York into second place by one percentage point. Billy Johnson's homer with one on in the fifth provided the winners with their run.

Eddie Waitkus cracked four hits and Granny Hamner drove in four runs with a homer and two singles to lead the Phils to an 11-8 victory over Pittsburgh. Cincinnati and the Braves were postponed by rain.

Meeker Will Not Play Hockey For Ottawa

Toronto, July 13 — (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs' star right-winger isn't planning to play for Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Hockey League while he is a member of Parliament.

Meeker, elected Progressive Conservative member for Waterloo South riding last month, said last night published reports that he would leave professional hockey to play for Ottawa were "absolutely out of the question."

(In Ottawa, promoter T. P. Gorman said Meeker would be a most welcome addition to the hockey club, but, commenting on the reports, said he didn't think Meeker would leave the Leafs.)

Said Meeker: "There's a much better chance that I'll be playing in Toronto with the Leafs."

However, he indicated that parliamentary duties will be his first consideration.

Rocky Marciano K.O's Rex Layne In Sixth Round

New York July 13 —(AP)— Power-punching Rocky Marciano set his bomb sights on heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles and Joe Louis today following a slashing victory over Rex Layne.

"Charles, Louis, that's for me," shouted the undefeated Brockton, Mass., clouter as he accepted congratulations for his six-round blitz of the world's No. 3 heavyweight in Madison Square Garden last night.

"I'll take on anybody," said Rocky. "But my manager Marty Weill says it has to be Charles or Louis next. Okay, I'm ready."

This from a guy who was rated a 13 to 5 underdog, wasn't given a chance by the alleged experts, and who celebrated his third year of pro boxing by belting out Layne with a smashing right to the jaw in 25 seconds of the sixth of a 10-rounder.

The 12,565 fans paid $73,190 to see the bout. The chunky, game, aggressive 23-year-old Layne from Lewiston, Utah, has been a tough cookie in the game here with his pleasing fights. It was his first knockout loss and only his second defeat in 38 fights.

Layne said his right knee popped on him in the third, the same round in Marciano shattered his rival's bridgework and knocked out a tooth.

Bobbing and weaving and scoring with left hooks and right uppercuts, the 26-year-old Marciano befuddled Layne with his style during the first four rounds. In the second an ugly gash was opened over Layne's left eye and in the fourth the Lewiston lacerper went down from a shove.

Rocky switched style in the fifth and started banging his chunky foe with looping punches from outside. At the start of the sixth he caught Rex with a powerful right to the jaw and Layne tottered forward and then fell on his face for the full count.

It was the 31st knockout in 36 fights for the ex-shoemaker from Brockton.

Winner Disclaims All Right to Cup Due to Rules

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadian marksmen learned Thursday that their principal victory in the Bisley rifle shoot is in the balance because of a difference between Canadian and English rules.

Lieut. Cliff Roe of Toronto, winner of the Imperial Tobacco Service Rifle Aggregate Trophy, has written to the National Rifle Association Council, withdrawing from that competition and disclaiming all right to the trophy. He said he inadvertently shot with a rifle not sighted according to the rules.

As a result, teammate CSM. Norman Beckett of Hamilton, Ont., and Cpl. J. K. Witts of the RAF., each two points below Roe with 98—will fire a tie-shoot tonight for the trophy.

Officials explained that as Roe was about to fire in another contest he was told the sighting aperture he was using was contrary to English rules for that type of contest.

Leading American and Canadian speed boat drivers will compete in a two-day International speed boat regatta at Pont Viau near Montreal this weekend.

The meet, sanctioned by the Canadian Boating Federation, is under the supervision of the American Power Boat Association, governing body for all speed boat racing in North America. Some 100 entries have already been received.

Three more members of the Winnipeg Buffaloes in the Manitoba Baseball League left Winnipeg Thursday to join St. Louis Browns' farm organization.

They are pitcher, Jim Newberry; pitcher-infielder, Leon Day, and second baseman John Kennedy. Earlier this week, third baseman Charlie White left to join the U.S. club's farm system.

Broadway bookmakers don't believe Jimmy Tunnin can beat Sugar Ray Robinson again.

They already have set Robinson as a 5 to 1 favorite to beat the new middleweight champion in their return bout.

In England, British bookmakers, who work legally at their trade unlike their American counterparts, made Robinson a 3 1-2 to 1 favorite Tuesday night when he lost his title to the 23-year-old Turpin.

Michigan Boxing Commissioner Floyd Stevens Thursday refused to approve a 15-round championship fight between lightweight champion Jimmy Carter and Harold (Baby Face) Jones in Flint, Mich., July 16.

"Jones has no standing as a challenger and I've informed the promoters that the state board of Athletic control won't recognize it as a title fight," Stevens said.

President Ford Frick of the National League Thursday disallowed a Cincinnati Reds protest against Pittsburgh Pirates for letting Ralph Kiner play in a July 4th doubleheader while under suspension. The Pirates won 4-1 and 16-4.

Luke Sewell, manager of the Reds, protested Kiner's participation after a telegram arrived during the doubleheader informing Kiner of his three-day suspension and $100 fine for a row with umpire Jocko Conlan in a game with Chicago.

Branch Rickey, Pirate general manager, said Frick approved Kiner's playing the holiday twin bill in Pittsburgh after learning the Buc outfielder already was in action before Frick's telegram arrived.

Ontario Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers lost their fourth straight game, a hitting streak and third place in Intercounty senior baseball standing last night.

The Kitchener Legionnaires defeated them 3-1 at Waterloo largely because centrefielder Freddie Thomas was hitting solidly and specializing in circus catches.

Thomas made two sparkling catches in a row in the third inning to nip off a Waterloo rally after one run. Then he uncorked a towering home run over the right field wall to score the winning run in his third hit of the ball game in the eighth.

The win put the Legionnaires in third place, half a game ahead of Waterloo.

Southpaw Hal Johnson scattered four hits and left 11 Tigers stranded to gain credit for the win.

The Legionnaires completed their rout by holding Waterloo second baseman Jim Muldoon hitless to end his consecutive hitting streak at 27 games. They walked him twice to do it.

Arrangements for the annual Intercounty League all-star game were completed at a meeting at Galt. Officials decided to hold the game at Waterloo on July 31 against the Indianapolis Clowns, United States Negro champions.

Alex Kvasnak of the Intercounty champion Waterloo Tigers will manage the all-stars and the team will be selected by vote of the fans. Proceeds will go to Intercounty minor ball and the Bill Snyder Memorial Fund of the Ontario Baseball Association.

Officials also decided that southpaw Jerry Creasey of the Kitchener club was eligible to finish the season with the Kitchener club.

Last Tuesday the O.B.A. refused Creasey a transfer from Oshawa Merchants of the Viaduct Senior League because he had completed financial arrangements with the Oshawa club at the beginning of the season.

Two Loops Will Discuss Merger On Saturday

Ogdensburg, N.Y., July 13. — (AP)—Directors of the fast-folding border league and the Canadian-American League will meet again Saturday to discuss a merger, possibly for a 10-team circuit.

After a four-hour closed meeting last night, the Border League announced that George Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (Minors), had agreed by telephone that "the matter should be discussed and an attempt made to accomplish a union."

The announcement said Albert Houghton, head of the Canadian-American League, had agreed to a meeting Saturday in Gloversville.

The Border League directors would not elaborate on the statement.

However, in Schenectady, N.Y., Houghton said Trautman had informed him that John G. Ward, Border League president, and Mayor Ralph J. Morissette of Ogdensburg, had asked Trautman to permit a 10-team Canadian-American League.

This proposal previously was rejected.

It would mean that the Watertown, Auburn, N.Y., Ogdensburg and Kingston, Ont., club could merge with the Canadian-American circuit.

Both circuits are Class C.

Watertown and Auburn quit the Border League earlier this week.

Geneva, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont., had dropped out earlier.

The six-year-old Border loop has been beset by financial troubles.

Red Wing Hurler Back on Beam, Defeats Buffalo

(By The Associated Press)

Bob Habenicht, 25 - year - old righthander of Rochester Red Wings is back on the beam.

Habenicht, used primarily in relief since late May, has turned in two fine starting jobs within the last week.

The lanky newcomer to the International League turned back Buffalo 2-1 on four hits last Thursday and yesterday he blanked the Ottawa Giants 4-0.

Habenicht burned up the league early in May, winning four out of five decisions but after 4 knockouts he was shunted to the bullpen. His fine relief work earned him another shot at starting assignments and Habenicht is making the most of it.

Habenicht scattered seven Ottawa hits in posting his sixth victory against one defeat. The game was called after six innings because of rain.

The Wings scored all of their runs in the fifth inning against veteran Ed Wright. Johnny Bucha doubled home two and Johnny Blatnik drove home the other two with a long single.

Rain washed out games between Montreal and Toronto and Syracuse and Springfield. Buffalo and Baltimore were idle.

Tom Gard's Note Book

New bunk beds in the children's rooms at the cottage presented a mattress problem. After much shopping in second-hand stores and auctions, four of the right size were finally rounded up. We undertook to cover them with some faded chintz drapes put into discard after our decorating spree this spring. With the whole family working at it, the job was soon done. Now the surface of the mattresses can be kept fresh and clean — and the children can graduate from army cots.

Pin Box

It was a request for a new pin box after the cardboard one finally collapsed that reminded me I was out of shaving soap. What's the connection between pins and shaving soap? That empty soap dish would be just the thing to hold common pins. Right in the midst of the mattress-covering bee I took time off to clean it up and decorate the top with a few pine cones to serve as a handle. Junior suggested it would make a good penny bank — it might at that!

Does the homeowner ever get in the way of the automobile when you drive into the garage? Does it take up too much room in the driveway? Shoots is a little like. I've found most useful to keep it right where it is — a couple of inches above the floor. Be sure to nail the cleats securely so as to carry the weight.

Save That Garden Hose

Every year I vow something will be done to preserve the rubber garden hose. It gets more wear and tear being coiled and uncoiled and rots more from the sun and undrained water than from actual use. The idea I am eventually going to use is not original but it will be effective. Two pulleys will be placed under the eaves on the north side of the house. A rope attached will accommodate a 25-foot length on each quite handily and then the hose will be dry and up out of the way when not in constant use.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When Expert goes bust he forfeits a squawk. His bidding is just to hear himself talk. With never a pause to bear from his pards, he bids just because he has 13 cards.

Your defensive bid of one in a suit shows at least five cards in the suit you mentioned; in a hand containing five tricks, two of which are high cards, one of which is a suit.

Why do you promise five tricks? Because you assume partner is able to produce two tricks. You have the other five with which to make the seven tricks a bid of one must produce.

Why should you have five cards in your suit? Because you may take only two of your tricks with your two high cards. Your other three tricks must come from ruffing short suits.

If, however, your defensive bid is a non-jump of two in a suit, you show six tricks. But you do not promise any longer in suit, nor do you promise any more in high cards and suits.

Thus, a non-jump defensive bid of two in suit may have only two high, in which case you will need four tricks in short cards; that is, tricks you take by ruffing.

Within a few minutes impress yourself with something a million words may not do. From a pack of cards, lay out such a six trick hand on the table. Look at the suits you must have.

With only two high cards, your other four tricks must be shorts in two suits; two singletons, or a void and a doubleton. So, you must have one suit longer than six or two suits of six cards. If not, you must have more than two high cards.

Take a gander at such a hand here:

♠ None
♥ A J 9 7 6 5
♦ K 8 7 5 4
♣ 9 4

If your long suits were shorter, you could not have six tricks without more high cards. Seeing is believing if you can believe what you see.

Movie Column

By FRANKLIN ARTHUR
For BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 13. (AP)—What or Rita Hayworth's future in Hollywood? Will moviegoers accept her again despite her much-publicized romantic wanderings with Aly Khan?

Those are questions Hollywood is asking as the breakup of her marriage and a return to films seems imminent. Millions of dollars may ride on the answers, but no one in the industry has them. In the end, it will be the public which decides.

Her studio, Columbia, suspended her when she first headed for Europe with the Moslem Prince 2 1-2 years ago. But Columbia is willing to forgive, although it may be in no hurry to put her back to work.

She still is in a "cooling off" period proposed by her husband before deciding definitely to file for divorce. Attorneys say that two of the chief problems—the matter of support for Princess Yasmin, 18 months old, and her religious training—have been settled. Rita has said she wants a $3,000,000 trust fund settled on the girl. The Prince wants Yasmin reared a Moslem.

Miss Hayworth wants to get back into pictures. She should. Picture were good to her—$2,000 a week worth. The studio would like her back, too. She has been good for it. Three of her films, "Gilda", "Cover Girl" and "Salome" and Every Night" grossed a total of $20,000,000.

During 10 months of romancing with the son of the fabulously-rich Aga Khan she had many critics. An official of the General Federation of Women's Clubs urged a boycott of her pictures. A London newspaper called her "An insult to decent women."

Since public reaction to her return is difficult to guess, the studio will take a chance. Her first role is expected to be that of Julia Bulette a strumpet of the old Nevada mining days.

AT THE McCARTHY — Tending Joseph Cotten's injured leg is lovely Loretta Young, in one of the many hilarious scenes in "Half Angel." Produced in Technicolor by 20th. Century-Fox, and featuring character stars Cecil Kellaway, Basil Ruysdael, Jim Backus, Irene Ryan, and John Ridgely, "Half Angel" is now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — It's the battle of your favorite Western stars, at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow, Saturday, and some great western stars in their latest hits. Roy Rogers in "Heart of the Rockies" and Gene Autry in "Gene Autry and the Mounties." It's grand entertainment for the whole family and a swell holiday treat. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Doors open at 12.30.

Citation Given Chance to Win Hollywood Cup

Inglewood, July 13—(CP)—The Citation bandwagon, abandoned by many just two months ago, was spilling over with supporters today on the eve of the old warrior's golden chance to become the first million dollar winner in turf history.

Tomorrow Citation, the proudest of the proud Calumet Stable of horses, races in the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup, the peak handicap event of the Hollywood Park summer season.

The six-year-old champion of champions, beaten off time and again in his quest to reach the $1,000,000 mark, will be making his 45th trip to the post, and possibly the last of one of the most brilliant careers in racing.

Citation is already the all-time money winning king of the sport with $1,778,789, his credit earned in such classics as the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Belmont Stakes and others.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Saturday, July 14

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—On "off" side for some things other than due business and other useful ventures, matters well understood and planned. Don't take chance with your job or valuables. Use day wisely.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Some unfriendly spots in finance, business that can be burdensome. Don't toil heedlessly, make each move mean something worth while. Shun questionable propositions.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—It will take extra patience and care now to make the advancement in work or most other activities. Not necessary to worry or strain, just do your best. Due recreation highly favored.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—While Moon is in auspicious position, favoring personal endeavor and interests, there are restrictions suggested from Mars and other planet. Be doubly thoughtful.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Mild eyes in your department; day can be full of activity or just the usual routine plus some rest, greatly up to you and your demands. Don't neglect important matters but recreate some, too.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Neither overstimulating nor restricting tendency today. Without sidestepping urgent tasks, take some time to improve a talent, hobby, or get caught up with other happy interests.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Your Venus' aspect advises fact, observing others' performances with view to bettering your own method or the activities you follow. Moderation in sports and pleasures urged. Be happy.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Saturn and Moon's position encourages seeking higher assignments, increase in capacity through more learning, bettering home security. Other aspects warn against carelessness.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—No time for extravagance. Think before taking on any obligations; can you rightfully fulfill? Day can be pleasant for home, family affairs, private interests. Much is up to you.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Your Saturn most favorably aspected of all planets now. Do your best in any undertaking; with confidence and prayer, push for higher goals. This day for action, and earned pleasure.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Uranus here urges further control of restlessness, closer attention to private matters. No spur of the moment changes in solid things! Logic! Guard personal affairs from schemers.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Confidential matters, family affairs connected with water, travel, etc., need sensible, cautious, Protect jumbles secrecy. Day generally can be profitable, pleasant.

YOU BORN TODAY: A bright personality but inclined at times to egotism and entering foolish enterprises. Strive to use your fine brain for higher education, to advance worthy interests, your profession or trade. Realize that thoughtlessness is harmful; brings unhappiness, grief to you and those near and dear. Try to help others succeed when you are successful. Encouragement and true charity blessings to the doer. Study, achieve and pray often. Enjoy God's outdoors.

Birthdate: Cardinal Mazarin, French statesman; John G. Lockhart, Scottish writer, editor.

WHY WE SAY — Dr. Roland DOG DAYS

. . . They're Usually Hot
Many people think of matters that what we call dog days (from) about July 3 to August 10) are so called in the language of the ancients because Sirius, the dog star, rises with the sun in the morning of the term. Dog days are named after the dog star which becomes invisible in the morning before sunrise during this period.

Expect Big Rise In Immigration During the Year

By HARDY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa — (CP) — Immigration to Canada in 1951 is expected to be greater than in any year since the postwar rush began.

Immigration officials state it is possible that more than 150,000 new citizens will reach Canada before the end of the year. The last time the immigration total passed that mark was in 1929 when about 165,000 immigrants came to this country.

The officials recalled that immigration minister Harris said last December it was expected that between 100,000 and 150,000 immigrants would come to Canada in 1951. They said these figures did not represent a target or a quota; they represented an estimate of the number of immigrants Canada thought she might obtain.

Figures for the first six months of this year are not available, but officials estimate that more immigrants arrived in the period than during the whole of 1950. The 1950 total was 73,912.

In the first five months of this year the number of immigrants totalled 80,356 compared with 30,947 for the corresponding period of 1950. Immigrants from the United Kingdom totalled 10,598 compared with 3,351, an increase of 96 per cent. The number from northern European countries—30,977 compared with 7,768 was up 186 per cent. From the United States there were 2,926 compared with 2,403, an increase of 17.4 per cent. Other countries sent 22,154 compared with 14,735, an increase of 77 per cent.

All northern European countries, but notably Holland and Germany, contributed to the large increase in immigration from the continent. Germany was the ban on the entry of German nationals was lifted last year — sent 5,993 compared with 1,600 in the first five months of 1950. Holland sent 9,132 compared with 4,333.

Immigration department officials said there are several reasons for upsurge in immigration this year. The shipping situation has improved and more ships are calling at Canadian ports with immigrants. More interest has been shown by governments to Canada since the government inaugurated a program to assist immigrants with the payment of their passage. Some industries have sponsored group movements of immigrants to obtain the kind of help they needed.

Assisted Passages

Since Feb. 1 the Canadian government has been assisting immigrants with the payment of their transportation. If an immigrant can put up $300 in the currency of his own country, the Canadian government will lend him the remainder needed to reach his destination in Canada. The loan can be repaid within two years.

Through a special arrangement with the publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines, immigrants can travel almost as cheaply by air as by ship.

Since 1946—the first year following the end of the Second World War—close to 500,000 immigrants have reached Canada and have helped to swell the country's population to 14,000,000. The best of the post-war years was 1948 when arrivals totalled 125,414, a small number when compared with some of the years prior to the First World War. In 1913 alone, the number of immigrants totalled almost 500,000.

Royal Couple Likely to Visit United States

London, July 13 (Reuters) — Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are certain to accept President Truman's invitation to visit the United States, it was learned Thursday night.

The princess and the Duke sail from Liverpool, Sept. 23, arriving at Quebec Sept. 30 for a tour of Canada. They will visit the principal cities of Canada from Atlantic to Pacific.

Truman announced in Washington that he had sent a formal invitation Thursday.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said Thursday night a public announcement will be made after the President's invitation has been received here.

PAKISTAN AIR SERVICE

Karachi — (CP) — Pakistan enters major international air transport operation in September with the inauguration of a twice-weekly Karachi - London service. The new service will link important Islamic capitals between this city and London.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Soon after they were married, 26 months after they'd met, Lucille gave Arthur a tailored, picked out a handsome tweed, and felt very smart young wife imparting husband, when she saw Arthur in the finished suit. It made him look perspiring, hunky, and scratchy. She felt as irritated as if it were his fault, and discouraged his wearing the suit.

"Where'd you and Charlotte eat?" Arthur asked her.

We ate at the Woman's Exchange," Lucille settled back, expecting her to go on. She was staring at her left thumb, pushing back the cuticle with slow, concrete care. "I gather it was pretty depressing," he said. Lucille glanced up quickly. "No, just dull." She said Charlotte weighed a ton, and knew where every secrotiy sister lived, and what their husbands did. "She invited us to dinner. I made excuses for you."

Arthur said "Good." Something unfinished in the atmosphere made him add "but if you'd invited her to dinner, I could live through it."

Her nerve ends were so close to the surface, she felt rasped by his offer. You don't know how Charlotte really is, she began you up, she accused him silently. You wouldn't even try to make an impression, and tell anecdotes about Latin America. Arthur was opening his paper. Lucille said suddenly, "I think I have a middle-aged and round-shouldered."

"The old cow." He said it so indignantly that Lucille felt momentary pleasure. "If she said that, she's just jealous."

"I was too stooped. You've told me yourself to straighten up." She pushed her spine into the back of the couch and winced, touching a broken spring that jabbed right back at her.

"When did I tell you that?"

"How do I know the exact day and hour?"

Arthur's glance trailed to an intriguing black headline on the business page of the paper. "Will Dollar Exchange Hazards Slow Export?" His topic his thoughts away from this alluring, intimate question. "Well, I certainly never said you were middle-aged."

"I'll be 38 next October."

Her husband couldn't deny this, but he knew enough to say, "You don't look it."

"But you wouldn't say I looked the same as I did 13 years ago."

"Who does?" Arthur answered genially. Having brought logic to bear, he had surely earned the right to read about Dollar Exchange Hazards which were real and immediate.

At 6 he asked if they shouldn't phone the Cantwells and ask about Hoopy. It could walk over and get her."

Lucilla said the Cantwells had promised to deliver Hoopy. "She can't be dragged away before that program about Cuckoo and Ollie. Ollie's the dragon."

Arthur looked pleased. He said Bill Derkin had mentioned that some program at lunch. "It's Kukla, Fran and Ollie." He not only liked to get names right, but was rather pedantic about correcting her.

If Lucilla had ever used a four letter word, it would have been at that moment. "I'm sick and tired of being corrected every time I make a simple statement."

Just as a parent suddenly stops being goaded by a child's orneriness, and dotes, her forehead looks flushed, Arthur's irritation changed to concern at his wife's feverish unreasonableness. "Okay Mommy," he said, in what was meant to be a soothing tone. "It's Cuckoo."

The bell rang Hoopy's abortive buzz. Arthur, on his way to the door, gave Lucilla's head a pat and didn't know how near he came to getting his fingers nipped.

Hoopy never just walked in through a door. On up days, she pounced like a grasshopper, with her anemic little blonde pigtails her thin arms and legs and thin sweet voice all swinging at once toward some person or object. On down days, she moved in shuffling jerks, pushing her grievance or sorrow ahead of her as in a wheelbarrow, casting the beholder to ask "what is it?" Tonight she kissed Arthur on the first bounce, then hugged Lucille till he yelped. "Hoopy, stop choking that poor little dog or we'll have to give him away." Lucilla said sharply. "Come here and let me fix your bow." Hoopy reacted to her tone by saying, "I can fix it," and flopping on the floor besides Sniffles. Often, in the past seven years, Lucilla had looked at her delicately bonded, gray eyed daughter with a sense of wonder and delight, but tonight wasn't one of those times.

Arthur beamed on the modern Madonna and child. As she opened his mouth to say something, Hoopy leaped up, vibrating the relaxed air. "Do you know what Ollie the dragon was doing tonight?"

Gretel announced dinner, and Ollie the dragon came along. Hoopy's gray-green eyes went from her mother to her father. "You just don't like to hear about television." Hoopy commented shrewdly. Arthur put up his napkin to hide his grin. Gretel, passing the platter of schnitzel again, gave a snort over her mistress' shoulder. The vehemence of Lucilla's "no thank you" told that her words passed up on the platter a posh, made Arthur look thoughtfully at his wife. He had intended talking another helping of meat, but instead he shook his head at Gretel who slumped back to the kitchen. Lucilla stared at her plate. The food was glued there, for her fork was too heavy to lift.

Hoopy, with a child's uncanny thirst for negative reasons, said, "Linda's father and mother are poorer than we are, and they have television."

"Arthur said "Eat your meat" "You don't have to get the giant family size model. Linda's father said there's one that sits on a table that's only eight inches." was unfortunate for Hoopy that she'd picked that particular time. While Arthur was reacting with pride at his daughter's remembering so large a figure so accurately, Lucilla said angrily, "that's an enormous amount of money." Arthur and Hoopy were lined up against her, she felt, ready to squander hundreds of dollars on selfish enjoyment, while she had denied herself something as health-giving. . .

"Two hundred sixty-nine" Arthur murmured. "But it would really be for all of us. And we'd save money on movies and theater and things."

"And spend the rest of our lives crouched here watching Milton Berle." Her voice broke like an aging choir boy's. "Why can't I have something I want?"

Arthur said stiffly he hadn't realized she was feeling so deprived. "What is it, you want?"

He thought of an operation but dismissed it. Lucilla wasn't talking like a woman who needed an operation. "What is it?" She looked just over his head, at the copy of the Van Gogh. "An exercise course." In his relief, he sat absolutely still. "Don't you think it would be a good idea?" He was touched. The poor kid wanted his approval. Charlotte had upset her more than he'd realized. He said heartily it sounded like a fine idea. "Probably tone up you up a lot.

Lucilla left a clipper and became very cheerful. "It's much better to spend the money on being healthy than to spend it later on doctor bills."

They vied with each other getting how right, how sensible. Then Arthur said the money wouldn't amount to much anyway. "Miss Nitz and several of the other secretaries at the office go to some kind of exercise class at the YWCA. I could ask Miss Nitz to call you and give you the dope."

"YWCA!" She was staring at Arthur said Miss Nitz didn't her to Siberia. He was surprised that his wife had so fierce and unjustified a reaction against the Young Women's Christian Association. "They don't lecture on clean living. You just do some exercises and then take a swim."

"They wear bloomers!"

Arthur said Miss Nitz didn't look like a girl who wore bloomers. "You're thinking about 25 years ago. Maybe in your day they wore bloomers, but that doesn't mean—" He saw the awful expression on his wife's face and was awed. "I didn't mean you had to go to the YWCA. There must be lots of gyms around town."

"And you don't care what it costs?"

This time Arthur tasted danger and didn't dare swallow it. "You're healthy more important."

Even if it costs as much as a television set?"

He was sure his wife was making the comparison simply on principle. Any exercise course costs the earth. As he reassured her, he began to feel very broad shouldered and leader. "Just be sure you don't get tired of it in two weeks," he added teasingly. "Or I won't let my wife get skinny." She made peace with Hoopy right after dinner and was very gay as they played three-handed Pounce. Arthur thought how little it took to make a good woman happy, and was thankful.

It was amazingly easy. All Lucilla did was hand over a check for $250 and give her name and age. In return, the girl gave her a locker key, a lovely smile, and a gauze strip that looked like a first aid bandage.

Lucilla looked at the slogans painted on the wall panels between heart-shaped lights: Tuck in That Tummy—Don't forget to Breathe! —Frowns are Wrinkles to Smile, Smile. The punctuation in these messages was composed entirely of vegetables.

Until Lucilla caught on, she was running the punctuation in with the message in a sort of kindergarten words and pictures text: Tuck in That Tummy Tomato, which sounded a bit odd. But once she had cracked the code, she read the slogs as eagerly and personally as The Thought for Today.

Once through the door, there were no pink lights, no vegetable exclamations, nothing but a cement floored hallway with ordinary naked light bulbs. The dressing room was almost as plain. It had 20 cubicles, 10 on a side, each with a front curtain of monk's cloth. In the centre of the room, there was a table like any kitchen table, loaded with quart-size jars of cold cream. The only person visible was a white-uniformed attendant whose big, ramshy face was topped by rigid waves of blue-white hair. She motioned Lucilla into the nearest vacant stall, which had a mirror, shelf and two wire hangers, one broken. Rustles, thuds, and the occasional grunt of a woman wrestling with a corset, came from the other stalls.

Lucilla, donning her three-year-old print-cotton swim suit, felt cold with excitement. She fumbled with the laces of her sneakers and kept knocking things off the shelf as fast as she put them up. When she came out of the cubicle, most of her classmates were already assembled, eyeing each other as strange dogs do, not actually sniffing, but with the same expression of appraisal. Her first thought was that some of the women were even more rump-sprung than Charlotte, and this steadied her enough so that she was able to sort out the individual shapes and costumes. The woman nearest her wore quilted red-lastex trunks that stretched perilously tight across the middle rear.

A British New Girl in a gray-cotton tank suit, her flesh so loose it seemed to form and reform like still warm gelatin. A handsome blonde-haired woman with a Greek-coin profile carried a stomach bulge the shape of a watermelon under her dignified black-wool bathing suit. A cheerful looking short-necked polypoly of perhaps 35 was completely covered from chin to toe in a blue-flannette outfit that reminded Lucilla of Hoopy's winter pajamas with feet.

The uniformed attendant said, "girls, please remove all make up with the creams and tissues on this table. Then restrain the hair with the gauze band which you have been given, and place all val-ewe-bulls in the locker corresponding to the number of your stall."

There were murmurs from the other women as they eyed Lucilla. Somebody said "I'll bet she doesn't weigh a hundred." She felt as if they were excluding her from the ranks of those who needed Beauty-You. "I'm much too slim and young," she said "and I can't even wear off-the-shoulder dresses."

Tip-Off Led To Police Trap In Record Hold-Up

Toronto, July 14 — (CP)—An underworld tip-off led to a police trap in which one bandit was killed and two others seriously wounded, a Toronto detective said Friday.

Detective Albert Bunn said the police informant was Orvald Fleming, 22, one of three men shot down by police when they attempted to rob a north Toronto dairy April 14.

The detective testified at the opening of Fleming's trial. Fleming and Douglas Odum, 38, were jointly charged with attempted armed robbery, shooting with intent to kill, car theft and theft of licence plates.

Fleming was sentenced to two years when he was convicted of car theft. The other charges were dropped.

Odum is still in hospital, unfit to stand trial. He was shot in the spine during the gun duel with police and now is a paraplegic. Fleming spent three weeks in hospital from bullet wounds.

A third bandit, John David Hunter, 34, died of bullet wounds in the chest, lung and spine a few minutes after a detective wrenched a sawed-off shotgun from his grasp.

Bunn testified that Fleming told him of a robbery which he and two others planned for the night of April 14.

Body Located By Fisherman

A body, believed to be that of Frank Bancroft, 20, who drowned in the Bay of Quinte last Sunday, was found at mid-morning today by Stephen Licence who was fishing in the bay.

Mr. Licence, according to police, was fishing around the second island about half a mile east of the bay bridge. The body was spotted in the weeds on the south shore, Mr. Licence notified city and provincial police about 12:30 a.m. Constable Identification of the body was not possible and at time time, police were waiting for a coroner.

Seven Members Of Crew Killed In Plane Crash

Lincoln, England, July 14. — (Reuters)—Seven crew members were killed when a R.A.F. four-engined Lincoln Bomber crashed in a field at Welton near here early today.

It was the second major R.A.F. crash in 24 hours.

Three crew and seven trainees were killed when a Vickers Valetta transport crashed Thursday night shortly after leaving Lyneham Air Station, Wiltshire, England.

The Lincoln was on a local flight from its base at Scampton, Lincoln. It burst into flames on hitting the ground after narrowly missing a farmhouse.

The Bomber crashed as it was approaching Scampton Airfield.

Kansas City, July 14 (AP)—Paralyzing flood waters tightened their grip on the Kansas City metropolitan area of 900,000 persons today and threatened new destruction.

A state of emergency was proclaimed.

Help came from coast to coast for the stricken twin cities of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., and the eastern half of the State of Kansas.

Flooded fuel tanks touched off fires that added to the devastation.

The surging waters of the Missouri and Kansas rivers threatened two other heavily industrialized sections—North Kansas City and Fairfax. Both districts were evacuated.

Floods over Kansas and Missouri during the last week have caused at least 13 deaths. Many persons were stranded, but because of the thousands of refugees close checks were impossible.

Police Chief Joseph Shick, chief of the army engineers, who made a hurried trip here from the new location, told reporters damage in Kansas may run over $500,000,000.

City officials ordered stringent safeguards to conserve the water supply and to clear disaster areas for rescue work.

Highway and rail traffic halted.

Firemen fought a fuel tank-farm fire throughout the night in a flooded two-block area. The fire was brought under control.

Nine Firemen Injured

Nine firemen were injured, seven buildings were destroyed, and 300 persons evacuated.

About 20 tanks containing a total of 500,000 gallons of gasoline, fuel oil and naphtha exploded at intervals.

Early today all residents in an eight-block area near the fire were ordered to flee as the fire again neared out of control and threatened a chemical company. Great quantities of naphtha and other explosive chemicals are in the plant, firemen said.

The fire had touched off by a floating 6,000-gallon oil tank that struck an electric power line.

Cities and towns in eastern and central Kansas were hard hit by floods too.

At Topeka the State capital, more than 20,000 of the 100,000 residents fled. Surging and roaring Kansas river washed out bridges connecting north and south Topeka. Hardest hit was a railroad bridge weighted down with ten locomotives. Many of the engines were lost.

A break in dikes protecting the 25th Fairfax Industrial district in Kansas City, Kas., occurred early today. Industries in the area are valued in excess of $100,000,000.

U.S. Stake in Iran Oil Dispute Great as Britain's, Envoy Claims

Tehran, Iran, July 14—(Reuters)—The British-Iranian oil dispute is just as much a problem for the United States as for Britain, Dr. Henry F. Grady, United States ambassador here, told a press conference today.

"There is no question of any appropriations of our trying to find an answer," he said. "There is no thought of that when the house has burned down to the first floor."

Grady said there was "no limitation" to the scope of the discussions to be undertaken here by President Truman's personal representative, Averell Harriman, who is due to arrive here by air from Washington tomorrow.

He indicated that in addition to talking on the dispute over Iran's decision to nationalize the country's oil, Harriman might also talk about Iranian economic difficulties generally.

Grady was asked in about twelve conversations with Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh if he had found the premier "courteous but firm."

The ambassador said he thought the Iranians had made "a great mistake" in rejecting the British nationalization offer, but the British had appeared equally adamant in their attitude.

"Perhaps Harriman's visit here will provide the break we have all been waiting for. Neither side can remain adamant."

ADMINISTRATION HAVING FIGHT OVER CONTROLS

Republicans, South Democrats Gang Up

Washington, July 14 (AP)—The battle over economic controls in the United States continued today with the administration fighting a rear-guard action against a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats in the House of Representatives.

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer warned last night that inflation will do the United States great harm "unless we keep controls."

In a radio speech, Sawyer promised that "as soon as controls can be abandoned or alleviated, they will be." But he added:

"It is childish to pretent that inflationary pressures are not upon us."

The House version of the bill to extend wage-price-rent controls is expected to be completed by next Thursday. The bill then goes to a House-Senate conference committee for ironing out differences between it and a Senate-passed bill.

The Senate measure reduces President Truman's present powers over the U.S. economy by about one-third. But the new authority he asked: The House bill appears certain to be as powerful or rougher—on the administration.

Representative Isidore Dollinger (Dem.-N.Y.) told the House yesterday that it "is not controlled by Democrats; it is controlled by an unholy alliance of Republicans and Dixiecrats."

Dollinger's statement drew from representative Charles Halleck (Rep.-Ind.) the counter-charge that Democrats are "playing politics" with controls, and asserted the House has yet to adopt "one single amendment which affects wage or price controls."

Meanwhile farm state spokesmen from both parties readied their big guns to kill off price controls.

Their immediate target is not only the 10-percent beef cut but all future farm price cuts. In addition, a move was in the offing to block the Administration's power to reduce the prices of farm commodities.

The House already has banned livestock slaughtering quotas, quotas of fats and oils, and farm subsidies.

HAS FULL POWER

Washington, July 14 — (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission insists it has full power both to decide how many television stations a city may have and to reserve a percentage of TV broadcasting space for educational stations. The F.C.C. made those ruling yesterday in telling Indianapolis to file applications by the Federal Communications Bar Association and some broadcasters.

Soldier in Republic of Korea Army Seems to Catch All Blame When Things go Wrong

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, July 14 — (CP) — Patronized and belittled in good times, the soldier in the Republic of Korea Army seems to catch all the blame when things go wrong.

Commissioning-tell of Rok formations giving way, troops affect cleanup when they hear the Rokes are on a flank and newspapers dismiss them in an offhand key. The attitude toward them is that of the unwanted cousin.

In the light of astronomical United States expenditures on equipping them and the fact that it all goes well, the South Koreans are one day going to have the responsibility for garrisoning Korea, the attitude seems astonishing.

Last year, for instance, established that the trained Korean is a good soldier. The North Korean people's army did that.

Koreans, be they from south or north, are still Koreans. They're of the same race, have the same characteristics, live the same way and speak the same tongue.

Yet North Korea produced a fighting army, while the south's at best still isn't, though of its 14 divisions two or three are considered sound.

Why?

1. One is progerly trained, the other not.

2. One had good officer and non-commissioned-officer cadres, the other not.

3. One had a cause, hence good morale, the other not.

4. One seems to have had the continuing respect of its allies, the other not; and stemming therefrom.

5. One has kept its pride, the other not.

Fairly-Trained Force

The North Korean Army which moved into the peninsula through Kaesong in the early days of aggression was a fully-trained force with operational experience under both communist officers and Russian command. It had been its existence upwards of four years.

The South Korean army which had to meet it had two sound divisions and a distinct training establishment advised by the United States Army.

There was no material for expansion of the Korean force at the outset and when manpower finally was levied, it was on the old basis of haphazard principles.

The necessary manpower was raised in 28 days between date "trained," and at the appointed time took over its equipment. Then came the Reds' spring offensive.

Military purists consider 18 months the time necessary to produce a good, private soldier, and two years for a N.C.O.

The northerners, communists or mercenaries, were fighting either for a cause or because they liked soldiering. They had the benefit of their training. And they had the evidence of the positive steps their government had taken in the lot of their people steps or which, with their ideology, they approved.

The southerners were unwilling conscripts in the service of a hated government. A police state and a corrupt, despotic government: at a glance, hardly likely to become heroes.

Korean Cheerful

The Korean is cheerful, incredibly long-suffering, diligent and hard-working, inured to discomfort and, under normal circumstances, scrupulously honest. He has what it takes to be a good soldier, given the chance.

But the South Korean hasn't had that chance.

The northerners, and then the Chinese, knew that from the outset every time a major offensive was to be mounted it was preceded by propaganda drops of the line for the South Korean sectors. There the pile-up happened and there the Reds now are struck.

Small wonder the South Korean Army isn't the Army it should be and of which doesn't mean that it couldn't be — it has to be if it is to be the force to be turned over to the south to garrison.

It could be that the most efficient thing would be to strip the whole organization apart, right down to company level, and allocate companies out among the U. N. battalions in the theartre for training periods. Then they could be grouped into battalions, later into brigades and then divisions.

Less Than 2,000 Reservists Volunteer for 27th Brigade

Ottawa, July 14—(CP)— Canada's Europe-bound 27th Brigade has had little success in attracting men from reserve army units to sign on two months ago to mobilize its manpower.

This lack of interest among part-time soldiers in the first regular peacetime brigade to be built around reserve units was reflected today in figures released by army headquarters.

They showed that of the 9,200 men who have been posted to the brigade, less than 2,000 have come from reserve ranks. That is, for every two men who have gone active from the part-time units, seven have enlisted who have had no connection with them.

In a unique step, the government called on 42 reserve units in May to raise the manpower for the brigade.

The 1,089 reservists who have gone active represent a between four and five per cent of the 46,000 men in the reserve army units.

The Army's figures showed that some 3,140 men in the 27th have been in military experience. This is about one-third. The percentage in the special force 25th Brigade, in Korea, is 50 per cent.

The army said the brigade now is nearing 10,000, "the goal originally set when recruiting started two months ago." In the past, the official word has been that the brigade itself would need between 5,500 and 6,500 men plus about as many more for replacements.

Whether this represents a scaling down of objectives is not clear. However, the army in a statement today said it will be left to the end drive for men for the 27th. The present drive will be continued indefinitely.

Present commitments, involving three brigades plus replacement groups and various other units make it necessary for the army to keep getting men at about the present rate if it has been getting them in the two months of recruiting for the 27th Brigade.

That is, about 1,000 men a month will be needed from now on.

Present army strength is 39,000.

Greek Major Making Progress In Channel Swim

Dover, England, July 14 — (Reuters) — Greek artillery major, Tom Zingaros, was reported today to be making steady progress in his attempt to swim the English Channel and land in France.

He set off from here in ideal weather. Sea temperature was 61 degrees before the sun got up, then 62 degrees and rose to 63 degrees.

Zingaros, 41, is the first swimmer to attempt the channel from this side. If he succeeds, he will be the fourth man to swim the channel in both directions.

He has twice conquered the 21-mile stretch from France to England — in 1949 and 1950.

INDIA RECOGNIZES BIRTH CONTROL AS NECESSITY

Will be Long Time Ere Principle Accepted

New Delhi, July 14—(Reuters) The Indian government, faced by the ever-recurrent threat of famine and disease, has recognized that birth control must be used to check the rapidly-increasing population.

But it also realizes it will be a long time before the principle of family planning will be accepted by Indians as the way to better health and a higher living standard.

Prime Minister Nehru put the government's stamp of approval on birth control in a speech when he said in a report to the Congress party: "It seems clear the state must encourage this family planning or birth control."

But opinion is strongly divided whether birth control is either morally desirable or economically practicable.

The health minister herself, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, a Roman Catholic, is opposed to it.

The government's program, crystallized in India's first five-year plan, recently announced, envisages these methods of getting birth control universally adopted:

1. State aid in establishment of education and advice on contraception on non-medical, social and economic grounds.

2. State aid in establishment of family centres.

3. Development of safe, inexpensive contraceptives made with materials available in India.

Planning Essential

Family planning is so essential in India because in the last 50 years, the population has increased by 54 per cent to 356,000,000. That is 120 years alone, it has risen by 52,000,000—more than three times the population of Canada.

The pressure on India's limited resources is obviously overstrained. The standard of living is abnormally low. The average individual annual income in 1949 was the equivalent of $54.

The All-India Women's Conference has just issued directives to its 300 units all over India to concentrate on birth control work this year and imported a supply of contraceptives from the United States.

There is no specific religious objection to birth control among Indian Hindus, although there is among Roman Catholics. But many Hindus have an inherent dislike to its practice.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 14 (CP) Synopsis: Weekly weather washes it off to a good start. Saturday morning saw clear skies over the Great Lakes and in the province, and this ideal holiday weather will continue on Sunday in all regions except in the north of Lake Superior where broken cloudiness and scattered showers are forecast for Sunday.

Red Command Agrees Kaesong In Neutral Area

Pyongyang Radio Reports Acceptance 'In Principle'

Seoul, Korea, July 14 (AP) — Pyongyang radio tonight broadcast a communist acceptance "in principle" of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's ultimatum on renewing cease-fire talks.

The broadcast, as recorded in Tokyo by Japanese Monitors, said the red top command told Ridgway:

1. "In principle we agree to neutralize Kaesong."

2. "We propose joint negotiations for insuring safety of delegates."

3. "We agree to admit not more than 30 correspondents" to Kaesong.

But the reds objected to Ridgway's "one-sided demand."

Ridgway's headquarters said: "There will be no comment until we have received a full and authenticated message."

The Pyongyang broadcast was recorded by Japanese monitors of Kyodo news service at 9 p.m. (7 a.m. EST). That was 33 hours after the U.N. commander laid down the terms for renewing armistice talks.

The Pyongyang broadcast was addressed to Ridgway and signed by the two top reds in Korea —Gen. Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier, and Gen. Peng Teh Huai, commander of Chinese forces in Korea.

Broadcast in Korean

An translation from Korean to Japanese to English it read:

"We reply to your July 13 proposal as follows:

Six Items

"1. In principle we agree to neutralize Kaesong in order to make negotiations develop smoothly.

"2. We propose to take up a joint committee of both parties to discuss details to ensure the maintenance of guards and assistance of safety of delegates of both sides during the negotiations.

"3. The U.N. correspondents' problem which caused interruption of the negotiations had nothing to do with the neutrality problem.

"4. The liaison officers who attended the preliminary conference did not have the power to discuss decisive issues like the neutrality problem. The correspondents problem which caused interruption of the negotiations is just a tiny matter.

"5. So it is not a problem that is considered enough to cause interruption or rupture of the negotiations. American delegates had taken up this matter at the conference. But the negotiators so far made little headway. Even that each side send anyone they like—up to 150 persons—to propriate to the foreign correspondents come to Kaesong.

"6. We hold a firm stand that all issues should be based upon discussions. Therefore, your one-sided demand is not justifiable. In order to prevent this tiny problem from causing rupture of the negotiations we agree to your proposal to admit not more than 20 foreign correspondents as members accompanying delegates. We have instructed our delegates to offer all facilities necessary for you."

'We Don't Like It'

The reds have insisted all along that the opposing sides should first negotiate on when newspaper men were to be admitted. The broadcast contained, in effect, "Ok, send them along as part of your delegation but we don't like it."

It was at this check - point, nine miles from Kaesong, that communists refused to let 70 newspaper men go along with the convoy on Thursday, thus precipitating the crisis.

Guards were posted by the communists along the highway and in Kaesong itself without consulting the U.N.

Even Footing

Full acceptances of Ridgway's demands would put both delegations on a completely even footing, and remove talk of the reds playing "ghost."

And the U.N. allies had waited throughout Friday night and Saturday for the communist reply, one allied authority said.

"We are going to find out whether the communists really wanted an armistice."

The five-man U.N. armistice delegation was ready to fly to advanced peace camp throughout the day, ready to move at soon as the reds agreed to the conditions.

Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army, paid a surprise visit to the delegation at lunch time. The subject of the discussions was not announced.

Rejection at First

Gen. Nam Il, chief of the red delegation, rejected Joy's request Friday several hours after Ridgway's message detailing over-all conditions for resumption of the talks.

The North Korean Pyongyang radio in Tokyo charged that the United States is opposing withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea, "which is necessary for peaceful settlement of the Korean question."

The broadcast accused the U.S. of trying to prolong the occupation of South Korea and use it as a base to prepare for the Third World War.

General Ridgway accused the communists of placing "unreasonable and unwarranted restrictions" on his delegates. He demanded that red troops be pulled out of the Kaesong area or that a neutral site be selected.

Ridgway demands also complete freedom of movement to made their headquarters site, and that each side send anyone they like—up to 150 persons—to the site, including correspondents of the press.

The Washington, State Secretary Dean Acheson said he endorsed fully Ridgway's stand and indicated that the U.S. seeks a buffer zone on the present battle line—mostly north of parallel 38.

Drought Poised Over States Will Make It Harder To Get Steaks

Phoenix, Ariz., July 14 — (AP) — "We not only ain't had any rain, we haven't had a cloud."

Just like that, a Utah stockman tells why you'll find it harder to get steaks and heftier chops and rice pudding.

Drought poised over two sections of the southern United States.

In an area as big as the Atlantic seaboard, hot, dry days are burning cattle and sheep country in Arizona, most of New Mexico, southern Utah and southern Colorado.

Slapping a belt in the high plains of eastern New Mexico and west Texas, the drought dips into the rice and cotton country of Texas and Louisiana.

Stockmen talk of ruin if they're must sell their animals for lack of feed.

Arizona alone places its loss thus far at $25,000,000.

The impact is not great in other states, officials haven't tried to take loss estimates.

A firecracker - like chain of 250 forest fires has burned nearly 110,000 acres in Arizona and New Mexico.

Across the region, multi - million dollar irrigation projects are at most dry from the two - year dearth of rain and snow. Last winter there was almost no snow on the high peaks, fountainheads of the now dusty rivers.

On the eastern edge of the vast Reservation Indian families can get only one pail of water a day for both drinking and washing. Their springs are drying up.

50th Anniversary Of Wedding Is Celebrated

Former residents of the city, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, now residents of Toronto, on Wednesday celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage with their family in the Queen City and are now visiting in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman were married back in 1901 by Rev. Mr. Locke of Tabernacle Church and 40 years ago moved to Toronto. Mrs. Coleman is the former Bessie Noble.

Prior to moving to Toronto, Mr. Coleman was employed with the Thompson Furniture Company here, as a cabinet maker. Later he secured employment with a Toronto biscuit firm in the role of a carpenter and is now retired.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman have three children, all married and six grandchildren. Both enjoy fairly good health.

Although residents of Toronto for more than 40 years' home ties still remain strong with Mr. and Mrs. Coleman. In that time they have never failed to visit in Belleville at least once a year. They are now visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hardwell, Burton Street.

Boy Hit on Head With Golf Ball At Playgrounds

Struck on the back of the head by a swinging golf club as he bent over to pick up a golf ball, 13-year-old Leo St. Denis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rene St. Denis, 172 Macdonald Ave., Friday afternoon suffered a nasty cut which required three stitches to close.

The lad was playing with three children at the East Hill playgrounds when an 11-year-old boy was practising swinging the golf club. As he bent over to retrieve the ball the club struck him causing the cut.

He was taken to the hospital where his injury was treated and dressed. Later the lad showed little ill effects from the cut and after supper was back playing at the playgrounds.

Leo ago Leo suffered a badly cut hand, when he fell from one of the slides at the playground.

Thigh and Arm Broken in Crash At Marysville

Crippled victim of arthritis for a number of years, Mrs. Clarence Robertson, 58, of North Park St., suffered a fractured thigh and broken arm shortly before midnight Friday when her husband's car was in a headon collision with another vehicle.

Mrs. Robertson was taken to Belleville hospital where her physician Dr. J. H. Bateman stated she had suffered fractures of the left arm and thigh as well as shock.

The accident occurred just south of the tracks at Marysville on No. 2 Highway. The Robertson car was northbound with Mrs. Robertson and a small grandson as passengers when it collided headon with a vehicle driven by Edward Clow, 297 Sherbourne St. Both cars' front vehicles were badly damaged. The accident was investigated by Provincial Police Constable Miller of Belleville.

Looks and Tastes Something Like Butter But is Not

Quebec, July 14—(CP)—It looks and tastes something like butter; but it isn't.

That was the verdict of people who tried a "spread" manufactured at Ste. Anne de la Perade and on sale Friday in Quebec grocery stores.

But it doesn't conflict with Quebec legislation banning margarine and butter substitutes.

That's what its maker, J. E. Tibault, head of Fromage Champlain Incorporee, said.

There was a minor flurry of excitement when the product (Champlain Spread) was spotted on grocery shelves, selling at 45 cents a pound compared with 65 for butter.

The Attorney-General's department, watching for violations of the 1950 Anti-Margarine Law said it knothing about the new product but would investigate.

The agriculture department said its officers, who normally get complaints about margarine and margarine, are out of town.

One of the differences between his product and margarine, said Mr. Tibault, is that his product contains a 20-per-cent proportion of powdered milk. Another difference is that it can't be used as a frying fat.

Mr. Tibault said when he put his product on sale in April he had a statement from the Quebec agriculture department and the federal government as well.

Trenton Mayor Tells Council In Heated Sign Discussion He'll 'Run the Town' Himself

Trenton (Special) — Mayor Kenneth Couch put his foot down at the bi - monthly meeting of council last night, declaring that he was going to run the town for the next six months and that his successor could do as he liked.

Mr. Couch's statement developed during a heated discussion over the application for a permit to erect a sign on town property at the corner of Dundas and Queen Streets, outside the Farley property, bridge and the sidewalk.

The Trenton Locker and Cold Storage Company applied by letter to council for a permit to place a lighting sign on the Dundas and Quseen corner. Mr. Eben James, the manager of the sign and plant, faced council with his request, "Am I going to be granted a permit?" he demanded. "I want is my civic rights," he said, "I don't want to bring personalities into this discussion."

Mr. James was told that he would not be allowed to erect his sign on town property but would anyone else without first submitting specifications for the approval of the council members.

Mr. James mentioned that another citizen had gone ahead and put up signs on town property and defied council permission. He pointed out that a sign had been erected at Firtle Manor 20 feet out on civic land. He also drew attention to another sign placed on Dundas 100 feet four feet over the town boundary.

"Should I put up a sign and then ask for permission?" Mr. James inquired.

Answered Mayor Couch: "Over this sign business, I heard indirectly that the council had a gun. For the next 6 months I'm going to run this town. I'd rather be manhandled anymore." (Citizens attending the meeting cheered at this point).

"All I want is to be treated the same as other citizens," Mr. James retorted.

Mayor Couch revealed that during his five years in office he had tried to weld together two factions within the town continually pulling against each other. "Once and for all I've decided this town will be run by the majority's choice," he said.

Mr. Couch then turned to the members of the press and said, "I don't care what goes in the paper, I'm saying this for print."

Gerald Weaver, speaking with regards to the W. W. Weaver Co, sign said: "If council decides that it should take my sign four feet of town property I will cooperate."

"I was told that industry would not locate here because of signs on the main thoroughfare," the mayor disclosed. "yet I go to Cobourg where the ordinance depot plaid for Trenton moved, and the through Highway there is lined with signs. I think the whole argument is so much rubbish."

Asks Clarification

The mayor asked to have the sign business clarified once and for all.

Councillor Ross Burtt suggested that all signs erected inside the municipality before 1951 be repainted and remain in place, and after that no one be allowed to erect a sign inside the town on civic land or elsewhere without the sanction of council.

Councillor Doc. Hamilton proposed a motion seconded by Councillor Ross Burtt to the effect that the Trenton Locker and Cold Sûrgage Company's application be rejected and that any other application be turned down unless ratified by the town fathers.

A letter from the Dominion Management Associates of Montreal asking for permission to remain their survey on July 19 was read. The management company noted that they had already completed the background work and would like to get started on the next phase before other commitments interfered.

Mayor Couch suggested that council adopt the procedure.

$2,000 Outlay

Earlier while the mayor was on holidays, council passed a resolution to employ the management company at an outlay of $2,000. A few meetings later, when Nik Worship objected, a resolution to rescind the motion was turned down.

Councillor Burtt, who was acting for Mr. Couch when the survey firm was hired, maintained that the motion was still in effect. "In the minority or majority rule applies in a council chamber?" he asked. Mr. Couch agreed that the majority would rule.

"As far as I'm concerned let it ride," contended Councillor Burtt.

A letter over the signature of Mayor Couch thanking Wm. Ryan stalled the machinery assigning the survey. Councill Burtt questioned the mayor's authority to postpone a commitment once it had been approved by the majority. Mayor Couch held that the layout was not warranted when "there are many other more important jobs to be done.

Need Personal Contact

Chamber of Commetrce manager Ken Smith was asked to give a conversation he had with the industrial commissioner of Montreal, regarding Dominion Management Associates. Mr. Smith said he was told that Dominion Management were reliable and had connections all over the world. "They can't get industry without spending money," he maintained, "although in the final analysis personal contact counts."

Councillor Claude Graham felt that the $2,000 would be well spent at a time when industries were needed so badly.

Dominion Management Associates proposed to make a survey of the town and its facilities for the purpose of inducing industry to locate here.

Suggestions submitted by the traffic commission for the betterment of parking and congested driving conditions were approved.

Parkside Drive was the name decided upon to designate the street block and walk with Dundas St. and forming the northern boundary of Fraser Memorial Park on the waterfront.

Muskrat-Like Fur Found On Woodchuck

Frankford—Harry Lohnes has discovered an oddity which may develop into big news. While hunting in the ninth of Murray Thursday, he bagged a woodchuck which looked rather odd. Upon examining it, Harry discovered that over half of the animal was covered with soft muskrat-like fur, rather than the coarse bristly hair of the groundhog.

On Friday morning, Harry telephoned the Department of Lands and Forests office in Tweed, and two representatives of that department called and picked up the woodchuck Friday afternoon. They said that they would not commit themselves but the animal looked like a cross between a muskrat and a woodchuck. They said that reports had been received of such a cross, but to date no one had actually found one in any proof.

The animal is to be sent to the Biological division of the Department in Toronto, where it will be thoroughly examined. They promised a full report when word is received back from Toronto.

Stories of Famous Hymns

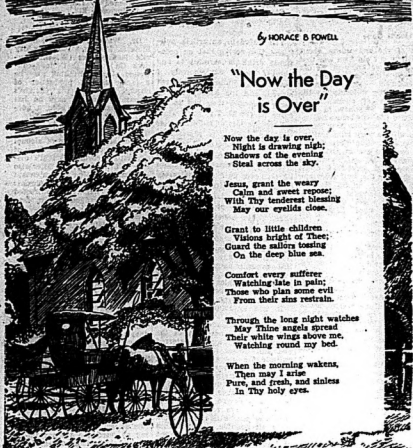
By HORACE B. POWELL



Now the day is over,
Night is drawing nigh;
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.

Jesus, grant the weary
Calm and sweet repose;
With Thy tenderest blessing
May our eyelids close.

Grant to little children
Visions bright of Thee;
Guard the sailors tossing
On the deep blue sea.

Comfort every sufferer
Watching late in pain;
Those who plan some evil
From their sins restrain.

Through the long night watches
May Thine angels spread
Their white wings above me,
Watching round my bed.

When the morning wakens,
Then may I arise
Pure, and fresh, and sinless
In Thy holy eyes.

STORIES OF FAMOUS hymns . . . his ordination, in 1864. A few months later, while serving as curate of a parish at Horbury, England, he wrote this evening hymn. It is said, for use in prayer services which he was conducting for a group of poor folk in a little second storey room of one of the village buildings.

The hymn was first published in the "Church Times," a religious periodical of the day. Three years later, it was included in a popular collection of songs entitled "Hymns Ancient and, Modern."

Dr. Baring-Gould gave church other hymns, some of them his own compositions, some of them translations. England will always remember him for a group of Christmas carols, set to appealing music, which he introduced from Flanders for his fellow-countrymen. Throughout Christendom he is best known, perhaps, for "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the most famous of all his religious songs.

In every collection of vesper hymns one is sure to find this favorite, written about the time of America's Civil War by Dr. Sabine Baring-Gould, a popular young minister of the Church of England.

A native of Exeter, England, Dr. Baring-Gould was educated at Clare College, Cambridge and shortly after graduation decided to give his life to the church. He was 31 years old at the time of

Monks Welcome All Who Visit

One of the things I've always wished to do on my travels was to put up for the night at a monastery. Bernard Wickstead writes in The London Daily Express. One on a mountain for preference. You know the sort of thing—kindly old bald-headed monks and St. Bernard dogs with barrels of brandy under their chins.

At one time all the best travellers managed to get themselves benighted near some monastery, where they found sanctuary from blizzards, robbers, or the howling wolves at their heels.

Whisked to Hotel

But nowadays when you travel by Viking or Skymaster you are hardly even succoured by monks. Instead of dining with some jolly old abbot at the end of the day you are whisked away to some B.O.A.C. hotel or a marble hotel where the wolves are all inside, sitting around the bar.

The monasteries are still there. If you look down from your plane you will see them clinging to the mountains as they have done since the Middle Ages.

There's one somewhere near Vichy, which is hung on top of a mountain, and sometimes as you fly by it is standing above the clouds like a floating fortress in a misty sea.

I stopped off in Cyprus on the way home from Israel, and when the girl at the airport reception desk showed me a list of 83 hotels on the island I said in jest that I didn't want any of them, I'd much rather stay at a monastery.

She smiled sweetly and said: "Well, I dare say that could be arranged." And arranged it was. In no time at all I was on my way to the mountains with a car and a Greek-speaking escort.

The car I was taken to is called Kykko (pronounced Jicko). It's 3,800 feet up on a mountain ridge with breathtaking views.

The monks, whose 800-year-old rule is never to turn away anyone, have had to build two car parks and a hotel for 70 "guest cells" to accommodate all.

Outside the gates there's a privately run cafe and a shop where you can eat and drink on a terrace overlooking the valley.

Get Real Cell

Our abbot was in town when we arrived, but the monk in charge of visitors said he was delighted to see us and gave us his best cell. There were real beds in it and they all had clean sheets and spring mattresses. I half expected a sign of a hair shirt anywhere.

Being a weekday, the place was practically empty. Apart from ourselves, the only visitors were seven drunks, listening to car radio rumbas.

The monastery has a phone, a post office, and a radio, but no plumbing. We washed in cool water brought in earthenware pitchers from a well in the yard.

There was no hot water, but as the rules of that order are not allowed to shave it doesn't worry them much. I've got on idea they are not allowed to cut hair either.

There's not much going on in a monastery of an evening. No one of the monks go and sit in the cafe outside. We joined them.

At the next table the seven drunks were singing songs in Greek, and I judge by the occasional "Tut, Tut!" from the monks they were not at sale.

"Don't you mind people acting like this!" I asked one of them.

"Well, I suppose it's nice that our doors are open to all. And anyway it's better they should sleep in the monastery tonight than go driving down the mountain in that state."

De As Monks Do

When I was there the monks were fasting, and they suggested that I should do likewise, eat at the cafe than sit down to their frugal fare. But that wasn't the idea at all. What's the use of monastery if you don't do as the monks do?

So they put me at the head of their table and we dined on lentil soup, dry bread, spring onions and olives. I've never enjoyed a meal more.

Afterwards we went back to the cafe and liked politics. They asked if I had any British newspapers with me. They couldn't speak English, but some of them could read it.

Europe as I See It

VENICE

ARTICLE 28

St. Gallen, Switzerland, (Special to Ontario Intelligencer).—The last city I visited in Italy was the city of gondolas for Venice, as everyone knows, is not a city in the ordinary sense of the word, but is built on a series of marshy islands about three miles from the mainland. If you want to take a bus, you go to the nearest bus-stop, which in this case is a dock, and wait until a motor launch comes along.

This is rather a unique place for a city to be built, but it was done for purely defensive reasons. The people of the surrounding district fled to these islands to escape the barbarian invasions from the north. This proved to be such a safe place to live that the people decided to remain here, and called the settlement Venezia, which actually meant the territory inhabited by the Veneti.

The town grew to such an importance that during the Middle Ages it became one of the most powerful in the whole Italian peninsula, chiefly because of the growing Turkish power, which thwarted her plans of expansion, and of the shifting of the trade routes to the Atlantic. Venice rapidly declined in importance, until in 1866 she was incorporated into the Kingdom of Italy.

Many Canals

In the city proper, there are more than 150 canals of all sizes. By far the largest and most important is called the "Canal Grande". Winding through the city in the shape of a "S", it is what may be termed the main street of Venice. Although there are almost four hundred bridges in all, only three span this canal. The most famous, of ocurse, is the Rialto.

The other canals are, strange enough, called calles, canals, but "rii". These "rii" are on the average about twelve feet wide, and twist and turn so much throughout the city, that it is extremely easy to lose one's way.

The streets are called "calle", and are almost all very narrow. Some are so narrow that there is only room for two people to pass.

The streets go off in all directions, seemingly without any plan whatsoever, and very often come to a dead end. They are actually not streets, in the real meaning of the word, but only foot paths, since there are no cars allowed upon them. The fact is that none of them are large enough to permit an auto, and even a person on a bicycle has a difficult time getting about. Cars are able to come across the bridge connecting the city with the mainland, and there is also a regular bus service, but there is nothing but a parking lot beside the railway station, and this is as far as they can go.

Rialto is Unique

The "Rialto", the famous bridge over the "Canal Grande", is almost in a class by itself, in that there is a miniature shopping district in the bridge itself. The "Ponte Vecchio" in Florence is similar in this respect, but cannot approach the Rialto for sheer beauty. The bridge has only one arch and sits very high over the water. On the bridge are two rows of stores, each one large enough to have a show window on either side. Pedestrians walk in the centre or at the sides. The arch rises at such an angle, that stairs are necessary to reach the top. At the highest point are the small arcades, connecting the three stairways.

The central meeting place of the city is, as in most Italian cities, off to one side. This is the "Piazza San Marco". Bounded on three sides by an arcade, and on the fourth by the cathedral bearing the same name ,it is one of the most impressive sights that Italy has to offer. It is here that the swarms of doves fly about, apparently without any fear of the crowd. From this square one can look out over the open waters of the bay, and across to the Lido, which has one of the most frequented bathing beaches in Europe. The basilica of St. Mark, which is the most impressive of the prominent buildings grouped around the square, is well over one thousand years old, and is one of the best available examples of Byzantine architecture.

Wagner Honored

Tucked off in one corner of the city is the "Bridge of Sighs", so called because it was from this bridge that prisoners, condemned to death, were permitted their last look at the world. Not far away is a small park, which contains a statue to Richard Wagner.

This surprised me no end, since Wagner's music is the most unItalian conceivable. I asked about this and was told that Wagner had spent his last days in Venice. The person I asked further informed me that he did not think that Wagner's music deserved even the statue they had erected.

Millions Needed To Fix Churches In Great Britain

London, (CP)—Repair of Britain's ancient cathedrals and churches, many of them badly damaged by German raiders in the last war, will require an expenditure of about £5,000,000.

The urgent need of this large sum, to forestall the danger of further deterioration of many of the country's more famous structures, was stressed at the summer assembly of the Church of England.

Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, said that while the call for financial help was a heavy one, there was no reason for panic. Under prevailing conditions there was neither the material nor labor to carry out the entire reconstruction program in a single year. The proper course, he thought, would be to spread the work over a period of five years. This would entail an outlay of about £1,000,000, which plus maintenance costs would come to approximately the sum raised in 1950 for this purpose.

Following a spirited debate on the advisability of appealing to the government for a substantial grant-in-aid from state funds a second up rose, which assembly unanimously agreed to appoint a commission to inquire into the problem generally.

The Bishop of Winchester, Dr. M. G. Haig, warned against a state appeal for funds. If an appeal were made he suggested it should not be on religious grounds but strictly in the interest of preserving ancient buildings for the nation.

Because of its insular position, the only place where Venice can expand is on the mainland, and this is exactly what it has done. Today the section on the mainland called Mestre, is actually a part of the city, and it is here that the majority of the industries are found. Only one, corner of Venice itself is used for industrial purposes, and this perhaps just as well, since it is economically unprofitable to make room for more factories, as it would only detract from the reputation for quaintness that Venice has managed to create for herself.

ONTARIO GROWS

The extent to which United States capital has figured in the industrial growth of Ontario during the past year and a half is well illustrated in the current review of 1950 put out by the Trade and Industry Branch of the Department of Planning and Development. In all, 78 new manufacturing industries were established in the province during the year, with the help of the branch. All of these plants involved more than 5,000 square feet of floor space, or made provisions to employ more than ten people in industrial capacities. Any plants operating on a smaller basis than that were not considered in the review.

Out of those 78 plants, 29 originated in the United States, and the capital investment involved totalled more than $13,000,000, a sizable contribution to Ontario's economy. The investment for other plants came from many sources, both outside of the province and within Canada. But the confidence that manufacturers have in Ontario is shown by investments from Sweden, the United Kingdom and Austria.

The largest investment made during 1950 on the establishment of a new industry by United States capital was matched by Canadian industrialists. Chatham got a $5,000,000 food can plant sponsired by United States capital, and Ontario is the site of a new farm and accessories plant bearing the same investment. The latter move originated in Canada. There are some other figures over the million mark, but many are in the small thousands, as well.

In addition, millions of dollars were invested in the expansion of existing industries in Ontario, a sure sign that there is a great measure of confidence in the potentialities of this province by manufacturers. The list of names of cities and towns involved in this expansion reads like a true list of many of the manufacturing centres of the province.

It is good to have and read such a report. It shows that Ontario, long considered one of the top provinces of Canada, if indeed not the top, in industrial production, is not slipping any in its category. To the contrary, it is still expanding, and has taken the forward steps with ease. The expansion is also a vote of confidence in Canada as a fertile field for investment by other countries. This country has a long road ahead of it before utilization of all resources is accomplished with efficiency, but the day is coming.

AWAY WITH THE VARLET!

Every office, if one can believe stories told in dim back rooms, has its office wit. We have one, too, who invariably gets into the hair of everyone for yards around. And so it was with some trepidation that we individually and collectively viewed this character the other day, when we had had our umpteenth session with that ever-present pest.

The wit asked us if we remembered that orange or white ball that appeared in the sky a few weeks ago. When it first appeared, it seemed to be in the east, and each day, as do all things, it came to an end. It was warm and bright, and appeared regularly each day before our wit got out of bed. Then, around eight or nine o'clock in the evening, this white or orange ball faded, and was lost from sight. It was there apparently another night, or light, but it did not seem to have the power of the daytime orb. Yet it had, in addition, many small particles of light surrounding it. Our wit said he had a suspicion that the night rider was the moon, and it is accordingly with brilliants were stars. We had no quarrel with him on that point.

But when the office wit had the audacity, the gall, to ask what that funny ball in the sky was during the daytime, on its premise that he could not remember its name because he had not seen it in such a long time, somebody hit him with a stick of type. He crawled back in his own little corner, and has not said a word since.

Let us hope that the office wits are hazards in the same class as slippery streets, banana peels on the sidewalk and buckets of water poised on shaky transoms. There are two methods of control — actual elimination, or mere subjugation. Humanitarians favor the latter approach, not without good reason. But there are those crass individuals who believe that office wits should be eliminated, much as one kills the pesky mosquito which insists on buzzing around the inside of a camper's tent. Such treatment, while cruel, is definitely permanent. It is also against the laws of this land, alas.

We have heard of snide deals between employers in the past which transferred the wits to this or that office. The strategy behind such moves was that the wit would be out of his element in new surroundings and a little afraid to display his unlovely powers before new companions. The strategy never seemed to be entirely successful.

It appears there is no final remedy. If such is truly the case, then the subjugation choice is really the only one left. We have a dim, dark recess in which our wit will fit nicely.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The crow is probably the most condemned of all our birds, but nonetheless it is one of the most fascinating of wild creatures to study. If the farmers across Canada could read the observations and reflections on crows, it would make a wonderful book.

One of the most absurdly human aspects of a crow is in its relations to crows. At this time of year, crows are still exploring the dense thickets and jungles a crow can enter and scan a dense jungle of woodland for miles. The keen eye, and delicacy of a safecracker entering a bank. It is a solo job, crows working alone rather than in the familiar family groups, on this nest robbing. It is the time of the naked nestlings of warbler and vireo they seek, as they peer and pry, dropping unobtrusively from branch nests to branch in the shadowy thickets.

Suddenly, the crow comes upon an owl, solemnly and slowly preening in one of the obscurest nooks of the woods. Scandalized, thunderstruck, aghast, the crow discovers away all his stealth, and with a preliminary raucous yell, dares the owl to open war.

And there, circling frantically around the owl, espse hiding the owl, the crow shouts and cries murder, thieves, burglars, in the most frustrated tones, calling other crows from far and wide to come and help mob this villain, this monster of the night.

Set a thief to catch a thief is an ancient proverb. But the high moral attitude of those crows wildly circling and accusing an owl is only one of the characteristics of the black rascals that bears a comic resemblance to human nature.

So, far as most observers can discover, owls at least don't rob nests.

THE GOSPEL OF LITTLE THINGS

The little things of life are the significant things of life. Now and again we hear of some person who showered money and culture upon his children but was too busy with his affairs to give their children any of his companionship. When such children go to the wall, normally, it is usually a matter of bewilderment to the parent. "Didn't I give them all the money they could spend, and automobiles and fine schools and trips abroad?" Yes, but the little things would not be counted for more.

It is well for us to recall that our Lord made much of a cup of cold water given in his name. The list of things which our Lord encourages us to practice in his invitation amazes one: "I was hungry, and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty, and yet gave yue to drink; I was a stranger, and yet took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison and ye come unto me." Nothing here about huge contributions or about anything that we might call religious services. Just a list of little things which good hearted people did for those who were in need.

Christianity makes much of little things because life largely derives its significance from little things.

England--Then and Now

By Fred Hart

(Article 16)

BIRMINGHAM

By invitation and with keen anticipation we journeyed by train to this great city of industrial enterprise. Perhaps in no other land in England is such a multiplicity of goods and machinery manufactured, for there are over 1,500 factories in the town of 80 square miles and 1,200,000 of a population.

The legend is that Birmingham will make anything from a needle to a suspension bridge — from a locomotive to a toy train. At New Street railway station we spotted a chap with a sign "W. & T. Avery Ltd." clasped to his breast. We were to see it again with a representative of the firm with whom we had our beginnings as a youth.

A magnificent car with a uniformed chauffeur transported us to Soho Foundry — a huge factory, sprawling over many a needle as a visit with the overseas manager, a sumptuous luncheon we were served for a king and with all the trimmings! Then, in company with a party of native South Africans, we toured the works.

Factory Old Fashioned

Now this factory is quite old established as a going concern as the latter part of the 18th century. It was originally the working abode of Matthew Boulton, the organizing genius who created the pattern for modern systems of specialization, developed as time went on, yet in some respects basically the same, and, what is equally more important, instituted on a high plane the art and craftsmanship that has been worthily perpetuated by successive generations of Birmingham tradesmen.

Through every department of this huge weighing and testing machine factory we went, seeing the foundry where grey iron and molten brass in liquid metallic form was being run — into the huge machine shop where overhead cranes lift huge loads — the test and standards to test huge weigh-bridges — into the textile and tension testing machine department where, by the way, the huge testing machine, now installed in Toronto University, was made and assembled.

On through the automatic machine shop — and then to the huge floor where gauging pumps are made and tested and governors ment stamped.

Finally we visited an almost airtight department — where air currents may not be — where sensitive balances are assembled. So sensitive are these balances that less than 1/70,000th part of the pound avoirdupois will give momentum to these scales that this minute unit of weight will literally smash the goods pan down to its rest extremity. Yes, we are of the opinion that this old firm of W. & T. Avery is unparalleled in the manufacture of scientific machinery.

Old Friends Gone

One of the sad things about our visit to our old firm was that those whom we knew in the old days were either out of town or had passed on — so, although we were graciously welcomed by the present governing executive, we missed those we knew in the days when life was before us.

Then back to the New Street station after a very busy and instructive day. But there was so much more to see in and about Birmingham that we delayed our departure for another sojourn down through the Bull Ring and so we went by old St. Martin's Church we thought of those hectic days when all was so different to what England is today.

England Quieter

For it seemed to us that the hustle and the bustle of the early years of this century had been supplanted by a more leisurely gait so general throughout this England — by the Scotland which we saw — there seems but little activity during the evening hours. Perhaps it is because that today there is radio in practically every home and television in many, and entertainment can be found in the home — which is the best place to be.

Then again, maybe 'tis because the pound sterling goes such a very little way in these days of austerity. For instance a pint of beer is now one shilling and three pence whereas in the old days it was but threepence. A package of 20 cigarettes now costs three shillings and sixpence, yet in some package once was about sixpence. An ounce of pipe tobacco costs the pound sterling — we can remember when the same pipe mixture was but four pence. Therefore the working man has a very small margin to spend for his leisure time activities and hours for recreation are curtailed.

Yet, it seems to us, there is also one realizes that this once great and prosperous people are now tanned to the very limits of their resources — and when one ponders over the fact that France and Belgium, The Netherlands and all our European allies in the last war have welded up — we seem to be incomparably better off than the British people were, alone for so many weary and heartbreaking months.

Then one very certain that blitzes or thought comes to the fore — those hard things are penetered between clenched teeth! Yes, the habits and these people have developed over the years for the ugly scars on this once embattled island, the countryside, the towns and the villages are as they ever were, a delight to the eye and balm to the soul.

Worth Fighting For

As one passes through this lovely land, be it in the full noon-day sun, or in the twilight and the long twilight, one must acknowledge the fact that this is and was a land worth fighting for, for it is all so very beautiful. And the memory of it will live with us as long as life lasts.

Yes, this visit to our homeland has been worth the cost of the journey — for it was "going home." And we are nearing the end of our stay, a few more days and we will have left this green and pleasant land and we will be sailing toward the setting sun, a little sad — and albeit, glad, that we have discovered the England we know now — and did not by the former.

SAVE YOUR KIDNEYS

You stated in an article published last spring that an occasional drink is harmful to one kidney. Please explain why. I had a large kidney stone removed, and the kidney was so badly damaged they had to remove it. (P. M. T.)

Even the loss of a third molar (wisdom tooth) is regrettable, although from one to all four are missing in most American adults — having been extracted or, more likely, never cut. Yet it rarely occurs to uneducated high school and college graduates that loss of a few teeth is of any consequence. These believe they can prevent decay of their teeth by brushing like mad with dainty packaged soap which gets but a few pennies a day...they believe it's useless because in a few years the dentists, kept well supplied with samples will have a new gadget to do away with it almost algae: "A clean tooth never decays."

It is unfortunate that the dentists were so susceptible to commercial propaganda in the 'end era. Their adoption of the "clean tooth" hokum deferred — if not delayed thousands of gullible customers from making proper dental treatment in time to save their teeth.

Loss of one structure, organ or gland or member of which the body is endowed with two or more is always regrettable and should be prevented if at all possible. But within reasonable limitations of time, if a pair of organs or glands is only incidental, provided the remaining lung, ear, ovary, kidney, testis, eye or arm be intact.

My opinion that even occasional indulgence in alcoholic beverages or liquor is harmful to the remaining kidney of a person who has lost one kidney is based on general medical knowledge and experience. I know of not any more about it than your doctor knows. But I have four doctor's opinion?

Dr. Howard W. Haggard, Director of the Laboratory of Applied Physiology at Yale and Dr. E. M. Jellinek, Director of Alcohol Explored (Doubleday, Doran & Co.) say that "while alcohol increases the elimination of water through the kidneys, it had no harmful effects on these organs."

Dr. Walter A. Bastedo, in his Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics (W. B. Saunders Co.) says that "long-continued alcohol drinking may be a factor in the production of chronic tubal nephritis" (Bright's disease). "Warblin says he has never, postmortem, seen a normal kidney in an alcoholic."

Dr. William Calder, in his famous Practice of Medicine (Appleton) said "The use of alcohol is believed to lead to this form of nephritis" (chronic Bright's disease with dropsy). Dr. Cater also ascribed to alcohol an "important part" in the causation of chronic interstitial nephritis—contracted kidney, but hedged on it by saying "probably."

But even if the doctors disagree about it, that is why, I take a chance when you have only one kidney? For that matter, why abuse your vital kidney at all if you have several kidneys?

I may be a queer old geezer but when I'm not busy quarreling with everybody I enjoy life, assisted to do so by a heart that understand why any one who is not afflicted with it should want to benumb his enjoyment with an occasional or social dose of alcohol or drug-induced.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

S. S. B. A.

Is Saturated Solution of Boric Acid a delicious meal with a spoon wash or drops to relieve inflamed eyes? (M. M.)

Answer—No. Make fresh solution at least weekly—by dissolving 4 teaspoonfuls powdered Boric Acid in about one-half pint of freshly boiled water, and if staining lasts, or, every day, using use only the clear upper fluid.

The Old Hokum

When a doctor attributes aches and pains to "nervousness" does it mean that the nerves really ache or that you are the patient imagines. (Mrs. C. M.)

Answer—Heaven only can tell.

Sun Lamp

Will a sun lamp used on my face be as effective as if used on my face? (I. G.)

Answer—Probably more so—if the lamp is held from six inches to skyline or even a sun lamp is more effective combined with the area of skin exposed.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOREVER STRIVING

There are secret powers within us all, about which we know nothing until we have explored within ourselves. Constant striving, day by day, opens up new powers and new avenues of approach and we are stimulated to do things undreamed of before we ever have before. There are always surprises ahead, too! Faithful striving is the only worthy objective always brings its merited reward.

It has been this constant striving on the part of people of faith that has given us all the progress and comforts that we enjoy today. And it will be the same in the future. No one ever has. There have been only guesses. It was God's striving that produced television, and what its future impact upon society is to be no one can say. We do know that it has possibilities that are not yet revealed.

Many of us are tempted to give up on something that has required our time for a long period. At such a time we should bear in mind the fact that if these men did not give up, who went right right ahead, never doubting but that the end would be one of triumph.

Aim at Uniformity In Pensions Plan For Under-70 Folk

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 14. (CP)—Representatives of the federal and provincial governments will meet here Monday to discuss plans under which pensions of $40 a month will be paid to needy persons between 65 and 69.

The meeting will attempt to agree on conditions which a person will have to meet to qualify for a pension.

The federal government alone, starting next Jan. 1, will pay pensions of $40 a month to all persons 70 and over, regardless of means, who have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. It has offered to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of similar pensions to the needy in the 65-69 age group. It will continue to pay, under present general terms, 75 per cent of the cost of $40-a-month pensions to needy blind persons 21 and over.

At present, pensions of $40-a-month sometimes are paid, or a little more—are paid to needy persons 70 and over who have lived in Canada for 20 years and who can prove their need for such a pension. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

At its recent session, parliament authorized the federal government to conclude agreements with the provinces for the payment of pensions to the needy in the 65-69 age group. It is not yet known whether all provinces will conclude agreements in time for the new pensions program to start next Jan. 1.

Some provinces have indicated that they cannot afford to participate in the program set up by the federal government. Others say they may start the pensions at the end of 1951 and have intimated they will pay the pensions to a limited number in the 65-69 age group.

Health Minister Martin recently said:

"The federal government, of course, does not ask all provinces will ultimately adopt a uniform pattern in order to take the fullest advantage of the scope of the federal legislation. At the same time, it is not the intention of the government to impose this new program on all provinces on a 'take it or leave it' basis.

"If any province comes to the conclusion that it cannot for reasons of its own, implement this part of the program in its jurisdiction at the present time, or that it can only do so on a limited and partial basis, this will not affect the federal government's offer as it applies to the other provinces. Nor will it in any way affect the implementation of the universal pensions program."

145,000 to qualify

Should all provinces accept the federal offer, it is estimated that 145,000 Canadians between 65 and 69 will qualify for pensions. The cost would amount to $56,000,000 annually, shared equally by the federal government and the provinces.

The federal government proposed that residence requirements and income ceilings form part of the eligibility test. Under the federal offer, a person would have to have lived in Canada at least 20 years in order to qualify. A single pensioner in the 65-69 group could be in receipt of $20 a month or less in outside income and still qualify for a full pension of $40 a month.

In other words, a single 65-69 pensioner could receive up to $240 a year in outside income and still receive a full pension of $480 a year. A married couple, both receiving the full pensions, also would be allowed outside income of $240 a year. In the case of a married couple, of whom one is pensionable and in receipt of the full pension, outside income could total $720 a year.

When outside income goes above the allowable ceilings, the amount of the pension is reduced accordingly. For instance, if a widow, doing odd household jobs, has an income of $40 a month she would be entitled to $20 a month in old-age assistance. On reaching the age of 70 she would qualify for a full pension of $40 a month, no matter what outside income she has received.

Walter Thompson To Direct Tour Of Princess

Ottawa, July 14 — (CP) — Walter Scott Thompson, C. B. E., one of Canada's best-known and best-liked publicity men, has been called out of retirement to handle press, radio and picture relations for the forthcoming Canadian tour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The former director of public relations for the Canadian National Railways, who retired Oct. 22 last when he reached 65, now is holidaying in London with Mrs. Thompson.

Announcement of the appointment came Friday from Charles Stein, undersecretary of state and chairman of the committee making tour arrangements. The Royal couple is expected to arrive in Canada early in October for a three-week countrywide tour.

For 36 years, with time out for war-time employment such as handling press arrangements for the 1939 Royal tour, conducting other tours and high dignitaries through Canada, and doing a wartime public relations job for the federal government, Mr. Thompson was with the railways which, under public ownership, is a national system, making his home in Montreal.

The terse announcement from the arrangements committee headed by Mr. Thompson has been appointed "to take charge of all matters relating to press, radio, photographic and other information questions associated with the visit."

Continental Men Nice, Margaret Prefers Americans

New York, July 14 (AP) — Margaret Truman was back home from a "wonderful" seven-week European tour.

"I'm a good sailor," President Truman's daughter said, "but nothing looks as wonderful as land."

Reporters kept asking Margaret what she thought about European men.

"Give me American men," Margaret said. "Continental men are very charming but there is nothing like the gentry back home."

Margaret said she enjoyed meeting the two English princesses.

"They are very charming and very much prettier than their pictures," she said.

Pouring Rain Balks Orangemen On Glorious 12th

Bancroft — Flanked by two Union Jacks, William III, Prince of Orange and King of England resolutely led his men through the ceaseless pouring rain of Bancroft as resolutely as the original King Billy led his men through the famous campaign in Northern Ireland.

Although the Orangemen were celebrating the 261st anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne River, the weather and terrain was more like that of The Netherlands in the days when William won a reputation for gallantry before he came to England to be the successor to James 2nd. And mounted on a white charger, wearing a scarlet coat and plumed cavalier's hat King William, Ewart Wanamaker of Bancroft, seemed to be invulnerable to the weather.

Following him were the lodges of Hastings County, Old Jupiter Pluvius thinned their ranks a little and made it necessary for a number of units to combine and not march as individual lodges but they all drew cheers as white and blue and gold and orange, marching in a sprightly manner to the music of a band from Frankford, another from New Castleton and three from Tweed and numerous rifles, drums and mouth organs.

Volunteer Musicians

These were enthusiastic musicians, for they were playing and drumming as their trucks and busses rolled into the village, as they came from the back roads as others played softball and baseball and as their vehicles left town at the end of the day. Tweed over somebody tired it was miraculous to note how many volunteer musicians from the crowd eagerly carried on.

The kids were in the parade. So were their grandfathers and grandmothers. And even a pet was there, for one Belleville lodge brought along a tiny goat. Many of the less hardy type rode in cars at the back of the marchers.

When they reached the high school grounds somebody decided that a shower was in order, but this rain was getting to be a bit annoying. Why, cop snatches had even holsted an umbrella and a few collars were turned up. Orders were given to march to the arena to hear the speakers, Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft, R.W. Brother H. J. Graham, Field Secretary of the Grand Lodge, Ontario East and W.M. Jules Bentley of Belleville Lodge.

During the morning there were swimming and golf and at the lodge dinners, the afternoon brought forth a softball game for the girls and a baseball game for the men. Evening was the time for the young and not so young to unlit and bring the season's largest dance crowd to the community hall. Of course there was the special attraction, catching the greasy pig. The victor was Ewart Wanamaker, King William in the parade.

But the greatest and most popular recreation on the day was visiting. As one strolled through the grounds you could see people making hasty calls here and on dozens of porches on any street where the shades were being attacked. Practically every farm, sawmill and construction job was closed for the day and the village was really packed.

One octogenarian expressed the spirit of the gathering when he was heard to say—"We've been celebrating this day officially since 1795 and unofficially 1690," noon.

Police Squads Form Strong Defence Line

Cicero, Ill., July 14 (AP)
Soldiers' bayonets, barbed-wire barricades and roving police squads formed a strong defensive line today to maintain peace and order in Cicero's riot front.

The line was made to-order to crash the line in the area of the embattled apartment building where a Negro family had rented a flat, touching off the disorders.

No Negroes live in Cicero, a community of 70,000 west of Chicago.

Police broke up many small groups which formed last night within four blocks of the apartment building which had been stormed by a riotous mob Thursday night.

Persons disobeying orders to "keep moving" were picked up and taken to the Cicero police station. About 70 were nabbed during the night. Thirty-nine were charged with unlawful assembly. Four others, including 15 youths, were released.

Sixty of the 72 nabbed Thursday were booked on various charges, including unlawful assembly, assault and inciting to riot.

Although comparative peace settled over the trouble zone, about 200 of the 450 national guardsmen and police detailed remained on duty throughout the night.

In Thursday night's rioting, guardsmen and police battled a frenzied mob for more than two hours. Twenty three persons, including soldiers and policemen, were injured.

Third Generation Heads Out to Sea

Vancouver, (CP)— The third generation of Vancouver's most famous seafaring family is going to sea.

The sons and daughters of Cap'n John, Cap'n Jim and Cap'n Charlie are breaking in on the waterfront.

They are the grandchildren of the three whose name is known along the whole length of Canada's west coast as another word for tugboating—Capt. Charles H. Cates.

Sylvia, daughter of Capt. Jim, has a summer job in the head office of the family concern. The other night she took the wheel of one of the tugs to help her father chase some log pirates in Vancouver harbor.

Other young youngsters have done summer work and knocked about the tugs—John's daughter Ann, Charlie's children, Janet and Suzanne and Jim Jr., who is a deckhand on the Charles H. Cates No. 10.

During the United States Civil War, Capt. Cates' grandparents moved to Canada and his seven children grew up in Ragged Reef, N.S.

At least four of them came to British Columbia, one of them, seven, John, carried miners to the Yukon in '98 in a small vessel and joined the band of vigilantes who finally hanged Soapy Smith, the vice-king of Alaska.

Back in Vancouver, he started a tugboat business. By the time he died in 1938, Capt. Cates saw his sons successfully operating the family concern.

ENCLOSING THE GARDEN

"Happy the man whose wish and care
A few paternal acres bound,
Content to breathe his native air
In his own grounds."

—Pope.

In any home property, the lot can have particular functions public, service, private — a degree of seclusion is not only most appropriate but much to be desired. The garden enclosure need not extend beyond the house line and into the street, because if it does, this might create a discordant note in the neighborhood. It is sufficient to enclose the private garden, usually located in the rear of the house. Simplicity should be the key note of fencing and the design should be in character with the style of the house. Indicated in the sketch is a simple Colonial picket type which makes admirable background for flowers.

Indian Famine Fades as Major Canadian Government Problem

Ottawa, July 14 (CP) —The ed sending dried milk and other Indian famine has quietly passed specialized foods. It rejected the away as a major government problem.

Only a month or two ago it was bringing frequent calls in parliament for government action. One opposition member requested that Canada make a $100,000,000 gift for famine relief. The government said at that time it was "exploring every avenue."

Now the crisis period has pretty well passed without any special help from Canada beyond the 300,000 tons of wheat India bought commercially here last fall.

The Canadian government twice offered, additionally, to provide low-grade wheat — all there was available— and that India turned it down.

The government also considered aim is to increase India's own ability to produce food through irrigation and hydro-electric projects.

That is the background for discussions that have been going on between Indian and Canadian officials.

The expectation here is that India will at least duplicate and quite possibly surpass last year's order for 200,000 tons of top-grade wheat once Canada's new crop is ready in a couple of months.

The question is whether she'll buy it commercially under the international wheat agreement or take it as part of a country to country contribution under the Colombo plan. The long-range Commonwealth program for building up south and southeast Asia. She might do both.

Virtually all the industrial employees were evacuated shortly before the flood waters moved in.

At Kansas City's municipal airport, beside the Missouri river, the water rushed to close a washout in a protecting dike by dumping abandoned automobiles and blocks of concrete into the breach. Flames and employees at the airport were evacuated last night to Grandview, Mo., airport, 10 miles south of Kansas city.

In eastern and central Kansas where some communities have been battling floods for a month, high waters swept into new areas.

At Great Bend, a central Kansas city of 13,000 population, the Arkansas River broke through a dike spilling water into the south part of the city. An eight-foot wall of water surged through a 20-foot breach in the dike.

In Topeka, some people still were sighted aboard rooftops by Coast Guard crews and Coast Guard crews have boats in the area.

The Kansas River was reported dropping at Manhattan, one of the hardest hit towns. More than 1,000 persons have been evacuated against typhoid.

Engineers in the devastated area are being carried on around the clock by Coast Guard boats, helicopters, amphibious planes and private craft.

Air force planes are dropping food, clothing and other essentials to isolated communities.

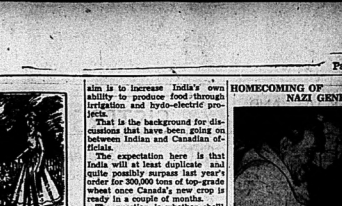
HOMECOMING OF NAZI GENERAL



Former Nazi parachutist general Hermann Ramcke is carried aloft by fellow-members of his former parachute unit as he holds his young daughter in his arms. The general was released after seven years of French imprisonment and returned to his home town, Schlesswig, in the British zone in North Germany. The entire town appeared at the railroad station to welcome him back. A choir and a band headed the procession to his home. — Central Press Canadian.

How to Make Meat Money Go Farther

By KAY REX

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Rationing may be nothing but shortage of meat with you, but the prices of the '50s remind the wife that the same rules still apply.

In 1943 she chose her meat carefully because she was permitted to buy only so much of it. In 1951 she still chooses her meat carefully because prohibitive prices discourage her from making poor buys.

Consequently, a Dominion Department of Agriculture wartime pamphlet about meat is every bit as up to date now as when it was first published.

It contains rules such as the following:

1. Unwrap meat at once. Wrapping paper draws juices from the meat.

2. Wipe with a damp cloth. Don't rub or dry meat unnecessarily, preferably with waxed paper.

3. Store in the coldest place available.

4. Ground meat spoils more quickly than unground meat and therefore should be used promptly.

Dinner Touch

Even the lowly pot-roast can be given a touch of glamor if the correct seasonings are added.

Home economists of the Department's Consumer Section suggest a spicy pot roast.

Ingredients: One-half cup water; one-half cup vinegar; two spices; small bay leaf; one-half teaspoon salt; one small onion (cut fine).

Combine the above ingredients. Place meat in bowl and pour the mixed liquor over it. Let stand three hours, turning meat several times.

Remove meat, prepare and cook on pot roast, using mixed liquid in place of water in cooking.

Cooking of the pot roast — Brown well on all sides in a little hot fat in a heavy pot or Dutch oven. Place a rack under meat, add water, cover tightly. Cook this over low heat or in slow oven (300-325 degrees Fahrenheit) until meat is tender. Allow about 30 minutes to the pound. Turn meat during cooking.

Another Suggestion

There's nothing like an old-fashioned "boiled" dinner to draw compliments from the man of the house after he has had a hard day at the office.

Ingredients: Three to four pounds beef (brash or corned brisket, rump or plate); six medium potatoes; six carrots; one medium turnip; six medium onions; one small head cabbage.

For corned beef: Cover with cold water, bring to boiling point and then discard water.

Cover meat with boiling water and cook slowly at a simmering temperature until tender (about three hours.) One hour before serving add turnip, carrots, onions and seasonings (horseradish sauce may be served with fresh beef) as desired. Half an hour later, add the potatoes. Cut cabbage into wedge-shaped pieces and add 15 minutes before serving.

Sizes of the Times

Remember when sweetbreads were considered a delicacy? Nowadays they cost less than a pound of the most ordinary cut of beef. Check your butcher to see if this is true.

STATE MEDICINE?

At a recent Canadian Medical convention in Montreal, the doctors hailed their new national pre-paid medical plan as "the answer to socialized medicine." Now, while this may very well be "the doctors'" answer to state medicine, it may not be "the people's" answer . . . Most of our doctors have at least come around to the fact that great numbers of Canadians want to pay their medical fees in advance so they won't be caught with big bills at one critical time. It took a long time for medical men to see this. Now that they recognize the here-to-stay factor of the pre-payment method, the doctors have set their own medical plan terms. Rates seem rather high for the average family.

Under Medical Association pre-payment plans existing in several of the provinces for group subscribers only, the annual rates for individuals run around $25, for a subscriber with one dependent $51 and for a family $75. These rates seem steep for the Canadian homemaker who can sign her family up with no insurance company for hospitalization as well as medical care at a little less than the doctors ask for medical fees only.

In Planning Stages

The doctors are merely in the planning stages for a medical plan which would be a national plan which would include everybody is considered. But they hope to finalize scheme by the end of the year. Their plan is to ask the government to pay the full cost of the premiums for some section of the population and part premiums on a sliding scale for others, based on income. Those who can afford to pay their way, will be called upon to do so; this last clause has the Canadian ring all right.

By organizing this kind of a set-up, the medical men think they can provide their own brand of state medicine at cut rate prices. Even to the little housewife, it would appear much simpler for the government to give free medical attention to all and pay the doctors and hospitals menasurie with their various levels of ability. Much administration would be saved.

Then too, not only those who can afford to pay would get it, but everybody would pay because the government would pay, and the government pays from the wages of all the people whether they can afford to have contributory tax deductions or not. A similar thing will work next year when the old age pension of $40 a month will go to every person, regardless of whether he has saved or wasted his money, whether he has had good fortune or distress.

Plans Are a God-send

Whatever is done to relieve the strain of modern expensive medical care, it is becoming next to impossible for a person other than a millionaire, to pay the full cost of hospitalization and nursing. Many private hospitalization plans now operating are a God-send to the people they protect.

If the Canadian Medical Association thinks that either the government or the individual can shoulder their own doctors' services plan at $75 for a family with additional hospitalization and nursing premiums, I think they are wrong. Whatever the plan, it will have to be cheaper than that.

It's Up to You

Often in your reading, you come across snitches of print which make you realize how little we liked from Harry Emerson Fosdick's book "On Being a Real Person" "Handling difficulty, making the best of bad messes, is one of life's major businesses. To very often the reason victory is not won, lies inside the individual. The recognition of this fact by the individual concerned, is difficult. At times we all resemble the Maine farmer laboriously driving his horses on a dusty road. 'How much longer does this hill last?' he asked a man by the roadside. 'Hill!' was the answer. 'Hill nothing! Your blind wheels are off!'"

Tunisia and Algeria

By Lavonia Stockelback

Algiers, Algeria — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — In the most part, the Mussulman is a fatalist, believes that what is to be will be and consequently makes no effort to conquer the difficulties of daily personal life. He is inclined to believe lastly, that it seems fate has decided for him, and if it is an ill fate, all will be made up to him in paradise. This is all the more easy as his wants are few. A few dates, olives, a little bread, a little precious coffee, a burnous to cover his rags or his shabby clothes and a house of clay to live in. Why ask for more? Unhappily, if one asks for little, one gets less and less and less. And so one sees the village streets simply cluttered with men just sitting. Simplify your wants and just sit around and wait for paradise—or for men of energy to step in and conquer you.

And the Frenchmen are the conquerors, remain the aristocrats and as such permit a considerable unforgivable rudeness that sometimes made me feel miserable in shops.

Not Grateful to French

Feeling as the Arabs do about work, it is not entirely surprising that they are not grateful for the splendid work accomplished by the French. The road-building, irrigation system, the planting and planting of a vast acreage in grains, olive trees, vineyards and in the forestation, control and productiveness of those astonishing oasis with their thousands of thousands of date palms.

But the oncoming generation does not realize the great benefits derived from commerce. Though conscripted they have no need of learning French and so get more and more in touch with the outside world. They are the results of the development of iron, phosphate, lead and zinc industries. It is said that Tunisia now ranks second in the world in phosphates. A welcome ambition on the part of the young men is to be whisked.

War Changed Attitude

Fifty years ago who would have thought there was the slightest need for the unknown folk of Canada to learn anything about the thoughts and the mode of life of these unknown folk of North Africa? But the graves of our boys over here have changed such indifference.

We are fortunate in Canada, it cannot be too often said, in being a country of two languages. Without French all this section is shut off from us except for tourists in the larger cities and a tourist is a pretty useless bird. Even French can give so much to those gentle veiled women. Resignation may be very sweet, but there is something above and beyond that.

When I entered the mosque in Constantine, the Mosque of Salah Bey, there was first a small court surrounded by galleries. There was a small fountain with orange trees reaching to the first gallery where is the room for prayers. It is divided into five parts supported by columns and covered with a painted wooden roof, except, of course, the centre over the orange tree sought heaven.

Visits Classroom

With my shoes strung over one of the interpreter's shoulders and his over the other, we went into the classrooms of this House of God, where various lessons were in progress. One class of about twenty young gentlemen sat cross-legged in a semi-circle, rather an oval, with the professor on one side. It was an Arab grammar lesson based on the Koran. The rug was a soft gorgeous thing with a modern design of large flowers and grateful to the stockinged feet after climbing the stone steps. When I stooped down to feel it and to study more closely the design, there was a sudden break in the gentle murmur of that grammar lesson and twenty pairs of eyes were fixed on me as I rose. The professor glared and continued with the grammar.

Some of the lads were gathered in the centre court, chatting quietly, leaning against the marble pillars or the balustrade and wore European clothes except for their caps.

Interest Aroused

The interpreter introduced us to the professor, explained where I was from whereupon there was a questionnaire that kept me busy. Autographs were exchanged and I had one boy write a paragraph from his grammar book in Arabic. They were awfully especially under the unasked-for encouragement of his comrades.

Then one of them called my attention to the mandolin and told me they were from Carrara in Italy. I had been there in the days when I was more interested to hear a description of the hills of marble than to admire young men and I wondered what the future had in store for them.

"The immediate future for me was the joy of getting into the shoes again, but as I did so about an inch of one got on the mat and had to be pushed down with the foot. I could not quite see why it was less unholy to put my shoes on on their sacred mats than on my working shoes. Perhaps it was the fear of bringing the dust from the mean, narrow and ugly street we now entered.

Good Educational Opportunities

Since the French reforms of 1946 the young Musulmans are given the same teaching as modern Europeans. They enter the University of Algiers on exactly the same footing as the French. If they had to go there to check up on some bird information and was much impressed not only by the beautiful buildings, but by the polite behavior of the students of both sexes, (I am not sure if there were any Arab girls there), and by the neat clothes of the boys and the charming summer dresses of the girls. I feel that I ought to say good gentlemen and young ladies.

In passing I must tell you about the mosque in Constantine we had to cross over the gorge of Rhumel (350 feet deep) by a bridge. Hating high places I wanted to remain either way but that Arab thought I ought to enjoy "nature." I did enjoy looking up where a few eagles and I enjoyed seeing the hot water gushing forth from the rocks into a modern swimming pool, but not the bridge over the gorge. The swirling brides in Napanee had always been too much for me.

Canadian Well Remembered

That Arab spoke a little English and the chauffeur was also an Arab who had fought side by side with our Canadians. With what enthusiasm they spoke of those Canadians "so brave for their battle." That was all right, but I could not see why that should make me less dizzy crossing over the bridge. The result was that we just simply went over the bridge. The car stopped halfway and I was again bidden to admire "nature." Never did I care so little for "nature," cars, Arabs, or bridges.

The next type of school I went to was at El Hamel near Bou Saada, to which town I had died after a terrific sandstorm in Biskra. Apparently an oasis is not free of such storms. The school was a sort of religious or monastic institution where there are no students, but now most of them had returned home for the August heat of Bou Saada was too great for study.

A notable feature was that for some days I was under the direction of a woman, Lalla Zineb, who accompanied her father, a great religious personality. That seemed incredible to me in this Arab world, but it made it all the more interesting to me. A small mosque dominated the village and as it was the hour of prayer I could not enter, so was glad to have coffee with the interpreter's daughter-in-law. Afterwards we returned to the mosque where I greatly admired the decoration of the alcove used by the great man of the village when he came to pray. It was an exquisite thing. The alcove proudly turned on the switch to show me that they had electric lights in the rather high dome of the alcove of former years. I should have preferred the candles, but perhaps the electricity may lead the way to something more nobly modern.

School Built of Clay

The school, or college, consisted of a courtyard with on each side of a large court of pebbly clay, and all built of sun-dried clay. Some of the doors opened into classrooms, most into the rooms of the students. I was asked to see one of the classrooms peculiarly open to me to enter. It was about 10 by 16 feet. At one end sat the master on one of two cushions. By my a wooden stool for never can they be bought in the shops.

He sat at one end, bowed, when I was introduced, and then continued with the copying of the Koran on a sheet of paper propped up on a stool that looked like a stick of wood which he dipped constantly into an ink pot. He asked them me to enter that it was not surprising to see the line blurred as it got to the right side of the page.

Imagine if we had to write out our Bible from the beginning to the end. We certainly would know it better than we do.

There were several mats along the other wall for the students, but nothing on the ground as his rug, and I wondered what other subjects he taught and how much of the Koran he knew. Most of these boys of 16 and 17. The dark hair of the head covering set off the fine delicate features, the aquiline nose, the clear white complexion that tapered in a beautiful line from his temples.

Attracted by Gazelle

The Arabic complexion is beautiful, though it becomes browned by wind and sun, but apparently he had not been exposed and his skin was as a young boy's. In one of the crowded cells were three. One sometime a friendly little 'gazelle that somebody had as a pet came up to see me, quite like a young puppy, nibbled at my gloves, at my shoe laces and then gazed at me as I leaned down to pat him. I saw then how beautiful were the eyes of a gazelle, and such eyes the school master had. You will admit this description does not at all fit our idea of a college professor.

Into the one in the Constantine mosque could easily have passed for an American business man.

Quintena Rebekah's Enjoy Picnic

The annual picnic of Quintena Rebekah Lodge 132, was held on Wednesday at Wellington Park.

Despite the cloudy weather, a goodly number of Rebekahs and their families assembled and the early part of the afternoon was spent playing games, while a number of the younger ones enjoyed the swimming, after which races were held and contests.

The winners of the races were as follows:

Boys 4-8 years—Ernie Summers, Donald Adams, Lyle Adams, Peter Mitchell.

Boys 7-12 years—Baden Adams, David Mitchell.

Girls 4-8 years—Nancy Large, Mary Harwood, Lesley Johnston, Connie Boyle.

Girls, 7-10 years—Roberta MacDonald, Helen Addy, Rita Adams, Carolyn Harwood.

Whistling Races, Ladies, Dorothy Harwood; men, David Mitchell.

Bean Race—Dorothy Harwood, Rhea Mitchell.

Shoe Throwing—Dorothy Harwood; Junie Carruthers.

Birthday Prize—Mrs. Lottie Smith.

Oldest member present—Mrs. Catherine Beal.

Youngest on bus—Lesley Johnston, Mary Harwood.

During lunch, heavy rains caused an early departure. All present enjoyed this annual get-together.

A towel bar attached to the wall will help keep towel stocks from disappearing. Place the bar high enough so that the towel may be easily slipped under it.

Women of The Moose

The first meeting of Belleville Chapter 433, of the Women of the Moose, for the year was held last Thursday with the new senior Regent, Ruth Minty, presiding.

Communications were read by the recorder, Gladys Rich. Thank-you cards were received by the pianist, Irene Reid, and co-worker, Mary Whittle, for cards and fruit.

The sign of courtesy was extended to the guest, Mrs. Laira Woodacre, of Fort Francis by the entire chapter, who presented her to the mother of co-worker, Patricia Price.

Travelling aprons were donated by senior Regent, Ruth Minty and Co-Worker, Florence Carufel. The proceeds of the aprons will be used at the convention in September. It was decided that the next meeting be an open meeting. A homecooking sale will be held later in the month in Moose Hall with Co-Worker, Mary Peoples, presiding.

Chairmen for the standing committees, follow: Alumnae, Dorothy Austin, Lucilla Downes; Publicity, Michaeline Calbury, Olive McNeil, Mary Graham; Moosehearts, Mary Ronell; Library, Reta Clarke; Moosehaven, Mary Haslip; Childcare, Mary Peoples; Ritual, Kay Donovan; Hospital Call, Lena Connell; Homemaking Mary Mallette, Special Service, Enid Cole; Membership, Mabel Moon; Press and Means, Selina Isles; Academy of Friendship, Gladys Rich.

Two lovely figurines were donated by senior Regent, Ruth Minty and Co-Worker, Lucilla Downes. The winning ticket was drawn by Mrs. Woodacre and won by Co-Worker, Lena Murray.

Six Scheduled To Enter in 98th Running of Plate

Montreal, July 14—(CP) — Six Canadian - bred three-year-olds, topped by K. P. Taylor's Major Factor, are scheduled to run in the 98th running of the Quebec King's Plate at Blue Bonnets race track today.

A record crowd is anticipated for the mile and one furlong run, with a purse of $8,700, plus fifty guineas from the King.

Major Factor, Cinderella horse of the Taylor farm which won the $21,400 Ontario pleat at Woodbine last May, coupled with stablemate Britannia, will likely be the heavy favorites.

Chief opposition for the Taylor color-bearers will probably come from Mrs. J. Tomlinson's Mount Brance, winner of two big stakes at Woodbine and Fort Erie in recent weeks.

Veteran jockey Charlie McTague had been brought in to ride Mount Brance, while will ride the same weight as the favorite, 121 pounds. Al Bavinton will ride Major Factor.

Britannia, fourth in the Ontario plate and winner of two races since, gets in at 116 with jockey Gil Robillard up.

Stafford Farm's Maiden's Ted, Dan Kennedy's Irish Canadian and Speed Cop, the only Quebec entry from Russel Orsilv's Lindana Stable, complete the field.

Jockey Johnny Kowalyk, 116, will ride Speed Cop, and Vince Polk, 113, will handle Irish Canadian, and Johnny Segrift, also 113, will be aboard Speed Cop.

Lacrosse

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers climbed into second-place in the Senior OLA series Friday night via an 8-5 win over league-leading Peterborough Petes in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior match.

At the home ice, in Fergus, the lowly last-place Thistles swarmed over fourth - place Mimico Mountaineers 22-5 in a clash that was climaxed by a fourth-quarter free-for-all.

Hamilton lead the Petes 2-0 in the first, 3-1 at the half and 5-3 going into the third period after checking contest.

The Petes drew eight of the 14 penalties, two of them majors for fighting to Cary Mason and Dutch Guthro. Blain McDonald suffered a shoulder separation when thrown into the boards in the third quarter.

George Masters and Jack Dorney paced the Tigers with two goals each. MacDonald, Love, Gair and Wayne Wood added one. Grainger got two assists. Bob Ashbee led the Mounties with two markers. Nit O'Neal, Thorpe and Mason took one apiece. Fitzgerald added the other.

The fracas in the Fergus-Mimico match started at 9:05 of the fourth quarter when Bob Taylor, Mimico goalie, clipped C. Gear of Fergus just as he scored. That started everyone swinging.

Jerry Knechtell Junior Champion Of Ontario Golf

Toronto, July 14 (CP) —Promise of future pat-busting was offered at Oakdale Golf Club here yesterday as top Ontario junior golfers got together for their annual championship tournament.

An interesting golfing future was indicated for the likes of 16-year-old Jerry Knechtell who won the championship with a three over par 75, added to a 79, for a 36-hole score of 153.

Knechtell who plays out of Kitchener Rockway Golf Club, showed some of the form which could make him a likely successor to Gerry Kesterton, a pro who burned up the junior ranks after getting his start at the same course.

Runner up in the tournament was Don Ziegler, also of Kitchener Rockway. The 18-year-old golfer put together a 76 and 79 for 155—three strokes behind his clubmates.

A third place spot was Pete Hilldrop of Hamilton Cheroke, another 16-year-old, with 157.

Ken Smith of Toronto was 14 and 15 years old, Norman Thompson of Cutten Field Guelph was the winner, carding 84-81—165. Norman is the son of golf course architect Stanley Thompson.

Ken He finished two strokes ahead of William Fox, Jr., of Kenney, son of the professional at the Essex County Golf Club, who scored 87-80—167.

George Cameron, also from Cutten Field, won the C class, 12 years and under with 104-88—192, a single stroke better than Norman Doyle of Rouge Hills, who had 104-89—193.

Special prize for the younger competition went to 10-year-old Ron Hefferling of Dixie, who had 103 in the morning and 102 in the afternoon for a total of 205.

Corner Shots

By "THE OUTSIDE RIGHT"

Last Saturday afternoon, 6 RD was unfortunate in being edged 1-0 in their Eastern Ontario League game with Brockville. The airmen were up against a very fast starting side and blew 2-0 lead in the second half.

Today sees the 6 RD squad engaged in Provincial play against the UEW whilst Belleville entertain Kingston at Meadowvale. Beaver Park opposite the Houston Lumber Company premises .This game is called for 2.30 and will give everyone a chance to see last year's champions in action against the local boys.

In the Bay of Quinte loop, Trenton Merchants sprung a surprise by defeating the 6 RD squad 3-1 on the latter's field. Wednesday evening Picton Gunners consolidated their position in the league leader by edging Belleville Army and Navy Vets 2-1 at Picton.

League standing:

	G.P.	Pts.
Picton Gunners	8	13
Belleville Vets	9	8
Batawa	7	8
6 Repair Depot	7	6
Trenton Merchants	9	4

On Tuesday evening, Picton entertains 6 RD and on Thursday, 6 RD are in action again when Belleville provides the opposition. Both are Eastern Ontario Grounds.

The exhibition game between a combined Picton Gunner-Trenton Merchant squad and the Toronto referees association, has been postponed from next Saturday to a date to be announced later as the arbitrators organization is undergoing reorganization and at present is unable to fill any commitments.

It is hoped to start junior coaching at the Belleville playgrounds in the first week in August and in the meantime any youngsters who wish to avail themselves of the chance to learn the game are advised to hand in their names to their playground supervisor as soon as possible. Soccer balls have been made available at the senior playgrounds in order to instill some interest in the game.

Commencing at the beginning of September it is hoped to introduce two competitions for trophies that have been promised. One is for bantam under age 15 and the other for juveniles under 18 years of age.

George Ratterman Is 'Free Agent' Until Sept. 27th

(By The Canadian Press)

Football—courtroom style — gained a few more international yards yesterday.

George Ratterman, American grid star, became a "free agent" to play professional football in Canada—until Sept. 27 at least.

However, Ratterman hasn't heard the last of the New York Yankees football team which wants to stop him from playing next season for Montreal Alouettes.

A temporary order restraining Ratterman from playing in Canada was lifted, but a New Jersey court has set Sept. 27 as the date when it will consider a plea by the Yankees for a permanent injunction on Ratterman's Canadian football aspirations.

In football squabble No. 2, involving tackle Jack Hoffman, formerly with Los Angeles Rams, a court in Charleston, West Virginia, has threatened that if he ever comes back there, he'll be there to face court action. The charge—leaving the Rams (who claim they have him under contract) to play for Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

A third player, Billy Blackburn, in involved in injunction proceedings launched by Chicago Cardinals. The Cardinals are seeking to prevent Blackburn from playing with Calgary Stampeders.

There's just one thing holding up this case: Blackburn is in Canada.

For the first time in Canada, Rich Ferguson today runs against an athlete who has beaten him.

Canada's leading middle distance runner will face Valdo Lilliluo, late of Estonia and now running under the colors of the Montreal track and field club, in the eastern AAU Canada-wide field championships in Toronto.

Lilliluo beat the 20-year-old Canadian by two inches in a three-mile event held last year in England.

But Ferguson, who has finished many of his races a'lap or two ahead of his competition, doesn't intend to let it happen again.

A Quebec cricket team is in Toronto today to defend the Lord Galston trophy it has won in the last two years in matches against Ontario. Alf Pope from Trinity College, Port Hope, and H. B. Robinson, an Oxford Blue, will lead the Ontario team which last won the trophy in 1946. The match will be played today and Sunday.

Jersey Joe Walcott, 37-year-old heavyweight contender who gets his fifth crack at the crown worn by Ezzard Charles next Wednesday night at Pittsburgh, Friday was pronounced in "better condition than most young fellows 15 to 15 years his junior."

Dr. E. C. Krug, examining physician for the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, had nothing but praise for Walcott when he finished his checkup.

"Joe is in excellent condition", he said. "He evidently keeps himself in shape between fights. Fighters can't get the way he is overnight.

The Soviets have claimed another world track record, this time for the men's 3,200-metre relay.

Two Russians and two Ukrainians, each running an 800-metre leg were reported to have run 7:37.4, 1.6 seconds better than the world mark of 7.29 recorded by a Swedish team headed by Gunnar Lennart Strand in 1946. The Russians record was made in Moscow's Dynamo stadium yesterday.

Famed Brooklyn Handicap Will Be at Aqueduct

New York, July 14—(AP)—The famed Brooklyn Handicap, inaugurated at the old Gravesend track in 1887, will have its 63rd running at Aqueduct today, a dozen classy horses in the tough mile-and-one-quarter grind.

With most of the leading handicap stars in the east named for the race, a wide open betting license for the purse, if all 12 start the race will gross $58,600 with $40,-000 to the winner.

Attempting to pick the winner is rugged, for such 1951 stakes winners, as Cochise, One Hitter, Sheilas Reward, County Delight, and Busanda are in the lineup.

They there's the Brookmeade Stable's Greek Ship, which appears to be ripe for a big one after his stellar 1950 season. Greek Ship, going as an entry with Stablemate Chalna, beat five Brooklyn rivals in a tuneup at a mile and one-sixteenth at Aqueduct Tuesday.

The Brookmeade entry, with Eddie Arcaro riding Greek Ship again, and County Delight, with Eric Guerin up, were listed overnight at co-favorites at 4 to 1.

Ontario Baseball

St. Thomas Legion, who have lost three times as many senior Intercounty baseball games as they have won this season, pulled a surprise Friday night. To the joy of 2,000 Jubilee supporters, who they handed hard-fighting Galt Terriers a 12-9 defeat.

The game, a "Tommy Irwin night" affair celebrating the return from Pennsylvania for a few days of last year's manager, turned out to be a thriller. The score stood at 2-2 in the eighth inning. Then pitcher Bill Byham hit a home run that drove in two other runners and broke up the game.

It was St. Thomas' seventh win against 21 losses and Galt's 16th loss against 13 victories.

In other Intercounty games, second-place London Majors shut out Waterloo Tigers 4-0 in Waterloo while first-place Brantford Red Sox eked out a 2-1 triumph over the visiting Kitchener Legionnaires.

Napanee, in the cellar spot of the Central Ontario senior-league lost a humiliating 15-1 decision to Smiths Falls in Napanee. Mike Sullivan scattered nine hits to gain credit for the Wonder Blues win.

Police had to escort plate umpire Frank Elliott of St. Catharines away from the Waterloo ball park after the game. Elliott drew down the wrath of the spectators when he thumbed out of the park the Tigers' Johnny Fornasi and Joe Yosurak, neither of whom was in uniform as part in the game.

Once again the Tigers lost because they were luckless in banging out the hits. London's Bill Slack threw a one-hitter, five hits and his efforts left the Tigers in fourth place in the loop. Brantford credited its victory over Kitchener to doubles by Gerry Wilson and Tommy McGrattan and to the work of pitcher Wilmer Fields, who went the distance. Fields fanned 10 in first run of the game in the seventh inning and Kitchener tied it in the eighth. For the winning run, McGrattan's drive to the left field fence in the ninth brought Wilson home from second.

With good weather in prospect, today's schedule calls for Guelph to play at Kitchener, Brantford at Galt and St. Thomas at London.

In a Viaduct major league game in Toronto last night, Kingway Laundry trounced Oshawa Merchants 11-1.

MANAGER RELEASED

Galt, July 14 (CP) —George Smith has been released as manager of the Galt Terrier baseball club, Frank H. Currie, president of the Galt Baseball Association, announced Friday. John Russian, formerly with the Intercounty League team and third baseman for the Terriers, has been appointed acting manager of the senior Intercounty League squad.

No reason for the change was given.

Queen of Pacers Loses First Heat In 41 Starts

Toronto, July 14 (CP) —The "Friday the 13th" jinx caught up with Royal Princess, the Queen of the pacing supporters, when she lost the third race of her career.

After winning 39 of 41 starts in her two years of racing, W. C. Topping's extraordinary mare from London, Ont., was badly in the second heat of Friday's pacing stake and finished third to rocket Hanover and Guy Regent.

Earlier in the afternoon, Royal Princess had scored her 19th consecutive win of the season in the first heat when she was the easiest kind of winner over Sir Peter L. with Rocket Hanover in third place, Royal Princess paid only $2.30 to win but Rocket Hanover paid $15.70 when he scored his stunning upset.

It was a freak of racing fortune which spoiled the mare's record. Driver Barney Hughes sent her on the outside of four horses going into the club house turn and he collided with another sulky.

Cliff Fannin Wins 2-1 Over Buffalo Bisons

(By The Canadian Press)

Syracuse Chiefs made one of the best bargains of the season when they obtained Gene Costello, 27-year-old righthander from Springfield Cubs late in May.

Costello, who failed to win or lose in 10 games with the Cubs, has won five games and lost only one for the Chiefs since June 3. He has been used almost entirely in relief. He gained his fifth victory last night as the Chiefs edged Baltimore Orioles 5-4 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. The victory matched his 1950 output for Springfield.

The Orioles won the nightcap 5-2 behind Karl Drews who scattered nine hits. The Orioles seven-hit it up with four in the second, two on Billy Glyan's ninth homer.

The split dumped the Chiefs into fourth place with the Rochester Red Wings. The latter dropped to third as a result of their 3-3 victory over Springfield Cubs.

Cliff Fannin pitched Toronto Maple Leafs to a 2-1 victory over Tom Acker and the Buffalo Bisons. The Leafs collected only five hits but one was Lew Morrison's 14th homer. Grover Bowers drove in the winning run. Fannin allowed five hits and fanned six.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Sugar Ray Robinson's 15-round decision loss to Randy Turpin in dear ol' Luxon last Tuesday pee em, who recorded as one of the most stunning upsets the fistic fraternity has ever witnessed. It was hardly to be expected that a virtual "unknown" would knock over the man described as "the world's greatest fighter, pound for pound, of this or any other era." Robinson's outstanding record of 123 professional fights with only one defeat was certainly something to reckon with, especially as he avenged that one defeat at the hands of Jake LaMotta when he downed the Bronx Bull on four other occasions.

* * *

Nevertheless, Robinson is thirty-one years old, and even the greatest of them all start feeling the pounding at thirty-one. In addition he had just completed another tour of Europe where he trained for a succession of European "champions" on a diet of fate nights and French champagne in diplomat's slippers. In two months he tangled with seven such 'fighters'. Even if they could hardly be classed as contenders for Robinson's middleweight title, they nevertheless were middleweights who knew how to punch. In addition Robinson was sent beneath the Berlin Stadium ring to avoid a shower of shoes and pop bottles and while his ring generalship was sufficiently in tune to keep his body intact it must have been a bit of a mental strain at least.

And so we find a travel-weary, middle-aged middleweight, (31 is middle-aged in the fight business, despite the fact that all the 'headliners' in the heavyweight division are old stars of 37 and 40) competing in prime, superbly conditioned, mentally alert young man of 23 who carried dynamite in both fists as any fight fan in the isles can tell you. What would you expect? Exactly, and that is what happened. Now that Robinson has learned his lesson, you can expect anything. The odds-makers have already installed the Sugar at 4-1, to regain his title in a September rematch.

In view of the beating he took this week the odds look a little short, but it would be well to remember that that same, tired, travel-weary old man of 31 carried the fight to 15 rounds even though his timing and his footwork were off. Turpin couldn't knock him out. After a six week layoff, the Sugar will return to training with a vengeance, and by September the master should have regained his sharp - shooting lefts and rights, and his footwork will be something to make Fred Astaire read the small print in his contract.

* * *

The National League's resounding 8-3 decision over the AL in the All-Star game on Tuesday has given the senior circuit supporters such a lift that one or them had the audacity to state the other day that it really didn't matter who won the American League contest because it wouldn't do them any good in the world series anyway.

While discussing the pennant races it might not be amiss to pass along an item that keeps cropping up every year. And that is the formation of another major league. Montreal, obviously is too strong for the International League which is the strongest triple A league in baseball, and therefore it would appear that on that team at least there are sufficient players ready for the majors. It seems fair enough to assume that the league leaders in the present Triple A leagues could at least hold their own with the second division clubs in the majors. Support for more major league teams is not lacking either.

* * *

Cities with a population that could easily support a major league team include Montreal, Toronto, and Baltimore in the International League, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Louisville at least, in the American Association, and San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles, in the Pacific Coast League. The growing cities in Texas, Houston in particular, are soon going to be ready for a higher classification.

It would seem only right that something be done to inject new life into big time baseball. In the American League the Philadelphia As have a glorious past but have languished in the second division for 20 years. St. Louis Browns don't even have a past. It is only this season that the faithful White Sox fans have had anything to talk about since the 1919 world series days when were involved in the major league's only scandal. And what has Washington done in the past ten years that anyone can remember other than give Bucky Harris a job when the Yankees fired him for winning a pennant? In the National League the Dodgers, resurrected from the basement in the early 40's by Branch Rickey and the farm system, threaten to dominate the league for the next few years with their corps of young talent. Why not throw open the doors to another major loop, and possibly two more, and give the fans everywhere a chance to enjoy the big time.

Chisox Battle to 5-4 Win In 19 Innings Over Boston To Creep Closer to Leader

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The never-give-up White Sox have done it again.

Marathon 19-inning winners over the Red Sox in the longest night game in American League history, the "rag-a-to-Richards" gang trails Boston today by .003 in the steaming American League race.

Even the hardiest Chicago fan lost hope when Boston broke a 2-2 tie with two runs in the top of the 19th.

You can imagine the wild scene when the White Sox fought back to score three runs and write a new page in their Comiskey Park record book at approximately 2:17 a.m. EDT this summer Saturday morning.

The 5-4 victory boosted Chicago up even with Boston in the game-behind column, but the Red Sox hold that slender edge—.003 to .617 in the percentage table.

Nobody who saw this third game of the vital four-game series will forget it. The clubs played a nine-inning twilight game Thursday night and followed with a 17 inning struggle, both won by Boston. Then came the 19-inning battle last night, making 45 innings in two days.

The 19-inning game tied the National League night high of last Sept. 15 between Cincinnati and Philadelphia. Longest day game was a 26-inning battle between Boston and Brooklyn in 1920. The American League's daytime record is 24 innings, done twice.

Mickey McDermott pitched the first 17 innings for Boston in a magnificent effort. He gave up two tying runs in the fifth and that was all. Harry Taylor took over in the 18th, was charged with the loss although Ray Scarborough relieved him before the game ended.

Sox Came Back

Boston forged ahead in the 19th with Clyde Vollmer, who homered in the fifth, singling home one run. An error by Nelson Fox let in the second.

But back came those White Sox.

Floyd Baker opened with a single and Bob Dillinger followed with another single. Fox beat out a bunt to fill the bases. Eddie Stewart, batting for Jim Busby, singled to centre scoring Baker and Dillinger to make it 4-4.

That was all for Taylor and Scarborough came in. Al Zarilla beat out a bunt to the pitcher, loading the bases. Don Lenhardt lofty to centre sent Fox charging home with the winning run.

Cleveland came from behind to beat New York 11-8, edging up in the hot race. They trail by only 3 1-2 games. Bob Porterfield pitched and batted Washington to a 3-1 margin over Detroit and Duane Pillette of the St. Louis Browns blanked Philadelphia, 5-0.

Brooklyn held its 9 1-2 game lead in the National by bopping Chicago 8-6, for its eighth straight win and the Cubs' 8th straight loss. New York moved back in second place instead of St. Louis as the Giants slaughtered the Cardinals 14-4 with two grand-slam homers.

It was hoom run day— and night—in the National with a total of 15 tying the season record crop. Seven were hit at Ebbets Field by the Dodgers and Cubs.

Brooklyn piled up eight runs in the first two innings, then stayed off a barrage of five Chicago homers to keep its win streak intact.

Sonny Jackson hit two and Hank Sauer, Frank Baumholtz and Roy Malley one each for the Cubs.

Wes Westrum and Davie Williams smashed homers with the bases loaded to tie it and held by many clubs in the Giants' longest string of the season. Dave Koslo was nicked for homers by Red Schoendienst and Del Rice in his seventh win. Cliff Chambers was No. 4. Don Mueller of New York also homered.

While the muscle boys were having their fun at Brooklyn and New York, the Phillies' Robin Roberts came through with a two hit 3-0 job on Pittsburgh for victory No. 11. All runs came on homers—Erz Dusak ruined Roberts' no-hit chances with a sixth inning homer and Tommy Brown homered with Richie Ashburn on base and Del Ennis with the bases empty for the Phils.

Howie Fox threw his second straight shutout at Boston with a five-hitter as Cincinnati beat the Braves 3-0. Johnny Wyrostek's two-run single in the third tagged Max Surkont with his seventh loss.

Citation Favored To Win Gold Cup In California

By BOB MYERS

Inglewood, Calif., July 14 (AP) —Hollywood Park stages its 12th running of the $100,000 Gold Cup handicap today and the classic shapes up as a rich benefit for Citation and his bid to become a million-dollar champion.

Ten candidates were scheduled to hit the mile and one-quarter trail, and it appeared that nothing short of a tremendous upset in the keep Citation from collecting the guaranteed net of $100,000 and stretching his all-time earnings well past the $1,-000,000 mark.

The six-year-old son of Bull Lea goes into the race as the turf's biggest prize winner, with $985,760 to his credit in 44 trips to the post.

The $100,000 purse would send him up to $1,085,760, but even the second prize of $20,000 would make Citation the turf's first millionaire horse.

Clear weather, a fast track and upwards of 50,000 fans were on tap for this midsummer attraction—an event won in past years by such great racing heroes as Seabiscuit, Noor, Kayak II, Challedon and Shannon II.

The Gold Cup is hardly a walk-over for Citation, such as the triple-crown king of 1948 was accorded when none dared face him in the Pimlico special during his terrific devastation of the three-year-old ranks that year.

Arrayed with him today were two stablemates, Bewitch and All Blue.

Taking aim at the big fellow as a field that ranged from threatening to mediocre. Pick 'em as you will, they were T. C. Bateson's Lotowhite, Andrew Crevolin's Be Fleet, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Phelps' Sturdy One, C. H. Jackson Jr.'s Tantamount, the Brent Stable's Alderman, the Seavan Stable's Akimbo and Clifford Moores' Sudan.

Post time was approximately 8:20 p.m., EDT.

Aside from the Calumets, Lotowhite, with Johnny Longden, of Cardston, Alta., and 117 on his back; Sturdy One, inked in Citation and Bewitch on July 4, or Be Fleet, which might go out on the pace and make the race, were considered the main contenders.

Six-Run Rally in Eighth Fails to Halt Picton Squad Who Win From Redmen 12-10

By MAURICE REID

A six run rally in the top of the eighth inning fell just two runs short as the Belleville leaders went down to defeat at the hands of Picton Athletics at the latter's diamond last night by a score of 12-10.

The loss broke a two-game victory streak of the Redmen and knocked them below the victors in the league standing by half a game. Picton have now won six and lost five to a record of .545 and six by the Reds.

Belleville got out early and piled up four runs in the upper half of the first on a pair of hits and a like number of Picton errors.

The Athletics reared back with a pair however in their half and proceeded to four more in the second. Dyer started things off with a double, his second of the second of four hits for the evening, followed by Chalmers who walked, Bassett forced Chalmers at second but advanced a minute later when Mowat hit Carnelius with a pitched ball to load the bases. They did not remain loaded for long however as "Duffer" General" DeLaurier drove a tremendous triple to centre field.

Mowat Finished Early

That was all for Johnny Mowat who had started on the mound for the Reds and "Duffer" Neakes came in to relieve. Alex Donald greeted him with a double scoring DeLaurier but was out himself as he went to pay for past the bag and was caught off on the relay from Gilmour. MacDonald didn't agree with umpire Welsh's call however and protested so strongly that he was ordered from the game. Reyden ended the inning on an infield out.

No more scoring resulted for either team again until the sixth inning when the Athletics broke out for four more runs on three hits and an equal number of Redmen errors. A single by Dyer, followed by two strikeouts and three errors set the stage for Hayden's triple to centre field and the A's looked to be in the clear with a six run lead. Just for insurance they added two more in the seventh on two hits and two more errors without retaliation from the opposition.

Belleville's big fusilade came in the eighth, when Dean and Carson took free passes to first base and Stan Neales hit a single to left to load the sacks. "Paddy Gilmour followed him with his third hit of the night, driving in a run and keeping the sacks full. A pair of Athletic errors sandwiching Sam Mulholland's outfield out brought three more runners across the plate and the Picton fans began to worry. Reeves, Buchan and Dean walked in succession forcing across another trio.

Dyer Puts Out Fire

While all this was going on, Picton's manager Wally Fraser pulled his starter Bassett and inserted Beauchamp, a lefthander. "Lefty" however, just did not have it and after he had passed the last three men, he was pulled for Frank Dyer who put out the fire in a hurry. He forced "Ted" Carson to pop up and Soules to hit one on the ground for an infield out.

Darkness was falling fast by this time and as Picton completed their half of the inning, the game was called.

Dyer and Carnelius led the hitting parade for the winners getting four and three respectively while Pat Gilmour was the only Redman to knock more than one safe blow. He hit three for four and played a sterling game defensively, a feature notably lacking with the rest of the team. The box score:

Tennis Notes

Once again it was only possible to play matches at the beginning of the week, Quinte and Trenton split a decision in the senior loop in Sunday with the ladies doubles event left to play. On Tuesday Point Anne beat Trenton 3-2 and thus pulled themselves out of the cellar position.

Holloway beat St. Andrew's Monday evening in the intermediate section and thus have undisputed ownership of the top slot in the league as the Trenton Quinte game called for Thursday evening was rained out. It will be played next Monday evening. Standing in the intermediate league is as follows:

Team	G	W	Pts
Holloway St.	4	3	6
Quinte	3	2	4
Trenton	3	1	2
Point Anne	3	1	2

Next week the senior division has no games scheduled as the Point Anne-Batawa game has been postponed due to the Bata Shoe Company holidays. Two games are on the program for the intermediate loop. On Monday Trenton and Quinte hook up in their postponed game at Trenton and on Wednesday Holloway Street play host to the Quinte Club.

An exhibition game has been arranged for next Saturday afternoon with a team comprised of players from Point Anne, Quinte and Trenton playing the Kingston Club in the Limestone City. Some very entertaining tennis is looked for from this event and a dance and social get-together has been arranged for after the matches.

Top-Water Lures

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Bainbo Tables)

Have you ever met a British angler? If you have you have something in store for you. The old boys who have emigrated to the United States trust fishing clubs on the Test or the Itchen always remind me of the old wheeze about the Yale student. You know the one—"Say, can anyone tell a Yale student, but you can't tell him much."

I have, or did have, several angling correspondents in Great Britain. One of them wrote me that he had recommended lures that such a phenomenon (Solunar Periods, if it means) could exist, for if it did exist one of our members (Houghton Club) no doubt would have discovered it long since."

I'm not making this up. So help me, that is what he wrote. I have the letter.

About two weeks later I received a copy of the Bulletin of the Fly Fisher's Club, an august body of salmon and trout anglers which has its club rooms in London.

Outlined in red pencil was the account of an astounding discovery that had been made by a member of that same Houghton Club. He had found that the gold-fish which lived in a glass bowl in the club lounge actually predicted the quality of the fishing in the adjoining river.

Goldfish, Prophets of Fishing

When these little pets were lethargic and sulking among the castles and hiding places in the bottom of the bowl, a man had better take his rest in the club lounge rather than to waste effort in fishing. When, however, the goldfish were active, swimming about at the surface and, I quote, "blowing bubbles," then was the time for the prudent angler to don his waders, grab his rod and hurry to the river where the fish would be waiting, ravenous for his lures. That was the discovery."

Of course the fact that I had discussed this very thing in print in an issue of Sportsman very back in 1936 was of no importance. This was an article explaining the manifestations of the Solunar Theory and in it I had talked about the tendency of fish to shift their moves into the shallows, and to surface during Solunar Periods.

As a case in point I had mentioned much of the smaller fish as trout fish, the mud sill of a boat and goldfish in a bowl.

To anglers who have used the Solunar Tables to any great extent, the tendency of fish to feed at the surface during Solunar Periods does not come as news. These men will tell you that when a Solunar Period comes in it is time to change to a top-water lure.

Fish Less Cautious

At these times fish seems to lose much of their natural caution and they have no hesitancy in cruising about in the shallows or at the surface, evidently in search of food regardless or exposure to natural enemies.

Not infrequently game fish will feed in this way for considerable lures during Solunar Periods, but they will take top-water lures actively. An extreme example of this tendency happened in the Belleville Bay some years ago.

I had taken a friend with me to fish in these favorite bass waters of mine. He had never chosen a long flat known as "the Cat Pool" as a place to spend the major Solunar Period.

We were using fly rods and he had discarded my suggestion that he use a top-water lure, basing his decision on the theory that had always had best results with a streamer fly, fished well down under the surface. I tied on a cork-bodied bug and we started down through the pool, my friend in the lead.

About two hours later, after we had fished the half-mile length of the pool, he had caught one small bass on his streamer fly. I, fishing about 50 yards behind him along the same shore line with a surface lure, had landed and released 37 bass.

I have seen the same sort of thing happen over on the North Branch of the Susquehanna River here in the Catskill Mountains. This is a big river, a quarter of a mile wide in some spots, and it holds big bass.

Food in Shallows

As you know, most of the natural food in a large river lies in the shallows, along shore or in the riffles. Thus it is natural for the bass, when they are hungry, to leave the deep water and move into the areas where food is more readily attainable.

Fishing the shore lines with a surface lure, it is not unusual for to have excellent fishing on that river during Solunar Periods while the bait fishermen, anchored or drifting out in deep water, have little success or none at all.

The same thing holds true on trout streams, bass lakes, muskellunge waters or what have you. During Solunar Periods change to a surface lure. It's a good rule to follow.

To return to the British angler and his startling discovery — I have been wondering what name or title Izaak bestowed upon the Old Fish. Was he a great sport, or, more probably, something like "The Combination between Spontaneous Activity among Goldfish in the Houghton Club Lounge and the Quality of the Fishing in the Club Waters." Englishmen like long titles.

In any event, regardless of what these men think of the Solunar Theory, they are learning to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods — learning it the hard way, perhaps, but they have found that it pays off.

Zebra Scores Mystifying Victory Over Lord Layton At the Arena; Sharpe Brothers Easy Winners

Character and virtue were their own reward for the Sharpe brothers last evening as they downed Pat Flanagan and Dan O'Connor in the two preliminaries, but the supply of good things ran short in the feature event of the weekly wrestling show in Memorial Arena, as the Zebra preserved his identity with a rather mystifying victory over Lord Athol Layton who was the soul of honesty itself.

The rugged British Lord, who dazzled the fans with a lightening like attack to capture the first fall in 18 seconds, seemed to be having everything his own way in the third fall when referee Sam Goddard raised the Zebra's hand in victory. The outraged Layton's wrath was matched only by that of the fans who swarmed to the ringside to protest this dastardly decision and to begin machinations on the referee.

In the first fall Lord Layton rushed from his corner at the bell, leaped on the surprised Zebra flooring him with the point of the elbow, and trussed him tightly with a double leg lock, to cop the first fall in the fastest time of the opening bell had died away.

In the second fall the Zebra was switched and was given escape slowly from his corner after the opening bell. He massaged Lord Layton's left arm with liniment and the string of his wrestling tights, and pulled the poor fellow's hair as though he were trying to sow wheat by hand.

Fought Way Clear

Layton fought his way clear of such nastiness with a series of elbow smashes and full-handed chops to the Zebra's neck. The Zebra, alarmed at the turn of events threw the old one-two to Layton's midriff doubling him up conveniently so he could take a hand full of hair and toss the groaning Lord into the pews at ringside.

As Layton crawled back to the scenes or carnage the Zebra bailed his victim neatly over the ropes, threw it across the ring, ran over after the remains and fell on them for the fall at 2 minutes 18 minute mark.

In the final fall the Zebra resorted to finger-pulling, eye-gouging, and hair-removing while the referee's back was turned, before Layton could smash his way clear. In breaking loose he caught the Zebra, and tied him neatly into the ropes. This novel vantage point provided excellent working conditions for Layton who proceeded to pummel the Zebra's mask. The referees objected to all this and helped the Zebra get loose.

The Zebra proceeded in its Layton's ropes in the far side of the ring trying to put tension on Layton's neck. The Lord strolled across the ring, tapped the Zebra politely on the shoulders, shoved him into the ropes as he turned and then chopped him to the canvas on the rebound.

Referee Counted Him Out

He was just set to finish Zebra hunting, and was outside the ring tearing off the mask when the referee counted him out of the contest and raised the Zebra's hand in victory. Layton, who headed not the official verdict proceeded to mop up the ring with the protesting Zebra who bounced like a rubber ball as Layton threw him about.

Layton's appeal to the crowd for sympathy was well received but the referee's decision stood and while Layton scored a moral victory for justice and fair play he lost the bout.

Plumbers Beat Glen Roy Crew By 8-3 Count

One inning was enough for Howe and Hagerman to defeat Glen Roy 8-3 last night at the Alemite Field and pull the biggest up set of the current senior softball series. Howe and Hagerman have one more game to play with Ramsay Paints which is scheduled for Tuesday night and if they win that one they will be out in front of the Intermediate "A" loop. On the play last night they deserved to win.

The Glen Roy team tightened up even before the game got under way and Howe and Hagerman aided by three hits and two glaring errors by the always reliable Alf Rowbotham in the first frame to score four big runs and Al Adams, hurling for the winning squad was just too good the rest of the way. He was opposed on the mound by Don Boyle, who deserved a better fate. He allowed seven hits, kept them well scattered but his teammates were most lax in their fielding and as usual these mistakes came when they hurt. Adams allowed eight hits and did whiff a man but his control was almost perfect, he walking but one man, which did not hurt. His team fielded almost perfectly registering one error, which again did not figure in the scoring.

The fielders ran miles to gather in long hists and this was especially true of Wayne Goyer and "Wedge" Adams. Adams left certainly robbed the Glen Roy team on several occasions and made all the catches look easy. The Plumbers picked up one run in the fifth and then came through with three in the sixth. Glen Roy scored single runs in the fourth, seventh and eighth. It was a good game, witnessed by a fair crowd and the field was in perfect condition after a lot of hard work has been put into it. Bleachers have been put up and fences erected.

The lineups:

Howe and Hagerman: J. Wardaugh 3b; W. Adams lf; V. Goyer cf; L. Goyer c; McGregor ss; Hinn 2b; Locke 1st; H. Wardaugh rf; Al Adams p.

Glen Roy: Rowbotham c; Seward 3b; Seafford ss; Mallory 1st; Tomaso 2b; Ronsky lf; Culkin cf; Baldwin rf; Boyle p, Wannamaker and Hunter.

Score by innings:

	R	H	E
Howe & H.	400 013 000	8	11 7
Glen R.	000 100 110	3	8 6

Batteries, Howe and Hagerman, Adams and L. Goyer; Glen Roy, Boyle and Rowbotham.

Umpires: Ethier, plate, and Bawden, bases.

"SERVING YOU FOR OVER HALF A CENTURY"

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A partner who adds to your troubles on general principles doubles. He reorders your good hands to naught or he keeps you in constant hot water.

Suppose you open with a bid of one and anopponent sticks in a defensive nut bid. If your partner doubles, it is for penalty. It is a signal for saying he can defeat the opponent contract.

What should your partner have to double in that spot? If it is a double of a suit bid of one, it promises a hand that can take four tricks in that particular trump suit.

Hold on, now. Don't go putting new ideas in that sentence. It does not mean that the doubler expects to take four tricks with aces and kings; nor with a couple of trumps and a couple of aces.

It means just what it says: "Partner, I can take four trump tricks in the suit the defender has bid." It promises no tricks in any other suit or if any other suit is trump.

You opened the bidding with one heart when you sat south. The west player came in with a single overcall of one spade. Your partner in north doubles one spade when he holds this hand:

♠A Q 9 8 7 4
♥9 6
♦7 6 5
♣J 4

Your partner in north expects to take four tricks if spades is the trump. Even if opponents have all the other spades. No matter how the opponents squirm they will lose four trump tricks.

This is what the doubler of a bid of one promises if the double is known to be for penalty. But for goodness sake, do not mistake a double for penalty when it was intended for takeout.

A double of a bid of one is for penalty if partner of the doubler has already bid. So, if partner of doubler has not yet bid, assume the double was for takeout; not for penalty.

General principles has started too many battles.

"The Outriders" with Joel McCrea and Arlene Dahl

Escaping from a Union prison camp during the Civil War, Joel McCrea, Barry Sullivan and Arlene Whitmore, Confederate soldiers, join forces with guerrillas operating with Quantrell's Raiders. They are ordered to Santa Fe to ride with a wagon trail bound for St. Louis with $1,000,000 in gold bullion for the federal treasury. McCrea is instructed to lead the train into a trap where the Quantrell forces will ambush it and steal the gold for the Confederacy. But McCrea falls in love with Arlene Dahl, a passenger on the trip; never in sympathy with guerrilla tactics, he doublecrosses the raiders and in a fight to the finish the heavies are vanquished, the bullion saved and Arlene winds up in his arms.

NAPANEE SLAUGHTERED

Napanee, July 14 (CP)—Smiths Falls slaughtered Napanee 15-1 in a C.O.B.A. senior game Friday night. Four Napanee pitchers faced the visitors. Big Mike Sullivan had an easy time notching the victory, scattering nine hits and missed a shutout when Napanee scored in the eighth after two were out.

It was a four point win and dropped Napanee further in the cellar.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Sunday, July 15

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Moon, Jupiter, Neptune in favorable array augur for a happy, useful, profitable day for rightful Sunday interests. Home, artistic matters, caring for children among many sponsored.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—All the kindly, charitable work of which Taurus is fond is under benefic rays today. And you dependable, conscientious folks should step out front; you can scatter blessings and receive them.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—All today's indications warn against unselfishness and thoughtfulness for a happier, more contented way. Favored along with good deeds are essential work, attention to the ill, lonely.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Your Moon in auspicious position promising for personal and family interests, also urges you give some time to aid government, the less fortunate, social service. Attend your church.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Not stimulating for unessential work, business, just personal gain. But the favorable aspects that do prevail urge you spend day usefully, give time to your soul; you will be blessed.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo) — Mental alertness high, you who write, study, investigate, teach, are sponsored. Excellent prospects do make most of every friendly, honest advantage. Pray, rest, recreate.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Pleasant, good day though not exciting is tendency. Perfect for Sunday. Urgent tasks, duties and government matters can wait. Favored are religious services first favored; God bless them!

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Encouraging rays for brilliant ideas, making money for church and charity affairs; for entertaining, comforting the ill, bolstering the discouraged. Pray for guidance.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— Your Jupiter in favorable configuration. If your day is happy, if you have temporal goods, share with those less fortunate. At least give some time to them. Prayer is a must.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — An abundance of good influences prevail. Are we always thankful for our blessings? Do we remember God in times of plenty as we do in times of distress? Pray for our fighting forces.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—Sudden unwarranted changes in any weighty matter or decision without careful thought is out of order. Church services, quiet reflection, care of family, wholesome recreation favored.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Your Neptune, the Moon and Jupiter all send beneficent rays this Sunday. If work is on your schedule, make it a pleasant duty. Pray and work for peace fighting for freedom, and peace!

YOU BORN TODAY: Sensitive, kindly, at times emotional; have deep love for family and home, also for religious traditions. On other hand, could, if not watchful and living true to your better qualities, become indolent, or restless as to defeat the success that can be yours if you work earnestly and consistently for it. Never pity self, rather get out and work for a good cause. Always look cheerfully ahead. Prayer, hard work are great aids to contentment as is an accommodating disposition. Improve your fine God-given capability.

Birthdate: Rembrandt, Dutch painter; Henry E. Manning, cardinal.

WHY WE SAY

By Tom Robinson

"SEEING RED"

. . . Very Angry

When you are seeing red, you are supposed to be as angry as a bull or a bull fight where the matador is infuriating him with a red cloth. However, psychologists say that most animals are nearly color blind. Undoubtedly what does the bull is the waving and not the color of the cloth.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by WINIFRED E. WILSON

CHERRY BIRDS

Cherries must be ready by the time cedar wings break through their shells, because they are the principal food of these birds. And as this species will be nesting the nesting period long after most others have finished, with sort shades of brown and gray in their plumage, quiet manners, and no actual song to draw anybody's attention, waxwings might almost pass unnoticed were we happen to hear their high, wheezing call. Yet they have several unique characteristics.

It would be a pity to miss seeing the small red spots on the ends of certain wing and occasionally some tail feathers. These birds better deserve their names, for it surely looks as though red sealing wax had been applied. Their slick appearance is owing to the unusually silky texture of their feathers, which do actually cling together. A band of yellow across the end of the tail, the erect pose on a branch, and a conspicuous, upstanding crest, which often leads to identification when nearby, the silhouette is visible, complete the points of interest as far as looks are concerned.

Words of Varied Material

Their bulky home may be found either in fruit trees or in shade trees near to small fruits. Sometimes twigs is the foundation, but the nest may be made of great variety of materials: strips of bark, leaves, grasses, twigs, rootlets, and even twine if the pair can find any.

Cedar waxwings are able to store cherries in their throats and bring them up at will, to feed their children. Generally speaking all pretty much facing the direction from which the parents habitually arrive with their meals, and some keep their tails together in the centre of the nest and their tails to the edge, but we have positive proof that young cedar waxwings are accustomed to keep their bills pointing inwards. If a nest is examined after the babies have flown, we invariably find that it is full of the cherry stones that have been "spit out."

At any season, a row of cedar waxwings "talking" a cherry along from one to another is quite a common sight. They are both polite and chummy. In autumn the juveniles, recognized by their streaked breasts and lack of "sealing wax" appendages, are accompanied by their parents. Often families gather together in large flocks; and sometimes they remain thus all winter in southern Canada, if they can find a good feeding ground for the entire community.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Ruby-Polly introduced herself to Lucilla as Mrs. Colpe. Mrs. Colpe lived on West Ninety-Fifth, "I'll have to hurry right up when I leave here afterpoons, to get home before my husband, as he always likes asking, 'where've you been?'"

Lucilla stared at the guileless face under the close-cropped black curls. "You afternoon does not know anything about it!"

"Uh-uh. Does your?"

Lucilla said hurriedly, "My husband thought it was a good idea for me to take an exercise course."

"But he doesn't know you'll be a New Woman?" The round blue eyes were solemn and direct. "Does he?"

Lucilla shook her head.

"You want to surprise him?"

She hesitated. Did she want to surprise Arthur? Or was more did Arthur want to be surprised? Really, she returned the question unexpectedly.

At that moment, a cubicle curtain was pulled back, and a girl strolled out, moving with a languor that matched her bleached blonde hair. She then started at this latecomer in the strapless, two-piece, bathing costume suit, and the atmosphere changed as abruptly as if cold northerly winds had just blown in from the western seaboard. The girl was plump in the way a Renoir model is plump; moistened with the juices of desire, and lazily ripe. Her hair, like silky, polished corn, or of redwood, fell to her magnificently with shoulders. She smiled, and it was the secret departing of her fruity lips, not unfriendly, unless one considered unfriendliness friendly. When she spoke, it was as startling as if a tiger had asked to have a match, a metallic squeak, and very penetrating. "You kids leave your shoes in the locker room with the unclasping two-inch-wide bracelet, and every woman in the room must have thought, diamonds and emeralds! hoping not, but grudgingly conceded it as true.

The girl in the sun suit walked across to the lockers, where Lucilla and Mrs. Colpe were standing, nobody said a word, Lucilla gave the girl a shy smile, and said the locker numbers in two undertones. She Mrs. Colpe helped locate the right box; the bracelet and a large red-plastic handbag were shoved inside. "You live in Manhattan too?" Mrs. Colpe said.

The girl said, "Sure. I was in the 'Frivolities' two years ago. You see Hit?" and Mrs. Colpe and Colpe shook their heads regretfully. "My name's Paris Green." Her listeners looked startled. "Paris is a stage name the press agent gave me. It's got more oomph for show business than Alice." She put both hands on her bare middle, massaging it into a roll and looked down at it impersonally. "Gotta get rid of this spare tire."

Mrs. Colpe responded cordially to this statement of intent; she said she herself had to get rid of 30 pounds. "I was just telling this lady, Mrs. Webb, that I'll give her half of it." Paris Green looked Lucilla up and down. "You got good legs," she said simply. Lucilla was abashed but she replied to help feeling flattered.

A woman in a black dress wound like a mummy's with four strands of gold beads around her throat came into the room and stood beside Glamour Guide seated at the monitor's desk.

"New Girls of the Spring Term" she began in a voice as sweet as imitation maple syrup. "I see your floor mother, Mrs. Courthwaite. Welcome to Beautiful-You." She paused. Then: "From time to time, I will have little personal chats with each of you, but please don't hesitate to come to me whenever you need advice." She pursed her mouth, cocked her head, and shook her finger at the class. "Or if you have been naughty you must go on the Day of Atonement Diet." There were a few nervous titters. "Now up to the third floor for your doctor's physical."

Lucilla, being a W, was the last to be examined, as the other girls ushered her into the examining room had the same instruments as the waitress at the Woman's Exchange. She was surprised, somehow, that the doctor wasn't wearing an equally starched white coat. He was a tall youngish man with cowlick hair, an ordinary blue-serge suit and a politely weary voice. After glancing at the questionnaire Lucilla had filled out about her internal organs and teeth, he gave her chest a few token taps, dropped her wrist on the thing-piece bell, soft and "mark this" one OK for all posture exercise, and a won't you sit down chair. Noticing Lucilla's twitch of surprise, he grinned, "Spanky-wanky to experience reserved for your large classmates." The nurse said Mrs. Webb had locked herself back in the sixth floor, "We make the others run up and down stairs, but you're so modern by you can use the elevator." Lucilla rode up in lone state.

The Hall of Mirrors was quite Versailles. In fact it bore a closer resemblance to that famous apartment pad Lady Chambers in which the mirrors throw back multiple reflections, and contraptions lie in wait to trick the joyfully apprehensive visitor. It was a room perhaps 30 feet square, lined with mirrors on all four sides, and a ceiling of all four walls, to a height of six feet. Even the ceiling was mirrored, and the effect was curiously frenzied and varied activities being carried on simultaneously in all four corners of the room. It didn't seem to matter which corner, or which activity one was landed in first, so long as she covered all four, and this made for a wonderful wandering confusion. In the corner nearest the door, a large hooded camera set on a tripod, with powerful reflector lights trained on a section of floor, and a gray plaid cloth. Two glamor guides were in charge here. One of them would seize a new girl with the query, "Have you had your before picture?" She would then thrust the victim against the gray cloth, say, "Full-length profile, please," and the other glamor guide would pop under the camera hood and shoot the picture willy-nilly.

In the second corner, Mrs. Courthwaite, the mother, stood beside a weighing machine, flicking a tape measure like a whip.

In the third corner Lucilla saw Mrs. Colpe hopping frantically on one pajama'd foot, with her outstretched arms flapping, and her eyes rolling wildly.

In Lucilla's own corner, the large, hockey-muscled girl who had just been measured said intensely, "But I can't wait the full eight weeks. I have to look finished for the reception in five weeks. It's terribly important." She was talking to the floor mother, who seemed to be murmuring reassurances, perhaps guaranteeing delivery of the new you by the specified date. The girl went off and Mrs. Courthwaite beckoned Lucilla to get on the scales. When she called out "five feet five, 97 pounds," the assistant's head jerked up. "Well, a bony?"

Lucilla stiffened; the floor mother said hurriedly, "no offense, Mrs. Webb. That's what we call our underweights—Bonies. The others are bulgies. Of course we do get more bulgies, but you'll be happy to hear we've had glorious success with the Bonies too." Her smile was skittish. "Confidentially, I'm inclined to be a bony myself." Mrs. Courthwaite then left the room, measuring the new bony with precise, darting motions. "Slice little heads in skeleton to build on, but it does need work. Now if you'll go over for Cosmetic Diet."

When Lucilla Webb went in the direction Mrs. Courthwaite pointed to in the same corner Mrs. Colpe had been hopping in, she glimpsed that the Glamour Guide in charge there really was Paris Green. Her hair was piled high, but it didn't even mention her old pupil Clarice Tompkins. She stared hypnotized as Paris, proded her spine with a business like finger and said, "You've got kyphosis. That means hollow-chested and sway back." Lucilla straightened, trying to pull in her tummy and push out fore. "And when you do that, your chin sticks out much too far." The chin retreated. "Now if you will close your eyes and hop on one foot toward the wall."

Lucilla was chagrined to teeter so wildly on the third hop that she put out both feet on the floor. Miss Webb said mmm, and made a check. "Well, it's not bad. It's all balance, aren't we? Oh well, that can be remedied."

"I'm glad," Lucilla said humbly. It seemed very important to learn to hop on one foot with-out falling over. As she proceeded now on both feet to the fourth and final corner, she passed Paris Green moving with majestic calm. They greeted each other formally, and then each turned to the other's profile. "I got the two inches off the upper hip," Paris announced, patting her own bare leg affectionately. "Now I'm working on the definition of befitment covered her lovely face. "That dance with the broomstick. Every time you gotta change my voice." Paris massaged the muscles of her own stomach of this belly roll and the upper hip, I say to heck with the pounds."

"Girls! Please!" It was their floor mother, Mrs. Courthwaite, at her corners! Because if not, I see no reason for your wasting your time." They were guilty silent. Without another word, Paris went off to Hopping and Gaskill Body Wave, and Lucilla to the far right-hand corner where an impressive out-size machine crouched on iron legs, a cross between something at the Stephen Planetarium and an steaming cyclotron. This was the Pore Telescope. Behind it stood a Glamour Guide in wearing mauve smock over her satin panty-waist and bra.

She introduced herself as Miss Dottie Skin and Contour Studio, and motioned Lucilla to sit on a chair before the Pore Telescope and stick her face into the inner end of the machine. Miss Dottie then pressed one eye to her end of the lens, and viewed Lucilla's pores. "Oh—ohhhhh!" she said, as if she'd just discovered new craters on the moon. "There at the side of the nose—the pores I see through this powerful magnifier lens are really distended." She peered again, giving out little cries of distress. "Wait till we've unearthed that baby-fine, subcutaneous tissue. Off with the old—on with the new. Like snakes."

HEAVY TRAINING GRIND

Milwaukee, Wis., July 14—(AP)—Fittie Pruden of St. Catharines, Ont., put in a heavy training session Friday in preparation for Monday night's 10-round middle bout with welterweight champion Kid Gavilan.

Concentrating on speed, Gavilan's Fortie Pruden went 12 rounds with sparring partners and rounded out the day with an attack on the bags.

Gavilan has been working out at his own camp in New York where he feels he has better sparmates.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which can be successful with your help. your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, July 16

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Makes little difference what you try, if it's well done, smartly planned it should "click", soon. If not right now. Business, personal affairs, romance, marriage call for accuracy, tact.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Should be plenty of leads for new gains for you clever, foresighted folks. Just be natural; never pessimistic! Have sturdy faith and you'll succeed. Heart interests okayed.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Sensational advantages. Well-manned. Some excellent business and aged matters, banking, sound investments, making needful improvements, religious affairs in line for new gains.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Stick to the known and tried today. Later, though, during afternoon tension lessens if you are on the beam and aggressive. Few obstacles, so concentrate on your job; do it well.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Many fine inspirations; others warn against smugness. Use that fine mentality to best advantage, you can make gains. Companionease will help you cash in on the good things before you.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Work with others needed; should be pushed. Don't be timid to take a chance that proposes value. Those who achieved did. Be responsive to sound suggestions, but have precautions, too.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—You may not do differently noticeably but can make foundation work stronger today. If you are on the job, wide awake, steady. The artistic and unusual things

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on Mary Watkins's front steps telling her about different things sutch as how many blocks I can run without getting out of breth if I don't run too fast, and an airoplane started to make a noise flying over in an evening (he's over in) Mary Watkins looked up, saying, Hay up there, how are you?

And she started to wave, saying, Oh my goodness, I hope he won't sink. Am fresh, waving and smiling at him when I dont know him.

Aw, you dont have to worry, I said. You took so little from away up there, he couldn't tell you apart from anybody else, even if he had ever been introduced to you, I said, and she said, Goodness, how little do I look from up there.

Aw, you couldn't even imagine how little, I said, and Mary Watkins said, Do you meen like a rabbit?

Even smaller, I said, and she said, Mersey, do I look as little as a canary?

Even littlier, I said. Not even as big as a canary's egg. I said, and she said, Goodness, then why do I look like from way up there?

Like a flee, I said, and she said, Why I think you're perfect horrible to me! I'm going in the house.

Which she started to do, and I quick said, Hay, wait, I just ment the size, I didn't meen the shape.

16 KILLED, 150 INJURED IN TEHRAN RIOTING

Some Progress Made at Armistice Talks

Both Sides Appear To Be in Harmony At End of Session

Two 55-Minute Meetings Held to Organize Agenda

Munsan, Korea, July 16—(AP)—Cease-fire negotiators reported they made "some progress" in two 55-minute sessions today toward organizing an agenda for their Korean armistice talks.

Their next meeting was scheduled for 11 a.m. Tuesday (9 p.m. Monday, EDT) in war-shattered Kaesong.

After Monday's sessions United Nations negotiators announced:

"The communists have fulfilled their agreement with respect to the neutrality of the conference site in that no armed personnel were observed."

Increased Situation

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief United Nations delegate, commented during the noon recess rules were blown down and trees snapped by strong winds that accompanied the hail.

Hailstones Damage Crops in Alberta

Calgary, July 15—(CP)—Hailstones, some as large as golf balls, laid waste thousands of acres of spring crop in south-central Alberta during the weekend.

Damage was patchy but estimates of losses ranged from 30 to 100 per cent. Wheat crops were hardest hit.

The hailstorms cut swaths as wide as six miles and a long as 30 to 12 miles. Rural telephone poles were blown down and trees snapped by strong winds that accompanied the hail.

Reds Prepared To Launch Attack If Talks Fail

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, July 16 (AP) —Allied officers said today the communists are prepared to launch a massive attack if cease-fire negotiations break down.

A pooled dispatch from the armies' base at Munsan quoted the unidentified officers as saying the reds could throw 72 divisions at the allies. A red division is usually figured at 9,000 to 10,000 men.

They said the reds could sustain such an attack five to seven days.

Eighth Army plans in case the cease fire talks fail are secret. But officers have noted signs of a Chinese-North Korean build up. They assert the United Nations troops are ready for whatever the reds try.

There has been little ground action since the cease fire talks started. Both sides have had time to rest and regroup.

The allied air effort has been slowed only by the weather. U.N. planes have pounded incessantly at red airfields to prevent the communists transferring their planes to bases south of the Yalu River boundary with Manchuria.

Allied naval forces also have paid little heed to end-the-war talk cruisers and destroyers have shelled red rail and highway traffic, and have pounded harbor installations on both the east and west coasts of North Korea.

Sudbury Beauty Queens Shy

Sudbury, July 18 — (CP) Maybe the gals in these parts are just shy. The annual beauty contest to pick the queen of sports got top advertising for a week. Everything was set for Saturday. Judges turned up and so did some 300 spectators.

But contestants didn't.

The contest was called off.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 16 (CP) Synopsis: Minor disturbance moving eastward along the boundary between cool air over northern Ontario and warm humid air over southern Ontario is causing cloudiness and scattered showers in the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions. As this boundary line moves slowly southward today and Tuesday, the heat of exhaustion and precipitation will move into the lower lakes regions by this evening.

U.N. NEGOTIATORS REACH KAESONG FOR PEACE TALKS

20 Correspondents Accompany Delegation

Kaesong, Korea, July 16 (AP) —The 35-vehicle United Nations convoy to the renewed cease-fire talks rolled into Kaesong's streets today to the cheers of Korean children.

Red and brown-ups stayed indoors. Those who turned out to watch the motor convoy wind up the dirt road into Kaesong merely stared at the line of vehicles.

Twenty U. N. correspondents accompanied the allied delegation. The first correspondents to make the trip into Kaesong.

They saw no armed communists in the mountainous vicinity of the conference building.

During the drive they saw two red military traffic policemen with guns slung over their backs. Make Safe Site

The convoy stopped only once — at the communist outpost where last Thursday it turned back after red guards refused to allow it truckload of reporters to proceed.

Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior U.N. negotiator, and Maj.-Gen. L. C. Craigie, vice-commander of the Eighth Army, led the allied leading jeeps.

The three lead jeeps carried white flags. Three times the convoy forded small creeks to bypass destroyed bridges.

All along the winding road, farmers were tending their crops or worked in the fields. Some did not even look up as the convoy passed.

The convoy arrived simultaneously with helicopters bearing other allied negotiators from the advanced U.N. headquarters at Munsan.

The negotiators went immediately to the white building where the previous meetings were held Tuesday and Wednesday.

The meeting was held in a one-story building that once was a restaurant and now bears several bullet holes.

The conference was interrupted once—for 15 minutes—when the red delegation left the conference room and met privately in a small building nearby.

ENJOYS JAZZ PROGRAM

Oslo, July 16 (AP) Princess Elizabeth went to the Royal Festival Hall Saturday night to hear three hours of hot, solid jazz. She seemed to love it.

But she didn't join the packed audience in stomping, head jerking and clapping their arms when a band got into the groove.

Tax Philosophy Out-of-Date, Automobile No Longer Luxury, Ford Official Says at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., July 16 (CP) — Theodore J. Emmert, executive vice-president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., said today that a taxation philosophy that treats the motor car as a luxury is 25 years behind the times.

Addressing the Windsor Rotary Club, Mr. Emmert said he has no quarrel with the government's intent to combat inflation. "But we do feel that the present tax load and credit restrictions weigh more heavily on our industry than on any other.

"The present circumstances have jammed a sharp, sudden brake on sales. Had the atmosphere of competition intensified in the normal way, industry could have gradually adjusted its schedules and sales techniques. But taxes and credit restrictions have so changed the normal trend that there has been no time for adjustment. As a result, the employment outlook in the motor ment is a disturbing one."

Mr. Emmert said that whereas in 1939 the direct tax on a standard model was $55, now it is $525. For the average buyer, however, credit restrictions were an even more serious obstacle.

"To purchase a popular make, Canadians must plunk down $1,000 — either in cash or in the form of a used car. Then, for 12 months, they must keep up payments of $100 a month."

Defence Increases Need

Mr. Emmert said a growing defence program will heighten the need for automotive transport, and the demand will fall particularly on the used car market.

"Unfortunately, the great bulk of used cars in Canada are 'oldies' too young, or too old.' There are almost no cars in the middle-age bracket in which skilled workers and office employees normally buy.

"There now are some 1,900,000 cars being driven in Canada. Nearly half, or about 900,000, are post-war cars — five years old or less. Only 100,000, or just about 5 per cent, are six to 10 years old. The other 900,000 are tired, weary vehicles 10 years old or more.

"More than one out of every two automobiles on the road is more than eight years old. Ten years ago, just one in four was in that category.

"Yet the automotive industry has been scorned of ever producing!"

Brothers Lost Month in Bush Lose 20 Pounds Before Rescue

Sept. Isles, Que., July 16 — (CP)—Safe after a month-long fight against hunger and wild Scotland north of here, Michael and James Walsh said today: "Friday the 13th was our lucky day."

The two Toronto prospectors, last seen since June 14 from their Lake Ashuanipi camp, were found July 13 about 100 miles north of this St. Lawrence River mining supply base.

A Northern Wings Ltd., aircraft brought them here early Saturday morning and flying Dr. Gerard Beaulieu treated them for malnutrition, exposure and numerous bites from black flies.

Dr. Beaulieu said the Walsh brothers were extremely weak but would pull through fine.

They had lost 20 pounds each in the ordeal.

Veterans of seven years' field work in northeastern Quebec's Ungava region, the Walsh brothers were prospecting for iron on Lake Ashuanipi area, just south of Labrador when their food supplies became low.

Try Rail Trip

Instead of waiting for a pick-up plane June 14 as scheduled the prospectors decided to proceed 40 miles west through tundra and come down the Moisie River to Sept. Iles by rail.

They had cached stores along their proposed route but were unable to find them, they said. When food ran out they lived off wild fruits, lizards and berries.

Looking tired and weak they gave newspaper men covering tercentenary celebrations in Sept. Isles an interview kept short by doctor's orders.

They plan to leave Sept. Isles later this week for Quebec City, 180 miles away, to talk to Quebec Mines Minister or D. French about their prospecting trip.

They entered the bush last April 20.

Important Find

William Crawford, general manager of Sorcan Mining Company, Toronto, said the two prospectors made "a very important find."

The brothers said one day last week they walked 26 miles but the next day they ran 1,000 yards.

They said they nearly gave up hope of reaching safety when they were found by a search party of two men hurriedly called by an Indian and Hillman.

James was so weak he was reported crawling at the time.

They were flown to Sept. Isles by boat before being picked up by plane, 28 miles south of here.

The brothers were first found to be missing when the pilot of a plane scheduled to pick them up at Lake Ashuanipi found a note and a map of their proposed journey back to Sept. Isles. The information was attached to their abandoned tent.

It was this map the two searchers were following when they found the Walsh brothers.

Berle's Ex-Wife Slashes Wrists In Billy Rose's Posh Apartment

New York, July 16 — (AP)— Actress Joyce Mathews, former wife of millionaire Milton Berle, slashed her wrists yesterday in a suicide attempt while with showman Billy Rose in his plush mid-town apartment.

The drama brought Berle to the hospital bedside of Miss Mathews. Rose summoned his wife, former Olympic swimmer Eleanor Holm, to the apartment located over the Ziegfeld Theatre which Rose owns.

Saul Richman, Miss Mathews' special manager, said she had called on Rose to discuss television. Richman said newspaper reports linking her name with Rose's.

In hospital, where her condition was described as serious, Miss Mathews was reported in good spirits. Asked by police to give the motive for her act, she replied:

Released from hospital today, Miss Mathews told reporters her suicide attempt was on "impulse" and not "premeditated."

"I was so upset. I didn't know what I was doing," she said.

She said she had gone to Rose's apartment for one reason only—to seek the producer's aid in squashing newspaper stories linking them romantically.

"I thought Billy could help," she said.

Miss Mathews insisted she was "not in love" with Rose. She also denied he planned a reconciliation with her comedian husband.

In response to questions, the actress told newspaper men that she expected to be released from hospital Thursday. A spokesman for her said that she intended to fly to discuss a television job with the showman. Rose, he said, has gone to Canada to "look into some mining stock."

Asked by police last night to give the motive for her act, she replied:

"I just love razor blades."

Police further quoted her as saying that "there is no romantic tie-up between me and Billy Rose."

Both Miss Mathews and Rose were said to be being treated at a hospital. They said they were afraid of adverse publicity.

Miss Mathews, 27, Seattle, 43, first married in 1941, then remarried in June 1949, after a 1947 divorce. The second marriage ended last year.

One policeman quoted Rose as saying, "I told her something. Then she ran into the bathroom, saying: 'I'm going to cut my wrist.'

The showmp0, police said, declined to say what he had told her.

Grabs Live Wire Boy Badly Burned

London, Ont., July 16 (CP) — Eight-year-old Denny Madge, his hands severely burned—the left one through to the bone—as a result of a live wire contact here Saturday, today was reported in improved condition in Victoria Hospital.

He grabbed a live Hydro wire in an attempt to save himself in a fall from the marquee of the Elmwood theatre.

Dozens of children waiting for theatre doors to open saw him writhing 25 feet above the sidewalk after tumbling into the steel scaffolding of the face of the building.

An unidentified youth went to Denny's aid when he lay on a couple of cross planks on the scaffolding. A policeman then climbed a ladder to bring him down.

Royal Couple Will Visit Truman

London, July 16 (Reuters) — Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are likely to spend four days in the United States as guests of President Truman at the end of their Canadian tour in October, the London Sunday Express said Sunday.

The pair probably will cross into the United States near Niagara Falls Oct. 20, the newspaper said.

SNAKE IN TOASTER

Kingston, July 16 (CP)—Sgt. David Kingsbury of Barriefield was startled to see an toast for breakfast one morning recently. When he opened his bread toaster he found a black snake curled around the element. The snake was hastily killed.

COSTLIEST FLOOD IN U.S. HISTORY PASSES PEAK

75,000 Persons Driven From Homes in Area

Kansas City, Mo., July 16 — (AP)—The costliest flood in American history passed its destructive peak in the Kansas City area today and surged on eastward in Missouri.

But this metropolitan area of 900,000 persons and eastern and central Kansas still reeled from the impact.

The high furies of fire and flood lashed at Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., for the fifth day.

Four industrial districts were under water. Transportation was crippled. Water supply was curtailed. A seven-block area burned Thursday—just as it has since last Friday.

Many Return to Homes

In eastern and central Kansas, the swollen Kansas River and its tributaries receded, permitting some of the thousands of homeless to return to mud-caked areas.

More than 75,000 persons in both states were driven from their homes.

Many of the towns still lacked power and water facilities.

Eastward in Missouri, the Missouri River crest rolled towards the central part of the state. There were no great industrial cities in its path.

Seventeen deaths have been caused by the flood.

Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of the army engineers, said last night it appeared the cost will run considerably over the $500,000,000 he estimated last week-end.

President Truman, who requested Pick to make a personal survey, declared flooded parts of both states as disaster areas.

Aid Pours In

Trains and highway transportation in both states is drastically curtailed. The National Guard, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and coast guard have thrown forces and money into the fight against high waters. Aid has poured in from coast to coast and from Canada.

In Washington, President Truman asked congress for a $15,000,000 emergency relief fund. A House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee expected to approve the fund today.

In the Kansas City area, mud-caked streets were littered with thousands of acres of industrial disaster. The depth of the flood water ranged up to 20 feet.

A fire, fed by more than 1,000,000 gallons of crude oil which has been burning since last Friday, has virtually destroyed 24 buildings and damaged others in the east 14 tent.

It was this map the two searchers were following when they found the Walsh brothers.

Fabulous Silver Mmes of Mexico Beginning to Run Out of Rich Ore

By F. STUNTZ

Mexico City, July 16 — (AP) — Mexico's fabled silver treasures are running out.

The silver in the ores is getting thin. Veins are pinching out. Higher labor costs and relatively poor ores unworkable.

Still the world's greatest producer of silver, Mexico's mines are not as high as they were 150 years ago when Alexander Von Humboldt, the German explorer and scientist, called the country "the treasure house of the world."

Since the Spaniards came more than 400 years ago, Mexico has produced nearly 200,000 tons of pure silver. And the fabulous Valley of a handful of sterling silver trinkets for $1.

Nowadays, more than half Mexico's silver is a by-product of other metals. When lead or zinc are mined, the silver is recovered.

If higher prices for these cheap metals will probably step up silver production in the next few years. During the Second World War, a tough lead and zinc prices made it possible to work poorer ores.

After the war, prices for the base metals dropped. Poor mines were closed. Silver production also dropped — from 2,400 tons a year during the war to about 1,600 tons in 1949.

Now lead and zinc prices are up again and silver production should go up too.

Mexico has always been a silver-producing country. Even before the Spaniards came, subject tribes were sending silver bars to Mexico City as tribute. The Aztecs tried to buy off Cortes with bars of beaten silver when Cortes came to look for it.

One mine — the real Del Monte — whose ore once ran a hundred pounds of silver to the ton, now gives less than a pound.

10,000 Red-Led Partisans Protest Harriman's Visit

Govt. Orders Big Roundup, Proclaims Martial Law

Tehran, Iran, July 16. (AP)— Premier Mohammed Mossadegh proclaimed martial law in Tehran today and ordered a big roundup of communists and mowing rioting in which between four and 16 persons were killed and more than 150 injured.

Police arrested more than 200 leftists following last night's rioting, which started with a communist demonstration protesting the arrival of Averell Harriman, representative, W. Averell Harriman, for talks with Mossadegh on the oil nationalization crisis.

Reports varied on the number of casualties in last night's fighting between the reds and Mossadegh's national fronters. An official police communique said four persons were killed and two civilians were killed. Earlier, however, the government radio reported the fourmen killed, and a high police source said 14 civilians were dead.

62 Police Wounded

The police announced 62 of their men had been wounded. A police source estimated 96 civilians also had been wounded.

The riot in parliament square at dusk last night which was broken up by police rifle fire and army tanks, heightened the tension between communists and Mossadegh's nationalists which has existed since the nationalization law was passed in May.

The Mossadegh government, while standing firm on its program to get the A.I.O.C. out of Iran, is worried about Tudeh (communist) efforts to use the popular oil nationalization issue to promote communist influence and disorder.

Today's crackdown on the Tudeh party is the sharpest since an attempt to assassinate the Shah in 1949. Since then the Tudeh party has been outlawed but has continued to flourish under such fronts organizations as the "partisans of peace" and the "society to fight the Imperialist Oil Company."

Red sources said five of their number were killed. Unofficial known dead included two policemen and three civilians.

Confident of Mission

Informed reporters on his arrival yesterday he is confident friendly talks can settle the dispute over the nationalization of the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's billion-dollar properties.

Harriman said he had no specific proposals for a settlement but emphasized he had full presidential authority to discuss all aspects of the problem and to dispute plus United States economic aid for Iran.

He brought with him a personal message from Truman to Mossadegh.

Turpin Rematch Set for Sept. 12 At Polo Grounds

London, July 16—(Reuters) — Middleweight champion Randolph Turpin will meet Sugar Ray Robinson in a return title bout in New York's Polo Grounds, Sept. 12, it was announced today.

Promoter Jack Solomons announced the fight after conferring with the champion's manager, George Middleton, and a weekend of negotiations by phone between London, New York and Paris.

Solomons, who was trying to get the return bout for Britain, told reporters he was cutbid by America promoters.

Turpin is expected to leave for New York within the next month to begin training. He took the heavyweight crown from Sugar Ray in a surprise victory here recently.

Hessian Fly Damages Wheat

Hamilton, July 16—(CP)—Considerable damage to wheat crops across the province is being caused this year by an outbreak of the Hessian Fly, Prof. H. W. Gobbett of the Entomology Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said today.

"In some fields of some counties there is quite a bit of damage, and there are other fields with very little damage," he said. Although he had no official estimate, he believed the damage in Wentworth county was moderate, perhaps 10 to 15 per cent.

The outbreak of the Hessian Fly, he said, was connected with the mild winter and spring both last year and this year.

"The outbreak is more severe than for many years except in the Chatham area, where they had an attack in that year," he said.

He described the Hessian Fly as smaller than a mosquito and said that it laid its eggs in the wheat in late May or early June and again in late August or early September, to then envelope in the growing wheat.

FISTIC ARGUMENT

Hollywood, July 16 (AP) — Glenn McCarthy, Houston oil man, admitted yesterday that he and another fistic actor, Lex Barker (Red) Barry, staged a fistic argument at a night club Saturday night in the traditional Hollywood manner. A few blows were struck. Neither participant was injured. Both shook hands and departed friends. The only casualty was a broken mirror.

TRUCK CATCHES FIRE AT REAR OF PLANT

Firemen were called to the rear of Dunsmore shirt plant on Dundas Street yesterday when a Smith Transport truck was reported afire. The truck had just pulled at the plant to unload, the trouble being started presumably by a short circuit. No damage was reported.

BODY IDENTIFIED

The body of Frank Hazard, 20, of Plainfield, who drowned in the Bay of Quinte one week ago was found Saturday morning in the Bay of Quinte. The body was found by Stephen Lizzard who was fishing in the bay. There will be no inquest.

Former Frankford Man Drowns In Rice Lake

Losing his balance while casting from a boat in Rice Lake, Douglas Lawrence Lunk, 24, native and formerly of Frankford, was drowned Saturday evening. Lawrence was unable to swim and two men in the boat with him were unable to help him.

The body was found a short time later in the reeds near the shore.

Son of Edward Lawrence and the late Mrs. Lawrence, Douglas was born in Frankford and was a veteran of the last war having served overseas for two years with the Royal Artillery. He moved to Oshawa five years ago where he was employed by General Motors.

He was a member of Trinity Anglican Church at Frankford and was a member of the Oshawa Legion and was an officer in the Oddfellows Lodge No. 61 Oshawa.

He is survived by his wife, the former Alice Lunk, an adopted son, Douglas; his father, one brother, Edward and three sisters, Mrs. Douglas (Thelma) Ferguson of Glen Miller; Mrs. Keith (Gweneie) Johnston, of Stockdale; Mrs. John (Betty) Hall of Trenton, and Barbara of Frankford.

Holidayers Urged Not to Display Vacated Homes

Vacationers who advertise their absence from their homes by leaving notes for the iceman and other deliverymen are merely inviting entry of their homes by house-breakers, according to Police Chief Walter Probert.

"People who intend leaving their homes unattended for a few days or a week and advertise the fact by leaving notes in the doors or windows are only inviting trouble," he said.

Deliverymen should be notified personally of the resident's intention of leaving the city and not leave cards or notes, he said. A small light left burning on the ground floor is also a good insurance, according to the police chief.

Large Lunge Caught in River By Vic Morris

There is no trick at all to catching a big muskie—and you don't have to be a fisherman to do it!

Just ask Vic Morris, 204 Station Street, city, who is possibly the champion 'lunge fisherman on the Bells Rapids district. Vic caught his first 'lunge of the season on Sunday and as usual in the Morris River, just a few miles above the city. It weighed in the neighborhood of 40 pounds and was 48 inches in length.

Sunday evening Vic and his brother-in-law Billy Lawrence, living from a boat in the O'Brien's Bridge area when the big fellow struck. With only a 15-lb line he was forced to play the big fellow for over half an hour, nearly three-quarters of an hour before he was landed. Billy landed his father-in-law's catch after a spirited land the muskie. A red and white spook was used as a lure.

Vic declared that he had caught over 40 muskies in the Morris River all within nine miles of the city.

"You don't have to go nine miles," he said, "to get catch them above Corbyville just as well."

One year not so long ago Mr. Morris hooked close to 20 of the big fellows in the Morris. Last year he was not so lucky — he caught only nine.

And all the muskie steaks for the Morris family this evening.

Engine, Two Cars Damaged In Derailment

Two operating crewmen suffered minor injuries and a C.N.R. freight locomotive and two freight cars were damaged Saturday afternoon when two cars being shunted became derailed near the north station and sideswiped a slowly moving freight.

Slightly injured was Engineer R. E. Goddard, Station Street, engineer of the shunter yard engine bumped his face when his train suddenly stopped. He suffered minor cuts over his eye and lip. The other man injured was Brakeman J. W. McGrayne who was standing in a caboose on the next siding. When he saw the crash was imminent he jumped and scraped his arm.

The accident occurred just at the east end of the station platform, when the first two of a string of eight or ten cars being shunted into a siding became derailed at a crossover and sideswiped the engine of freight No. 491, which was just pulling out from the station for the east.

No trains were delayed as result of the mild-afternoon mishap, and the auxiliary had all the wreckage or the two smashed cars picked up in two hours.

MORTGAGE INSPECTOR

F. A. RUGGLE

The head office of The Mutual Life of Canada has announced the appointment of Frank A. Ruggle as Inspector Mortgage Investments for the Oshawa, Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough districts, with headquarters in the company's Belleville office, 164½-2 Front Street.

Mr. Ruggle has been with the Mutual Life for 25 years and served with the RCAF for three and a half years during the last world war, rising to the rank of Flight Lieutenant.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruggle have taken up residence at Belleville.

R.C.A.F. Wing Area Advisors On Recruiting

In keeping with the urgent requirement for men and women for the rapidly expanding Royal Canadian Air Force, wing 418, City of Belleville RCAF Association, have now become recruiting councillors for the RCAF in this area.

A recruiting committee has been formed with John Godwin as chairman and Paul Bradley, Percy Chambers, Walter Day, Doug McBride, Herb Middleton, Earl Morgan, Jim O'Brien, Earl Pritchard and Clive White as members.

These members have full knowledge of the openings and career possibilities available in the RCAF (Regular) and will be pleased to discuss this subject with potential applicants. All have had RCAF experience and local young men and women may consult them without obligation.

There are openings in most of the ground crew trades for male applicants aged 17 to 40 years who have attained a minimum of grade eight education. Aircrew recruits must have the equivalent of grade 10 education. Veterans of the last war services will receive further consideration.

A recruiting office will be set up at 40 Bridge Street East, with the permission of A. McLean Hall. The office will be open every Thursday evening until further notice.

King Leopold Gives up Throne

Brussels, July 16 (AP) — King Leopold III gave up his throne today stepping down in favor of his eldest son, Prince Baudouin.

The king signed the abdication document ending his 17-year reign at 12:10 p.m. (7:10 a.m. EDT) in the ballroom of Brussels Royal Palace.

The Abdication Act was countersigned by Prince Baudouin as chief of the state and by Premier Joseph Pholien and Justice Minister Ludovic Moyersoen.

Nearly 200 other prominent government personalities gathered to witness the dramatic ceremony, which came after years of bitter wrangling over the king's marriage to a commoner and his relations with the Germans during the Second World War.

Before he signed, Leopold called on the nation to rally round his son, who succeeded his father immediately as king of the Belgians. Leopold spoke first in Flemish, then in French—his country's two national languages.

Leopold, speaking slowly and solemnly, told his son:

"My dear Baudouin, it is with pride that I transmit to you the noble and heavy mission to carry from now on the crown of a Belgium which, in spite of the most terrible of wars and the upsets which followed it, has stayed territorially and morally intact free and faithful to its traditions."

Baudouin replied: "My dear father, I am moved by the noble words which you have just pronounced. I promise I will do all to show myself worthy of being your son."

OLD SETTLEMENT

Lunenburg county in Nova Scotia was first settled in 1751-53 by German emigrants from Hanover.

Sight of Rescuing Helicopter Great Thrill for Two Airmen in Swamp

Trenton (Special) — Two airmen from the Trenton RCAF station were almost spilled early Saturday afternoon when the motor of their Harvard type aircraft conked out on a training flight and they crash-landed in Percy Reach swamp, seven miles north of Wooler.

When the plane motor cut out F/L H. H. Price, instructor, came in for a belly landing in the swamp after cutting a 30-foot swath through the reeds. The plane was virtually undamaged in the crash landing. Student in the plane was Flight Cadet Andre Crepeau, 22, of Montreal.

With waist-deep mud surrounding the downed aircraft for half a mile on all sides the airmen were rescued from their plight by a helicopter from the RCAF Search and Rescue Division.

Spotted Downed Plane

F/O. Don Lewis of Trenton, on a pleasure flight in a conventional aircraft, spotted the plane and gave the position to the station. A helicopter pilot with search and rescue F/L Lewis enlisted to his station, got his helicopter, then Lewis back to the spot and directed the two downed airmen from their dilched aircraft. The then flew them back to the station ambulance to the RCAF hospital for a checkup. Neither was injured.

Hovering over the downed plane the helicopter let down a rescue seat and one at a time hauled the two airmen to the safety of dry land.

Flight Cadet Crepeau said his greatest thrill was when the rescue seat slipped up under his shoulders as he was being raised from the swamp. "While hanging on by my hands I looked down and saw the ground 300 feet below me," he said.

Following only a few days after the fatal crash which claimed the lives of two airmen, the ditched aircraft was a focal point of interest for neighboring farmers who flocked as near as possible to the scene. In this they were disappointed, however, as the plane was not visible in the swamp.

Farmers Wade Swamp

Residents had to be content with witnessing the helicopter rescue of the two airmen.

But five young farmers went even further. Wading up past their waists in mire they trekked the half-mile through the swamp to where the Harvard type aircraft landed. The five men who waded the swamp were Don Wannamaker, Ken Perry, Fred Perry, Morley Perry and Howard Perry.

The plane in which two air airmen belly landed was a Texan trainer, one of 100 loaned to the RCAF by the U.S. Army Air Force.

$4,000 Damage To Truck, 5 Cars In Chain Smash

Owen Sound, July 16 (CP) —Damage estimated at $4,000 was caused Sunday when a truck and five cars piled up as a long line of traffic was leaving Sauble Beach. The beach is 20 miles west of Owen Sound.

George Richardson of Wiarton stopped his half-ton truck prior to making a left hand turn off the Sauble Beach-Hepworth highway. Cars driven by Stephen Sirba of Chesley Maurice Hewitt of Owen Sound and Miss Jean Stean of Toronto, all stopped behind him.

Then John Rixson of Hanover rammed into the rear of Stean's car, starting off a chain reaction or crashing cars. No sooner had the dust settled than Harry Spencer crashed into the rear of Rixson's Car, starting the chain reaction all over again.

Most of the drivers and passengers were shaken up but none seriously.

IN MEMORIAM

NORRIS — In loving memory of my dearly beloved husband, Leo David Norris, who passed away in Belleville General Hospital on July 16th, 1950.

Peacefully he lay heart is gone.
Gone from the home he loved so dear.
Gone from the place he loved so much
Can never more be filled.
Father in heaven
Called the home at His job hath given.
And in His keeping we are safe
The soul is safe in heaven,
Where we hope to meet over remembered by his wife.

Length of Talks Uncertain

The announcement was the first formal announcement of progress. It may be "24 hours or 24 days" before the agenda is completed and actual negotiations on armistice terms get under way," a spokesman said.

Armed red military police were on the Kaesong demarcation line. They were there by agreement reached Sunday. Some, smiled at the second group of 30 U. N. newspapermen by go into the city. Others scowled.

The negotiations themselves were conducted in a formal atmosphere across a green - topped table in a secluded conference room.

"But it was not a formality that would prevent an agreement," said Lt.-Col. Howard C. Levie, a U. N. staff officer who was present.

"Everyone was more friendly today than ever before."

The two Chinese generals on the five-man red delegation especially seemed to be in good spirits at this afternoon session.

"The Chinese smiled when they came back to the conference room," Levie said. "They nodded to General Craigie." Maj.-Gen. L. C. Craigie is one of the U. N. delegates.

"Maybe," the spokesman suggested, "the communists have learned we are not the man eaters they were led to believe from their propagandists."

Another Child-Murder Investigated by Police

Bath, Somerset, England, July 16, (Reuters)—Police today investigated what they believe to be the second case of child-murder in eight days.

The body of Brenda Goddard, 6, was found in a wood near here last night a week after the raped and strangled corpse of Christine Butcher, 7, was found in a field at Windsor, 75 miles away.

Brenda also was believed to be the victim of a sex-maniac.

Christine disappeared after she had joined fight-fans crowding around the Windsor hotel where Sugar Ray Robinson stayed last week before his bout with Britain's Randolph Turpin.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 16 (CP)—Prices showed little trend in the session progressed on the stock market today.

Industrials were about balanced in dull dealings. Steels banks and agriculturals showed a majority of gains in the groupings. Liquors, utilities, manufacturing companies and constructions were lower and papers, foods, textiles, and refining oils were mixed. Most price changes were in small fractions and no issues showed more than a point.

Base metals were fairly mixed but the tendency was to advance. United Asbestos a feature last week, attracted some attention as it climbed 15 cents in brisk trading to a new high at $1.89. East Sullivan was up 60 cents. Western oils were irregular with little change. Golds continued their sluggish trading of the last three months. A few senior producers were off fractions while a handful of secondary golds advanced pennies.

C. of C. Supports Gold Appeal In Northern Strike

Timmins, Ont., July 16 (CP)—The Porcupine district Chamber of Commerce today supported the Timmins Council and Mayor Philip Faye in their appeal to the federal government to increase the price of gold and make possible settlement of the Hollinger Mine strike.

In a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent, J. B. Rooney, Chamber president, said in part:

"We question the need and desirability of continuing to adhere to a gold policy which . . . is not accepted generally throughout the world.

"The management-labor differences which exist in this area . . . are due in no small part to the precarious financial position of the gold mining industry."

He urged that gold be restored to "its rightful place at its rightful value."

The mayor and Karl Eyre, Liberal member of parliament for Timmins riding left yesterday for Ottawa to confer with officials.

Dept. Advises Against Immunity Injections During Polio Season

Toronto, July 16 — (CP) — Ontario doctors have been advised to postpone immunizing children against diphtheria, lockjaw and whooping cough during the infantile paralysis season if polio cases have occurred in their area.

The advice was contained in a letter circulated by Dr. J. T. Phair, Ontario Deputy-Minister of Health.

"We have not been able to establish any relationship between polio and our immunity injections," Dr. Phair said. "But in view of the reported cases in the United States and England, we thought it wise to discontinue such immunity injections during the polio season."

What is probably the only water-skiing school in Canada is conducted by Mrs. Norma MacIntosh, Canadian champion, at Stoney Lake in Ontario's Kawartha chain. Shown skiing, left, with a group of her students, she says she will probably have some contenders for the C.N.E. Canadian championship tests this fall. — Central Press Canadian.

Judge Denies Congress Funds For Red Bail

New York, July 16 (AP) —A federal judge today disqualified the Civil Rights Congress bail fund and its millionaire secretary Frederick Vanderbilt Field, from posting bail for any communist leaders charged with violating the Smith Act.

(The Smith Act forbids teaching or advocating the overthrow of the United States government by force.)

The court ordered 14 indicted lower-echelon leaders of the communist party, now free in bail supplied by the fund, to post new bail by noon tomorrow.

The judge said a hearing had convinced him that the bail fund and its trustees had failed to establish clear title to the government bonds transmitted as bail.

Similar bonds had been posted and forfeited by failure of four convicted top communist leaders to surrender to begin their sentences of five years in prison.

Bell Co. Applies For Permission To Boost Rates

Montreal, July 16—(CP)—The Bell Telephone Company has applied to the Board of Transport commissioners for permission to increase telephone rates.

Bell President Frederick Johnson made the news known to shareholders in a folder announcing their regular dividend cheques.

More than 1,500,000 telephone customers in Quebec and Ontario, only provinces served by Bell, had their bills jacked last January.

But, President Johnson says, those new rates were based on the cost level existing in 1949, One Not Stationary

In his message to the shareholders he said: "No allowance whatever could be made for future increases in the cost of labor or materials or in taxes. But as everyone knows, costs have not remained stationary since 1945. They have moved upward at an exceleratng pace—particularly during the last 12 months.

". . . the combined effect of the two major factors—increased wage costs and higher taxes—would alone make it imperative that we again request authority to increase the price of our services.

Johnson told the board at a hearing concerning the last raise that the company would ask for another boost in 1953.

The increase granted last January was designed to add 20.6 per cent to revenues, equal to $23,-900,000 a year.

In this message to shareholders, Mr. Johnson said that federal income tax rates were increased last year, "and this year they have been still further increased through the imposition of the defence surtax. The federal income tax rate applicable to the company has been increased since our last rate application from 33 per cent to 45.5 per cent, an increase of more than one third."

Trade Unions Want No Appeal From Decisions of Labor Board

Toronto, July 16 — (CP) — A suggestion that trade unions ignore the Ontario Labor Relations Act unless assurance is given that decisions under it cannot be appealed was made Saturday at a conference of the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor (A. F. L.).

In a resolution to be sent to the Ontario cabinet, delegates said:

"Unless legislation is devised, or assurances given, that the decisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Board shall not be subject to court proceedings, the trade union movement will be forced to operate outside the legislation."

The meeting was called to consider the effect of a recent decision by Mr. Justice C. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court. Mr. Justice Gale quashed a certification granted by the Labor Board to the Toronto Newspaper Guild on behalf of the circulation department employees of the Globe and Mail. He asserted that the paper, refused permission to see guild membership lists, had been refused "essential justice."

The ruling to be appealed by the guild, upset a provision of the Ontario Labor Relations Act that decisions of the labor board are not subject to appeal by a higher court.

Russel Harvey, A. F. L. representative on the Labor Board, told the meeting.

"Mr. Justice Gale's decision, if allowed to stand, opens a door for employers to destroy unions, because we find that in the courts it takes as much as two years before the final outcome. In that time, the union, faced with the mysterious and expensive court proceedings, sometimes disintegrates."

Spurn Franco, Britain Asks U.S.

London, July 16 (AP) —The Foreign Office said today that Britain has advised the United States against entering any military arrangements with Generalissimo Francos Spanish regime.

Informed diplomats said, however, the U.S. seems to be disregarding Britain's advice.

In the back ground was the departure from Washington of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, U.S. chief of naval operations for a tour of Europe which will include Spain. Sherman was to discuss with the Spanish military men matters of mutual interest.

Britain has been touring with France on the matter of U.S. naval and air bases in Spain. French officials said in Paris France opposed the idea of American bases in Spain as "politically unwise." A French government official said Paris was told last February of U.S. plans to acquire such bases.

Opposed to Franco

The feeling has been expressed in Paris and London that any U.S. Spanish military arrangements would give Spain a place in the Atlantic Pact alignment, however obliquely, and there is strong feeling in both Britain and France against the inclusion of Franco's regime in western defence arrangements.

A foreign office spokesman told a reporter Britain is firmly opposed to Spain's admission into the Atlantic alliance. The U.S. is said to have been quietly testing opinion on the idea of Spain's admittance for some time.

Britain, said the spokesman, also opposes any closer association between Spain and any member of the Atlantic Pact.

"The United States government has been made well aware of our views from time to time."

Before the Labor party came to power, many of its leaders, including Prime Minister Attlee himself, worked actively against Franco during the Spanish Civil War, and the leaders of the Labor government today consider Franco a Fascist.

14TH DROWNING

Sault Ste. Marie, July 16—(CP) Frank McLeod, 62, was drowned Saturday night when he slipped from a tug life of McLeod's dock here.

McLeod, second engineer aboard the tug, was crossing from a scow to the tug when he lost his balance and fell into St. Mary's River. Passengers aboard the International Transit Company's ferry nearby heard the splash and a cry for help, but arrived too late to save McLeod. The body was found floating in the river.

It was Algoma district's 14th drowning since April 1.

Logger Could Not Speak English, Is Slugged, Killed

Vancouver, July 16 — (CP) — A logger died in hospital yesterday and police sought a man who they said, struck him because he wasn't speaking English.

Dead is Stanley Deren, about 40, struck on the face while standing at a downtown intersection. Eyewitnesses said he fell and hit his head. He died about seven hours later.

Police said Deren was speaking in Polish to a woman when a man walked up and asked: "Why don't you speak English?"

They said Deren replied: "It's a free country."

Then the man struck Deren with his fist.

Anglican Rector Stays Away From Service

Toronto, July 16. (CP)—Rev. Henry W. Garbutt, dismissed as rector of St. Barnabas' Anglican church, did not attend the morning service at the church Sunday. Nor was his wife present. They had been asked to stay away.

Rev. Robert C. Cox, temporarily appointed rector, read a letter from Bishop A. R. Beverley, who told the congregation he would try to find an experienced clergyman of proved ability and devotion "to give you leadership at this time."

Mr. Garbutt, dismissed after a church commission found that he had broken Anglican canon law, arranged for his lawyer to hand over the keys of the church, Secretary to Dean C. E. Riley, representative of the bishop.

CHURCHILL MOST POPULAR

The Hague, The Netherlands, July 16 (Reuters)—Winston Churchill again heads the list of the world's 10 most popular men in this year's annual poll taken by The Netherlands Institute of Public Opinion. Second is Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far East Commander, who pushed Dutch Premier Willem Dress into third spot. Next came President Truman, with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower close behind. Premier Joseph Stalin dropped off altogether.

THE CEASE-FIRE TALKS

The picture in Korea has changed again. During the early part of last week, western observers felt first that the communists never felt any earnest desire to end the war, and that their offer to negotiate a cease-fire was pure trickery. That belief seemed to be strengthened towards the end of the week, when the communist refused to have United Nations newsmen at the scene of negotiations and left a breakdown in the talks.

The communists, at that time, appeared to have found an excuse for either delaying or destroying the negotiations. There was little surprise then when the Moscow radio broadcast Mao Tse-tung's demands, in principle, and it now appears that the cease-fire or armistice talks will proceed as charted. Even so, there is little cause for rejoicing, because indication that the Russians will act in good faith this time is lacking in their statements. But their acceptance of United Nations demands is a signal that part of the communist feeling of haughtiness has been dissipated.

Kaesong, for the purpose of the talks, will be neutral territory. The safety of delegates will be the prime interest to the communists, and the press will be admitted. The last point was said by the communist in their radio reply to be of a minor point, and was just "a tiny matter." Well, in short form, is the difference between the communist line and the western one. It is a miracle when true news reaches the peoples under communist domination, but in the western world, it is a basis of the way of life. It was not surprising that the Red dailies did not see eye to eye on the question. And it is doubtful if the communists like the presence of newsmen even yet. But they must accept them.

There is a fervent hope in the hearts of men of the United Nations, and in free countries throughout the world, that the Korean crisis can be solved over the conference table. Nevertheless, we must face facts. The communists cannot be trusted, and it is only with that realization that the talks can proceed.

WE HAVE ROOM FOR THEM

It hardly seems possible that Canada has provided new homes for almost 500,000 immigrants since 1946, but if immigration officials have their facts straight, that is the case. A great fuss was made when the first displaced persons arrived, but it has died down almost to a whisper now. That mere fact might have led the public to believe that immigration had all but stopped. To the contrary, it is enjoying a boom comparable only to the early 1920's, and 1951 shows every indication of being a strong year.

During the five and a half years that immigrants have been coming to the shores of Canada since the Second World War, more than 180,000 Britons have taken up new residences here. They have been joined by more than 46,000 from the United States, 83,000 from northern Europe, and 178,000 from other countries. The wide scope of the immigration plans is indicated by the list of other countries from which these people have come. Albania, Arabia, Turkey and Russia, to mention only a few.

One of the most surprising notes is that of the immigration to this country from the United States. The average is for some 9,000 each year, even though yearly quotas, on three occasions, have been below that number. But the total itself will help defeat to some extent the loud cries of people who insist that the cream of this country is finding greener fields in the United States. If that is so, it must be greatly reduced by the immigration into Canada from below the border. It is fair to assume that a great many of that 46,000 have been and are adding some concrete, constructive contribution to Canada, and that the influx must balance to a certain extent the loss to this country of students who leave for the United States immediately after university graduation.

The year 1946 was by far the greatest for the traffic northwards from the U.S. In that period, more than 11,000 immigrants came into this country from that source. The total fell off to 9,000 in 1947, and has been in the 7,000 bracket ever since. So far this year, the totals are bearing up well.

By far the greatest significance, however, is attached to the figures involving peoples from European and Asian countries. Behind the total of more than 400,000, there lie countless stories of heartbreak and hardship. Many problems have been solved as boats and planes took off for Canada, and many minds have been able to function freely again when feel hit the solid ground of Canada. There will be more to come, and that is as it should be. We have lots of room.

The first white child born of English parents on American soil was Virginia Dare, born in North Carolina in 1587.

GREAT SURGEON

He gave to many, added years,
Gave health to those who thought it lost.
Brought smiles in those who came with tears
And gladly gave the time they cost.

No hour too late for him to heed
The call that came to him for aid.
He never heard a cry of need
But haste to answer it he made.

He daily walked from bed to bed,
Left hope where there were doubt and fear.
Twas comforting to hear his tread
And soothing just to have him near.

Now, those who learned from him most try
The place he occupied to fill.
And to the suffering supply
His tenderness of heart and skill.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

No matter how nimble you may be in driving a car, there is always somebody who wants to go faster than you, and is always trying to dodge past you.

The conception of a long line of traffic all moving at the same rate of speed is impossible. The only thing this happens in is funerals.

There doubtless are a few blessed or gifted people who can drive at their own gait on the highway and not give a hoot for those who whizz past them; nor are they troubled with that insatiable desire, common to most of us who drive, to pass the car ahead of us regardless of what speed it is going.

How does one achieve that serenity of attitude towards one's fellow man?

One of my friends is just such a driver, and on a recent fishing trip, as we rolled along at an unexciting pace of 35 miles an hour, with no show of resentment on his part at the cars that came creeping up behind to toot us and leap past at the first opportunity, I asked him if he felt no competitive urge.

"Aw, no," he chuckled. "These poor devils in a hurry are perhaps in fear of their masters. Or maybe they are henpecked husbands, in holy terror of their wives. Maybe they are late for an appointment. Maybe they are that unfortunate type who are always befuddled.

"It could be they are hard up, and are racing ahead in the hope of making a dollar or a nickel, dodging and ducking excitedly in order to gain a car length or two. But after reflecting on the matter for a while, I realized my resentment stemmed from my notion that they were trying to be better drivers than the rest of us, that they were big-shots or imagined they were big-shots.

"As soon as I adopted the idea that they were little-shots, that they were scared anxious people, hurrying in fear of their bosses, or scuttling so desperately after a dime or a nickel, my whole attitude relaxed. Now I feel superior to them, poor devils!"

Another speedster hooted and whizzed past us: my friend gave him a mild and condescending glance.

Charge Woman With Rifle Murder

Bridgewater, N.S., July 16 (CP)

—Mrs. Grace Smith, 32, was charged today with the rifle murder of 40-year-old Alphonse Bizeau.

Bizeau was killed yesterday near a batch of spruce he had been in the woods near his home at the village of New Elm, a few miles from here.

R.C.M.P. laid the charge while Mrs. Smith remained in hospital at Halifax, suffering a wound in the cheek police said she received when she turned the rifle on herself.

Police said an argument started shortly after Bizeau and Mrs. Smith went into the woods on what they termed a beer-bottling expedition. During an ensuing scuffle, the .22 calibre rifle which Bizeau carried discharged and Bizeau dropped dead.

Mrs. Smith's 13 - -year - old daughter said she saw her mother grab the rifle by herself. She said she grabbed her mother's arm but the bullet ripped into Mrs. Smith's shoulder.

Captured Photographer Reported Well

Kaesong, Korea, July 16—(AP)

—Fresh word of Frank Noel, captured Associated Press war photographer, came out of today's press visit to this cease-fire city.

He was well and healthy two months ago "somewhere in North Korea" when seen by a Chinese correspondent named Pang.

Noel was captured last winter in northeast Korea.

Pang said he had no further information about Noel. But he added that the communists held "many" U.N. correspondents as prisoners.

So far as is known only two other U.N. correspondents have been captured. Several others are missing.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE NEGLECTED FACTOR

Arthur J. Balfour was speaking at Edinburgh at the close of World War I on the question of permanent peace. He made a polished, logical, and very effective address. When he had finished, a Japanese student arose in the gallery and cried out, "But, Mr. Balfour, what about Jesus Christ?"

Of course the audience was stunned and Balfour appears to have been stunned also, for he made no reply. The same question of course can be asked today. To what extent in our dealings with other nations do we employ Christian principles or even consider them valid? How much attention do we pay to Jesus Christ in government affairs, in business—even in the social life which we have with our friends and neighbors? We act as if the statements of the gospel were pure figments of man's imagination, and the results we are getting in domestic and international affairs today are just about what we would expect from such an attitude.

The next time you scan the headlines or read what appears to be a penetrating article on foreign relations or domestic politics, ask yourself this question: "But what about Jesus Christ?" For if Christ and His teachings are not pertinent to the simple questions of everyday life, they are certainly not pertinent to the great world issues.

ALL GALL TROUBLE DIVIDES INTO THREE TYPES

Omnis Gallis divisa est in partes tres, as I recall, is all I got from a year of Caesar's Commentaries in high school. But it is impossible to evaluate too highly that year Latin and second year Nepos and Cicero in a high school course—in every high school course, I should say. But what am I doing in high school? Just trying to get the attention of a few readers who might otherwise not even hesitate at this column.

Cholelithiasis—please don't go away mad till I explain why I use the term—means the formation of gall stones, concretions in the gall bladder or the gall ducts. Sometimes this occurs without producing any symptoms at all—what doctors call "silent" gallstones. In fact about one in eight or ten instances are of this type. The stones are discovered by X-ray examination, or found accidentally in the course of an abdominal operation, or observed at autopsy.

In the majority of cases it is not just the presence of stones or concretions in the gall bladder but the inflammation of the lining of the gallsac (cholecystitis) or inflammation of ducts (cholangitis) that makes the patient such a fine prospect for operation.

I am not facetious but as sincere as if the dean were over me when I say that one with gallstones which produce symptoms should always inform himself or herself the benefit of the doubt when the question of operation arises. That is, you are a fool not for the hospital as soon as the pain comes on, but for the knife if you don't show your ignorance by muttering that it is easy for me to talk about it—should you. I did have a major operation under modern techniques—anoscaine, scolizine, curare, spinal and general and local anesthesia to prevent pain—and I have learned enough inside information to assure me that gallstone operation is both painless and safe. It is not a too long put off.

The last still a health column and so I am offering no symptoms of gallstones or gallbladder trouble to try me by. I have a lot to say about the symptoms is that the majority of persons who have gallstones are pressured for many months or years with "dyspepsia," "indigestion," "gas" and "dieting," that is, attempting to avoid this and that food which they think "disagrees" because some special discomfort has occurred following indulgence in the particular food. Eventually in most cases a sudden attack of biliary or gallstone colic indicates that a stone has left the gallbladder by way of the 1½ inch duct or tube (like that of a perfume atomizer bulb) which connects with the tube from the liver to form the common bile duct conveying bile to the duodenum or first part of small intestine.

As long as the gallstone remains in the duct from gallbladder (cystic duct) the patient suffers pain, tenderness and all of the familiar manifestations of "indigestion" but not jaundice. It is only when the stone gets along into the common bile duct and lodges there that the normal emptying of bile into the duodenum is obstructed and jaundice follows.

Just as the gallbladder may contain gallstones—one in every fifteen examined postmortem, in Vienna did—without the individual's realization of any trouble, so may all the symptoms or disturbances above indicated, except actual colic and jaundice, affect a patient who has chronic cholecystitis (inflammation of the gallbladder) without gallstones.

(Talks on this subject to follow, together with letters. Meanwhile, let me get too pathological.)

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

STOP, LOOK, LISTEN!

That famous sign we all are so familiar with, especially as placed before railroad crossings. "Stop, look, listen," we can well take with us everywhere we go. It is a good rule for all of us not to stop in our mad rush to beat out the other fellow or to wear ourselves out in trying to compete with the timetable.

Then, after we have stopped. Look, I recall the old admonition of my boyhood—"look before you leap." Before many a decision we would gain a great deal by looking at the facts in the case, weighing them carefully. And how much we might learn that we do not, if we would only use our eyes—keep looking for new discoveries, no matter where we may be. I recently read about some prospectors who stopped their car to look at a certain formation of ground, and discovered a rich hoard of minerals there.

Perhaps the last word in our famous sign is the most important. The listener discovers that the railroad until he is sure no train is in sight. Thousands have been killed because they did not listen. The habitual listener is the wise one. He listens to talk, after a conversation, before a word, and he mulls this talk about in his mind, putting aside what he newly learns, adding it to his store of banked knowledge, to take note, always, of the listener.

Often the listener in a group or crowd is the most interesting of all. You can almost guess what he is thinking in his quiet attitude and his intelligent expression. But keep your eye on him anyway, and if you have any acquaintance you will discover a person well worth knowing and that we do not. If we would be one who has been doing all the talking just now discover later that he is all "talked out!"

Often in the forest I have stopped, looked about me, and listened, only to discover the source of my "quiet" as a tiny sparrow near by letting his heart run over in song. In naturelend this noted trio of "Stop, Look, and Listen" is put into practical use by every lover of the wild.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Federal, Provincial Pensions Under Discussion at Ottawa

Ottawa, July 16—(CP)— Representatives of the federal and provincial governments met today to discuss matters which affect pensions of $40 a month will be paid to needy persons between 65 and 69 and to needy blind persons 21 and over.

The delegates met in private in the Senate's railway committee room. The meetings, under the chairmanship of Health Minister Martin, may continue tomorrow.

The governments will attempt to reach agreement on the conditions a person must meet in order to qualify for a pension.

The federal government has offered to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of pensions to the 65-69 age group, estimated at $64,000,000 annually.

Under the federal offer, a person would have to have lived in Canada for at least 20 years in order to qualify. A single pensioner in the 65-69 group could be receiving $20 a month or less in outside income and still qualify for a full pension of $40 a month.

This means a single 65-69 pensioner could receive up to $240 a year in outside income and still receive a full pension of $480 a year. A married couple, both receiving the full pension, also would be allowed outside income of $240 a year. In the case of a married couple, of whom one is pensionable and in receipt of the full pension, the outside income would total $720 a year.

Reductions Accordingly

When the outside income goes above the allowable ceilings, the amount of the pension would be reduced accordingly.

The allowable outside income for needy blind persons 21 and over is slightly higher.

It is not yet known whether all provinces will accept the federal offer.

On its own, the federal government plans to start paying next Jan. 1 pensions of $40 a month.

Seven of the 10 provinces were represented by their welfare ministers; the others by their directors of old-age pensions.

Among the provincial welfare ministers were Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario; Hon. Paul Sauve, Quebec; John H. Sturdy, Sask.; Hon. A. D. Turnbull, British Columbia; Hon. A. W. Mathewson; Prince Edward Island; Hon. H. L. Puttle, Newfoundland; and Hon. Ivan Schultz, Manitoba.

CAMPBELLFORD

Man Killed In Collision Near Norwood

Campbellford (Special) — Fatally injured in a 3-vehicle collision Saturday evening one mile north of Norwood, John Melsinger, 21, R.R. 3, Indian River, died in Peterborough Civic Hospital a few hours after the crash. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Driver of the other vehicle was Mayor Ernest Ayrhart of Campbellford, who escaped with bruises and a shaking up. A passenger in the Ayrhart car, William Edwards of Cobourg, suffered a fractured hip.

The 21-year-old Campbellford mayor was returning home from Warsaw when at an intersection on the boundary road between Dummer and Asphodel counties, his car was struck by the half-ton truck driven by Melsinger.

Mr. Ayrhart said later that he blew his horn as he approached the intersection intending to take a right hand turn. As he was about to make the turn, he saw the truck approaching from the south on the wrong side of the road. He accelerated in an attempt to get across the intersection, but the truck struck his car on the right side.

Both vehicles were badly damaged, the Ayrhart car incurring being almost a complete wreck.

Campbellford (Special)—Four Frankford-Trenton district young people were injured early Sunday, one seriously, when their car went out of control after striking a hole in the road near Hastings and upset in the ditch.

Most seriously injured is Fay Currie, 16, R. R. 2 Frankford, who suffered a punctured abdomen. Others in the car were James McCormick, 16, R. R. 3, Trenton, driver of the car, who escaped with a shaking up; Marjory Hawkins, 18, 159 Queen St., Trenton, sprained back, and Gerald Little, 21, of Cuff's Corners, lacerations.

Following the accident the young people were taken to the home of Alec Merrill where they were given first aid. Mr. Merrill called the doctor.

Police have complained to Northumberland County Council regarding the condition of the road where the accident occurred. The car struck a hole in the road two miles west of Hastings and went out of control.

Plant Red Clover In Corn Fields Say Crop Experts

Ridgetown, July 16 (CP) — Field husbandry specialists at the Western Ontario Experimental Farm near here think they have found a way to undo the damage done to fields by growing corn.

Their answer: Red clover.

W. W. Snow, the field husbandry specialist, said red clover is easy to grow, is useful as green fertilizer in the fall and is easy to sow.

And when it grows with corn it chokes out weeds and by eliminating the need for tedious cultivation, keeps moisture in the soil and halts erosion. It also replenishes some of the minerals the corn takes out.

And it costs only about $4 an acre to plant.

AT THE McCARTHY — Ginger Rogers and Jack Carson share star billing in Universal-International's new laugh hit, "The Groom Wore Spurs," Hollywood's first comedy lampooning a Western movie hero. Carson plays the cowboy star and Miss Rogers is seen in the role of his lawyer-wife who tries to make him less a clean life in keeping with his screen portrayals. Popular comedienne Joan Davis heads the large supporting cast of "The Groom Wore Spurs," now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

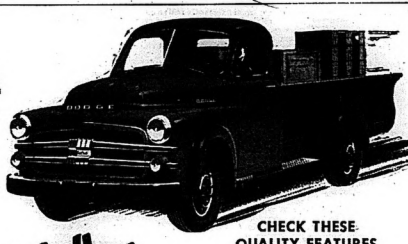
WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817



DODGE offers four big, roomy express models. In the ½ ton range, on 108" W.B., high side or low side box models. In ¼ to 1 ton, high side box models on 116" W.B. and 126" W.B.'

Here's Why DODGE "Job-Rated" EXPRESS and PANEL MODELS Do a better job . . . Faster . . . More Economically!

All Dodge express and panel models have the right engine, chassis, transmission, body and tires for the job they have to perform — that's why they're "Job-Rated". And because they have to perform economically, they are easier to load, they operate faster, turn easier and are easier to drive. Dodge trucks help cut your operating costs.

CHECK THESE QUALITY FEATURES

Before you buy any light truck, test for yourself the many quality features that Dodge offers.

As much as a sided extra windshield area and visibility for more comfortable motoring — for better safety. Running boards are full floor-width to make loading easier.

DODGE Turns Shorter, Handles Easier

Easier operated worm-and-roller steering gear, wide front track and shorter wheelbase allows Dodge to turn in shorter circles — steering enables those shorter circles to be made either right or left.

DODGE "Job-Rated" Engine Gives Top Performance

A Dodge engine for every Dodge model is selected for the rating of the truck and the type of work it will have to do. For example, Dodge provides a 92-h.p. engine for the ½ ton series and a 105 h.p. engine for the ¾-1 ton series. Both engines have the same basic advantages of Dodge engine design.

CLEANER OIL—The Dodge oil intake is hinged so that it can follow changes in the oil level. It floats just under the surface, directing the cleaner oil to the crankcase.

MORE UNIFORM COOLING — A distributing tube conducts water from the rear to the front length of the block, directing the coolest incoming water to exhaust valve ports and the hottest parts of the engine.

BIGGER GENERATOR — The 45-amp.-h Dodge generator amply meets modern electrical demands.

DIRT-FREE FUEL—Dodge trucks have two fuel filters, double safeguards that harmful dirt will be removed from fuel entering the engine.

Smart, Roomy Panels...

You'll find that the new Dodge panels have exceptional height, length and width. Extra capacity means more load, greater driver and vehicle efficiency.

WEDDINGS

BATEMAN—WILSON

Pink and white gladioli and white lilies formed a lovely setting Saturday, July 14, at 2.30 p.m., in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, for a wedding of wide interest, when Ingrid Wilson, of Toronto, and Belleville, became the bride of Douglas Frederick Bateman, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Douglas Bateman. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The wedding music was rendered by the boys' choir of Christ Church, under the direction of Mr. A. Simpson, accompanied at the console of the organ, by Professor Ernest Wheatley.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Richard Wilson, of Toronto, was radiant in her exquisite bridal gown of white, imported French net, fashioned with strapless, fitted bodice buttoned down the front, featuring a deep V-shaped neckline. The long, sheer sleeves of the complementing jacket with its small, standup collar, were buttoned to the elbow with matching buttons, and ended in lilly-points over the wrists, while the bouffant skirt, displaying the Elizabethan trend in the type of the seamless, was gracefully into a cathedral train. Her full-length veil of imported French tulle illusion was held in place by a halo of seed pearls. She wore her bridegroom's gift, a necklace of pearls with matching earrings and ring, and carried an arm bouquet of Madonna lilies tied with wide, white satin ribbon.

Miss Virginia Holding, of Toronto, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Janet Adsett, of Belleville, and Miss Donna Carswell, of Toronto. Little Anne Bateman, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. The maid of honor and bridesmaids were gowned in pale blue net over royal blue taffeta made on similar lines featuring strapless, fitted bodices with short jackets, standing horseshoe-shaped collars, three-quarter sleeves and petticoat skirt. All wore halo headdresses of matching net and taffeta, and carried shower bouquets of pastel-colored roses. The tiny flower girl was demure in her floor-length frock of white-dotted pink organdy with matching pink halo and carrying a nosegay of summer flowers.

Mr. William Eby, of Toronto, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Robert Stewart of Belleville; Mr. Ronald Kay and Mr. Peter Eckert both of Toronto.

At the Bay of Quinte Country Club where the many beautiful wedding gifts were displayed, the bride's mother, gowned in beige lace over taffeta with matching picture hat and gloves and corsage spray of mauve orchids, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a gown of heavenly blue crepe with lace trim, summer leghorn hat of pink and blue over blue lace, with matching gloves and corsage spray of pink orchids.

For motoring through the southern United States, the bride

Dieting Gives Elizabeth New Look

London, July 16. (AP) — Princess Elizabeth's new streamlined look was explained by court rigid diet since May.

The program began putting on weight after the birth of her second child, Princess Anne, last August 15.

By January her appearance was not far short of what, in a commoner, might have been called pleasingly plump. There are rumors that a loving remark about that time by her husband, Prince Philip, decided her to do something about it. Her reported goal was to lose 20 pounds.

Since then she has frequently been heard turning down the richer foods at official dinners with a "No thanks, I'm on a diet."

Buckingham Palace declined to say how much weight the Princess has lost or what diet she uses.

The Princess and Philip are to tour Canada for three weeks in September.

chose a strapless gown of pale blue sheer with matching scarf, the gown of Windsor hat of navy net, with navy accessories, and corsage spray of mauve orchids. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Bateman will reside in Toronto, after a honeymoon.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom was a diamond ring.

Out-of-town guests were present from Saskatchewan, Peterborough, Hamilton, Toronto and neighboring localities.

McCREARY—NEAL

The Eighth United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., was the setting of a pretty wedding on Saturday, June 23, at 3.30 p.m., when Miss Betty Mr. Newcombe united in marriage Shirley Jane Neal, of Pittsburgh, daughter of and Mrs. Allan H. Neal, to Dr. Robert Douglas McCreary, of Pittsburgh, son of Mrs. W. Findley, of Pittsburgh, and the late Dr. R. McCreary, of Belleville. Stocks and bouquets adorned the sanctuary for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of ivory satin with full length veil of rosepoint lace and tulle illusion. She carried a dainty bouquet of fleur-d'amour and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Ann Craig, of Pittsburgh, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Janet Betrum, of Long Island, N.Y., Miss Joan Schlichter, also of Long Island, N.Y., Mrs. James Waddell and Miss Alice Burns, of Pittsburgh. All were gowned alike with white embroidered organdy over blue, with headdresses of daisies, and carrying baskets of white daisies.

Mr. Stanley Morton, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. John McCreary, Mr. John Concrier, Dr. H. Graham, Dr. R. Arthur, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Edward Bradshaw, of Belleville.

Receiving at the University Club, where the bride's mother in dusty pink lace with white accessories, and the bridegroom's mother in grey lace over dusty pink with navy blue accessories.

For the wedding trip to Cape Bay, New Jersey, the bride chose a suit of turquoise blue with white accessories. They will reside in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Titled Foreigners Find it Hard To Make Living Says Noblewoman

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, July 16.— (AP)— Titled foreigners, no matter how serious their intentions, find it hard to make a honest dollar.

For a prime example, consider a tall, handsome, young blonde noblewoman with a peaches-and-cream complexion and the proud name of Mountbatten.

Lady Iris Mountbatten, great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, is one who has only recently landed on her feet.

At the moment she is mistress of ceremonies on a children's television show. On the side she has a post with a music publishing house and has written a soon-to-be-published song significantly called "Once I Lost My Way".

"I had a very difficult time at first" Lady Iris explained, "because I was very serious about wanting to get a job.

"There were plenty of people around who are anxious to exploit a name, and there are people who are convinced that all you want to get money without doing any work. And then, on the other side, are the people who ask 'what experience have you had?' So there I was, rather naive, caught between two stools."

Lady Iris learned about 'the United States the hard way. She made mistakes and trusted the wrong people. Then she went home to England for a visit, came back to the U.S. through Canada under the quota and started all over again.

At's why her basic education was not designed to equip her for competition in the employment marts. She was born and grew up in Kensington Palace, birthplace of Queen Victoria herself. She underwent the normal education for a girl whose father was a marquis and who was closely related to most of the reigning and deposed crowned heads of Europe.

During a trip to India she decided to take some Indian brocades to the U.S as a representative for a British textile firm. When she arrived in New York and learned she would have to pay duties on her samples, she was left without her anticipated means of livelihood and faced with the grim necessity of earning eating money.

After much persistence she wangled a job as a sales girl in the ready-to-wear department of the New York fur store.

When the store went into its dull season, Lady Iris, one of the last hired, was one of the first fired.

"Now," she said, "I'm starting all over again. My heart is really in television thing. I've felt for a long time I could really do something good if I could work with television. Television is fine for me, because it's one place where they employ people without years of experience."

Stalin's Favorite Daughter Weds, Gown Cost $289,000

London, July 16. (AP)—Joe Stalin's favorite daughter, Svetlana, was reported Sunday to have been married in Moscow amid a two-weeks' show of glitter and flowing vodka.

The London Sunday Express and three Italian publications reported that the black-haired daughter of the Soviet dictator had married Mikhail Kaganovich, son of Politburo member Lazar Kaganovich, July 3.

The Rome newspaper Momento Sera, quoting Russian sources in a dispatch from Geneva, said Stalin originally opposed the marriage because the bridegroom is Jewish.

The newspaper also said Stalin would have preferred a diplomat or a military leader for a son-in-law, but he finally gave in. Married Before Svetlana, 27, had been married before. It was announced in Moscow in 1945 that she had become a mother. The three publications which reported the marriage did not indicate what happened to her first husband.

The Sunday Express said the Russians claimed the nuptial feast "outshone any postwar wedding in the west".

"Pink Crimean champagne, sweet Armenian peach brandy and vodka flowed day and night for the thousands of guests invited from the inner party circles by Father Stalin to the Kremlin," the Express said.

The Express report came from its Stockholm correspondent and quoted Iron Curtain newspapers. The same reports were published in the Italian weekly pictorial magazines Oggi and Europeo, but neither indicated where its information originated.

Expensive Gown

The Express said Svetlana wore a silver lame gown with multi-colored precious stones and gold-en beads.

It said the gown cost $289,000. The Italian magazines said the dress had a 63-foot train.

"Special orchestras from Stalin's native Georgia and other Caucasian republics were commissioned to play the relays till dawn," the Express said.

"Famous ballerinas from the Bolshoi Theatre gave cabaret at intervals throughout the long summer nights from June 24 to July 3.

"Refreshments were served on the czarist gold plate, and toasts to the bride and bridegroom, Marshal Stalin and his mother, Mme. Kaganovich, and to Bolshevik institutions, sometimes numbered as many as 20 in a row.

Unique Occurence

"For the first time in many months, all 15 members of the Soviet and satellite politburo were assembled in Moscow together—a unique occurrence at the height of the Russian summer".

The Express said no diplomats from East or West were invited since a marriage is officially considered a private affair, terminable by a stroke of the pen.

The Italian publication said the wedding cost $900,000, but that a comparatively small number of guests, 150, attended.

The bride couple was reported now on a honeymoon tour through Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The Express said that communists at the left-wing point on the map had been ordered to spare no expense in feting the newlyweds.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

...RICE FAIRFAX

...ble double trouble.

"Oh, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practise to deceive"

Ever hear those lines? Of course you have. Most of us had them quoted to us when we were children and didn't appreciated, either wrongly or perhaps rightly, that we were coming to carry out secretly something forbidden.

The quotation didn't mean much to us in those days, except as a warning that the grown-ups were on to our plot, and we might as well give the whole thing up. It's only after one grows older and wiser that its true meaning becomes crystal clear. And then, unfortunately, we may have its truth brought stunningly home to us when we find ourselves enmeshed in some dreadful situation from which we can see no way of extricating ourselves.

Like the serviceman whose personal grief has prompted him to send me a letter in which he says:

"Three years ago I married a German girl in Germany. Ever since, we've been living in the States.

"Last December I visited relatives in Florida, where I happened to meet a beautiful girl with whom I was unable to keep from falling in love. She showed me that she felt the same about me, and after my return home, we corresponded with each other and here I am, in love as ever. Finally, not knowing what I was saying, I asked her to go to live with her. I told her that I intended to divorce my wife in order to marry her.

"Now her mother, who is very fond of me, is insisting that it is time for me to leave my wife and child. Furthermore, she has spread the news all over the town that I've engaged to her daughter, and everybody there is expecting us to attend our wedding.

Tangled Web

"The trouble is, that I love my wife, and I don't believe I could survive without her. But I feel the only way short of suicide, girl, and frankly I don't know which one I love the best. At the same time my wife does things that make me feel uncertain of my love for her. If someone doesn't tell me what to do pretty soon, there's no telling what I may do. What should I do, Miss Fairfax?

So here is a young man who, when he allowed himself to commit the first act of deceit toward his wife by succumbing to the temptation of dallying with another girl, wove the first strand of that sinister "tangled web". Little by little, one piece of deception had to be covered up by another, but each thing was carried on, until he is now helplessly entangled in the double-crossed mesh of his own deceit.

What decision should he make? Well, that depends on whether he is more interested in saving his own skin or in belatedly taking the firm and manly stand which is the only thing that will bring him back to self-respect and any chance of genuine happiness in the future.

Face the Situation

If he is primarily concerned with the first, he will have to go through with his declared intention of divorcing his wife in order to make good on the other deal. If, on the other hand, he has any regard for his own character, any standards of moral responsibility and obligation, however obscured they have become by now, he will face squarely the mess he has made of things and confess the truth to the second girl. He will have to accept the scorn she will have for him as the inevitable penalty of his tragic foolishness. And he will have to put her out of his life from then on, and devote himself to retrieving his mistakes by doing everything he can to make a success of his present marriage.

All he can summon up in defense of his behavior is that his wife sometimes does things he doesn't like, for he admits he loves her deeply. Well, doesn't this happen in every marriage, human nature being what it is? And does he imagine for a moment that he has never made her feel exactly the same way many a time about things he did?

As I see it, this chap hasn't a leg to stand on in his own defense. Unless and until he has the honesty to admit this to himself and act about cutting his way out of his snare by admitting it to the equal honesty to those he has deceived, he will only continue to thresh about in his "tangled web" until these others discover his duplicity for themselves. And then where will he be?

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Canned apples were always a dud.

Until recently, most apples, commercially canned or put up in jars, had about as much life as the handshake of a corpse. Commercial bakeries until canned apples because they saved the labor of peeling and coring. But there was little else to recommend America's favorite fruit when put up in jars.

A new type of apple in jars, however, has suddenly altered the whole picture. By the simple step of packing the apples in a sugar syrup, the packers have transformed a dull food into a delight.

Sweetened apples in jars are as good as fresh and even better than fresh if the kind of fresh apples you select are not suitable for cooking purposes.

In Scandinavia sweetened apples are combined with spinach and ham for an easy summer dinner dish.

Stuffed Ham Rolls—Serves 6.

12 thin slices boiled ham
1 cup sweetened diced apples
1 package frozen spinach
2 teaspoons grated onion
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
Salt and pepper

1 medium size onion
1 piece of celery
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup boiling water
1 tea-poon meat extract
3 tablespoons vinegar
3 tablespoons sugar

Buy sweetened apples in jars. Drain. Chop coarsely. If unsweetened apples are used add sugar to taste.

Cook frozen spinach in boiling salted water until tender. Drain well. Chop spinach coarsely.

Mix together the spinach apples onion and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Spread out the ham slices. Place a portion of the spinach mixture on each slice. Roll up ham. Fasten with toothpicks. Place ham rolls in a shallow baking dish.

Melt the celery and onion into small dice. Place in a saucepan with 3 tablespoons butter. Sauté vegetables until light brown. Remove from flame. Stir in the flour. Stir in the boiling water and meat extract.

Return sauce to a slow flame. Simmer two minutes. Add the vinegar and sugar. Strain sauce and pour over ham rolls.

Bake ham rolls in a moderate oven 375 degrees 20 to 25 minutes or until heated through.

Gals Have New Feminine Weapons up Sleeve to Nab Men

New York, July 13 (AP) — This is going to be a long season for bachelors, to say nothing of benedicts and indulgent fathers.

Bachelors will find new feminine weapons, such as rustling taffeta petticoats that bring out all deadlier wiles of womanhood.

And husbands and fathers will find it hard to foot the bills for the new feminine finery, which is going to cost more than ever.

It seemer for a while as if petticoats were going the way of the horse and buggy, for the new ruffles of another, gentler day. But all of a sudden they're back with a swish, and it's likely to mean a whole revolution in modern manners.

If a girl wears a ruffled taffeta petticoat, for instance, she can't very well wear bobby sox and flat-heeled loafers—or at least she shouldn't.

When she puts on frivolous high-heeled shoes and sheer nylon hose to match her new femininity, she may regain her sense of "smile etiquette" which at least one leading male authority recently thought was lost forever.

Eric T. Tilles, president of one of the world's largest hosiery companies, said that a generation of flat-heeled and bobby sox has robbed American girls of ankle appeal. He added:

"I'd like girls to re-learn how to walk alluringly, how to cross their legs gracefully at attractively and make seam-straightening a such a reflex as using a lipstick."

It looks as if Mr. Tilles' wish has come true.

Notable in the new styles are the full skirts, shown on daytime as well as evening clothes, which require the most feminine and ruffled of petticoats—sometimes two or three of them.

Paris is the top exponents of femininity in dress is Cell Chappman, known for her dream-like evening frocks with clouds of misty net for skirts and as little as the law allows for bodices.

Her collection today continued to underline her belief that girls should be girls.

GOOD MANNERS

Husband and wife not seated next to each other at dinner parties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a bet will you please answer this question: At a dinner party, either formal or informal, large or small, is it correct for a husband and wife to be seated next to each other? "A" says it is correct. "B" says it isn't. Who wins?

Ken G.

"B" wins!

Always greet the hostess first

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one arrives at a formal tea given for a guest of honor, should one greet the guest of honor first, or the hostess first?

Sara N.

Greet the hostess first . . always. . . and then greet the guest of honor. (The hostess will probably be standing first in the line anyway.)

Form of name to give wedding reception announcer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my husband and I go to a large formal wedding at which there is an announcer (usually supplied by the florist), I am never quite sure how I should give our names . . mine first or my husband's first?

Wife

The announcer will answer his question "Name, please?" to you, since you will be walking ahead of your husband, and you answer in the form the announcer will use. The bride's mother or whoever is standing first in the receiving-line: "Mr. and Mrs. Clark."

Proper procedure in theatre and more practical, too

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a married couple take some friends to the theatre (Summer Stock, for example), should not the host be the one to obtain the tickets to the usher, let his guests precede him down the aisle; that is, the usual procedure following the usher?

Patricia M.

Not necessarily. This might seem a proper rule, but in reality it doesn't always work out as the practical thing for the host to do. It might be, and often is, much more practical for the host to give the tickets to the usher, and then, rather than hold up the procedure in a crowded place, follow the usher, then wait at the head of the row to direct his guests in the order in which they are to sit.

Polite gesture . . . to acknowledge wedding announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I never quite know what to do when I receive a wedding announcement. Is it necessary to acknowledge it in any way?

S. F.

No, not strictly necessary . . but it is certainly polite, thoughtful, to make some form of acknowledgment to such a courteous gesture that someone is making to you. If it's the announcement of the wedding of an acquaintance—social, business, or professional—it's nice to write a cordial little note of good wishes. If it announces a friend's wedding, to which perhaps only family and relatives have been invited, you may very well, and very naturally, have the generous urge to send a present, just as you probably would have done if the wedding had been a larger one to which you would naturally have been invited.

Groom rises and expresses thanks for both

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the wedding toast is proposed to the bride and groom, are both supposed to rise and thank the guests, or does only the groom rise?

Doris M.

The bride and groom remain seated during the drinking of the toast to them. Then when the guests are seated, the groom rises (the bride remains seated) and expresses the thanks of his bride and himself.

BEAUTY

Teen-age beauty problems

"Just keep yourself nice and clean, dear," the mother of forty years ago would say. "Scrub your teeth and brush your hair and look after your fingernails. Youth in itself is so attractive it needs no embellishments."

If that were said to a modern, teen-ager, she would let forth peals of laughter. Today a girl of fourteen is an up-and-coming young lady. When she is ready for high school she has the privilege of using a lipstick. The kids enacted this law for themselves and nothing can be done about it. The army, the navy, and the Supreme Court couldn't stop them, so what can parents hope to do?

They know as much about prevailing fashions and what's new in the way of hairdos, as do their mothers—more in some cases. Some hard-working mothers, engaged in pumping the domestic treadmill and taking care of younger children, may get out of touch with modern trends. Their daughters can advise 'em, and most of them do.

Girls of fourteen may look ages older in long formal frocks, but that of it! The wise mother will not protest. She should stop to think that in just a few years, perhaps, her baby will find her wings and fly away to make a nest of her own.

The major good-looks grief of teen-agers is acne. To avoid this, a girl must give her complexion the most fastidious care. She should wash her face night and morning. She should use a bland soap that lathers quickly. It is more effective if frictioned into the flesh with the fingertips. Rinsing with warm water must be thorough. A complexion brush is a help. If blackheads have appeared, a soda solution should be applied, after the bedtime washing. It should be allowed to dry on the face.

Girls of fourteen may look older in long, formal frocks, but that of it!

When blackheads are present, it is wise to forego the use of cosmetics as much as possible. If creams are used, they should be wiped away within an hour's time. Blackheads sometimes develop into pimples, in which case the diet may be at fault. Pastries, chocolates and ice cream should be avoided. Fats in any form stimulate the sebaceous glands.

Shampooing should be no hurry-and-rush affair. The soap should be lathered and there should be three applications with plenty of friction, each soaping following the rinsing of fairly hot water from the bath spray.

Once a day an orange-wood stick should be passed under the nail eaves. Bacteria can lurk there. The daily bath is the cosmetic value, has a beneficial effect upon the complexion.

ROSLIN W.A.

Roslin—The July meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. A. Bates, with 11 members and three visitors present. The president presided.

Miss Norma Bates gave the Scripture reading, St. Luke 15-24. There will be no meeting in August. It was reported that the bale had been shipped to the Indian school at Prince Albert.

November 15th was the date chosen to hold the bazaar in the fall. Several articles made by the pupils at the Indian school in Prince Albert were shown by Mrs. Ray.

Mrs. William Bates was leader for the evening. A poem by Edgar Guest "Just Folks" was given by Mrs. Gillespie. A piano solo by Margaret Bates and a song "Mocking Bird Hill" by Shirley Skinner and Margaret Ann were enjoyed. The leader gave a reading "Blessed Are They."

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed.

Mrs. Coulter is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Albert Clare and Mr. Clare this week.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — The Frankford United Church Sunday School held their annual picnic at Presqu'ile Point on Wednesday afternoon. Despite unfavorable weather, all report a good time. Rain curtailed the annual slate of races and games, but a number of stunts were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gilmour and Mr. Wilson Rankin spent Monday in Toronto where they attended the Toronto-Montreal ball game.

Mrs. Carl Lohnes and infant daughter have returned home from Trenton General Hospital.

Messrs. Holl Madill and Arthur Southworth are enjoying a holiday in Northern Ontario.

Misses Helen Rose and Marilyn Wannamaker visited Miss Gail Ireland in Trenton hospital, Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Shirley Fox, of Cooper, visited Miss Joan McCrea on Wednesday and Thursday.

Spectacular Driving Features Races at Speedway Parkland

Outstanding exhibitions of driving featured the stock car races held Saturday afternoon at Speedway Parkland before a fair crowd.

No serious accidents marred the afternoon that was blessed with brilliant sunshine and a strong, cool breeze.

Organization of the race meet was more detailed than at former meets with the result that a full card of racing was completed at 5.15.

Jack Finkle of Belleville turned in some of the most exciting driving of the afternoon. He piloted his car to a victory in the novice race, whipping around the four laps in 2.45. He came back in the third qualifying heat for the feature to place third after a sensational exhibition of driving and daring. His car went into a bad spin on the third turn of the first lap and again on the first turn of the second lap as he tried to gain time on the corners. He kept his car upright, however, piloted it out of the infield and then came from last position in a six car field to take third place.

In the feature event Finkle again placed third after being shut out-distanced in a terrific race with Jack Judges and Bill Wilson.

The feature event was the 10 lap standing-race of the afternoon. A field of six got away to a flying start with Geo. Bowers of Toronto, coming from last place to the head of the pack at the end of eight laps. However, he encountered motor trouble in the third turn and had to drop out. Meanwhile Jack Judges, also of Toronto, driving another car came back in the bunch began moving to the front with a series of mad-cap inside passes on the turns. He had moved up to fourth spot on the end of the fifth lap and by some remarkable driving, took over the lead on the end of the sixth. He stayed in front for the rest of the way to win. Norm Babcock of Woodbridge, was third in other casualty in the feature.

Fastest time of the afternoon was turned in by George Bowers of Toronto, who holds the track record for the half mile here, driving in the first qualifying heat for the feature. His time from the scratch position in a six-car field to win going away in five miles, eight and one-half seconds for the eight laps.

First three finishers in each race are as follows:

Novice Race: Jack Finkle, Belleville; Norman Babcock, Woodbridge; Howard Whiteside, Allandale. Time 5.32.5.

Third Qualifying Heat: Bill Wilson, Phillipsville; Jack Pardridge, Kingston; Jack Finkle, Belleville. Time 5.22.2.

Consolation Race: Finishers were, Graham Robinson, Toronto; Ken Bowers, Trenton; Ron Rose, Woodbridge; Nick Sargent, Trenton, and Frenchy Giroux, Napanee.

Feature Race: Jack Judges, Toronto; Bill Wilson, Phillipstown; Jack Finkle, Belleville. Time 7:40.5.

Jewellers Wm Wild Contest From Alemite

The old saw about never being able to tell who wins a ball game until the last man is out in the ninth inning was never truer than it was last Saturday night when Avon Jewellers staged a 10 run rally with two men out in the ninth to down Stewart Warner Alemite 20-17 in a Commercial League AA game at the Alemite Field.

The loss left the Alemite in the basement of the five team league.

The game, the wildest, most unlikely piece of softball ever seen in this district dragged its weary way through two hours and 10 minutes of frustration. The crowning touch came in the ninth inning when Alemite Hardie Dracup was banished from the game by base umpire Ethier for wetting the ball. Dracup threw one more and two runs in for Avon with the bases loaded when Dracup retired.

George Hammett, with two crackers on, lightly strapped, came in to pitch and was unable to retire the third man. Cliff Doyle came on and before Dracup was grounded out second to first the Jewellers had amassed ten runs to win. The sun had long since set but the umpires bade the game go on and Alemite lost.

Avon opened the scoring with a single run in the first frame which was quickly erased by Alemite's three run rally in their half of the frame. Avon struck back for four runs in the second with errors letting in the tallies. Stewart Warner, the team credited the biggest single inning rally seen in the Commercial League since its inception when they came up with 13 runs in the second inning to take what looked like an overwhelming lead.

Avon kept pecking away at the lead notching two each in the third and fourth innings and one in the fifth to leave them trailing by seven runs in the ninth as Alemite counted a single run in the sixth.

The game was marred throughout by the constant bickering of Alemite's third base coach who so annoyed the umpires that they permitted the game to go on long past all point or reason to think in almost complete darkness.

Lineup:

Avon Jewellers: F. Donovan lf; Doran, 2rc, c; Hammett, 1b; Dracup, ss; Foran 2b; McBride 1b, replaced by Ethier in 9th; Garvin c, replaced by Murray in 6th; Doyle, 3b, 4th; Rogers rf, p; Bay p, rf, replaced by Murray in 6th.

Toronto, July 14—(CP)—Building construction here showed a $10,000,000 drop in the first six months of 1951, compared with the same period in 1950.

A year ago the aggregate value of construction was $30,911,753, as against this year's $20,077,303.

Florida Hoboes Defeat Redmen In Exhibition

The Florida Hoboes, a team of U.S. college all-stars on a tour of Ontario, handed the local Belleville Redmen a 9-4 setback at the Fair Grounds on Saturday night.

The Hoboes, travelling with only 10 players, mostly from the Philadelphia area, have played and defeated both the Brockville Memor and the Vindict League All-Stars in twin-bills. Thus the defeat was considerably easier to take.

Both teams scored a pair in the opening stanza with the Redmen taking a temporary one run lead in the second. The Hoboes tied it up in the third, however, on a triple by Didio, the only extra-base knocky for the visitors, and a long fly ball.

Three safe singles put the Redmen in front again before the inning closed and neither team was able to plate one in the fourth.

The Philadelphia "Florida" boys took the lead again in the fifth with a pair and broke out for four more in the eighth for insurance to put the game on lock. Belleville threatened in the ninth as Carson doubled and Reeves reached base on a dropped third strikeout both died there as the third two batters went quietly.

Every Redmen regular hit safely once with Fitzpatrick banging out a triple and two singles to lead the parade, Johnny Dean's triple and Carson's double were the only knocks for extra bases. Vern Goyer, who replaced Buchanan in the seventh, came to bat once and hit safely.

Willie Fordham pitched good enough ball to win but error loose play and errors of judgment by his teammates proved fatal to his cause.

Kingston 'Saints' Defeat Plumbers At Penitentiary

Howe and Hagerman travelled to Kingston on Sunday afternoon to play an exhibition match with the Saints of that city. Apparently the Saints had not heard of the vaunted hitting power of the local representatives as they pounded out a 11-7 victory with a 14 hit attack on their own.

The victory upheld the record of the Saints who have only lost two games this year. It is deemed highly improbable that a return game will be played as the Saints are all members of the Kingston penitentiary.

The Plumbers started things off with a bang as Harry Wardhaugh and "Widge" Adams both connected for solid singles through the box. Vern Goyer followed with a grounder to short and when the homesters elected to try a rundown on Wardhaugh at third, Goyer raced to the shortstop allowed a thrown ball to get by him into left field. Wardhaugh and Adams both scored with Goyer pulling up at third. Lee Goyer filled in right but Williams followed with a single to centre and Henn doubled to right, going to third when the right fielder juggled the ball. He scored on the next play, a grounder to the right side of the infield. Those five runs looked like a walk-off at the time.

The Saints came up with two in the second and four more in the fourth and fifth as they began to powder the ball. The big wheel's batters were simply eating as a bases loaded home run by their pitcher in the fourth. Their lanky fellow came to the seventh on another home run by the pitcher. Both of these blows travelled considerably, were hit with a terrific impact that carried them over the left field fence. One estimately 200 feet from the plate and 25 feet in the air.

Howe and Hagerman tallied singles in the 8th and 9th but their hitting power was lacking after the first big frame.

"Widge" Adams was the only Belleville player to connect safely for more than one blow, hitting a single and double to centre trips to the plate. Harry Wardhaugh, Williams, Henn and Young each had one hit.

Young started on the mound for the losers making way for Adams in the fourth, Green in the fifth and Boyle coming in to hurl the final frame.

For the Saints, the pitcher led the batters with three hits in four appearances and two runs batted in. The short stop, first baseman and centre fielder each connected with the centre fielder also hitting three.

Line-up of Howe and Hagerman:

Jd Wardhaugh 3b, D. Adams lf, Y. Goyer ss, L. Goyer c, Wilkams cf, Henn 2b, Locke 1b, Williams p, Young rf. In Canadian hands and the first thing he did was phone Vezeu and tell them over. Big Cy Slated to Continue Racing Career Says Trainer

By PETE ARTHUR

Inglewood, Calif., July 16 (AP) —Citation is the first million-dollar winner in race history, but the big news today is that he isn't through.

Beset by injuries through part of his career, looking like just a so-so horse earlier this season, big Cy hit the peak Saturday when he ran away from the field in the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup to win by four lengths.

It boosted the six-year-old's lifetime earnings to $1,085,769. It was the biggest purse of his career, an even $100,000, which Hollywood Park guarantees the winner of its biggest event.

He also won the $100,000 Kentucky Derby as a three-year-old, but the winner's net was $91,870

Trainer Jimmy Jones, almost too happy to talk after the smashing triumph, managed to get this much out:

"I guess I can probably say in all truth that this day has provided the greatest thrill of my life. He (meaning Citation) seems to be his old self again. We don't plan to retire him immediately as it would seem very foolish when he's at his present peak condition."

Jones added that Citation may run in the Hollywood Park windup next Saturday, the $50,000 Sunset Handicap, "and probably in Chicago and then in the Jockey Club Gold Cup in New York."

After that, to the Calumet Farm in November or December to prepare for the 1952 breeding season.

A crowd of 50,625, seemingly all for Citation, turned out Saturday to watch the 11th running of the Gold Cup.

Citation's stablemate, Calumet's trio, the mare Bewitch, came up for second by a nose over Be Fleet.

Citation's success in becoming a millionaire took an edge off another fine performance. Bewitch's $20,000 for second made her the biggest money winner among feminine race horses, with $462,605 against the $445,555 for Gallorette, the previous record holder.

'Nebraska Comet' Out to Show Fans He's Best Centrefielder in Business

By RICHARD HOENIG

Philadelphia, July 16. (AP)—The man who stands second to none in the major baseball business is out to show baseball fans everywhere that he's the best centrefielder in the business.

So far as the cheering habitues of Shibe Park are concerned, the easy-going, tow-haired Richie Ashburn with the Philadelphia Phillies is that already. But they grant that perhaps partisans in other cities may not be quite so convincing.

The "Nebraska Comet" has been hitting at a red-hot clip. His batting percentage is .359, exceeded only by the great Stan Musial, and in total hits he tops the leaders in both leagues with 121.

The 24-year-old Ashburn talks about his ambition without trace of bravado. As when a competitor as you'll find, he figures he has profited by mistakes, had a few sharp jolts here and there and now is aiming for perfection. His pride is that of an athlete who thinks his sport is the finest of them all.

Actually, Ashburn is driving for a goal set in 1948, the year he became the Phils' centrefielder and won a rookie-of-the-year place on the All-Star team. He won't say what it is.

"I'm not going to tell you," he said, "but I'll tell you this much. I'm not satisfied with my batting average. I'm not satisfied with my fielding. I'm not satisfied with my throwing. I'm not satisfied with my base running. I'm not satisfied with anything I do."

Ashburn's 5 feet-11 inches tall and 160-pound frame has been called a ballplayer's ballplayer, a "hit-em-where-they-ain't" specialist, a master of the bunt.

Success hasn't come without pain. He's had his share of injuries. After his sensational rookie year Ashburn held out for more money in 1949. Then his batting average fell to .284 and his slot-machine total slipped to nine for the season.

The quiet-spoken Nebraskan admits his 1950 season was a disaster to a "swelled head".

Last year he settled down to the task of retaining a regular berth. He succeeded, emmently. He helped the Phils to their pennant with .303 hitting percentage and great all-around fielding. This year he's the idol of the fans who think he is carrying much of the load for the fifth-place Phils to their pennant.

KING OF GYPSIES DIES

Battle Creek, Mich., July 16.—(AP)—The "King of the Gypsies" Steve Nicholas Demetro, 62, died in Leila hospital here last night. Davis acknowledged No. 1 man of the United States' 6,000 gypsies, had suffered a stroke. Davis inherited the gypsy kingdom from his father, who died in 1946. Davis' 16-year-old son, James, probably will be the new king.

Pittsburgh Looks For Record Crowd In Title Scrap

By GIB STANLEY

Pittsburgh, July 16. (AP)—With a break in the weather there's a chance the attendance record for a Pittsburgh fight may be broken at Wednesday night's 15-round title scrap between heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles and ageless Jersey Joe Walcott.

The fact that the 37-year-old Walcott has lost four previous heavyweight title bouts—two to Charles and two to Joe Louis—doesn't seem to have lessened interest at all.

Walcott probably will enter the ring at sentimental choice of the crowd although Charles will be heavily favored at better than 2 to 1 odds.

Charles, a skilled infighter who batters his opponents unmercifully, thinks he'll knock out Walcott this time, and Walcott is equally confident he'll dispose of the Cincinnati Negro via the kayo route.

Keeping Fingers Crossed

Promoters are keeping their fingers crossed for clear skies when the fight goes on at Forbes Field, home of the Pittsburg Pirates at 9 p.m. E.S.T. 10 p.m. EDT).

"We're not trying to get overly optimistic but there's a good chance we may draw nearly 30,-000," he said promoter Jack McGinley.

"That's a lot of people but we've got a little more than $100,000 in the till from ticket sales right now."

The all-time record for a Pittsburgh fight is the 27,042 crowd which watched the Billy Conn-Buddy Knox bout in 1942. The top ducat for that bout was $5.78 and the gate was $88,800.

The Dumont network is televising the fight but is blacking out its stations at Pittsburgh and

★ Easier Starting in Cold Weather

USERS REPORT 10% to 30% GASOLINE SAVINGS

The revolutionary "Gasmaster" was perfected through government research during World War II to improve the performance of military aircraft and was later discovered by Vokes of England. The "Gasmaster" is now being manufactured by Vokes for use on automobiles, trucks and motorcycles and has met with instant response and success in the United States and Canada on all makes of cars.

HERE'S PROOF!

R. C. McKnoull, Chief, London Fire Department
"We have installed Gasmasters' on a 1950 Pontiac, a 1942 Pontiac, a Ford and a 1949 Ford. The increased economies is a big factor of great value to us. Our vehicles are operated from a cold start to peak performance in a matter of seconds. Improved mileage is another benefit."

"I have installed the Vokes 'Gasmaster' in a 1939 Pontiac, 1941 Plymouth, 1947 Ford and a 1949 Ford. The increased economies is a big factor of great value to us. Our vehicles are operated from a cold start to peak performance in a matter of seconds. Improved mileage is another benefit."

O. W. Gilmour, Medina's Mayor, Medina, Ontario
"I have installed Vokes 'Gasmaster' in a 1939 Packard 120, 8-cylinder sedan that has passed over 100,000 miles. We have also installed one in a 1950 Chevrolet pick-up truck. We have installed about 45. The owners check me if I don't make good 20% more mileage on the highway. Since the Vokes 'Gasmaster' has been installed I have had no trouble with the carburetor. I can recommend the product without qualification."

Hurlers in Second Division Take Measure of Top Clubs Weekend Doubleheaders

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Ned Garver —Bob Hooper — Sam Zoldak —Conrado Marrero — Murry Dickson — Erich Arnovich — all pitchers, but unfortunately they all fell for second division clubs.

There are many observers who rate Garver the best pitcher in the American League. The 25-year-old righthander has won 12 games for the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns. He might now be pushing 30 with a first-division outfit.

Garver doesn't pick his spots either. Eleven of his dozen triumphs have been against contenders. He whipped the league-leading New York Yanks five times yesterday in the opener of a doubleheader.

The loss was the nightcap 9-3 to widen their lead to two games over Chicago. White Sox, who lost to Philadelphia Athletics 3-1 and 5-0.

Hooper, 20-year-old righthander, mastered the White Sox for the third time this season and Zoldak yielded only one hit in a third-inning single by Chico Carrasquel.

Hooper won his own game with a three-run homer. Zoldak fired only 92 pitches. He walked one and struck out one.

League Record

Chicago's one bright spot was the fielding of Carrasquel. Chico set a league record for errorless chances accepted at shortstop at 289 in 81 games. The old mark of 288 was held by New York's Phil Rizzuto.

Marrero, diminutive Cuban righthander, won his ninth game against Washington as the sixth-place Senators split with Cleveland later. And Marrero won the opener 7-4, the Indians took the second game behind Mike Garcia 7-2.

The Yankees divided a pair in Detroit to move up within three-tenths of a percentage point of the second-place White Sox. After Fred Hutchinson pitched the Tigers to a 5-3 victory, the Yanks were eked out an 8-7 nightcap win.

Vic Wertz, who homered in the second game, won the opener with a two-run triple in the first off Bob Kuzava.

Brooklyn's National League-leading Dodgers lost both ends of a doubleheader to Cincinnati 5-2 and 6-5. But their lead was shaved only one game, to eight, as both St. Louis Cards and New York Giants divided in twin bills. Hitless in Relief

Dickson, Pittsburgh's little righthander, held the Giants hitless in four relief innings to register his 11th win as the last place Pirates won the first game 7-6 in 13 innings. The Giants took the second game 8-3 as Jim Hearn hurled his eighth victory.

Philadelphia's Phils whipped the Cards 8-4 after St. Louis won the opener 7-4. Stan Musial paced St. Louis to its first game win with his 17th and 18th homers.

After Warren Spahn blanked Chicago 7-0 the Cubs came back to whip Boston Braves 10-4. Leonard registered his seventh victory in relief for the Cubs as Hank Sauer blasted his fifth homer in six days. The shutout was Spahn's fifth of his nine wins.

Cooke's Capers Bring Out Fans Start Leafs Rise

(By The Associated Press)

Jack Cooke, new owner of Toronto Maple Leafs, got off to a good start in his drive to build up attendance and the Leafs into first-division timber.

Since he took over July 9 Cooke has handed out free drinks, hot dogs and orchids and the fans have responded. In addition, the Leafs have started winning and are knocking on the door of the first division.

The largest crowd since Cooke took over—12,122 fans — turned out Sunday to watch the Leafs sweep a doubleheader 3-2 and 5-4, from Buffalo Bisons. The Leafs now have played to 39,862 fans under their new owner.

Bobby Rhawn was the batting star in both games. Rhawn broke up the 11-inning opener in the seventh and final inning to win the second game, the homer was Rhawn's fifth and the third he has hit in the final inning to win a game this year.

The sweep moved the Leafs to within two games of the .500 mark and within 4 2 of the fourth-place Rochester Red Wings, who dropped a doubleheader to first-place Springfield Cubs, 5-4 and 7-2.

Gene Hooks singled home Cam Mauro with the winning run in the 10-inning opener. Pinch-hitter Frank Baumholtz of the Cubs sent the game into overtime with a two-run homer in the ninth. Bill Kerfoot gained his fifth victory in the nightcap.

Montreal Royals and Ottawa Giants split a doubleheader, The Royals won the opener 4-2. The Giants took the nightcap 2-0 behind the three-hit pitching of George Heller.

Claude Corbitt drove in two runs on a triple and three singles to lead Syracuse Chiefs to a 9-7 decision over Baltimore Orioles. Home runs by Anse Moore, Bill Glynn, Russ Kearns and Howie Moss kept the Orioles in business.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting, Connie Ryan, Reds — Doubled and homered, scoring 3 runs and drove in two in 5-3 first-game victory over Brooklyn. His double featured five-run rally in seventh inning of second game 6-5 loss.

Pitching, Sam Zoldak, Athletics — Handcuffed the White Sox with one hit,—a third - inning single by Chico Carrasquel — as he blanked the White Sox 5-0 in the nightcap doubleheader.

Ontario Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

A 19-year-old lefthander turned in a masterful pitching performance for the lowly St. Thomas Legion of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League Saturday night, coming within one batter of hurling a no-hit, no-run game.

The stylish southpaw was Bill Byham, formerly of Bloomsburg Teachers College in Pennsylvania and the 6-0 victory over the second-place London Majors was his first win against five defeats this season.

An infield single by pinch-hitter Billie Flick in the last of the ninth robbed Byham of a no-hitter. It was a heartbreaker for the young pitcher as he saw Flick beat out an infield hit.

Not an opponent got past first base as Byham gave up two bases on balls and struck out two. His mates committed one error but that didn't cause him much difficulty.

The victory, second in a row for St .Thomas, indicated the last-place Legion might still produce a threat to the security of some of the lower-spotted teams in the seven-club league. The Legion now is five games behind Kitchener Legionnaires who dropped their third game in three nights, a 14-3 lacing by Guelph Leafs. Kitchener, in fourth place last Thursday, now is sixth.

Galt Terriers, meanwhile, edged the league-leading Brantford Red Sox 10-9. Galt and Guelph now are tied for fourth spot, 9½ games behind third-place Waterloo Tigers, idle Saturday.

At Kitchener, Legionnaires committed at least four errors and put on one of the poorest defensive games of the season.

However, they were held to four hits and a three runs by Guelph southpaw Jackie Bowes. Bowes, in trouble early in the game, improved as the game went along and fanned 10 batters. He walked three.

Roly Larouche started for Kitchener. He gave up two runs in the first inning. Hal Johnston relieved him in the seventh and gave way to a pinch hitter. Don Fawbert finished up.

At Galt, only one strikeout was achieved in the game. Brantford used two pitchers Galt three.

Red Sox came through with two runs in the ninth, but with the bases loaded and one out they were stopped by George Rodenus, who replaced Barry on the mound.

Terriers' new playing manager, Johnny Russian, gave fine leadership. He got a homer, double and single to drive in four runs.

Altogether five homers were hit. Wilbur Fields and Luther Crawford got them for Brantford and Wally Nowak, Russian and Jimmy Schindler hit roundtrippers for the winners.

In the Viaduct League, Oshawa Merchants won a 14-5 decision over Toronto Stafford Saturday afternoon in a game that dragged on for almost three hours. Tony DeLaurentis held the visiting Staffords to five hits. Every member of the Merchants hit safely at least once.

At Kirkland Lake, the seventh hit pitching of Art Hillman led Kirkland Greyhounds to a 3-2 victory over Porcupine Combines in a Timiskaming League game.

Hillman showed good control, striking out 11 and giving up only one base on balls.

At Coniston, Frood Tigers scored a 9-7 win to snap Coniston's victory streak in the Nickel

Mortomen Stay in Front Down Cleaners 7-3

Behind the seven-hit pitching of their ace hurler Jack Reid, Bellerville Motor Car continued their winning ways by defeating Cleaner Combines on their home night at the CNRAA Field by a score of 7-3.

The win strengthened the hold of the Mortomen on first place and left the Combines in a three-way tie for third with Avons and Stewart-Warners. Bakelite are also in the second slot but only

Cleaners took a short - lived lead in the first inning on George

Belt Senior League at seven games. The win moved Frood to within half a game of the league-leading Creighton Indians. It was the fourth pitching victory in four starts for the ace righthander Art Schisler.

In another Nickel Belt senior game, at Sudbury, Garson Greyhounds defeated Creighton 8-5 behind Sudbury Burion's effective relief pitching.

Saturday, Peterborough Petes trimmed Toronto Kingsway 3-2 in Peterborough to lengthen their lead in the Viaduct major league. Timely action in Toronto, Oshawa Merchants trounced Toronto Staffords 5-3 at Kingston edged Staffords 5-3.

In an Oshawa exhibition game the Viaduct League's Oshawa Merchants Saturday night nosed out St. Catharines Kings of the Niagara District Senior Circuit 3-2.

In the Niagara League itself, Niagara Falls Frods strengthened their first-place spot Sunday by beating Welland Elskes 5-3.

by a very slim margin.

Graham's single and a double by Derushie.

Belleville Motor Car continued it up in the second however as Callaghan drove a triple to right and scored a minute later on Semark's fly ball to the same field.

They went ahead the next inning on hits by Hatfield and Bone and from that point on they were never headed. One run in the 4th and two more in the fifth without reply were sufficient to win the game. They did, however, add singletons in the last two innings

Cleaner's only real threat came in the sixth as singles by Jones and Derushie followed by Mulvihill's two-base knock tallied a pair of runs. Holmes followed with a walk but Draycott ended the inning by swinging at a third strike.

Jack Reid, on the mound for the Motormen chucked his usual good game, striking out eleven and passing only two. Harold, who started for the Combines, struck out five while walking an equal number and Holmes, his relief, threw the third one by three without issuing a free ticket.

Two-base hits were knocked by Derushie, Mulvihill, Miller, Bone and Thompson. Jack Callaghan hit the only triple of the night. Callaghan also hit one for the circuit after his team-mate Walsh had done the honor.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
Bell Syndicate

Standard equipment for a bridge player includes ability to add a couple of digits. And to subtract from 13. Like three and four are seven. And seven from 13 leaves six.

In any deal only 13 tricks can be taken. If your side can take seven, opponents will not be able to take that many. If your side can take six, opponents will not be able to take eight.

Suppose your partner opens with a bid of one heart. He says he can take five of the seven tricks if he suits it to trump. Because, he assumes, you will be able to take two tricks.

If his suit is not trump he may take only three tricks. Of his four highest cards, two of which are sure, three tricks will usually make. So, at any other trump suit, count on partner for only three tricks.

Suppose, then, an opponent makes a defence bid of one spade that must take seven tricks. If you can take four spade tricks, you can defeat the contract with help of partner's three tricks.

What if an opponent makes a defensive bid of two? Then, with the three tricks you expect opener to take, all you need are three trump tricks to defeat the opponent bid.

Your partner in south opens with a heart. West opponent says two clubs. You have the north hand shown at right:

♠ 8 6 4
♥ 8 7 3
♦ K Q 3
♣ 10 9 7 5 3 2

Expect to take three club tricks. With partner's three tricks you have six; enough to defeat two clubs which needs eight. And to show partner your side can defeat opponent, use the word double.

Thus do we reach this rule: If partner opens your side shows four tricks in opponent trump suit if their bid is one; three tricks in their trump suit if their bid is two.

Add them up on your fingers. They come out right.

Movie Column

By JACK QUIGG
(For Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, July 16 (AP) — "I see nothing, when I am in the right, to-in-to, in-to-to-ing." sang the plump little man, rocking his head and jiggling up and down in his chair.

Lou Costello, who has done just about everything else for laughs, was demonstrating how he hopes to get them with song. His warbles for the first time on the screen in "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

Seated at his desk in a studio office, clad in the green and orange medieval costume he wears as Jack, he chuckled wryly.

"In every Italian there's a little bit of singer someplace," he said beamingly.

"I dance, too," he added and did a little jig.

"Jack and the Bean Stalk" is Abbott and Costello's biggest project to date.

First Fantasy

It's their first venture into fantasy and it's their first picture in color. They classify it as a musical-comedy first.

Costello is making the film with his independent movie company—he hires Abbott. He said he got the idea of a "change of pace" film while he was sitting in his library one evening.

"My little girl, Christine, kept asking me to read her 'Jack,'" he said, "I read it, looked at the pretty pictures, and that 'What a movie this would make.'

Can-Am League Vetoes Merger With Border Loop

Gloversville, N.Y., July 16 (CP)—The class-C Border Baseball League apparently has folded—at least for this season.

Directors of the six-team Canadian-American League voted unanimously Saturday against a merger with four clubs from the Border loop.

That decision and the failure of Border-League representatives to attend the meeting apparently marks the end of Border League play.

The Can-Am directors passed a resolution opposing the merger and also voted not to transfer any league franchise from the cities now holding them to new locations.

After a meeting of Border directors Thursday night, a statement was issued saying a merger would be discussed. It said the situation had been taken up with George Trautman, head of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the minors) and Can-Am president Albert Houghton.

Trautman and Houghton, the statement said, had agreed "the matter should be discussed and an attempt made to accomplish a union."

Houghton said Trautman had telephoned him that Border League president John G. Ward and Major Frederick Montgomery of Ogdensburg, N.Y., had requested reconsideration of the proposal for a 10-team circuit, which was rejected by the Can-Am circuit when first proposed recently.

The former six-team Border League has been reduced to two clubs— Ogdensburg Reds and Kingston, Ont., Ponies. They had been expected to fold Thursday night.

Prairie Pucksters Join Coast League Major Loop Dead

Edmonton, July 16 (CP)—Three clubs of the Western Canada Major Hockey League—Calgary Stampeders, Edmonton Flyers and Saskatoon Quakers have joined the professional Pacific Coast Hockey League.

This was announced early today by Al Leader, President of the Coast League, after an 11 hour meeting here of representatives of the three Prairie clubs and P.C.H.L. officials.

The present teams in the Coast League are Vancouver Canucks, New Westminster Royals, Victoria Cougars, Tacoma Rockets and Seattle Ironmen.

The merger first broached by the Prairie teams who were dissatisfied with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's major series, sounded the death knell of the Western Canada Major League.

Until the amalgamation, Calgary, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Moose Jaw were to form the amateur W.C.H.L. for the 1951-52 season, Moose Jaw replacing Regina which dropped out recently.

The change in allegiance will bring outright professional hockey to the prairies after a 15-year absence.

Final details as to schedule and grouping of teams are to be settled at the league's semi-annual meeting in Seattle August 20.

No decision was reached on a new name for the enlarged league.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

"Guilty Bystander" (Adult) Starring Zachary Scott and Faye Emerson

Zachary Scott is an alcoholic who has been discharged as a detective from the police force following a drunken scandal. His estranged wife, Faye Emerson, seeks him out in his cheap hotel after their son has been kidnapped by a gang of jewel thieves. When the only link to the crime, a crooked doctor, is murdered, Scott enlists the aid of Mary Boland, proprietress of a waterfront hotel. This brings him into contact with the leader of the gang, J. Edward Bromberg, and leads to a stirring pursuit through the city after the criminals. There is considerable fighting and shooting before Scott finally locates the child and rounds up the gang. There is also an unusual twist to the finish that should come as a dramatic surprise to the audience.

Yankee Flash Mickey Mantle Sent to Minors

(By The Canadian Press)

Two of Canada's top middle-distance runners — one a veteran, the other just out of junior ranks — came together again Saturday but their big race at the Eastern Canada Track and Field championships at Toronto didn't come off.

Valdo Lillakas, 29 - year - old Estonian who starts for Montreal Track and Field, was scheduled to compete against sensational 20-year-old Rich Ferguson of Toronto in a three-mile race.

But Lillakas decided to pass up the match after taking heavy punishment from the heat and a six-mile morning race which he won in record time of 31 minutes, 16.7 seconds.

The three - mile race was run without him and Ferguson won easily, although his time wasn't close to the Canadian three-mile mark.

Toronto representatives won 8 events against five for Montreal and two for Hamilton.

Mount Branca, the colt the tipsters said might upset the favorites in the Quebec King's Plate, did just that Saturday, winning the 96th running of the classic by a length-and-a-half.

The colt, owned by Mrs. J. Tomlinson of Oakville, Ont., came in strong in the final stretch here at Montreal to pass favorite Britannia from the E. P. Taylor stables. Irish Canadian was third.

Arthur King, British Empire lightweight champion from Toronto, was signed Saturday to meet Jay Watkins of Flint, Mich., in a 10-round bout at Atwood Stadium in Flint, July 27.

It will be Flint's first outdoor fight since Willie Pep and Luther Burgess met there in 1946.

Mickey Mantle, the springtime wonder boy of New York Yankees, was demoted to the minors Sunday.

The 19-year-old rookie, who had rocketed to fame on the strength of a .403 batting average in spring training, was optioned to Kansas City, New York's farm club in the American Association. His batting average is .280.

The Sunday edition of the New York Journal - American, in a story by sports editor Max Kase, said Saturday that Eddie Stanky, New York Giants' second-baseman, will become manager of St. Louis Browns.

Kase added that the Giants already have asked waivers on Stanky.

Marty Furgol won the Western Open Golf Tournament Sunday with a 65 for a 72-hole total of 279. Cary Middlecoff, former Memphis dentist, was second with 271.

Babe Zaharias and company, now touring England, showed British men golfers — including four Walker Cup players, how it is done.

The women, playing the British men on even terms, won by 6½ to 2½.

Palestinian, a fragile five-year-old galloped from the stable of Isadore Bieber, Saturday sneaked through a tight hole along the rail in the stretch and captured the $37,100 Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct race course.

Leroy (Satchel) Paige will follow Bill Veeck to St. Louis Browns.

The club announced Saturday that the Negro hurler will report Monday to sign a contract. He has been pitching for Chicago Giants, a Negro club.

Sickle's league romped to a convincing victory in the $74,4000 Arlington Matron Handicap at Arlington Park Saturday.

The purse to the winner was $53,925, the largest won in a single race by a filly or mare in racing history.

GROOM FOUND DEAD

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 16 — (CP)—Herbert Ross of Toronto, 62-year-old bridegroom, was found dead last night in his room at Stamford race track. Coroner J. L. Mahoney investigated.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

Drownings, Traffic Take 33 Lives Across Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Thirty-seven Canadians, some in traffic and some swimming, died in eastern Canada during the weekend.

With water sports and vacations in full swing, drownings claimed 16 lives in rivers—10—and traffic accidents accounted for 15 fatalities and miscellaneous accidents for four.

A Canadian Press survey showed 18 of the deaths were reported in Ontario, 14 in Quebec and four in New Brunswick.

18 Ontario Deaths

Ontario's total consisted of six drownings, nine traffic fatalities, a strangling accident and two reported suicides.

Drowned were: Peter Caslander of Lansdowne, on Lake Erie after he suffered a heart attack; Alex Holm, 58, of Sudbury, while fishing in a mill pond near Lonjo; Eugenius Jacobson, 18, of Oshawa, when he fell from his boat into Rice Lake, southwest of Peterborough.

Police at Sudbury are dragging Ramsey Lake for the body of Russell O'Neill, 40 and Jack Manning, 40, of Garson presumably drowned in a storm overturned boat was found after a storm on the lake.

Nine-month-old Andrew Yakovishin was strangled when he became entangled in a curtain hanging over crib at his home in Toronto.

Neil Winch, 54, and Charles Brown, 57, were killed in separate accidents when they were struck by automobiles as they walked on highways. Alfred Tocheri, a Port Arthur undertaker was struck by a runaway gravel truck and Theodore Labelle, 74, was stuck by a car on a main street of Sudbury.

Mrs. J. Boykoff of St. Catharines was killed when a car rolled over her in a ditch near St. Catharines and Emil Shykolowich, 68, of Toronto, was fatally injured when the sidecar of a motorcycle when it went out of control near Hamilton.

Edward Theobald, 11 months, was killed and seven others injured when their car was struck by a baked freight train near Peterborough.

Mrs. Toronto, Louis Plashker slashed his wrists and throat and jumped out of a two-storey window. Muriel Violet Keith, 20, of Kirkland Lake was found dead in her gas-filled apartment in Toronto Police said both deaths were accidents.

Drowns in River

Ayton, Ont., July 16 (CP) —A weekend fishing trip ended in disaster here on Saturday night when Alex Helm, 56, of R.R. 2 Kitchener was drowned in the Saugeen River.

A small rowboat carrying Helm and three companions capsized as they were rowing upstream.

Helm could not swim and his companions were unable to reach him.

Provincial constables Norman Schaulte, Norman Frey and Carl Korrell, all of Kitchener—were also swimmers. One man caught hold of Helm twice but lost his grip, because he was "badly frightened" struggling.

Helm's body, tangled in his fishing line, was recovered about two hours later.

SAVE CHEESE FACTORY

Inkerman, Ont., July 16—(CP) Quick work by a volunteer bucket brigade was credited with saving a large cheese factory owned by the Armstrong Limited here when lightning started a fire here Sunday. The lightning bolt shot along hydro wires to the one-storey frame factory.

KILLED ON MOTORCYCLE
Bonnville, July 16 — (CP) — George Purvis MacKeigan, 25, of R.R. 2, Bonnville was killed today when his motorcycle went off the road and overturned. Police said he failed to make a turn on No. 3 highway.

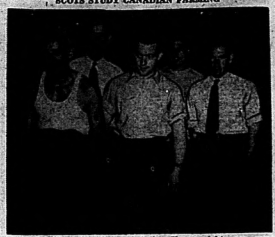
SCOTS STUDY CANADIAN FARMING



David Hamilton (in kilts), and Arthur Young, right, are young farmers from Scotland studying farm methods in Ontario. Guests of the Ontario department of agriculture they have spent three months here absorbing all they could to report to the Scottish Junior Farmers' association. Here they observe the making of a farm tractor tire in a New Toronto rubber plant.—Central Press Canadian.

"THINK NOTHING OF IT, FOLKS"

Bryan Hoffman, nine, rescued his little sister, Patti Louise, three, from drowning at Lake Simcoe, Ont. But least impressed of anyone is Bryan. "She rolled over off a pier and I jumped in and pulled her out", he said. And that's all he has to say about it.—Central Press Canadian.

TRAGEDY STRIKES THREE TIMES

Triple tragedy has struck at Mrs. Fred Tyrrell of Scarboro, Ont. Out of four children she has now only Geraldine, shown with her. Latest death occurred recently when her son, Melville, 16, died when swimming in Lake Ontario to retrieve a ball. One other child was killed by an automobile, a third died of brain tumor.—Central Press Canadian.

TRUCE TALKS BEGIN HERE AGAIN

Meetings of the truce committees of Communist and U.N. forces will again take place at the Kaesong mansion, following the Red acceptance of Gen. Ridgway's proposals to have news representatives present. Reds also agreed to "neutralize" the area around Kaesong which is taken to mean that all representatives will be unarmed and unescorted by armed guards.—Central Press Canadian.

GIRL ASSAULTED

Ottawa, July 14. (CP) — An eight-year-old girl was criminally assaulted Friday night by a "man in a car" and city and Ontario Provincial Police immediately began a road-blocking, lane-scouring search. The girl, in hospital, was unable to give much additional information to aid the hunt.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

"Snakes!" Lucilla's head withdrew from the telescope hastily. "Even a snake has sense enough to slough off that skin when it gets too scaly," Miss Dottie announced. "And as Mary Meadows always tells the students, we must follow Nature if we're going to get anywhere."

She put her eye to the telescope again. "Mrs. Weeks!" There was anguish in her tone. "Have you had your face out in the sun?"

"Why, I swear I was! She had sat on the bench in Washington Square the day before, while Moopy rode her bike around the fountain.

"Don't ever, ever do that again. Mary Meadows says a woman over 35 must never allow the sun to touch the face directly."

Lucilla found herself standing heritably alone against one mirror, with her classmates all on the opposite team. For some reason (perhaps because the floor mother said "hold it, girls") she had the feeling she must keep her eyes fixed straight ahead, on some particular object. Since the Bulgies were the only objects in her direct line of vision, this was awkward; there was an irresistible urge to find their weakest parts, at a sagging middle or a protuberant leg at the back, or the cast point of an upper hip or the lowest lap of chin. Seeing them all at once had a peculiar, almost rowrbil realization of how large a miracle was needed, to produce the New You. Doubt began to stretch through her tighter skin. She couldn't help their figures standing there, until a movement at the door distracted her. Lucilla Golden had lined up forming a kind of archway. Miss Dottie stood in front of them, and gave the impression she was about to blow a bugle, or, lack a bugle, beat a drum-roll, "Miss Meadows."

A tall regally handsome blonde woman walked through the archway of Glamour Guides and stood in the middle of nothing, not saying a word until the hush could be cut with a vowel tone. "Hello, girls." The unbelievably greeting Her voice had that warm, devastating simplicity of a healing clay who comes out before the curtain on opening night to display perfect teeth, and the large dark eyes.

Still smiling, Miss Meadows strolled up and down the line surveying the Bulgies, occasionally murmuring encouragement. When she turned to check on the bonies and found only one, she gave Lucilla a delightfully congratorial smile. There was such superb confidence radiated out of her that when she said mmmmmm at a Bulgy or smiled at the Bony, there was not one thing everything would be all right. "Now if you just make yourselves comfy on those benches that have been placed at the back we can really get started." As soon as they'd sat, she said briskly:

"I'm old enough to be your grandmother." She accepted the gasps and murmurs of disbelief as her due. "And so I know what Beautiful-You can do for you. But only—" here she flung back her head, half shut her eyes, and thanked—"only if you work and work and work."

Her disciples almost swayed in time to chant.

Mary Meadows became suddenly stern. "But if any of you feel lazy, go home and never come back." She pointed to the door in dramatic fury, and waited. Nobody went. "Another thing we don't tolerate is tardiness. We won't even overlook a day's absence without a written excuse from your doctor."

The tougher she made it sound the more rapidly they listened. Even Paris Green looked impressed, or at least less sleepy. Like a football coach who goads his boys with warnings, Miss Meadows was making her students fiercely determined to get in there and fight for Beautiful You. "And if any of you cheat, you may even be expelled!"

Miss Meadows bent her sleekly cuffed head, and hushed her voice, to show that she was about to share a secret. "Let's say you want to lose 30 pounds. Well, my process of dieting is amazingly simple. For the first week you just eat your own fat—like bacon—till it's all gone."

Several of the listeners' faces became clouded with doubt, at this idea of eating oneself like beans. "You think that sounds horrid, children? You're wrong! It's marvelous."

Lucilla's mind had begun to register that the bench was hard. She shifted carefully. Mary Meadows' eyes caught the slight motion. "And for our sweet little honey," she said, "we'll of course have special exercises and diet.

Oh how the rest of you will envy her beautiful creamy food, at times! But—and listen carefully—if you're ever tempted to stray from your diet let's say you go to a cocktail party and the center horz d'oeurves look soooo pretty." Her voice shifted gears and changed into high. "Do you know what you're eating, class? Putrified fish eggs. Nothing but putrified old fish eggs." Her lips curled. "Hardly worth the sacrifice of your figure, is it, class?" Her head pivoted in a scornful no.

Then her tone changed again to caress. "Now, girls, I'll tell you eat a vegetable plate, it's like a lovely warm poultice of healing herbs, drawing out the poisons and leaving only a New You that is clean, pure, so ready for living."

Lucilla, who loathed vegetable plates, had hardly wait to apply the poultices and start living. Mary Meadows' voice was saying: "But now to introduce the people who will help build the New You. First, Posture. Miss Willit and Mrs. Mavely." Miss Willit and a brunette Glamour Guide stepped forward and stood for perhaps half a second, smiling their smiles of pearl smiles. The students' eyes followed the beautiful things gracefully, as they retreated to the archway. "Now our Clothes Consultant, Miss Costlewaite" dashed up and whispered something. Miss Meadows said "goodness, I forgot that our Mrs. Mavely drilly is off giving a fashion talk to a great corporation, this very day."

She waved toward the Guide in the mauve smock. "And great Miss Dottie through the Pere Telescope. Let's see who's next—Hello, Ballroom Grace and Tango—Mr. George Lyngate." A pleasant – looking blonde boy glided to her side, bowed and glided away, "And our authority on hair."

A willow-hipped person in fawn-colored trousers and a white-silk shirt entered, placing his feet one before the other with the deliberate precision of a ballet dancer. Miss Meadow's smile was a wee bit pushed. "This is Monsieur Pierre, who will recolf, and show you how to wake up that scalp." Monsieur Pierre stood, one bowing right and left; Miss Meadows indicated by a graceful flick of her hand that he might retire to the wings.

"Now Mrs. Heath Jones, our accomplished Voice Guide." Mrs. Heath Jones, a high-gaited, briskly curried type strode up. She said "How do you do, mmmmmm of the" Sprrrrring Terrrr." The resonance of her R's vibrated the mirrors. The two ladies bowed to each other. "And last but not least—our expert on Brain Cosmetics" She extended a gracious hand to draw the newcomer forward. "Mr. Derek Marlowe."

Lucilla stared. Her scalp came awake; her whole body pricked up. Of all the miracles Beautiful-You had promised to spring, this unscheduled first one was the most extraordinary. There standing beside Mary Meadows, was the tall, dweedy, unbelievably cheek-boned man of her fantasy.

RUNAWAY MOTORBOAT

Bala, July 16—(CP)— A Toronto man and woman narrowly missed being hit by a runaway motorboat on Lake Muskoka after they were tossed out of the gyrating craft Sunday.

Frank Ashbourne, 28, toppled out of the boat when it was caught by the swell of passing craft and Ruty Miller, 22, also fell into the water in attempting to escape being him down.

While the empty boat buzzed around in circles, a nearby boat pulled Ashbourne from the water. Miss Miller swam to shore.

FAMINE ENDS WITH PRIEST'S BLESSING

Lots of fish now, is the story of Killarney, Ont., where a fish famine was ended soon after the blessing of the fishing waters by Father Vincent McHugh, Roman Catholic priest. The community, which faced disaster after two years of poor fishing, the main source of income, suddenly found their nets bulging where formerly they would catch but one or two. They plan to erect a church to commemorate the event.—Central Press Canadian.

56 Injured When Vermont Train Crashes Into Freight

Swanton, Vt., July 16—(AP)— A slowly moving Central Vermont Railway passenger train crashed into the rear of an idling freight train Sunday injuring 56 persons —none critically.

The collision crushed the freight train's caboose and knocked three freight cars off the track, tying up traffic for several hours.

Thirty persons were treated at Kirk Memorial Hospital, St. Albans and six at St. Albans Hospital, St. Albans. Hospital attaches said most of them suffered cuts and bruises.

Many were able to re-board the Canadian National Railways-owned train after treatment and continue to Boston and New York. The train splits at White River Junction, Vt.,—one section going to Boston and the other to New York.

Two detained at Kirk Memorial for further treatment were identified as Mrs. Bertha Dumoulin of St. Lambert, Que., and Arnold Gordon of Boston.

The station agent at Swanton said the freight was idling in the yard awaiting orders when the crash occurred. He said the crew of the passenger train—The Ambassador—apparently jumped to safety.

The train left Montreal at 9.30 a.m. EDT en route to Boston. Service resumed about 5 p.m. EDT.

J. A. Rogers, general manager of the CNR-owned Central Vermont Railroad, confirmed that none of the passengers was injured seriously. Rogers said the Central Vermont passenger train had slowed down near the station and was not travelling more than 20 miles an hour.

Britain Backs Up Strong Protest With Destroyers

London, July 16 (AP)—Britain is sending four destroyers from the Mediterranean into the Red Sea where Egyptians dared to try to humble the Union Jack.

The warships will pass through British-guarded Egyptian territory via the Suez Canal.

The Admiralty order follows an indignant British protest over the stopping and search of the small freighter Empire Roach in the Red Sea by an Egyptian corvette.

LIGHTNING STARTS FIRES

Perth, July 16 (CP)—Lightning started two fires in this district Sunday with total loss estimated at $5,000.

Damage of $4,000 was caused to the Perth planing mill and only prompt action of the Perth fire brigade saved the plant. Twelve miles east, near Smiths Falls, a bolt of lightning started a fire which caused $1,000 damage to the home of Neil Gillespie.

Newspapers Ignore Government Ban

Stockholm, Sweden, July 16 — (Reuters)—Stockholm's three biggest newspapers today flouted a government ban and published a report on the conduct of a cabinet minister whose name is linked with allegations of homosexuality and blackmail.

The newspapers — the Conservative Svenska Dagbladet and Liberal Stockholms-Tidningen and Dagens Nyheter—called for the resignation of Nils Quensel, minister without portfolio.

The report resulted from an inquiry by a government-appointed citizens' committee.

The Labor government banned 12 pages of the committee's 323-page report. But three newspapers defied the ban.

TRUMAN ORDERS ALL AGENCIES TO AID FLOOD VICTIMS

Fire and flood present a disastrously unique problem in Kansas City, Mo., where smoke billows (top) from a quarter-million gallons of gasoline burning in an inundated two-square-block section. In Topeka, Kan., fire likewise hits an oil installation (bottom) in the midst of rising waters. The worst flooding in the history of Missouri and Kansas mount above a half-billion-dollar damage record. In spite of the water all around, water fit to drink is at present rationed in Kansas City. — Central Press Canadian.

QUEBEC OFFICER ACCIDENTALLY KILLED IN KOREA

Maj. Dube Was Veteran Of 2nd World War

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

West Sector, Korea, July 17—(CP)—Maj. J. L. Y. Dube, 33, of Quebec City, acting second in command of the Royal 22nd Regiment, was accidentally killed Monday by a pistol shot.

He had taken over the post in the famous French-Canadian unit after the death of Maj. J. P. Gosselin of Verdun, Que., killed July 9 when an armored car blew up.

Maj. Dube was killed by a bullet from a revolver which another officer's batman had just cleaned and given to a Korean houseboy to return to its holster.

Maj. Dube was standing talking to Capt. J. P. R. (Pat) Tremblay of Quebec City outside the revolver owner's caravan. The shot went through the wall, killing him instantly.

Born at Lac-au-Saumon, Que., Maj. Dube served during the Second World War in the United Kingdom, Sicily, Italy and northwest Europe and later joined the permanent force.

He was married at Fort Lewis, Wash., during the regiment's training period there and his widow, Mrs. Monique C. Dube, now lives at 338 Champlain St., St. Jean, Que.

Committee Votes Against Boosting Flood Relief Fund

Washington, July 17 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee voted today against increasing an emergency flood relief fund in the middle west from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000, Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep., Mass.) told reporters the committee felt it would be more sensible to await complete data on needs and then take whatever action might be necessary.

The House of Representatives yesterday increased President Truman's request for $15,000,000 to $25,000,000, and it had been expected that the Senate would go along.

Ahead of the committee's action, Senator John L. McClellan (Dem. Ark.) pointed to the disastrous flood as an excessive burden for the nation who call flood control projects "pork barrel" legislation. He (Congress) a few years ago had appropriated $300,000,000 for flood control reservoirs in the Missouri Valley, reporter, "we would have been spared this flood loss of at least twice that amount."

Maj.-Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Army Engineers, has estimated that the damage will be at least $750,000,000 and maybe much higher.

He said similar potential flood danger exists in at least 100 other places over the United States.

But, he said, too often when Congress votes money for flood control it also raises a cry of "pork barrel".

MING SUNG FIRM PAID FEW TAXES DIEFENBAKER SAYS

Claims Ship Company Paid on Only $100

Moose Jaw, Sask., July 17 (CP) — John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Lake Centre, Sask., said last night the Ming Sung Corporation was exempted from all but $100 federal income tax in 1950.

The corporation is allowed by a directive of the cabinet to operate Canadian - registered ships with Chinese crews between Hong Kong and the Chinese communist port of Canton.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a public meeting that an income tax exemption was provided for by a cabinet directive of May 11, 1950, but it was concealed until last month.

He said he has learned that the Ming Sung Corporation was incorporated in Prince Edward Island, although the solicitors were in Montreal, "to escape income taxation in Quebec."

The Ming Sung Corporation was the centre of hot debate in parliament last month when opposition members questioned the government's action in allowing Canadian - registry ships to be manned by Chinese crews.

Four Other Points

Mr. Diefenbaker covered four other points in his controversial talk.

The company made default in payment April 12, 1951, but no action was taken by the government to collect because of a request for a postponement because some of the ships had been held up in harbor and unable to earn money. The Canadian government, by order-in-council, had guaranteed bank loans for nine ships to be used by the Nationalist government of China. Before the ships were built, the communists took over the Chinese government.

(2) When the exemption was granted allowing the Chinese crew, the Canadian order-in-council was thought to be unlawful for the government of Hong Kong and the British then passed an order-in-council to confirm it.

(3) Now, in 1950, there was a letter to the effect that the Canadian government objected for "some political reason" to the Chinese crew.

(4) An agreement was made between the government and the Ming Sung Corporation March 31, 1950. Payments seven ships and guaranteeing the three banks concerned $12,750,000.

Agenda Discussions Still Continue Without Decision

No Heated Arguments Mar Parleys Says Spokesman

Munsan, Korea, July 17. (AP) —An Allied spokesman said communists raised a new point in Korean war cease-fire discussions today. But that came as no surprise to the United Nations delegation.

The spokesman did not report the nature of the new point.

Both he and an official communique said "some progress" was made in the fifth day of armistice conference at Kaesong. Delegates are still arguing about the agenda.

The spokesman, Col. James A. Norell, said he had no idea how long delegates would be working on the agenda.

The negotiators spent an hour and 35 minutes on it Tuesday. They will resume at 10 a.m. Wednesday (8 p.m., Tuesday E.D.T.).

There was considerable "back-and-forth discussion," Norell said, but no heated arguments.

Brief Reports

Allied announcement about armistice meetings were brief but communist reports were even shorter. The North Korean and Pyongyang radio merely gave the time the meeting opened and the time it closed. Its reports have been silent since the talker resumed Sunday.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief communist delegate, opened Tuesday's sessions, a U.S. Eighth Army announcement said. Most of the 55-minute morning session was devoted to a discussion between Nam and Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate, of the Allied proposals for the agenda.

In the afternoon Nam elaborated on the red's idea of what the agenda should include. He apparently came with the English and Chinese translations of his remarks already prepared.

The afternoon session of the conference was more formal, the army statement said. It added:

Controller Innes Of Toronto Dies, Short Illness

Toronto, July 17 (CP) —John M. Innes, 65, a Scot from Aberdeen who served 12 years in civic politics, died last night without achieving his ambition of becoming mayor of Canada's second-largest city.

But, as vice-chairman of Toronto's four-man board of control he was acting mayor during Mayor L. McCallum's recent trip to Britain. The task, added to the heavy duties he undertook as controller, sent him to bed a little more than a week ago for a rest on doctor's orders.

John Innes came to Canada from Scotland in 1904 at the age of 18 as a carpenter's apprentice. Later he took up a successful career as a building contractor. He was first elected in 1929 as alderman for a north-end ward. An office he held until his election to Board of Control in 1947.

Favorite of Voters

In the January, 1950, election he received 96,312 votes, more than any other controller in Toronto history. He topped the polls again in the last election. In recent months there has been talk around city hall that he would run for mayor next year if Mayor McCallum retired.

During the Second World War he met almost every troop train that brought Toronto men home from overseas. He organized and directed the Evening Telegram British War Victims' fund, which, in five years, sent $3,000,000 to Britain. He also was in charge of Toronto's farm commando brigade.

His wartime work won him the decoration of officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Over the years, he, too, was an ardent soccer fan. He kicked off for a game at all big games here between international teams.

His funeral will be held Thursday.

LOWER TAX RATE

Cornwall, Ont., July 17 (CP) — Cornwall township council Monday struck its 1951 tax rate at 43 mills, a decrease of 6.5 mills over the 1949 rate.

The reduction was attributed to a supplementary grant of $26,000 by the Ontario Highways Department on an over-expenditure of $52,000 on roads last year and to an increase of $70,000 in industrial assessment. The latter netted $30,000 in additional revenue.

LORD HOLDEN STRANGLED

Blackpool, England — The coroner found today that Lord Holden, 51 - year - old Deputy Speaker of the House of Lords, was strangled to death by a piece of lobster.

Holden collapsed and died July 6 while eating lobster salad at the home of a friend.,

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 17 (CP) Synopsis: Relief from the oppressive heat of the last two days came to southern Ontario late Monday and Tuesday. Scattered thunderstorms accompanied the advance of cooler air as it pushed south of the lower lakes.

Although most of Ontario will enjoy a good deal of sunshine today, a disturbance extending through Manitoba and the Dakotas is moving toward the province and it threatens to bring cloudiness again north of Lake Superior Wednesday morning and to southwestern counties by Wednesday afternoon.

Harrimam's Talks With Officials Held in Secrecy

Tehran, Iran, July 17—(Reuters)—Averell Harriman today met Iran's Premier, Baqir Kazemi, for new talks aimed at an oil truce between Iran and Britain.

Both Iranian and American sources were secretive about the outcome.

The hour-long session between President Truman's special envoy and the Iranian official was believed centred on Iran's rejection of the international court's recommendation that both sides mark time until a just ruling can be reached.

Harriman's visit late last night to the British Ambassador, Sir Francis Shepherd, was also shrouded in secrecy.

Firm Attitude

Some observers figured Harriman was running into the same Iranian brick wall attitude which had balked earlier peace-making moves by U.S. Ambassador Henry Grady.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Kazemi have made it clear to Harriman they are neither prepared to budge from the letter of the oil nationalization law nor ready to accept the world court recommendation.

A repercussion from the bloody rioting in which 20 died, which greeted Harriman's arrival last Sunday, today broke up a meeting of the lower house, the Majlis. The order to arrest the Mossadegh government.

The weekend street fighting began with a Tudeh party (communist) demonstration against U.S. participation in the oil struggle. Anticommunists and police joined in the melee.

3 Killed, 11 Injured In Train Wreck

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 17 (AP)

A Nickel Plate freight and a Wabash passenger train collided with a thunderous roar at a crossover junction last night. Three trainmen were killed and 11 persons were hurt.

The trains piled up in a tangled mass near New Haven, seven miles east or here. State Police said the freight rammed and sideswiped the passenger train, splintering a day coach.

Both trains were westbound, travelling on rails nearly parallel near the cross-over.

State police said crew members of both trains reported they had green "go-ahead" signals just before the collision.

Labor Members Embarrassed By Long Memory of Colleague

London, July 17 —(CP) — Princess Margaret will get her annual allowance starting next month but a lot of red-faced Labor ministers wish the question had never come up.

Yesterday the House of Commons gave unopposed second reading to a bill enabling £6,000 to be paid annually to Princess Margaret after the coming of age Aug. 21. Prime Minister Attlee explained there had been a small technical omission—a 1937 act provided for payment but did not authorize it in statutory form.

Then Emrys Hughes, a pacifist Labor member whose views sometimes outrage his own colleagues, embarked on a 14-year flashback. He reminded the House that in 1937 Labor had opposed the payment. He recalled a Labor amendment calling for the more simplicity" in the daily life of the court.

Who had voted against the £6,000 annuity? he asked. said Hughes, among them were the present Prime Minister, Home Secretary Chuter Ede and chief Labor whip, William Whitely.

Attlee, Ede and Whitely all were present in the House yesterday. None replied—not even Conservative leader Winston Churchill, grinning happily, called out: "It is never too late to mend."

Late News Briefs

Toronto (CP) —Princess Elizabeth, if she accepts an offer by the Fur Industry of Canada, will be presented with an ermine evening coat when she comes to Canada this fall.

The meeting brought Field Marshal Sir William Slim, British and American military life, including Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery and the British and United States commanders in Germany.

Singapore (Reuters) — Communist terrorists killed 16 persons, including a police officer and a rubber planter, in attacks in Malaya yesterday and today. Other guerrillas burned down a farmhouse and destroyed seven buses.

Langley, England—(Reuters)—Five Portuguese air force officers arrived here today to begin a course of American fighter planes to take part in a film about the 1940 Battle of Britain.

There are only two air-worthy Hurricanes left in Britain of the 18,000 produced during the war.

Scientist Conducts Research in Field On Ways to Improve Battle Methods

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, July 17 (CP)—Science marches with the troops when the Canadians go into battle.

The representative is Maj. Hodgson Goodfellow, of Kingston, Ont., whose job is to study the factors that govern the performance of infantry in action.

He is one of the scientific research tries to find better ways of using existing equipment, develop new gadgets and to suggest improvements to it.

Drenching Rain Floods Cellars In Many Areas

Toronto, July 17 —(CP) — A series of summer thunderstorms moved across southern Ontario yesterday, giving weather-weary residents another afternoon of bailing out cellars.

Oshawa, Pickering and London and Ingersoll districts were hardest hit. In Oshawa, 4,000 employees at the General Motors plant were sent home from the night shift when water flooded part of the plant and the surrounding districts.

Ontario Liberal leader Walton Thomson had his driveway washed away at Pickering. Elsewhere in the village, five cottages were flooded and No. 2 highway was partially out.

Loses Poultry Fen

E. L. Deflase said he lost 200 hens when his chicken coop was washed away by flood waters from two streams that overflowed their banks in Pickering.

In western Ontario, the storms injured numerous persons and a combination of high winds and lightning caused heavy damage in several areas.

Middlesex and Oxford counties, where a tornado struck, were flattened with some farmers reporting heavy loss. Hail was reported in some districts.

A barn owned by George M. West of North Oxford was lightning struck and burned to the ground.

Hydro service in Thamesford and Embro was interrupted for five hours. Streets in Ingersoll were turned into miniature rivers.

Further weather: Cloudy and cool. No rain for . . .ah . . . "A while at least."

Hold Little Hope For Survival of Starved Children

Hull, Que., July 17. (CP)— Hospital authorities said today there is "little hope at the moment" for survival of a 6-year-old boy and his five-months-old baby sister, both suffering from advanced starvation.

They are the children of Joshua Peck, 55, who told reporters he and his 72-year-old wife has been unable to provide properly for their family on their lonely, 300-acre farm near Danford, Que., 40 miles northwest of here and up the Gatineau River valley.

The youngsters were brought to Sacred Heart hospital here during the weekend after another child, four-year-old Elmer James, was found dead in a primitive crib in the remote farm home.

Boy 11, Drowns In Stoco Lake

Tweed (Special) — Artificial respiration practised for more than three hours failed to revive 11-year-old Gregory Coyle at Tweed Monday evening after he was found in deep water while swimming in Stoco Lake.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Coyle, Pacific Ave., Toronto, and had been in Tweed only a few days when spending the day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Coyle.

After having his supper last evening, the boy went for a swim off the park pavilion in the lake. A friend of the diving boy heard and had swam only a short distance when he called for help.

A small playmate, Donnie Reid, 9, of Tweed, went to the rescue but he was nearly dragged under. He managed to struggle free and to the shore. Constable Arthur A. Countryman, 16, who brought the Coyle boy to the mainland. Constable Coyle had been in the water less than 15 minutes.

Chief of Police George Spratt sent through a call to Belleville and Firemen Smith and Rump and Sergt. Bert Hall with the ambulance. Bush's Ambulance Service also was on their respective beat. The equipment was used for three hours before the boy was pronounced dead by Dr. M. D. Jackson.

FOUR INJURED

St. Thomas, Ont., July 17 (CP) — Four persons were brought to St. Thomas Memorial Hospital today following a two-car collision at New Glasgow, 50 miles west. Most seriously injured is Mrs. John M. McLean of St. Thomas. John M. McLean, Mrs. C. W. Bere of London and Mrs. Edward Wilcox of Chicago suffered minor wounds.

Rainmaker Fails To Make Good

Victoria, B.C., July 17 (CP) —About 200 drought-troubled Victoria residents gathered on a few curious onlookers turned up last night to witness the final attempt of Canada's only rainmaker Donald Johnston.

Under a darkening sky, a rocket machine was assembled and set in motion, oscillating silently on a wooden block.

Some in the crowd called it a joke" when the "rain" failed every now and again they sneaked a look at the sky to see if it was accomplishing anything. It didn't.

Soft Talk of Friendly Relations Featured in Moscow Publication

Moscow, July 17 (AP)—Western diplomats today were giving their attention to a new Soviet English - language publication, "News"and its theme that peaceful relations between Russia on one hand and the United States and Britain on the other are possible despite regardless of political differences.

Soft talk of peaceful east-west relations has often been voiced in the Soviet but this is the specific application to relations with Britain and the U.S. It is a line not frequently found of late in Soviet publications.

Western observers are much interested that the Russians are launching a publication with such a statement at a time when the Soviet has resumed four-power trade talks in Berlin and when the North Korean and Chinese communists—the Russian puppets—are holding truce talks in Korea.

The first semi-monthly issue of "News" features articles citing a lengthy historical tradition of friendship between Russia on the one hand and the U.S. and Britain on the other.

The articles addressed to Americans is by Alexander Troyanovsky, who was Soviet envoy to the U.S. That concerning Anglo-Russian friendship is by Eugene Tarle, leading Soviet historian.

Continuance of this traditional amity, especially in peacetime and desirable, both articles assert, adding that there is no valid reason why the two nations should not exist at present.

Pospelov quoted extensively from the writings of Marx and Lenin to show Russia long had been a target of American "imperialism."

"News", however, while condemning current "warmongering" by U.S. and British leaders, is stressing past periods of friendship and co-operation.

RASPBERRIES SLIGHTLY EASIER IN PRICE

Raspberries eased off slightly in price on the Toronto market today as vendors offered 50c baskets for both red and blackberries.

Buckle prices held at the previous figure of $2.50 per basket or 30c per quart. Montmorency cherries, locally grown, were $1.30 per basket. Gooseberries were 30c to 35c and currants 25c. A few black-caps brought 40c per box.

Potatoes dropped off to 75c per peck with 90c being asked for basket lots.

KINSMEN DISCUSS PLANS FOR CARNIVAL

Members of the local Kinsmen Club held their July meeting at the Hotel Quinte Monday evening at which their forthcoming carnival on Firemen's Park at the south end of Front Street, was discussed. Kin Newt Wilbur reported on what would be expected of the club members during the carnival which is scheduled for early in August.

There was no guest speaker for the meeting which was presided over by Murray Davis, club president.

POWER FAILURE DELAYS MILKING TIME

It was late milking for numbers of farmers in the northern Amelasburg district Monday evening when just at milking time the sudden rain storm caused a power failure lasting over three hours.

Some of the farmers adopted a waiting attitude with result that milking was three hours late, while others decided not to depend on restoration of power and did their milking by hand. One farmer said he and his family had finished 22 cows by hand. "And we got more milk too, but possibly that was because milking was later than usual," he said.

Y Camp Ends First Period Of Program

Every nook and corner was filled to capacity on Saturday night as new campers moved into the Morris Lake Y.M.C.A. camp for an experience of fun and happy days ahead. Reluctantly the campers who stay had terminated departed homeward after a few convinced their parents that they would like to stay on.

Don Hackett was rewarded for his effort in learning to swim when he passed examinations this week. Bill Cornell as counsellor-in-training and his cabin won high honors for the week in neatness.

Other campers who have been acting as counsellors-in-training are Barrie Wright, Gordon Campbell, John Marshall, Don Donnelly and Joe Kennedy.

At the conclusion of the boys' camp, the girls will take over. Already the first period has been filled and within a few days it is expected that registration will be closed. Parents are advised to act quickly to avoid disappointment.

Jail Term Given For Clothing Theft

Appearing for sentence after pleading guilty last week to a charge of theft, Victor Allen Bowers, of St. Catharines and Oshawa, Judge Ian Hamilton's court was sentenced to six months in jail.

Last week Bowers was convicted of stealing bed clothing valued at $60 from his rooming house on Coleman St., and was remanded until today for sentence.

A Victoria Ave. resident complained police that a camera had been stolen from the glove compartment of his car while it was parked at the armories.

Following last night's heavy rain another resident complained that while visiting on Coleman Street she had been splashed by a motorist which had been driven through a puddle.

OUT OF DANGER

Owen Sound, July 17—(CP)—Howard Thompson, 39, of nearby Elsyth, stung by swarms of bees in a bee yard last Friday, Monday night was reported out of danger. Thompson tried to save the horse when it bolted into the yard and was attacked himself by the insects. The horse was stung to death.

Highlights of Trip To Europe Told to Rotary

Guest speaker at the weekly Rotary luncheon Monday was Rotarian Jamieson Bone who related some of the highlights of his recent trip to the British Isles and Europe.

Leaving Dorval airport at 7.30 p.m. arriving in Goose Bay, Labrador around midnight. Another eight hours took them to Prestwick, Scotland. On the plane were 21 passengers and a crew of six.

Mr. Bone then flew to London where he was met by his brother at the airport. Accompanied by his brother and wife he continued on by air to Basel, on the border of France and Switzerland, and took a train to Berne. The trains in Switzerland are the ultimate in modern design and accommodation according to the speaker.

Beautiful Scenery

At Interlaken where they stayed for a day and night, a hotel with 60 big hotels and the Jungfrau is prominent in the background. The Jungfrau, a Swiss mountain, was ascended by the party to 11,000 feet where there is a restaurant cut out of the rock on the side of the mountain. There is also an ice palace completely cut out of ice containing a piano and wine keg also of ice.

Continuing on to Grunderwald, they observed snow-clad peaks, glaciers, lovely forests and other magnificent scenery. One waterfall they saw, higher than four Returning to Scotland they went via Belford, the Cheviot Hills, Edinburgh, Stirling, Trenton and to Prestwick from where the speaker returned home.

Then the speaker was introduced by Rotarian Newton Thompson and thanked by Rotarian C. H. Scott.

President Court Miller reported that the infirmary fund had landed and a report on the objective of $150 would be reached.

Guests were present from Winnipeg, Fort Pierce, Fla., South Bridge, Stirling, Trenton and the city.

Travelling Servicemen Allowed Extra Funds

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)—Travelling servicemen now will receive $5 cents more a day for meals, bringing their meal allowance to $6 a day, it was learned Monday. Before the war, a maximum of $3 daily was allowed. Officers and men on journeys now will be reimbursed for meals at these rates: breakfast, $1.65; luncheon, $2, and dinner, $2.35. The rates formerly were $1.50 $1.75 and $2.

Alta. Oil Interests U K

Montreal, July 17—(CP)— Britain is contemplating heavy investments in the Alberta oilfields to offset any loss in the Iranian fields, Clifford B. Powell of Montreal said Monday. Mr. Powell returned Monday from Europe where he attended final meetings of the British Kingdom Dollar Exports Board.

O.L.A. RAINED OUT

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Nine games in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse series were postponed due to rain during the last two weeks.

O.L.A. secretary Chuck. Rowan said Monday night the league has rescheduled six of the games as follows: July 19, Mimico V. West Works at Weston; July 20 Peterborough at Toronto; Aug. 3, Brampton at Mimico; Aug. 6, St. Catharines at Peterborough; Aug. 10, Peterborough at Mimico; Aug. 14, Fergus at St. Catharines.

Little Richard Enriquez, seven-months-old, stares in unknowing anticipation as a doctor prepares to inject the youngster with anti-typhoid shot to prevent an epidemic in the Missouri-Kansas flood area. Declaring an emergency in this flood-stricken district, President Truman has ordered all federal agencies to come to the aid of the inhabitants, who were forced to flee their homes before the overflowing Missouri river.—Central Press Canadian.

District Farmers Have Ample Reason For Complaints of Excessive Rain

Bay of Quinte district farmers have just reason for their complaints of hay being ruined by the excessive rainfall received so far this month. Statistical records bear it all out.

Thus far during the month of July a total of 4.44 inches or rain has fallen over the district, or roughly four times the average rainfall. The 40-year average for the month of July is but 2.52 inches, while rainfall last July amounted to but 1.19 inches.

Farmers already had complained loudly of the catchy hay weather claiming that hay was spoiling in the fields for want of good curing weather. And yesterday's rain just made matters worse.

In a short time yesterday afternoon and evening slightly more than an inch of rain fell causing gutters and ditches to run full. At one time during the heaviest of the rainfall water was reported to have been running across the highway midway between Belleville and Trenton.

Farmers attending market today reported that after yesterday's rainfall many fields were flooded again.

Fair Grounds Buildings Being Prepared for Annual Exhibition

All buildings at the local fair grounds will present a spic and span appearance for the four-day Belleville Fair which is just four weeks away. Fair dates are August 13 to 16.

Fair secretary Erle S. Denyes reported that all buildings on the fair grounds would have a fresh coat of paint before fair time while a new cattle barn is now in course of construction and will be ready for the fair.

Exhibition space, both inside and out, is in greater demand this year, according to the secretary. Also the prize list is bigger and more prize money is being offered.

As in previous years Conklin will provide the midway attractions and with the Belleville fair coming just before the C.N.E., all the best rides and sideshows will play here before going on to the Ex. Norman Harris Artists of Toronto will provide the grandstand performance and other flight entertainment is being arranged for the four afternoons and nights of the fair.

Entries for the horse classes are already being received at the secretary's office and a fine horse show is assured. Guernsey cattle breeders will also be out in force with more than 100 entries in this class already in.

Lovers of horse racing will also have their innings with races being scheduled for three days of the fair. Fourteen hundred dollars in purses is being offered for races.

Alert Constable Identifies Escaped Prisoner

Barrie, July 17 — (CP)—Provincial Police Constable Harry Carter was one look at Fernand Dumont and decided the face was familiar.

Wheeler recognized the 23-year-old escaped convict, serving a 10-week sentence in Simcoe county jail for joy riding and escaping custody, from a picture in a Montreal paper, as an escape artist from St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary, Que.

But Dumont's fingerprints had been sent to R.C.M.P. headquarters in Ottawa shortly after he was picked up here in a stolen automobile last month. They were returned with a note that he was not wanted for any other crime.

The constable, whose hobby is criminal identification, was unsatisfied. The fingerprints were sent back. Yesterday, a telegram from Ottawa confirmed his suspicions.

Dumont, who gave his alias here as Jack Dion Martin, escaped June 19 from the Quebec penitentiary 25 cents.

Last summer, he escaped from Sorel, Que., jail, but was recaptured by Montreal detectives. When he was sentenced to 10 years for burglary and escape.

Two months later, he repeated his feat from the same jail and fled to Northern Quebec, where he was recaptured and sent to the penitentiary.

WALLBRIDGE

W.A. Holds Enjoyable Pie, Ice Cream Social

Wallbridge — On Wednesday night last the W.A. held their pie and ice cream social in the Orange Hall, with a full house and liberal sale. Ladies gathered to get a full supply of ice cream, pie and tarts of which all did justice.

The proceeds of the evening was $96. After supper a good program was given by the local talent and the boys choir of Wallbridge, with their leader, Mr. Bent. The choir rendered the following, "How Do You Do Everybody," "Emperor Napoleon", "Are You Sleeping", "Old Macdonald Had a Farm" and "Coming Round the Mountain."

Mrs. Ross Fisher, a guitar selection with Mrs. Mac Clair at the piano, Misses Shirley and Sandra Fisher, accompanied by their father, Mr. Ross Fisher, sang a couple of duets which were enjoyed by all and six of the local girls gave three selections with Mrs. Charles Fair as accompanist. The choir gave an interpretation of the Andrew Sisters, singing "Quicksilver" and "Down on the Farm" which were greatly enjoyed by all. Mr. Bent also put on a skit "Fishing Line" also a cackle contest was held during the program with the local boys and girls taking part in both. Solos were well received entitled "It is No Secret", "Bless This House", "Grandfather's Clock."

One of the highlights of the evening was the singing of "Auld Lang Syne", a duet which made much laughter by old and young. A couple of skits were given "Mammy", (Al Jolson) and "Glow Worm" (Spike Jones) which caused much merriment.

Rev. Neelands was then called upon to make a few remarks and the concert closed with "Whispering Hope."

Mrs. Sine president of the W.A. thanked Mr. Bent and his choir for giving such a splendid program also to his helpers, Mrs. McBride accompanist, Mrs. Carder, Mrs. Grandame and Mrs. Large who takes care of the canteen, also to local talent who gave splendid selections. Thanks were tendered to the people who kindly brought the boys out in their cars.

Sherman's Visit to Spain Indicates U.S. Desire for Closer Co-operation

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Washington, July 17—(CP)—Admiral Forest P. Sherman's visit to Madrid is thought to indicate a desire by the United States to open some kind of military understanding with Spain despite British and French opposition.

Washington officials expressed this general view but declined to discuss the specific subject of the U. S. chief of naval operations' lengthy talk yesterday with Generalissimo Franco.

They noted that Admiral Sherman started his round of high level conferences in Madrid, before going on to France, Italy and Britain and before seeing General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Atlantic Pact commander.

The London Foreign Office promptly disclosed that Britain had advised the U. S. against entering any military arrangements with General Franco. American officials have been aware of British and French opposition ever since London and Paris first sounded out months ago about a possible U. S. interest in bases and military understandings with Spain.

U. S. military leaders have made no secret of their strategic interest in Spain. General Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs-of-staff, told the House of Representatives affairs committee Friday that "from the military point of view" he would personally like to see Spain in the treaty organization.

The British government's opposition to any military arrangement with Franco Spain stems from the active opposition to Franco by Prime Minister Attlee and other labor leaders during the Spanish Civil War.

To the ruling group in Britain, Franco and his supporters are fascists.

France shares this view, with the added fear that any move to bring Spain into the Atlantic Treaty orbit would influence U.S. strategy toward the possibility of abandoning France, in case of a red onslaught, and retiring into the British Isles and North African territories formed by the Pyrenees Mountains.

Some senators have urged American officials, meanwhile, to ignore British objections and speed negotiations for air and naval bases in Spain.

TWEED

Annual Picnics Enjoyed at Tweed

Tweed—Recently a special C.P.R. train of a baggage car and eight coaches pulled into Tweed, and 11 o'clock a.m. with about 400 people on board from Peterborough. This was the annual picnic of the employees of the Ainsworth Dredge Mills with their wives and families, and also some of the staff of the Brinton Carpet Company.

The crowd finished their lunch at noon, a program of sports, swimming and other forms of entertainment was enjoyed at Memorial Park. Two visitors went sight-seeing, some shopping around town; some took the opportunity of looking through the new Municipal Building, looking over the churches and schools. The train left at 9 o'clock daylight saving time for home and reported an enjoyable day had been spent at Tweed.

Last Sunday the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Belleville enjoyed their annual picnic at Tweed Memorial Park. Chartered buses transported the veterans, wives and families to Tweed and it was estimated that they were over 400 made the journey. A program of sports was run off in the afternoon with a large number of children taking part in the races.

The children enjoyed the excellent swimming facilities at the park. All left for home after spending an enjoyable day at Tweed.

TWO BODIES FOUND

Sudbury, July 17 — (CP) — Bodies of two sudbury district miners, drowned while fishing at Donald Lake, some 40 miles north of here, were recovered Monday.

The two men, Russell O'Neill, 39, a shift boss at Falconbridge nickel mines and Jack Manning, an International Nickel Company worker at Garson Mine, are believed to have drowned either Thursday or Friday while on a fishing trip.

Briton Completes Second Ocean Crossing in Yawl

Plymouth, England, July 17—(AP)—Edward Allcard completed his second crossing of the Atlantic today in a 34-foot yawl. He did it alone, except for the stretch between the Azores and Lisbon, when he had a pretty young poetess as a stowaway.

Allcard, 36, a London naval architect, sailed his tiny ship "Temptress" into harbor today to end an 11-month trip across the Atlantic from New York. He had made his first 5,000-mile crossing from Gibraltar to New York in 1949—all alone that time.

When Allcard left the Azores on his second crossing, he found pretty, Odile Prayo, 23, a Portuguese poetess, had stowed away. He put her off at Lisbon but she has since come to England.

The last leg of the return journey was not uneventful. It took Allcard 40 days to come from Casablanca. He arrived here red-eyed from lack of sleep and with only five potatoes, a handful of hardtack and two tins of corned beef left.

Mother and Son Travel 4000 Miles by 'Thumb'

Montreal, July 17 — (CP) — A 51-year-old mother and her young son arrived here today from Kelowna, B.C., after a two-week hitch-hiking trip. They hope to reach Halifax before next weekend.

Mrs. Gladys Travis and 12-year-old Jimmy said on her arrival that she was weary but thoroughly enjoyed the journey. She plans to attend a reunion with her parents in Halifax.

Mrs. Travis and nine children will have covered more than 4,000 miles when she completes the trip. Last year she went to Halifax in a 23-year-old car but decided this year to hitch-hike because "I thought I could see more of the country on foot."

Warships Head for Aden

Valetta, Malta, July 17 — (Reuters)—Four British destroyers left here today for Aden, Middle-covered base for two of the current Middle-East trouble centres.

The destroyers are the Chequers, Chieftain, Chevron and Chivalrous, each 1,710 tons and sporting a main armament of four 4.5 guns.

Aden lies just at the mouth of the Suez Canal, where the British have considerable forces. Ships boarded by the Egyptian officers, is also about two or three days steaming from Aden from the oil town of Abadan, Iran.

"CHIPS" DIES

Portmadoc, Wales, July 17 (AP) — Mr. "Chips" is dead.

William H. Balgarnie, who was the inspiration for novelist James Hilton's novelette, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," died at his home here at the age of 80.

He was a senior classical master at the Leys school, Cambridge, where Hilton was one of his pupils.

Determined Defence of Price Controls Being Waged by Administration

Washington, July 17 (AP) — Administration forces in the House, scenting partial victory, stood fast today in a determined defence of price controls.

Immediately at stake was the 10 percent cut on beef prices and the ceiling stabilizer Michael V. Disalle has termed the symbol of the whole attempt to stabilize prices.

Of more far-reaching effect was the fate of the overall price architect, called his tiny ship "Temptress" into harbor today to end an 11-month trip across the Atlantic from New York. He had made his first 5,000-mile crossing from Gibraltar to New York in 1949—all alone that time.

AGENDA

"The United Nations command delegation felt that some progress may be recorded in the conference sessions."

No Guards Near

For the third day there were no red guards near the tiled building where meetings are held. The allied party saw only two armed communists in Kaesong.

Both were North Korean police. One stood in a traffic circle with a red flag in one hand, a white flag in the other. He prevented traffic from entering an area in which no weapons are permitted save those carried against being escorted by armed reds.

The two negotiating teams arrived at the building by jeep shortly before 11 a.m.

The three North Korean generals, dressed in colorful grey and red uniforms, smiled slightly as they left after the day's sessions. The faces of their two Chinese comrades were non-committal.

Admiral Joy smiled as he led the U. N. delegates out.

Afterwards the delegates willingly posed for allied photographers.

FIRE FATAL TO THREE

Yorkton, Sask., July 17 — (CP) — Three members of a family are dead as the result of a fire which swept their farm home near here Sunday 10 miles north of Norquay, Sask., when six are William Katasheff and his two sons, Donald 8 and David, 2. Police at Norquay said the father mistook a can of gasoline for one of milk while starting a fire in a coal stove.

Republican leaders, favoring what they term "reasonable" controls, indicated they would be willing to allow President Truman to keep the beef rollback.

But other Republicans, together with southern Democrats, appeared determined to write an outright prohibition against all future rollbacks.

Farm state leaders, who have taken a "no compromise" stand on all rollbacks including the one on beef already in effect, conceded privately they may have to settle for the House terms.

The rollbacks cattle started late yesterday. Debate was expected to continue through today, with a vote unlikely before tomorrow.

The eighth-month extension of economic controls approved by the Senate sharply curbs price rollbacks. It falls short in other ways, too, of what the administration asked.

North Korean policemen in the standard red uniform.

No armed persons were seen within the half-mile radius of the conference area, which is an area in which no weapons are permitted save those carried against being escorted by armed reds.

THE CONSUMER LOAD IS TOO HEAVY

Tacit admission that several Canadian industries had been affected in the past few months by credit controls and by the imposition of greater taxes had been made before this week. But it remained for an official of a company which manufactures automobiles to admit in public that business had suffered a recession since the advent of credit controls.

During his admission, the official made a pertinent point, and one which reflects on the life of every Canadian today. That is that the automobile, for one, is still regarded as a luxury under the present tax scheme, and is so assessed on the market, by the government, Twenty-five years ago, an automobile was a luxury, a convenience enjoyed by a very few people. Today, it has become almost an integral part of everyday life. Yet it is not so regarded in government taxation schemes.

Far more important to the average householder than an automobile is the tax for luxury on articles absolutely essential to the maintenance of a home. In the category are included washing machines, hot plates, stoves, refrigerators, and allied appliances. This, too, is nearly out-of-date and old-fashioned. Where is the home, in this modern age, that does not need, and can operate without, such appliances? As in the case of the automobile, the appliances 25 years ago were luxuries. But with the expansion of hydro facilities, hot plates, washing machines et al have become, in 1951, bases upon which a home is built.

The imposition of such taxes is particularly hard on younger couples who find that, due to the high cost of living, both the husband and wife must work. In such cases, the electrical appliances are most necessary. After one works a full day at this or that office, the lack of a washing machine can make a pile of dirty clothes seem like a mountain. Even the lowly hot plate, the snack and light lunch blessing for working couples, is included.

Cited as an example in the automobile field were the comparative taxes on a standard model in 1939 and in 1951. In the year that the Second World War started, the taxes amounted to $55. At present, they are $525, an enormous increase. In addition, the credit restrictions, applied in the hope that the inflationary tendencies of the economy might be slowed, are adding their burden to the prospective automobile buyer. There are few people, however, who will quarrel with the credit controls; they are doing a job, no matter how hard they make the purchasing of an auto.

The continued imposition of the taxes brought down in the latest Canadian budget seems unnecessary, particularly in view of the enormous surplus the government has built up to this point of 1951.

THE TWIN FURIES, FIRE AND FLOOD

Canadians can easily sympathize with residents of Missouri and Kansas, now suffering from flood in the most disastrous fire in the history of the United States has driven 75,000 people from their homes. The area affected by the swollen rivers is made up of more than 900,000 people, and nearly all of them will feel the flood in one way or another before it is eventually confined.

The other dreaded enemy, fire, has also made its appearance. In Kansas City, Missouri, fire has raged over a seven-block area since last Friday, and at last reports, was still uncontrolled. Damages in the area is expected to exceed $500,000,000, and the site of the trouble has been designated by President Truman as a disaster area.

The heart of people in America is kind. Already, as happened at disastrous fires in Canada, and the first of Rimouski and Cabano, help is on the way. Almost every type of aid has been offered to weary fighters, and money is already being appropriated for rehabilitation when the long battle is won. Winnipeg has had its share of the helplessness of men who must fight flood waters with little equipment, has offered sandbags and pumps. All the services of the United States have transported men to the site of operations.

Missouri and Kansas will be a long time recovering from the harsh blow nature has dealt them; but their rehabilitation will be made easier by a generous continent, a continent whose citizens offer aid when it is most needed.

THE MARRIAGE OF A DAUGHTER

The western world must gasp in surprise at the pompous ceremonies enacted as Marshal Joseph Stalin's favorite daughter was married. Her gown reportedly cost $289,000, and the vodka and food was supplied by tanker and liberty ship. It is a certain thing that Pravda, the official newspaper organ of Moscow, would never dare to print such figures. It is not considered important that the citizens of the country should know what their demi-god's daughter is doing.

The picture, from an objective view, is hardly a happy one to look at. While hundreds of thousands, even millions, toil as slaves of the regime, their money is thrown about like old shoes for the daughter of the head of the state. Their lot is more to be pitied than laughed at.

TALK TO YOUTH

Some deal in doubts and fears
Young people to affright.
As if throughout the years
The wrong will master right.
They cry: "Our age has made
The world a sorry place,
Odds of which we're afraid,
We leave to you to face."

Fear the future? Why?
And of your youth such doubt.
Trustful of them am I,
To work their problems out.
They'll blunder as have we,
But also they'll succeed.
When courage has to be,
They will supply the need.

What if we said in truth,
The world is now complete,
Never again will youth
Know victory or defeat.
We've solved the problems all.
Nothing is left to do.
Henceforth till death shall call
Life holds no dreams for you?

'Tis true that we have gone
Blundering our way along.
But, you may follow on
Can right what now is wrong,
Can struggle to achieve;
Do what we've failed to do.
Bright youth, the world we leave
Needs every one of you.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the hardest things in the world to give up is an old wallet or an old purse. Most women have three or four handbags, some of them still in their cupboard bosses or in the tissue paper of three and four Christmases ago, stashed away on shelves or in the back of the more seldom opened bureau drawers. Men get new wallets not only for birthday or Christmas, but as banquet gifts and mementoes of conventions and meetings. These they tuck away in the back of their sock drawer.

When you look at the leather goods counters of the department stores and see the heaps and piles of ladies' purses of every style and description, you wonder how they can be any trade in them. Yet they go like hot cakes. When a lady buys a new dress or coat, she must have a new purse or handbag to go with it. But within a week or two, the new one is stashed with the rest, and the old familiar purse is back in hand again. By a glance one can tell how long a woman has had the new dress or coat she is wearing. If she is carrying a new handbag the outfit is less than three weeks old. If she is carrying the old and comfortable handbag, the dress or coat is probably a month old.

Men may get rid of the old wallet for no other reason than the trouble involved in changing all the membership cards, identification tickets, ancient receipts and forgotten dance programs from it to a new. Men are easy to understand.

But women will buy a new bag as quick as look at it, and consign the old one to oblivion in the junk heap, which is the dark shelf of a clothes closet, a poor place for a lady's hat to end its days, to be sure. They will buy new shoes, regardless of the traditional comfort of old ones. Trinkets and gadgets, lipsticks and costume jewelry, compacts and mesh purses, gloves they never wear, a shoehand whima woman can indulge in at then dump them all bolus bolus into an old, battered, familiar and beloved handbag.

BREAKS PRISON

Melbourne, Australia, July 17— (Reuters) — Long-term prisoner Victor Franz, 24, made a daring pre-dawn escape from Pentridge jail today by painstakingly chipping a hole in thick stone wall of his cell, climbed over an inner prison wall and then scaling an 18 foot outer wall. Few prisoners have ever escaped from Pentridge, prison official said here.

Say Diplomat Was Involved In Bomb Exchanges

Washington, July 17—(AP) — Donald MacLean, the missing British diplomat, was a member of the committee which controlled the wartime exchange between the United States and its partners in the development of the atomic bomb. A state department spokesman said Monday.

MacLean and Guy Burgess, also a British foreign official, disappeared from London May 25. They have been the object of a broad international manhunt, accompanied by suggestions both may have slipped behind the iron curtain with vital secrets.

The state department official would confirm only that MacLean was a member of the combined policy committee which dealt with top-level international relations on the A-bomb project.

That was as far as he would go in commenting on an article in U.S. News and World Report. It said MacLean knew "How many atomic bombs the west had, what were the uranium resources, how many bombs could be made with existing resources and materials."

ADVISED TO WAIT

St. Thomas, July 17—(CP) — Buyers here Monday advised farmers who combine their wheat to wait until the grain is hard and dry before harvesting it. Otherwise, the moisture content is likely to be high due to the unusually wet season, they said.

Strained Back Doesn't Stop 99-Year-Old Man

London, July 17 — (CP) — It takes more than a strained back to put Dr. John Dearness out of action for long.

The 99-year-old teacher and botanist is back into the swing of his summer activities after a few days in hospital for treatment of a strain suffered at his home here.

Dr. Dearness hurt himself as he and Dr. Percy Hewitt Moyle of Edmes and quarters, pipe, tobacco, matches, coins, fountain pen, polishing bowls, chalk, glycerin or wax to enable one to grip the bowl, cardboard, pencil and, if Ehrlich is winning, a couple of bucks, books of matches, two pouch of smoking tobacco and one of lending tobacco mixed with bits of old pipe tobacco, cloth, hair, paper etc., a note book and a pencil warranted to write under water, and a sheet of paper.

But it didn't work. Never another inspiration in the two years I carried the notebook.

It's like trying to decide, before you go to bed, what you'll dream about tonight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Freckles

If the removal of freckles requires the services of a specialist please recommend some in this city. (Mrs. M. F.)

Answer—No. Find a doctor or specialist of standing who is willing to try to remove freckles. Your family physician or any physician you know may refer you to one.

No Test for Cancer

Would a thorough blood test show whether cancer is present or not? (Mrs. A. Moody (Age of 8 Women.)

Answer—No. Nor will any Rube Goldberg machine.

A Good Virus

About five months ago I came down with that gripps virus that was so prevalent . . . Previous to my illness I had smoked cigarets and taken daily cocktails of Scotch. Now I dislike the smell of cigarets or liquor turns my stomach. (J. M. A.)

Answer—No. Such a virus is as definite as the communists Sen. McCarthy raves about. Whatever it was it left an epithem of it might be good for the country.

You Ought to Know

You keep saying exposure to cold or wet does not cause illness. It does. I have a waxist fever ear and I get along fine until I get my feet wet. I ought to know. (Mrs. L. W.)

Answer—Yes, Ma'am, you ought to know—better. And perhaps you will, if you send 25 c and stamped self-addressed envelope for the booklet Call it CTH.

Man Arrested For Ottawa Attack

Toronto, July 17 — (CP) — George L. Tilley, 50-year-old insurance adjuster, was arrested last night in connection with an attack on a seven-year-old girl in Ottawa July 13.

Tilley, married and a resident of suburban Etobicoke township, was taken into custody by police who raided a house on west-end Bloor Street.

Detective Daniel Began of the Etobicoke police said Tilley was charged with rape and abduction.

Ottawa police said they believed a man who lured the child into his automobile and later criminally assaulted her was a salesman or traveller passing through the capital.

An hour after the girl was seen getting into the car, she wandered into a service station on Bell's Corners, five miles southwest of Ottawa. She was treated at hospital for shock and sent home.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BE A DREAMER!

If a list of all the successful dreamers were to be compiled that list would contain the names of today and yesterday. Such names, for example, as the Wrights, Ford, Westinghouse, Marconi, Bell, Edison, Fulton and George Stephenson. All dreamers—whose dreams came true.

In my comparatively short lifetime I can easily recall when people scoffed at a "horseless" carriage, and to mention that people would sometime travel around the globe in a ship in the sky was unthinkable, as well as the suggestion that you could talk to a person through the air across the ocean or to any point on the earth's globe, without any wires. It wasn't so very long ago when television stories were laughed at as another Mickey project. What next?

The fact is that anyone who wants to get anywhere must be a dreamer! He must have vision, with eyes in his mind that see afar.

It was a few years ago that the idea of frozen foods was a mere experiment. And the development of a new idea for automobiles—an automatic shift of gears. Now, in short time all of these ideas have acquinced. It once was just a dream—and there were those who scoffed. But dreamers have long mind the scoffers and the doubters. They don't count with them.

I recall when the late J. H. Harriman, railroad builder, decided that a bridge across the great Salt Lake, in Utah, would be a good thing and save much mileage. But his engineers kept coming to him and telling him that such a bridge could not be built. But Harriman dreamed that it could be done, so he told his engineers to go ahead and build it. And they did. I did some thinking the first time that I rode across that bridge, years later.

You have to be a dreamer to get anywhere. All who have achieved anything notable have been dreamers. To get a thing done you first must see it as already done! Be a dreamer. That will mean that you will be a doer.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not Diseases, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

MAKE A NOTE OF THIS

It is for the phychologist to explain, and I shall not call it thinking, but this I know: Some of the most effective of these health talks, judging by the reactions of the readers, have sprung at me suddenly, out of the unconscious, clamoring to be put on paper. Say when I'm in the borderline between sleep and wake, or when I'm absorbed in a close game on the bowling green.

The difficulty is to recapture the elusive ghost of an idea when I try to recall it and put it on paper later. It seems that as in Hadman's yarns, the big ones usually get away.

Having fished a good many streams and added a reasonable luck in the attempt to retrieve one of the big ones, I decided to set up a trap. Right beside my bed I placed a pad and pencil. Next time I really did snap on the light and put the gist of it on paper before

That was about four years ago. I never made a mark on the pad. It evidently frightened off the big ones and the little ones too.

For a season I carried in addition to the paraphernalia one needs on the bowling green, that is, calipers, tape measure, mickeys and, if Dr. Dearness may pardon, a couple of bucks, books of matches, two pouch of smoking tobacco and one of lending tobacco mixed with bits of old pipe tobacco, cloth, hair, paper etc., a note book and a pencil warranted to write under water, and a sheet of paper.

But it didn't work. Never another inspiration in the two years I carried the notebook.

A Good Virus

About five months ago I came down with that gripps virus that was so prevalent . . . Previous to my illness I had smoked cigarets and taken daily cocktails of Scotch. Now I dislike the smell of cigarets or liquor turns my stomach. (J. M. A.)

Answer—No. Such a virus is as definite as the communists Sen. McCarthy raves about. Whatever it was it left an epithem of it might be good for the country.

You Ought to Know

You keep saying exposure to cold or wet does not cause illness. It does. I have a waxist fever ear and I get along fine until I get my feet wet. I ought to know. (Mrs. L. W.)

Answer—Yes, Ma'am, you ought to know—better. And perhaps you will, if you send 25 c and stamped self-addressed envelope for the booklet Call it CTH.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

What is salvation?

One of the simplest definitions is found in 1 Thessalonians 5:10: Paul says, that God has not appointed us unto wrath, but unto the obtaining of salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ who died for us, that whether we "wake or sleep we should live together with Him."

In other words, salvation is oneness with God. It involves belief, but it is more than belief. It is fellowship. We are saved when their lives are no longer lived according to their own will, but according to the will of God. When every power is yielded to the use of the Most High, when every thought is brought into subjection to His providence, when every desire is mastered and disciplined by the higher desire to do the will of God—then and only then does a man experience the rewards of salvation.

In order to live together with Him. Which means that into the drab and prosaic circumstances of everyday living we are to bring the unifying power of divine motives.

Week's Manhunt Ends as Witness Gives Himself Up

Montreal, July 17—(CP)—Norman (Red) Roy, 18, wanted by police as a material witness in the slaying of a restaurant counterman, gave himself up to Montreal police Monday night, ending a week-long nation-wide manhunt.

Roy, alias Norman McVeigh, walked into police headquarters accompanied by his parents and a lawyer.

Police have sought him since July 8 when the body of Robert Fowler, 33, was found in a mid-town rooming house. An autopsy showed Fowler died of a broken neck probably the result of a beating.

Police received a telephone call Monday night from the office of Alexander Chevalier, the youth's lawyer.

The informant said Mr. Chevalier was on his way to Montreal from Cornwall, accompanied by Roy and Roy's parents.

Beach Council Asks Applications For Police Chief

Crystal Beach, Ont., July 17—(CP) —Village council in this Lake Erie summer resort last night called for applications for the position of police chief to fill the post of Gilbert Robinson, dismissed earlier this month.

During a meeting to discuss improvements in the police administration of the 15-man force, officers decided on a salary of $3,000 for their new chief—$100 more than paid previously.

They also decided to ask the attorney - general's department for establishment of a police commission to remove the matter from council's hands.

Public hearing of the case of Constable John Sandel, dismissed and later reinstated on the force, was adjourned pending retraction of statements he reportedly gave the press.

It's Not Practice, But Varsity Blues Beat Rule Ban

Toronto, July 17 (CP) — All those secret goings-on at the University of Toronto aren't preparations for a newspaper weapon.

They're not trying to discover a new drug, or a cure for cancer.

Nope. . . It's just the annual intercollegiate football way of beating the gun on fall training. Those 16 well-tanned huskies with the footballs just happen to be candidates for the senior Varsity Blues.

Some of the boys were sitting around the back campus and naturally the talk turned to football.

Before you could say "Bob Masterson is holding practice too early," they were off and footballs were in the air.

There's an intercollegiate rule that bans football training until Sept. 1.

So, in Toronto, the prac. . . gatherings are slated for every Monday and Thursday.

Nearly-Blind Do Job Engineers Couldn't

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Ten nearly-blind persons are doing a job that several engineering firms were unable to do. They are buffing a trade name off 1,500,000 cellulose tape holders.

The unusual became necessary when one firm took over manufacture of the tape from another. It seemed like a simple project at first but several engineering firms declared the job could not be done economically.

In April, Bob Cornell, Canadian National Institute for the Blind industrial placement officer, heard of the company's difficulty and, by June, had worked out a system for doing the work with a metal cut-off wheel much like an emery wheel. Now the institute group he organized expects to buff 200,000 holders a month.

SUSPEND, FINE GIOSA

New Orleans, July 17 (AP) — The Louisiana State Boxing commission fined Philadelphia welterweight Eddie Giosa $1,000 and suspended him six months for a poor showing against Bernard Docusen of New Orleans.

Docusen knocked out Giosa in the second round of a scheduled ten-rounder here July 9.

Midland Rain Falls in B.C.

Vancouver, July 17 (CP) — Half a pint of rain fell from an eye-dropper in downtown Vancouver Monday courtesy of Midland, Ont.

Midland was getting more than its share of rain. The residents heard about Vancouver's drought filled a small bottle with rainwater and dispatched it to the coast in the care of 10 sea cadets.

The cadets are here to attend the navy's camp Latona on Bamber Island.

In ceremonial procession, the cadets, led by Lieut. Bernard LeClaire of Midland and Lieut. Edmund Colchester of Vancouver, bore the bottle to Victory Square and sprinkled the contents on a patch of brown grass with an eyedropper.

Ontario Milk In Lower Grade Being Studied

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Monday he is studying the possibility of marketing two-per-cent milk as a means of cutting milk prices in Ontario.

Mr. Kennedy said the two-per-cent milk—whole milk now marketed must contain 3.4 per cent butterfat—has just as much nutritional value for children as whole milk.

"I don't see why we can't have 17 or 18 cent (a quart) milk for the kids," he said.

The Ontario Milk Control Board has set Toronto milk prices at 21 cents a quart delivered. Store prices are 20 cents, scheduled to fall to 19 cents in September.

Labor Minister Agrees Decisions Should be Final

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Labor Minister Daley said Monday night that he agrees in principle that decisions or the Ontario Labor Relations Board should be final.

But, he said in an interview, it might be desirable for the courts to "look at" a board decision if there might be a miscarriage of justice.

He said he felt the labor board acted fairly and properly in certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild as a bargaining unit for circulation employees of The Globe and Mail on the evidence before it.

The certification was later quashed by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court, who said the newspaper had not received "natural justice" at the board hearing because it had been refused permission to examine Guild membership lists. Mr. Justice Gale's ruling will be appealed.

DROWNS IN GAME

Merlin, Ont., July 17—(CP)—A game with a floating tin can brought death by drowning to a Merlin district Monday night in the waters of Lake Erie south of here.

John Schaap, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schaap, disappeared beneath the surface of the water shortly after he told his 12-year-old brother, Martin, he was going after a can which he had thrown into the water.

When he failed to reappear dragging operations were started and the body was located an hour and a half later.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy of Camrose, Alberta, were recent weekend visitors of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jeffery of Peterborough spent last weekend at the home of his brother, Mr. W. A. Jeffery and Mrs. Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown attended the funeral in Trenton on Saturday afternoon of their cousin, the late Mr. O. A. Coutts. The funeral service was conducted at the home by the Rev. G. Puttenham of Grace United Church and interment was in Stirling cemetery.

Sunday School services will be resumed at White's Church on Sunday, August 5th.

Many in this district are availing themselves of the bathing privileges available at Coronado Park.

NO BARS, NO GREY WALLS

Collins Bay Penitentiary, near Kingston, Ont., is run on the basis of "training with a view to reform and rehabilitation." Prisoners are individually chosen on the basis of age — they must be less than 21 — they must be first offenders and possess reformable tendencies. Apart from the technical training, living conditions also are improved; cell-blocks are painted in pastel colors; each cell has linoleum-covered floor and a wooden door. — (CP Photo.)

New Philosophy of Prison Life Being Taught To Guards, Inmates at Collins Bay Site

Kingston, Ont, July (CP)—A new philosophy of prison life—you can't reform a man if you kick him when he's down—is being taught both guards and inmates alike at Collins Bay penitentiary, a model federal prison six miles west of here.

There are no grey stone walls, barred windows or rows of steel doors at Collins Bay. Instead, prisoners are housed in neat cell-blocks painted in restful pastel tones and with dark linoleum on the floors replacing hard concrete.

There are no steel bars on the cells. Each is separated with a sturdy wooden door which adds to the general appearance and provides privacy and silence.

Living conditions at Collins Bay are a far cry from the days when a man who commits a crime may be a victim of society as well as its enemy. Less attention is paid to the prisoner's bad habits and more to the development of his good ones.

Training is the key-note at Collins Bay, as Warden Harold Cleeton says—"training with a view to reform and rehabilitation."

In that respect, no one is ever sentenced to Collins Bay. Each prisoner is individually chosen on the basis of his age—he must be under 21 years old—be a first offender and possess reformable tendencies.

New ideas in penology have altered the "climate" at the penitentiary. Prisoners jokingly refer to their incarceration as "sunfishing at the Bay" but that does not mean that they're there for a rest cure.

Prisoners, clad in plain shirts and overall trousers which replaced stripes at the Bay, are all gainfully employed at some trade which will aid in their rehabilitation. The men are no longer employed on labor for its own sake. The accent is on training for the future and reform.

Steady Workers

Prisoners carry lumber, pour concrete and pat cement blocks in place on a new building program at the bay. They work as steadily as if they were earning $1 an hour instead of five cents a day.

Modern shops, fully-equipped with the latest tools, have been set up to help inmates learn vocations. All must take courses in mathematics, blueprint reading and draughting in connection with their assigned trade.

Prisoners learn how to operate a lathe, lay bricks, build a house or install plumbing and air-conditioning equipment. But first they go to school—from nine months to a year depending on the course—and must pass written examinations.

Concentration on education at Collins Bay stems from the publication of the Archambault report implemented by Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson when he was appointed commissioner of penitentiaries in 1946.

"The prisoner should be regarded as an adult in need of education as well as vocational training if reform" he told the Canadian Penal Congress here two years ago.

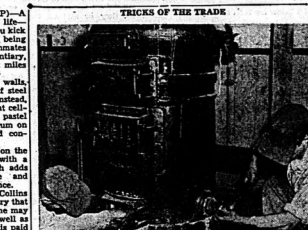
Education is further encouraged through correspondence courses handled by the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Ontario Department of Education. No fewer than ten inmates are registered in extra-mural courses on a university level and 17 out of a class of 70 passed their entrance examinations this year.

Work and study can occupy only a certain amount of a prisoner's time. He must have reasonable periods of rest and relaxation. Officials at the bay have introduced a stepped-up recreational program including diversified sports and hobbies.

An orchestra is in the process of formation and many of the bay's 380 inmates contribute to a weekly newspaper known as the "CS Diamond".

"The prisoner is no longer just a number" says C. A. M. Edwards, classification officer at Collins Bay. "He is a human being and an individual and he is treated like one."

TRICKS OF THE TRADE



Furnace installation is one of many trades taught to prisoners at Collins Bay Penitentiary, near Kingston, Ont. The penitentiary is run largely on the training of first offenders for useful trades in pub lic life. Inmates are chosen on the basis of age — they must be less than 21 — and must be likely subjects for successful reformation — (CP Photo.)

Berry Arrives For Q.B. Slot At Edmonton

Edmonton, July 17 (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos received a shot in the arm last night when quarterback Lindy Berry arrived here by car from Texas to turn out with the city's Western Football Conference team.

Eskimos have been keeping the regular quarterback slot open for Berry although it was feared he might be lost to the United States armed forces. But the graduate of Texas Christian University, who was top passer and voted most valuable player in his Canadian debut last season with Edmonton, now is believed free to join Eskimos.

Edmonton already has another quarterback in Frankie Filchock, obtained from Montreal Alouettes, But Filchock was brought here primarily as backfield coach and quarterback insurance.

Miss Farley Brings Talk on Early Days To Bay of Quinte W.A.

White's District— Mrs. W. A. Jeffery was hostess to the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute on Wednesday evening with a large attendance of members and several visitors.

The president, Mrs. Cecil Jeffery, presided. Historical exhibits such as a sewing basket given to the Meyers family by Captain John Meyers, a teapoon, a fan and a school photograph were displayed.

The invitation of Mrs. Fred Wilson was accepted to meet at her cottage on August 8th when a pot luck dinner will be served at 1 p.m. At this meeting each member is to be responsible for a contest, game or quiz, also the prize to the winner.

Mrs. A. Meyers took charge of the program and Miss Gail Lohnes of Jackson's Point, sang a duet with Mrs. Alex Vandervoort as accompanist. Mrs. Benson Bonisteel gave a reading, "The Night of the Hay Ride" which told of a serious accident to some of the children on how a retired lady offered her home for a hospital and of the happy ending for her and the doctor in the end.

First White Msa

Miss Farley of Trenton, under the heading of, "Historical Research" took her hearers back many years to the beginnings of Sidney Township. Samuel Champlain was the first white man to reach this district. His headquarters were at Twelve O'Clock Point. After a battle against the Iroquois he was wounded and sent to the Molra River to rest. Frontenac also reached this district and spent much time at Consecon and Fenton Falls.

In 1784 Unified Empire Loyalists joined pioneers here. Seven ships loads reached Kingston. They landed at Adolphustown spreading through Prince Edward and Hastings Counties. Places in Prince Edward received their names from women, while in Sidney township men were honored. Sidney was named after a Colonial secretary, Meyer's Creek received its name from Captain John Meyers, but when Jacob Meyers was visited Meyer's Creek the name was changed to Belleville.

Captain John Meyers was originally from Prussia, settling first in New York and then in Sidney in 1784. Many Sidney township residents are descendants of Captain John Meyers. He was buried in Old Cemetery.

First School

In 1831 the first school in Sidney township was taught at that time a house was also provided for the teacher. The first teacher was Sir William Johnson and the first pupils was Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

Dinner with which was instrumental in building the first bridge across the Trent River and he saved the first boards for White's Church which was the first church to be built in Sidney Township 110 years ago on land donated by Reuben White.

Dinner well known family names are Bonisteel, Ketcheson, Stickle and Jeffery.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes moved a vote of thanks to Miss Farley for her informative address and to all others who had assisted in the program and the evening's entertainment. The hostess and convener served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Herculean Cleanup Task Faces Kansas City Area

Kansas City, Mo., July 17—AP —The battered Kansas City area mobilized today for a Herculean cleanup task as flood waters, receding eastward, struck new blows at Missouri river towns.

Receding flood waters in this 300-square area of 900,000 population block after block of muck-covered ruin.

Kansas, a land of wrecked or partially-damaged towns and cities stretched across the eastern and central parts of the state.

The latest damage estimate for Kansas and Missouri was $750,000,000—costliest flood in United States history.

Water still covered many sections but it was fast slipping back into river channels here and in Kansas.

Other Towns Affected

But to the east of Kansas City, small towns along the Missouri felt the full force of the turbulent river. Lexington, Wellington, Norborne, and Hardin, Mo., were flooded. Some dikes in central Missouri gave way.

The runoff of Kansas flood waters also buffeted Oklahoma. Miami, in northeastern Oklahoma, suffered its worst flood beating in history from the Neosho-Grand River.

President Truman, reported deeply concerned over the flood situation, planned to fly over the Missouri-Kansas disaster area today.

The flood has brought death to 17 persons, shut up harvest rail transportation, forced more than 70,000 from their homes and severely damaged the industrial capacity of numerous towns and cities.

In Kansas City, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo., four major industrial areas covering thousands of acres were flooded. Water during the height of the storm stood more than 30 feet deep in some places.

A fire that ravaged a seven-block area and injured 14 firemen was left to burn itself out after raging for five days. The flames destroyed or damaged 24 major firms. Preliminary estimates indicated damage would run well over $1,000,000.

Gasoline Feeds Flames

The flames were fed by oil and gasoline floating on flood waters.

North Kansas City, Mo., — a residential and industrial area that has been a ghost town for three days—began returning to life Monday. Because of flood dangers, the 4,000 resident had been evacuated and business and industry shut down. The Missouri River, however, never did break its banks.

Bulldozers were at work in Topeka, the Kansas state capital, scraping six inches to two feet of sill from streets where the water had receded. The city's water system still was in trouble.

Truck service showed some improvement.

As the flood waters rushed across Missouri, army engineers at St. Louis called for more help to sandbag dikes along the Mississippi River. The Missouri empties into the Mississippi north of St. Louis.

SCIENTISTS

Researchers studied the figures and noted that roughly the same number of ships were lost from each convoy, large or small.

Until they came along the conclusion was almost reached that there was no advantage to company since losses were equal.

The scientists simply pointed out that larger convoys were indeed the answer since the percentages lost were smaller.

Maj. Goodfellow's principle is that tactics, strategy will always be questions of skill and manoeuvre—not that by study and research into the factors governing battles they may increase the powers of God's "lineups" at the commanders' service by demonstrating additional scope.

Born in South Shields, England, and by hobby an archaeologist, the major is a University of Saskatchewan graduate in the science of engineering.

During the war he was seconded from the Canadian Army to the British Admiralty's department of miscellaneous weapons development, headed by another Canadian, Sir Charles Goodeve of Winnipeg.

He is married to the former Josephine Birdie of London, daughter of John E. Birkill, first vice-president of the BBC Symphony Orchestra and who is planning a concert tour of Canada this year. They have a daughter, Caroline, 7.

KINGSTON ROAD CHURCH W. A.

The regular July meeting of the Kingston Road Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Martin LaRue.

Mrs. J. Haig the president, chose as her scripture reading a passage from the "Sermon on the Mount."

The June meeting which was well attended was at Mrs. J. Haig's. Since the business of the afternoon was tying two quilts there were no minutes for that meeting.

Mrs. Haig reported that the net returns from the concert on May 29th were $8.80. Mrs. H. Walkon gave a reading, followed by a humorous Edgar A. Guest poem, by Mrs. M. Ryan. Mrs. C. Macdonald read several of the "thought-provoking" stories.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. M. LaRue, Mrs. G. Hammett and Mrs. Wm. Connors.

Designer Aims For Tot Trade With New 'Bo-Peep' Fashions

By GLADYS LENNON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, July 17. (CP)—The fashion-show model appeared in his mother's arms and practically stole the show. But there were approving nods too for his white broadcloth and cotton plaid "demi-suit" with its spirited plaid pocking-cloth appliques.

It was one of the latest Bo-peep fashions for the carriage set, in which designer Hulda Schorr aimed at practicability and comfort combined with smart appearance.

The "demi-suit" and sister's "demi-dress" are two-piece affairs consisting of short, loose-hanging top and plastic-lined diaper-cover-and-bib to match. They are made alike except that sister's top is gathered on a yoke while invested Junior provids brother with room for movement.

Of interest to mother: the materials are sturdy, color-fast and machine-washable.

One to Three Years

For toddlers of one to three years Miss Schorr chose pastel children are helping to keep her interested in practical angles—has designed a self-help contrivance to aid in teaching the children to care for themselves. The drop-seat of the overall-like garment has a belt which fastens in front with two buttons, large enough to be managed by the small fingers. One style is in navy broadcloth with bright red stick-rack points edging collar and cuffs; red cross-stitching forms the words "Good Boy" or "Good Girl" across the front.

Colorfully-embroidered cobblestones in denim are among the protective garments Mrs. Schorr features for the small fry. Three oig pockets provide space for carrying childhood treasures. Worn with matching slacks, they make sturdy play outfits.

Then there are attractive smocks to wear over school dresses, also obtainable with matching slacks. One of these, in royal blue, has a big red apple forming its pocket.

For the native three-to-six-year-old, the "petit-dress" is a blouse-and-jumper outfit designed to hold together at the waist. The blouse is joined to a ruffled petticoat which, of course, shows just below the skirt of the jumper.

An efficiency expert, however, would stand on one side of the bed to straighten and tuck in sheets, blankets and spread before walking around the bed to repeat the process on the other side. The saving in energy: about 200 steps.

Then there's dishwashing. Many women, say the efficiency boys, start washing without assembling the dishes. Then they make all the less trips between table, sink and cupboards' washing and putting away one or two dishes at a time.

The way to do it, they point out, is stick and assemble everything in classified order at a table or counter next to the sink. Next wash, rinse and place in the drainer in order. Modern detergents leave dishes ready to stack drying, so by the time the last pot is washed, most of the dishes already are dry enough to stack and put away.

Vacuuming one entire corner of the room—floor, walls, draperies and upholstery—before moving to a new location takes about half as much time and one-tenth the steps as doing each job separately.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

They married secretly—her mother knows, his doesn't

Mrs. A. seems to have a husband who is afraid to accept his full responsibilities. The two of them have been married less than a year, and if he doesn't see this fault of his, and do something to correct it, immediately, the impending wife problem he may find himself unable to meet a crisis, and as a result, run his marriage into deep and stormy waters.

The present trouble is, Mrs. A. says, that she and her husband were married secretly and, while she has told her mother about their marriage, he is afraid to tell his.

Here is the way she tells her story:

"My husband and I were married by a Justice of the Peace secretly because our families had opposed our marriage on account of the fact that we were of different faiths. My husband has worked a way out, I am sure, but both our mothers were very strict in their views and refused to see things any way but their own. Both our mothers refused to attend our marriage if it was in the other's church. It had to be their way, or not at all. The only way out we saw was to be married without their knowledge.

"Two weeks after we were married, my husband was called into service. It was much to our surprise, for we didn't expect him to be called until, since he was in the last war for three years. Tell Pamela

"Because of this, we decided it was best to tell our parents of our marriage. We both went to my mother and told her, and it hurt her deeply. My husband said he wanted to tell his mother by himself.

"Well, we've been married for six months now, and my mother-in-law still doesn't know the truth. We have asked my husband so many times to tell her, for I think it is only fair for her to know, but he keeps putting it off with the excuse that he doesn't want to hurt her. My mother is furious, for she wants to announce our first wedding anniversary. She says she is going to tell anyone, and I know that she will. I love my husband very much, and I know that he loves me, but I don't think it would be right that I should have to tell my mother-in-law alone. His people are bound to find out the truth some day. What can I do about this?"

One of Two Alternatives

It is very obvious, of course, that as Mrs. A. says, this young man's family is going to discover the truth some day and some day quite soon. Does he imagine that if he lets the truth drift with the wind until some stray breeze blows it his mother's way, she is going to take it any better than if he broke the news to her himself? Does he think he would not be necessary to point out to him that, if he thinks she is going to be hurt by his telling her, she will certainly be wounded far more deeply if he simply lets her find out for herself, or has the truth come to her from some other person.

If I were in this young wife's place, it seems to me I would tell my husband plainly that he will have to accept one of two alternatives.

The first is to do as he should have the manliness to do, and tell his mother about his marriage, either by letter or the next time he comes home on leave, which his wife says he gets quite often. If he refuses to do this, then I would tell him that I would have no effort whatever to stop my mother from announcing the first wedding anniversary, and let the facts come out that way.

Mrs. A. is entirely correct in thinking the present situation is grossly unfair to her. It would be equally unfair if she were forced to break the news to her mother-in-law herself, and I don't think she should consider it. Let her state the two alternatives I have mentioned to her husband, and leave the choice to him, without further argument or discussion.

Thank you letters were read from Aileen Hancock and Mrs. H. Robiin, Mrs. W. Slavin thanking the ladies for kindnesses shown them when she and Mr. Slavin were ill. Mrs. Rugg offered thanks to the community at large for the acts of friendship shown her daughter and family since their coming.

Mrs. L. Hall, Mrs. F. Aikens, Mrs. G. Woods and Mrs. E. Hart were nominated as a committee to look after the silver for the church. It was decided to have two home-baking sales on the market. The 2nd line to go on July 21st and the 3rd line on Aug. 4th.

Mrs. F. Aikens led the devotional and took as her topic "can ye not discern the signs of the times". Mrs. B. Harder read the 13th Chapter of Romans. Mrs. Aikens gave an interesting and disturbing talk on being a good neighbor. She brought a story of conditions in India. Several of the ladies offered prayer for all the leaders of the world.

Mrs. Hart and her helpers served refreshments and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Women Walk Useless Miles Doing Housework Experts Claim

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

New York, July 17. (AP)—Some women use as much energy making a bed as a mile efficiency expert would use in a day's factory work.

Cleaning up the living room after last night's bridge session is as tiring as digging a ditch all day if a woman puts her mind to being inefficient about it.

Just doing the regular housework—with push-button appliances, can leave an average putterer in an exhausted state.

All this is pointed out by home-appliance experts, usually male, who claim most women walk far less miles around the house every day.

Take making a bed. The usual procedure is for a woman to pull the sheets and blankets off the bed, walk across the room and pile them in a chair. Then she takes the bottom sheet, walks back, tucks it in one one side, walks around the bed to tuck it in on the other side, and repeats this process with top sheet, blanket, quilt and spread.

250,000 Persons Viewed Queen Mary's Carpet

Toronto, (CP)—Some 250,000 persons in 65 cities and towns helped buy Queen Mary's carpet, which is now in the National Gallery at Ottawa.

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, reported that its the number of persons who paid 25 cent and 50 cent admission fees to see the famous piece of handicraft which has toured the country this last year, which they were personal contributions.

The Order recently announced it has exceeded its objective, set a year ago, of raising from the public $100,000 with which to buy the carpet for Canada. Since then it has been showered with telegrams of good wishes including one sending "warmest congratulations" from the Queen Mother herself.

The order said that 75,000 children were given a free view of the carpet, coming in school-classes accompanied by their teacher. Expenses in connection with the transportation of the carpet were more than paid for from the sale of carpet literature.

Queen Mary has begun another carpet to replace the one she gave her country to earn dollars for Britain. The second tapestry will be given to the family-for whom the first originally was intended.

GOOD MANNERS

The visitors' telegram en route should be followed by "bread-and-butter" letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About five week ago we invited a couple who are quite good friends of ours to come for a long weekend at our summer home. My husband and I love to have visitors, but it does mean for us some careful planning so to express and housework, for I do all my own work, including cooking. While they were with us we tried to do everything for their pleasure and comfort and I enjoyed having them, and they seemed to enjoy every minute. While driving home they stopped to wire us a most friendly and appreciative telegram but almost that we have heard nothing, no "bread-and-butter letter". Does a telegram like this take the place of a letter of thanks for the visit?

Hostess

No, definitely not. Although it was kind and thoughtful of them to send you such expression of appreciation, they, or at least the wife, should also write you a "bread-and-butter" letter within a few days, not later than a week after they arrive home.

Both to make second trip to altar

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a middle-aged widow, and soon I am to be married to a middle-aged widower. After we will have a simple, informal wedding either in the church or parsonage. The best man will be either a close friend of the groom's or my 21-year-old son.

(1) Is my 19-year-old daughter too young to be my attendant, or would it be better to have a friend of mine who has signified her willingness to be my attendant and who has done many kind things for us? Or would it be proper for me to have both my daughter and my friend?

2. How should our announcements read? I am particularly puzzled about the correct form for my name—should my name be preceded by "Mrs."?

H.

1. Your 13-year-old daughter is indeed not too young to be your attendant. . . it is best form for you to have only one attendant and your daughter may be your attendant. If you daughter is to be both attendant and, at best for your bridegroom to have his friend act as attendant. I suggest that you invite your very dear and kind friend to sit in the first pew on the left of the aisle, the most important pew on "the bride's side" of the church.)

2. This is the correct form for the marriage announcement, in the event of your bridegroom and yourself:

Mrs. Arthur Paul Davis

and

Mr. Walter Allen

announce their marriage on Tuesday the seventh of August Nineteen hundred and fifty-one Haven, New York

Or it is permissible in this one circumstance, for the bride, if she prefers not to use her husband's first name, to use this form:

Mrs. Katherine Smith Davis

and

Mr. Walter Allen

(The first form is considered in far better taste.)

Also, if, as you wish, you may include the name of the church in which the ceremony is performed on Tuesday, the seventh of August The Central Church Haven, New York.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Grannie also likes her cheeks

Lipstick is the hazardous item.

Now and then one hears someone express the opinion that the old girls among us should not use make-up. A lot of nonsense. They are the ones who need and who get a real uplift when they lay on the synthetic glory. The only stipulation is that they should select the right colors, know how to use them, and exercise restraint. But these rules hold good for others, too—their daughters, their granddaughters.

As a woman gets older her complexion may change somewhat. It may take on a delicate, transparent quality, in which event one must choose rouge or a paint shade, select a lipstick that conforms, but is darker. If the skin is a bit sallow, the powder must carry a suggestion of pink to give it more life and character. Rouge and lipstick should be of an orange-rose tone. One has to think about these subjects. It won't do to be casual.

Powder must be of light consistency, must be fluffed on scrupulously, and the surplus brushed with a powder brush in the softness of life advances, glands get all tired out, often refuse to work, and the surface of the skin becomes dry. A heavy powder may aggravate that condition.

All too often a woman will swish the powder puff directly over her cheeks, forming a circle like a red apple. That is naturally a design, even with young children. A more irregular pattern makes attifice less noticeable. The coloring should be placed high on the temples and cheek bones. A tiny bit brushed over the eyelids will make the eyes look brighter, more interesting. Placing rouge low on the cheeks will give even a beautiful old lady a drawn-down look. A touch on the chin and a tiny bit on the ear lobes are what the beauty doctor orders.

The lipstick is the hazardous item. One may choose among true reds, orangy-reds, blue-reds. If the hair is snow white, the true-red is out, no matter how attractive it may look on younger women. It provides too great a contrast with the frosted tresses. This rule does not apply to gray hair, or salt-and-pepper tresses. As the blue-red is closest to the natural coloring, it is usually a safe selection.

Grannie's hat is often a problem. If it has remained abundant and has even slight natural wave she is in luck. If she is tiny and has retained youthful lines, she can sport the short cut—but it must be curled. The coiffure must be soft and modish. A few stray rag-tags and bob-tails thrust Grannie completely out of beauty form.

Body of Former Lebanon Premier Flown to Beirut

Amman, Jordan, July 17—(AP)—The body of Lebanon's former Premier Riad El Solh—cut down yesterday by assassin bullets—was flown home to Beirut today. Authorities said one of his slayers is dead, another lies wounded by his own hand and a third still is sought by police.

El Solh was slain as he was being driven to the Amman airport to return to Beirut after a three-day state visit to Jordan's King Abdullah. Authorities said three men in a car sped past the royal vehicle, opening fire as they drew abreast.

The killers were identified as members of the semi-fascist Syrian national party, whose leader, Antoun Saadi, was executed in Lebanon in 1949 and whose plans for a "greater Syria" El Solh opposed.

(A dispatch from Beirut said several persons were killed and others were injured in clashes there during demonstrations following the announcement of El Solh's death. Troops have restored order. The dispatch said all Beirut was in mourning in preparations for a state funeral.)

Two of the assassins, tried to escape, police said, but an Arab legion officer killed one. A second man shot himself, but still is alive.

Police said they still are searching for the driver of the death car.

TRENTON

Toronto Angler Nails 23-Pound Muskie

Trenton (Special) — Biggest fish landed this year, a 23-pound muskie was pulled from the waters of the west end of the Bay of Quinte Sunday by a visiting angler, Charlie Montgomery, of Toronto.

Measuring 43 inches from tip to tip, the big fellow was picked up on a copper spoon troll north of the Murray canal piers, opposite William Fitzgerald's camp on the south shore.

Montgomery battled 20 minutes with his prize. Fellow fishermen, Art Thoma and Fred Montgomery watched the struggle and in the last round helped their friend haul the monster into the boat.

While not so lucky, Thomas and Fred Montgomery shared a pike catch of eight from the same area.

The trio went back to the city with close to 50 pounds of fish.

CAMPBELLFORD

Quick Action By Neighbors Saves Barn

Campbellford—Quick action by a number of neighbors who formed a bucket brigade on Friday afternoon was credited with saving a large barn on the farm of Clarence Scott, of Rawdon township, nine miles east of Campbellford.

A Campbellford man, Wm. H. Brady, was driving along the road with his helper, Russel Empy, of Campbellford, when he noticed smoke coming from the barn. He hurried to the farm home and Mr. and Mrs. Scott were vainly trying to subdue the flames. The fire seemed to have a good start, but with the help of many neighbors who hastened to the scene, the barn, and a good deal of the hay in it was saved. A well near the barn supplied the volunteers with water. The fire is believed to have started from combustion in the hay.

THOMASBURG

Mr., Mrs. E. Morton, Family Presented With Gifts

Thomasburg—On Wednesday evening July 11th, a large number of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morton and girls assembled in the Oddfellows Hall to honor them before their departure from the community to make their new home in Belleville and also to spend one more social evening with them.

Ernest is a native of the community and will be much missed as a neighbor and friend, while Mrs. Morton has always been found willing to give a helping hand to anyone at any time, she also was an efficient worker in the interests of the Women's Association of the United Church, while Barbara and Janet will be missed by the young people and their school associates.

Mr. Lorne Carleton acted as chairman for the evening and after calling the gathering to order, invited Ernest, Dora, Barbara and Janet Morton to take seats on the platform, while Mrs. Harold Coulson read an appropriate address on behalf of the community, expressing the esteem of this family in the vicinity, the general regret at their departure and wishing them every success in their new home. The address was signed by Messrs. Harold Coulson, Lorne Carleton, Horace Vance, Ray Coulson, Harry Carleton and Albert Martin.

As a parting gift from their Thomasburg friends, they were presented with a bronze-plated smoker with Moonstone insert and enclosed base light, with matching trilight lamp. Barbara and Janet were each given separate gifts of crystal.

They all expressed their sincere appreciation for these gifts and their regret at leaving Thomasburg and extended an invitation to all to visit them in Belleville.

Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and socially.

Discover New Drug to Ease Blood Pressure

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Cleveland, O., July 17—(AP)—Discovery of a key to high blood pressure, a chemical manufactured in your brain, was announced today by the Cleveland Clinic Foundation. A graduate of McGill University, Montreal, helped in experiments with the chemical involved.

This brain chemical is only partly identified. It goes from the brain directly into the blood stream, and there helps raise pressure. It may be a key discovery.

All experiments were done on dogs. But human confirmation came from patients suffering high blood pressure. They were given hypertensive drugs, newly known to counteract this brain substance. Their pressure dropped.

Formed in Blood

The brain chemical reportedly is serotonin, a substance found in clotted blood. In pure form it is a white powder.

The brain acts like an endocrine gland. These are the glands of sex, personality and energy, and all make minute amounts of powerful chemicals that pass directly into the blood stream for distribution.

The new chemical gives possible explanation why mental stress and anxiety raise blood pressures.

More of the chemical is made by the brain during mental tension. At such times some increase in blood pressure is necessary to give the tissues an extra blood supply, and this may be the brain's way of balancing the body's blood needs.

The announcement says the brain chemical is only one of the factors in high blood pressure, but that control of this chemical is likely to be helpful in some types of high blood pressure.

The drug is not now on sale. It is for experiments only. It is not easy to give because it has some bad effects. A number of high-blood-pressure patients have taken it for several months and it has to be continued daily to get the good effects.

Doctor Charged In Woman's Death

Bridgeport, Conn., July 17 — (AP)—A dapper doctor accused of killing his elderly benefactress yesterday was charged with manslaughter.

Dr. Donald F. Gibson, 49, of Danbury, Conn., posted $5,000 bail to assure his appearance in September. He entered no plea.

A grand jury indicted Dr. Gibson Friday in connection with the death of Elizabeth M. Ayres, 74, who shared her Danbury home with the physician and, a coroner's finding said, was "madly in love" with him.

The coroner's finding charged that Miss Ayres' death, July 26 last year, was hastened by neglect on the part of Dr. Gibson. It accused him of hastening Miss Ayres' death for two reasons — to acquire sole possession of valuable real estate he and she held pointly, and to be "unfettered" in his plan to marry his office nurse.

"She's my favorite customer — Mary Jones' youngest. Comes in, regular as clockwork; with her mother's grocery order. And am I happy to fill it!

"Shocked us all when her dad died so suddenly. How would Mary manage with three youngsters to feed? But we needn't have worried. They eat regularly . . . and well. Jim saw to that.

"Wealthy man? My goodness, no! He just had his job, but he put every cent he could into life insurance. Guess Mary sometimes thought it was too much. She doesn't now!

Poisonous Snake Killed in Toronto

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—Workmen building a house in suburban Etobicoke yesterday killed a two-foot copperhead snake, deadliest on the continent. Unknown in Canada, the snake is believed to have hidden in lumber imported from the United States.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Tonight the faltering Belleville Redmen will meet Oshawa Merchants in an exhibition game at the Fair Grounds. The Reds, who have fallen off the COBL pace into a tie for fifth place with Picton after splitting their first dozen games, will attempt to correct past mistakes by a stiff workout with the visiting Merchants. The Oshawa crew is tough. Currently they are giving the Peterborough Marines, runaway leaders of the Finchley League, their strongest opposition. They will be a stiff test of the Redmen's ability.

The game is another in a series of exhibition attractions which the Redmen are endeavoring to bring to Belleville to bolster their skimpy COBL schedule. When it rains, as it has been doing so constantly of late, the meagre allotment of contests already provided by the COBL schedule becomes threadbare with the result that the team loses its competitive edge and the fans lose interest. Here it is the middle of July and to date the Reds have played only 13 league games. This is preposterous. A senior league club needs twice that many games just to keep the players in good physical condition. This exhibition game tonight is just one more attempt by the chieftains of the Redmen to keep theirwarriors in trim.

* * *

The Commercial Softball League A section winds up its schedule this evening with Howe and Hagerman meeting Ramsay Paints at the Alemite Field. The green-clad Printers have an opportunity to take over first place in the league standings with a win over the Paintmen. A victory would leave them one point ahead of Glen Roy in the standings as the GR's tied Point Anne earlier in the campaign. Both squads have three losses chalked against them. Should H. and H. win tonight they will begin at once to campaign for the city league title in a round robin tournament.

After tonight's game the first place squad will play Point Anne Wednesday night at the Alemite Field and back at the Point Saturday night.

Meanwhile the other two teams in the loop will play a best two-of-three series for the right to meet the pennant winners in a series which will determine the OASA representative for this league. The OASA provincial playdowns do not start until August 15 and for this reason the first playoffs, and the elimination series as well begin now. By so arranging the games the league will be able to keep its provincial contenders active until the OASA playoffs begin. By any other arrangement the teams would be weeks, even months, apart. The Point Anne entry, which will participate in the city playdowns, will be entered in the Ontario Intermediate C race and so will not be taking part in the OASA elimination here to pick an intermediate contender.

Next Three Days May Tell Story In American League Race; Leaders Win Monday Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The outcome of the Boston-Cleveland and Chicago - New York series during the next three days may tell the story whether the American League race will remain a four-team scramble down to the wire.

Already it has narrowed to a point where only 2 1-2 games separate the first-place Red Sox and the fourth place Indians. Boston invades Cleveland and the Yankees clash in Chicago in series openers tonight.

Boston blew one game of their league leadership yesterday when the last place Browns overcame a 5-2 lead with a seven-run outburst in the fifth to win 9-5.

The second-place White Sox snapped a three-game losing streak by taking the 4-3 decision. The Yankees outlasted the Tigers 8-6 to keep third place, 1 1-2 games back of the Red Sox. Holding up the rear first-division spot was Cleveland, easy 8-2 winners over Washington last night.

It's a different story in the National League, where front-running Dodgers smashed their four-game losing streak with a decisive 11-2 victory over Cincinnati to retain their eight-game margin. New York's Giants slipped past St. Louis into second place by edging Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6 in the rubber of their three-game set. A five-run eighth-inning spurt sparked by Tommy Brown's base-loaded triple layoed Gerry Staley and gave Philadelphia Phils a 5-2 victory over the Cardinals in a night game. Boston's Braves spotted Chicago four runs in the first inning and came on to win 9-4.

Ted Williams slammed his 18th homer for the Red Sox but it went to waste as the Browns teed off on Mickey Harris and Bill Wight for seven runs.

Shakeup for White Sox

Manager Paul Richards shook up his Chicago lineup and the White Sox responded by shellacking a pair of Philadelphia hurlers for 15 hits including homers by Gerries Minoso and Don Lenhardt. Minoso was shifted from centre field to third base as Bob Dillinger was given a rest. Lenhardt also doubled and singled to account for four R.B.I.'s.

A two-run homer by Yogi Berra and another four-bagger by Joe Collins offset spotty pitching by Artie Schallock and Frank Shea and gave the Yankees their second straight win over the Tigers.

Luke Easter hammered his 13th and 14th homers and drove in five runs to lead the Indians to victory.

Carl Erskine hurled seven perfect innings and yielded but two hits as the Dodgers snapped Cincinnati's eight-game winning streak. A single by Ted Kluszewski in the eighth ended Erskine's dream of a perfect game as well as a no-hitter. Before the inning was over Erskine had lost his shutout as well when Red Stallcup homered with one on.

Wes Westrum's homer in the eighth, his second of the day, snapped a 6-6 tie and won for the Giants over the Pirates.

Three home runs helped the Boston Braves defeat the Chicago Cubs. Sam Jethroe, Earl Torgeson and Sid Gordon were the Braves' power boys.

Life-Time Mark Set by Pacer

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—M. C. Rose, a trotter competing with a field of better-than-average pacers, provided the harness racing fraternity with some excitement Monday when he trotted the fastest mile of his life to win the seventh dash at Thorncliffe raceway.

Garnet Downtree's fine trotter from Weston, Ont., came out of the third hole on the final turn to pay $7 for a $2 ticket. He was clocked in 2.12.

Another horse set a new lifetime mark. Glinda Hanover, owned by G. W. Sherman, of Rodney, Ont., took the third race in easy fashion, pacing the distance in 2.09 4/5, clipping more than a second from her previous record.

The feature race of the afternoon was a pacing stake in three divisions, both of which were won by the capable Tom C. Harvester, owned by Clarence Crowe, of Orr Lake, Ont., and driven by Keith Waples.

Western League To Operate In Two Divisions

Calgary, July 17—(CP)—President Al Leader of Seattle last night announced that the newly-organized Western Canada-Pacific Coast Professional Hockey League will operate with two divisions, each playing a schedule of different lengths.

The Pacific Coast circuit was entered Sunday at Edmonton when Calgary Stampeders, Edmonton Flyers and Saskatoon Quakers, formerly of the Western Canada Major Hockey League, were admitted as members. Other teams in the league are Vancouver Canucks, New Westminster Royals, Victoria Cougars, Seattle Ironmen and Tacoma Rockets.

The five-team western division on the coast will play a schedule of 35 home games each while the three prairie clubs will play 30 home games each.

Each team in the prairie division will make two swings around the coast circuit, each of the five coast teams will make two trips to the prairies, playing each prairie team one ice each trip.

All teams have agreed to this plan.

It was learned here that all players on the Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon senior teams will become free gents now that the teams have entered professional ranks.

The players may turn professional with the amateur club they played with last year, or may go pro with any other league or remain in senior amateur ranks.

Walcott Gets Last Crack At Ezzard Charles

Pittsburg, July 17—(AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, the 37-year-old heavyweight challenger who claims he was robbed in two of his previous attempts to wrest the title from Ezzard Charles and Joe Louis, gets his fifth and probably last chance tomorrow night.

The conflident Walcott meets Charles for the third time at Forbes Field in the 10 p.m. (EDT) go says he should have won the decision in one or his previous meetings with the champion and he's equally certain he was a victim in his first fight with Louis.

Louis, who is slated to meet the winner, will be at the ringside.

Charles is the 7 to 4 favorite with virtually no betting.

Already more than $100,000 in tickets have been sold and the gate may reach as amazing $200,000.

In order to end the blackout on big fights, television manufacturers have purchased TV rights for an additional $100,000 and will put the match on the national network, with only Pittsburgh, and Johnstown, Pa., being cut out. Radio will carry the fight on radio.

"This is it," says Jersey Joe [Either he gets or I go. I know I can't ever get another chance."

The bow-legged Charles weighs 183 to Walcott's 194. If Walcott were to win—and he is in fine fighting condition—battling boxing style—it would be a "rags to riches" story matching that of the former champion, Jame J. Braddock. Walcott was once on relief.

Gavilan Decisions Pruden Before 9,000 at Milwaukee

Milwaukee, July 17 (CP) — Featherweight Kid Gavilan, king of the world's welterweights, fended his way to a unanimous 10-round decision last night over dead-game Pritzie Pruden of St. Catharines, Ont.

Gavilan's title, won from Johnny Bratton two months ago, was not at stake. It was the Cuban's first fight since he beat Bratton.

The aggressive, black-haired Canadian had the solid support of the crowd of 9,069 over most of the distance, but the ring-wise Gavilan put on a brilliant display of footwork and counter-punching to hold off Pruden's bid.

The fight drew a gate of $22,635. There was no knockdowns, but the fans got plenty of action for their money. Both fighters weighed 146¾.

Ahead All the Way

Gavilan was obviously ahead all the way as he used his left to good advantage on Pruden's head and body. Fritzie was cut about the right eye in the eighth and it closed rapidly in the later rounds, but he was allowed to continue.

The Cuban used his famed bolo punch sparingly but quite often wound it up and then shot out a left. He gave the fans an exhibition of fancy footwork.

Neither boy was ever in trouble. The pattern was Gavilan scoring in the infighting; Pruden keeping after him in the face of flicking long lefts and then exchanging usually stopping Pruden's advance with rapid-fire lefts and rights. The crowd rode Gavilan when he elected to back away from Pruden.

Big Four Teams Buckle Down To First Practices

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach Frank Clair's Canadian champion Toronto Argonauts buckled down to their first football practice of the season Monday with a total of 51 rookies battling for berths on the Four teams.

Most of the holdovers from last year reported in meet-champion-ship conditions. Joe Krol, who came in weighing 235 pounds last year, appeared at 218 this year, less than 10 pounds above his playing weight.

Coach Clair said the Big-Four Argos will take 40 players west in mid-August for their games with Calgary and Winnipeg. He said he'll take his time choosing a squad.

Meanwhile, in Hamilton, the Tiger Cats staged their first practice in preparation for the 1951 Interprovincial Rugby Football Union season.

Plans for a four or five-team Ontario Rugby Football Union junior series were drafted Sunday at London, it was announced Monday. Sure starters are Windsor, Sarnia, Woodstock and Kitchener, while Stratford will make a decision about entry this week.

If five teams are entered, play will start Labor Day weekend. The opener will be one week later if only four teams enter.

A New York team earned 901 points to take top honors in the nine-day Big Bicycle Derby which ended here Monday. Chicago was in second place, one lap behind with 363 points. Delhi ranked third, six laps behind with 901 points. Toronto followed 10 laps in the rear with 407 points, and Buffalo shuffled in last 17 laps behind with 194 points.

Seven of nine American imports in the Ottawa Rough Rider camp were on hand Monday night when coach Clem Crowe put the 1951 edition of the Ottawa football team through its first training session.

With less than three weeks to prepare for Riders first exhibition game against Toronto All-Stars Beach, Crowe wasted no time getting down to business. He had the 41-man squad out with full equipment. The 200 ralbirds appeared to be impressed with both the new coach and the fresh crop of U.S. newcomers.

Henri Rochon and Brendan Macken of Montreal and Lorne Main of Vancouver, leading candidates for Canada's 1951 Davis Cup team, arrived at Quebec Monday after a two-month tennis tour of England and France.

The Canadian team played in a number of tournaments in England including the Wimbledon championships, and in exhibition matches in France.

Bill Vreck hopes to announce a new manager for St. Louis Browns within "a few days."

The new owner said Monday he has narrowed the field down to a few men—adding there was one man in particular he would like to have.

He wouldn't say whether that man was a manager now.

Commenting on a report from New York that Eddie Stanky was being considered, he said he had never approached the New York Giants for permission to talk with Stanky.

Valleyfield, Que., will play host to a city soccer league to-day, exceed 70,000 next Saturday and Sunday when the annual motor boat regatta will be staged.

Top Canadian and United States speedboat drivers will compete in the two-day affair for $2,270 in prize money. The races will be run in St. Francis Bay which cuts into the centre of the city.

The races will include inboard and outboard classes. Among the competitors will be Bernard Daoust, who recently won both heats of the 225-cubic inch Laval International Regatta. Other speeders include Frank Ramsay of Rideau, Ont., George Carnegie, Toronto; Taylor Fulford, Brockville; Keith Beith, Gananoque; Ernie Roberts, Cornwall, and Tommy Turner, Kenora, N.Y.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Wes Westrum, Giants —Slammed two homers, his second coming in the eighth inning to snap a 5-5 tie and give the Giants a 7-5 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pitching: Carl Erskine, Dodgers —Pitched seven innings of perfect ball before Ten Kluszewski singled to open the eighth. The young righthander allowed two hits as the Dodgers snapped Cincinnati's seven-game winning streak 11-2.

Moscow, July 17 — (Reuters)— A deputation of seven Quakers, representing the Society of Friends in Britain, arrived here last night for a two-week visit at the invitation of the Russian peace committee.

Montreal Leads Int. League By 11 Games

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals are running away with the International League pennant but it's doubtful if they will equal the record of the 1937 Newark Bears.

The Bears of that year, hailed as the greatest minor-league team ever assembled, won the flag by 23½ games. They won 109 games and lost 43 for a .717 mark.

The Royals today lead by 11 games, in order to match Newark's victory total of 1937 they must win 61 of their remaining 77 games.

Tom Lasorda turned in his 10th victory compared to three defeats as he pitched the Royals to a 16-4 victory over the runner-up Buffalo Bisons last night.

The Royals pounded four Buffalo pitchers for 18 hits and wrapped up the game with five runs in the eighth inning. Al Gionfriddo led the attack, driving in four runs on four hits including a home run.

The loss cut the Bisons' edge over the third-place Syracuse Chiefs to one percentage point. The Chiefs in turn lead the fourth-place Rochester Red Wings by one percentage point. A game between the Chiefs and Wings was rained out after a scoreless inning of play.

Leafs Win

Toronto's fifth-place Maple Leafs drew to within one game of the .500 mark as they defeated Ottawa Giants 7-4. Charlie Grant drove in four runs. Erv Medlinger gained credit for the victory. Bill Gardner and Harvey Gentry homered for Ottawa.

Springfield Cubs edged Baltimore Orioles 2-1 in 13 innings. The Cubs scored the winning run on a two-base error, a walk and fielder's choice. Hooks Iott Fear checked the Orioles on six hits. He fanned 10 and walked two in gaining his second victory in six decisions.

Perfect Round In Bisley Shoot For Toronto Man

Bisley, England, July 17 (CP) —Lieut. G. S. Boa of Toronto fired a perfect 50-Monday to win the $25 first prize in the Bisley Gun Club clay pigeon shoot. He scored four points more than his nearest opponent.

Canadian marksmanship in Britain's National Rifle Shooting Match has been close to the maximum in most of the contests.

In the Conde Doyle - Long-Range Match (10 shots at 900 yards) first this morning were Lieut. R. Ryan of Kingston, 18th and Boa 20th, both scored 49.

Boa shared top Canadian honors in the 600-yard Alexandra Shoot with CSM. Norman Beckett of Hamilton, who shot 48 of 50.

Ontario Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

Rain, the bugaboo of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League this season, came along yesterday and kept everyone but the caretakers away from the ball parks.

Waterloo at London and Kitchener at Galt were both postponed as a result of a series of thunder showers that swept across southern Ontario in general and Galt and London in particular.

Tonight they'll try again with Galt at Guelph and Waterloo at St. Thomas. The weatherman is helping with the prediction of clear skies.

51 Homers Hit In Two-Day Binge

New York, July 17 —(AP)— Major league batters have clouted 51 home runs in the last two days.

The home-run binge started Sunday when National League batters banged out 19 and American League players added 13.

Yesterday National League batters belted 18 and American League hitters 10.

Wes Westrum of the Giants and Luke Easter of the Indians led yesterday's bombardment with two homers each.

RETURN JAPS

Singapore, July 17 — (AP) One hundred and twenty Japanese war criminals, including three former internment camp commandants, will be returned to Japan Aug. 3 to complete their prison sentences. They have been imprisoned in jails at Singapore, Malaya and North Borneo.

$1,500 in Prizes To be Offered At Peterborough

Peterborough, July 17—(CP)— Prizes worth $1,500 will be at stake this year in the annual Kawartha Lakes 54-hole amateur golf tournament Aug. 4-5-6—the Civic Holiday weekend. Officials call this year's sixth annual event Canada's "largest and richest amateur golf tournament."

Competitors will be divided into three classes with equal number of prizes for each.

Moe Norman of Kitchener won the 1950 event and Phil Farley of Toronto was runner-up in a field of 263 entries. A larger entry list is expected this year.

Kesselring 12 Up In Second Round

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener took an additional two-stroke lead over Nick Westlock of Windsor Monday at the end of the second round of the Ontario Willingdon Cup golf trials at Rosedale Golf Club.

Kesselring put together a 69-75 card for the 36 holes to score a 144 over the par 71 course. This added to his previous 54-hole total in qualifying play, gave him a 356 for 90 holes, 12 ahead of Westlock and 20 ahead of Don Varey of Brantford.

Varey and Bernie Johnson of Chedoke faced a stiff battle to nail down the remaining two places on the Ontario golf team participating in the interprovincial match, in Ottawa next month. With 18 holes to be played at London Hunt Course next Wednesday, they are in a virtual tie for third place with Bob Fair of Scarboro and Gordon Ball of Kitchener and Bill Gibbons of Toronto. All have scores in the high 370's.

Magistrate Gets Tough With Careless Drivers

Kingston, July 17—(CP)—Making good his promise to impose a prison term on anyone convicted of careless driving, Magistrate James A. Garvin Monday sentenced Ralph Hartley Clark, R.R. 3, Gananoque, to seven days in jail. Clark was also ordered to pay $97.90 in court costs.

Clark was charged following an accident June 23 on No. 2 highway, 14 miles east of Gananoque, when his car was involved in a head-on collision with a car driven by Ernest Gilmour, of Quebec City. Mrs. Mildred Gilmour, wife of the driver, suffered injuries in the crash which completely wrecked both cars.

Magistrate Garvin said last week that at the risk of being socially ostracized he would make the issue where careless drivers were concerned a jail sentence rather than one of proving financial responsibility.

He said the arguments on drunken driving had been exaggerated. "They should punish drivers, when they are not causing accidents, have a mandatory sentence when causes of careless driving resulting in accidents have been dealt with by the imposing of fines!" he asked.

Loggers Balk At Horse Meat

Vancouver, July 17—(CP)— Husky British Columbia loggers, who have appetites like horses, don't want horse meat on their cookhouse tables. Local 1-71 of the International Woodworkers of America (C.C.L.) passed a resolution Sunday opposing use of horse meat for human consumption. They hinted that any camp cook who puts it on the table will be run out of the bush.

Ceremony Will Mark Unveiling Of Locomotive

By FORBES REUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Kingston, Ont., which saw the birth of diesel-locomotive manufacture in Canada in 1928, will get back into the diesel picture with a bang on Aug. 1.

The day will be celebrated as "Kingston Diesel Day" and will mark the "unveiling" by Canadian Locomotive Co. Ltd., of the first locomotive of the company's present line to be produced in the Kingston plant.

The line is known as "The Consolidation" and the locomotive shown Aug. 1 will be a streamlined 2,200-horsepower road-freight type weighing 320,000 pounds. Other models in the line include high-powered passenger types and switchers, and all will be powered by the Fairbanks - Morse opposed-piston diesel engine, used in submarine service in the Second World War.

Principal speakers at the ceremony will be Dr. Wm. J. Scherman, Premier Frost of Ontario, and Mayor Clifford Curtis of Kingston.

Officials Probe Prison Outbreak

Canon City, Colo., July 17 — (AP) — Five subdued convicts stirred restlessly in barren, solitary cells today while officials probed their bloody attempt to free 10 dangerous criminals from the Colorado State Prison.

Two guards were wounded, neither seriously, in the fighting that broke out yesterday when five convicts, brandishing knives and a revolver, tried to spring 10 prisoners from isolation cells. The 10 included incorrigibles placed in solitary for bad behavior.

Thirty-armed guards trapped the five convicts in a cellhouse and pinned them with a torrent of tear gas.

Held Guards as Hostages

The prisoners held five guards as hostages for a short time during the 45-minute uprising. Warden Roy Best said the escape plot was planned by Harold Blakesley—Pueblo (Colo.) robber with a long record of prison rebellion. He is among the 10 in the isolation cells.

Chet Yeo, a captain of the guards, was shot in the back after breaking loose from the convicts. Guard Amon Murley suffered arm and leg wounds from a ricocheting bullet later while the trapped convicts exchanged gunfire with the guards.

The prison houses 1,259 convicts.

One of the rebellious convicts, John W. Davies, 31, serving 20 to 30 years for kidnapping and robbery at Denver, told a reporter he took part in the break because "I wanted to go home. I ain't got no more comment."

Warden Best directed his investigation toward the source of the prisoners' weapons.

APPEALS FOR ENTRIES

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Irene Wall of Montreal, president of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, today issued a special appeal for Ontario entries for the federation's junior track and field championships at Montreal July 28. Miss Wall said she was particularly anxious to get entries from smaller centres in the province.

"OIL NEEDS A LOT OF THINGS, JIMMY!"

"Tankers, Jimmy, are just one of the things the oil business needs. It needs supplies for pipe lines and new refineries. It needs tank cars and trucks and storage tanks. It needs workers and material from all parts of Canada."

Bringing your oil is a big job. It employs labor and skills and ideas across the nation. In the past five years Imperial Oil alone has undertaken to invest more than $200 millions—about $60 for every family in Canada. Much of this money has been spent to find and develop new oil fields in the prairies, fields which mean new prosperity and new security for all Canada. But almost half of it has been invested in new tankers and pipe lines, in new refining units and in facilities to bring the products to you.

With oil playing an increasingly important part in our daily lives, the oil industry's job is bringing new strength and better living for Canadians everywhere.

About Canada's Oil

Canadians are using almost twice as much oil as they did only five years ago.

Last year Imperial bought equipment and supplies from more than 6,000 Canadian firms.

Imperial's investment in plant and equipment is equivalent to more than $23,000 for each employee.

The wholesale prices of Esso gasolines have increased only a third as much as the average price of all commodities over the past 10 years.

It is not the palooka partner who causes you the most trouble in a bridge game. You do not expect him to know what is right. And he seldom disappoints you. Nor does he cross you up.

The real problem partner is the one whom you believe capable. His flunkeisms is unpredictable. You never know whether to take him for granted or for a ride.

In a rubber bridge game came the deal you see here:

South was the dealer and passed. West opened with a bid of one spade. I was kibitzing the north hand. To my amazement he stuck in a bid of one no-trump. That is just what he did. He bid one no-trump.

East bid two diamonds. South now entered the picture with a bid of two no-trump. Having all the suits stopped except spades, he felt safe in doing so. Had not north bid no-trump over spades?

West made the most of his opportunity and doubled. After that, everybody passed. When the smoke of battle cleared, declarer took exactly two tricks; down 1,700. Quite a smack at a stack.

South was one of those rare partners who suffers in silence. He said not a word. Five quiet was deafening. When the calm subsided, north volunteered: "I was just showing you I had the suit."

Somewhere in the course of his checkered bridge life, north must have heard: "A no-trump bid shows the opponent suit stopped." But how can a man of intelligence believe there is nothing more to it?

A bid of one in anything must take seven tricks. And in the notrump department there are no trumps to help get tricks. Tricks must be taken with the biggest and best cards mostly.

If north had said he was chucking a bluff it would be something to swallow. But even that would be silly without a rescue in reserve.

Only a bridge player thinks two and two do not make four.

HARD-HEADED

Toronto, July 17—(CP)— Edward Mason, 20-year-old clerk in a west Toronto jewelry store, is hard-headed.

A young thug hit him on the head with a gun Monday so hard that the plating on the butt was shattered. But Mason was still able to rout the gunman and his pal before they could steal any money or jewelry.

Movie Column

By JACK GUIGG
(For Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, July 17 — (AP) — On the screen he was a tall, loose-jointed, shuffling fellow with a sleepy drawl whose sole goal was to stretch out under the nearest tree and snooze. He was billed as the laziest man in the world.

Off the screen he was always on the go, usually in one of his 12 high-powered cars. He had three homes and there was usually a party at one of them.

These were lavish affairs — he employed 21 servants and greeted his guests in suits that cost up to $1,000. When he travelled he thought nothing of tipping a porter $100.

In 1937 he left Hollywood abruptly. The town has heard little of his since. A news item in 1944 said he had gone bankrupt in Chicago to the tune of $4,000,000. The town wondered how any man could run up that many billions, then forgot him again.

Now Stepin Fetchit is back. The most successful Negro movie player of his day says he has changed: the time a waiter will be no mistakes, no more rose-colored limousines with footmen in livery.

"In 1927 I was earning $2,200 a week, 52 weeks a year. I lived big success. Why, one producer even wanted to make me the star of a picture. Then the studios started bringing in bootblacks and trying to make Stepin Fetchits out of them.

"They used anyone who resembled me. Then my studio wanted to cut my salary. I didn't like it so I quit."

On the Road

Step started touring with a song and dance act he had perfected before he came to Hollywood. Slowly his income fell.

But his credit was still good. He kept buying whatever caught his fancy. The inevitable result was bankruptcy.

Step — whose real name is an impressive Lincoln Theodore Monroe Andrew Perry — had landed a job already. A studio wrote a part into a western script for him and he says it's a good one.

BOTH ENDS

Scarborough, Me., July 17—AP Horses bred and trained by a woman took both ends of the daily double at Scarborough Downs last night.

Ambivalent and Breath of Life, from Mrs. Mona McNaughton's Blue Grass Farm, Ltd., at Blairstown, N.J., returned $33.60 to double backers.

The track publicity office said it was the first time in racing history a woman trainer won both daily double races

BERING STRAIT

Alaska and Russia are separated by only 56 miles of open sea.

NEGRO WISHES TO BRAVE RIOTING MOB

A living barricade is formed by steel-helmeted Illinois National Guardsmen, while blocking an estimated mob of 10,000 intent on destroying an apartment house in Cicero, a suburb of Chicago, into which a Negro family had moved. Many were cut when surging into bayonets. Fires resulted from dynamite caps and magnesium flares thrown into building.

World War II veteran Harvey Clark, and his wife, the Negroes over whom the Cicero crowd rioted, were determined to move into the apartment, riot or no riot. Friends and legal advisers are trying to persuade him to give up the idea.—Central Press Canadian.

SIX GRANTED BAIL

Toronto, July 17—(CP)—Three youths and three juveniles, awaiting trial on charges of raping a 16-year-old girl in a west-end park last May 15, Monday were granted bail of $5,000. Robert Blair, 21, Donald O'Brien, 16, Tony Capicciotti, 18, and the juveniles were granted bail at the request of their counsel. They were genided bail last July 4 when they were committed for trial in the fall.

OLD INDUSTRY

Linen was first manufactured in England by Flemish weavers in 1253.

AT THE McCARTHY — Talented Ginger Rogers stars with Jack Carson in Hollywood's first comedy about a Western movie star in Universal-International's "The Groom Wore Spurs," now playing at the Odeon-McCarthy Theatre. Second feature stars Richard Quine in "Under the Gun."

AT THE BELLE — Danny Kaye and Gene Tierney see eye to eye in a romantic moment from "On the Riviera," 20th. Century-Fox's latest and gayest Technicolor musical farce to be seen on screen at the Belle Theatre today and Wednesday. Kaye, in a double role, also makes love to French lovely Corinne Calvet, as well as five other beauties.

Little Benny's Note Book

I started to go to bed and I came down to the living room again, saying to ma, Hay ma, I cant untie this shoelace.

For Fest sake you cant untie your own shoelace and you cant get yourself up in the morning, pop said. Where is all this going to end? Are you going to wind up like Helpless Herman? he said, and I said, I never heard of him.

Then I'll tell you about him, pop said. He started out at your age just the way you're going, having everything done for him. His mother lied his neckties and walked him to school, and when he got into fites with the other boys he hadn't the slightest idea what to do about it, so his father had to solve the difficulty by licking the other boys' father, he said, and I said, G, pop, I bet you could do that too, if you wanted to.

Maybe so, but I dont want to, and neither do Helpless Herman's father, but he had no choice in the matter, pop said. Unfortunately, the other boys' fathers were all bigger than Helpless Herman's father, and the constant strane broke down the poor man's health, and his wife had to devote all her time to him, so there was nobody to devote any time to Helpless Herman, and he grew up full of splinters, with all his buttons dangling, and one day he was unable to find his own way home and the police brought he was a hobo and gave him 3 hours to get out of town, but naturelly he couldent find the way out of town by himself, and I never did find out how his story ended, pop said, and ma said, Well I can tell you how Benny's story is going to end.

G, how, ma? I said, and she said, I'm going to untie that shoelace before you waist another half an hour in a faint-hearted wrestle with it.

The result being she untied it with about 3 easy motions.

Cherry Growners Want More From Canners

St. Thomas, July 17—(CP) Commercial cherry growers in this district said Monday that canners and processors should pay its cents a pound for sour cherries instead of eight cents a pound, reported to have been offered. "In 1948 the price was 13 cents a pound, in 1949 it was 12 cents, in 1950 they bought hardly any, and now they expect to pay only eight cents, although our costs are up," said H. C. McCormick, commercial fruit grower of Dexter.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, July 18

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Precautions stressed today lest you make needless blunders, cause others' ire to rise. Think and plan calmly and in pleasant state of mind. You'll be surprised at benefic results.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Whole planetary setup here suggests careful scrutiny of important duties, reasonableness and sound judgment. May be irritating times, situations, but you can master them with intelligence.

May 22 to June 21—(Gemini)—Your Mercury and several planets so situated warn against hasty judgment, sharp answers, impatience in anything. Day required clear thinking, kindly understanding.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—As with most of us today the directive is to be careful, thoughtful and above all have patience and gentleness if you want good results from efforts and co-operation from others.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—You can be firm, wise, discerning without being arrogant or intolerant, and this day especially calls for the first three and a strong sprinkling of the latter two. Be cheerful.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo)—If you will remember not to fret or worry but carry on with duties in your capable manner and not be too demanding or critical, you can attain some good: that is something. Smile.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Advice to Taurus, suitable now. Your acceptance of day's duties, orders from authority, even added responsibilities will make day pleasantar, easier to handle; will bring rewards.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Self-discipline and common sense are the important aids this none-too-easy period. This should spur you on to show what you can accomplish when things are not within easy grasp.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Fewer restrictions for your personal attainment than for many, but you, too, must exercise self-restraint, work harder than on other days. You can gain at least in prestige.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)— Your Saturn says neither helpful nor unfriendly period (leaning much up to you). Day has some pitfalls; it will be wise not to overdo or be careless. Think, then proceed.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — Uranus and other planets warn against hasty, unpremeditated moves, also about careless ways in duties. Day can be very useful, even productive if sensibly managed by you.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—If your schedule is urgent, demanding, then you will have to be doubly wise and discerning, also patient, cheerful. You possess these latter qualities, bring them to the fore for us new.

YOU BORN TODAY: If living true to your finest qualities and if you have developed or are developing your talents and capabilities, you are a practical, useful, likeable citizen, reliable, ready for action, and can make happy headway in business, trade, profession, home life. Energetic, artistic, too. May have to curb appetite of certain foods for better health, also be careful spending; don't be taken in by flatterers or those who impose upon sympathy. Be discerning in choice of friends as in business deals. Very good opportunities ahead for advancement.

WHY WE SAY

- Little tablecloth

In the 1890's the bigger the napkin used at a meal, the more important it was. Napkin actually came from the Old French word "nape" for tablecloth.

$7,000,000 Irrigation Dam At Lethbridge in Service

Lethbridge, Alta., July 16 — ($7,000,000 St. Mary River dam, part of a vast scheme to irrigate dry lands of southern Alberta, was officially placed in service today.

Day long celebrations preceded and were to follow the opening of valves by Agriculture Minister Gardiner to throw the dam's irrigation tunnel into operation.

The dam, 10 miles south of Lethbridge, is the world's largest earth-fill dam. It controls a man-made lake 18 miles long and six miles wide, from which nourishing water will flow to crops through a maze of canals and ditches.

It will take 10 or 15 years to complete the entire $30,000,000 irrigation scheme which it is hoped will turn 400,000 acres of dry range land into one of Canada's richest farming areas. But when it is completed farm homes will have been provided for more than 3,000 families.

At the opening ceremonies this afternoon, speeches were to be made by Mr. Gardiner, Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta and chairman Phillip Baker of the South Alberta Water Conservation Council.

The 35-piece RCMP band from Regina was to head a procession of Indians and honorary Indian chiefs in tribal dress escorting Mr. Gardiner to an amphitheatre near the control tower of the dam's irrigation tunnel. There, Mr. Gardiner was to be made an honorary chief of the Blood Indians by head Chief Shot-Both-Sides.

The new area to be brought under irrigation adds to 120,000 acres already watered under earlier schemes. Farm experts estimate that agricultural production from this irrigated land has averaged $100 an acre or more a year.

The St. Mary dam was started in 1946. To build it, more than 4,000,000 cubic yards of clay and gravel was piled across the path of the St. Mary river which flows northward to Alberta from Montana.

The St. Mary reservoir, behind the new dam, will store 294,600 acre feet of water—enough to cover 460 square miles of land to a depth of one foot.

The seven-all scheme is known as the St. Mary-Milk river project. Talked about as long ago as 1919, it was studied in 1943 as a joint federal-provincial scheme. The 130,000 acres of privately-developed irrigation in the area was absorbed.

The total of 500,000 acres is in two sections. One stretches east and west from near Magrath through Raymond, New Dayton and Milk river, a distance of about 60 miles.

The other is from just east of Lethbridge through Turin, Purple Springs, Grassy Lake, Bow Island and Seven Persons to the south end of Medicine Hat. That section is about 100 miles long and at one point is 35 miles wide.

The terrain is near perfect for irrigation. It is almost level, sloping gently at from 10 to 30 feet a mile to allow the water to run slowly from farm to irrigation ditches across the fields.

Fit Oxygen Mask To Baby Deer In Rockies Flight

Edmonton, July 16 — (CP) — Bambi, a baby deer from Vancouver Island, flew at 13,000 feet above the Rocky Mountains during the weekend with an oxygen mask over its nose.

The fawn made the flight from Abbotsford, B. C., with Edmonton's 418 RCAF Squadron.

Bambi returned with its air force "father," Fit. Lt. Tommy Harvey of Edmonton, who found the fawn after its mother had been killed by a cougar.

"We had to climb to 13,000 to get over the mountains," said Fit. Lt. Harvey.

"With a paper cup we made an oxygen mask for Bambi — the nose wouldn't go into the issue one. Then we fed the oxygen in by hose. Bambi didn't mind a bit."

He said the fawn will be sent to Elk Island National Park as soon as it can eat grass. Right now Bambi is bottle-fed.

HALLOWAY

Halloway—Larry McMaster, of Ivanhoe, spent a few days last week with Don and Jean McMullen.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

EVER since the Canadian wonder-boy Jack Kent Cooke acquired control of the Maple Leaf Baseball Club, the rumors have been thick and fast. Never a retiring individual, the publisher has threatened to lift the lowly Leafs bodily into the playoffs this year. But, in spite of the dent weight-lifting has made in his bankroll, as such an undertaking (if any) would be a big one, there is a definite problem is far above hereby winning or losing a ball game or even a pennant.

Home-Runner

Before launching into the first cost crusade for the Leaf club, let's take a fleeting glance at the career of the new president of the base-ball organization.

Jack Kent Cooke, still believes that anything can be accomplished if if you supper well enough. Cooke's taste with optimism and cooke it to a frazzle, like his American counterpart, Bill Veeck, Cooke's prime commodity is publicity. Veeck, ship, Chuble Veeck, however, Jack has never before ventured into sport promotion on a large scale Leaf Club should test his inventive genius to the limit.

Already a success in radio and publishing (CKEY, NEW LIBERATOR), Cooke nevertheless brings little more than his boundless enthusiasm to his present undertaking. However, that, alone, may again prove a successful formula.

Admittedly, all was not flowers, moonlight and cheers when the announcement was made that Cooke had taken over the ball club but we believe that Jack Kent Cooke, Ted Walker and the rest of the management staff will really enjoy working for this 20th Century whizbang. There are flat feet all over Canada attesting to Jack Cooke's drive and energy.

Stadium Plans

Messrs. Cooke and Ziegler plan, ultimately, to make Maple Leaf Stadium a mecca for the whole family. Music will be featured throughout the park during intermissions in play. Registered nurses will check your children at the entrance gate and house and entertain the tots (under nine-and-a-half) until the game finishes. There's even a rumor that Jack C. will install barber chairs in the boxes with the suggestion that the implied soncha-l-ure of such a move will rile the visiting team into a lather.

But, in our opinion, all these ideas may fall in the long haul unless President Jack Cooke faces up to the fact that baseball in Canada, is still as dead as a doornail. As a Canadian himself, Mr. Cooke must realize that while the national League entries will always lack the sure-fire emotional appeal of Canada's playing Canada's teams. Perhaps the new President will do something about it.

Canadian Talent

Nationally, we Canadians are in a peculiar position. Hockey is the only game we really consider our own. Football game has come to depend on American quarterbacks and other imported, high-priced help, so the promoter who realizes that Canadian sport fans will pay more to watch Canadian talent will hit the jackpot.

We hope that baseball's Jack Cooke will give this tested theory his most dynamic punch.

Agreed, it can't be accomplished overnight, but, if the modernistic shows and Canadian baseball players are encouraged, then, one by one, our youngsters can ease into Maple Leaf uniforms where they belong. It follows, that win, lose or draw, there will be no dearth of interest in baseball in Canada. Man for man, Canada produces the best sport fans in the world.

Make it your number one crusade, Mr. Cooke!

Mystery Illness Plagues Family

Hull, Que., July 17—(CP)—Two small children of an upper Gatineau Valley farmer were in critical condition in hospital here last night suffering from a mysterious ailment. A younger brother died Sunday.

Hospital officials said the condition of Ellard Peck, 6, was "extremely critical with very little hope of recovery." His four-month-old sister, Alice, was given an even chance of living.

Three of five young children of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Peck, who farm near Danford Lake 40 miles northwest of here, became suddenly ill early last week. A four-year-old son, Elmer, was found dead in his cot Sunday morning and the other two were brought to hospital here.

Both the father, 56 and the 22-year-old mother were at a loss to explain the sudden tragedy. Mr. Peck said the family had been drinking water from a spring near a bend lake on their farm and possibly the water caused the illness.

Another possibility he suggested was that the children may have become sick from green apples they had been eating.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

"I still can't understand how you could spend all day in a gym and not even know the name of it," Arthur said.

Lucilla had a pair of Hoopy's corduroy overalls on her lap. She had spent the past half-hour turning up one cuff and her face wore the floating fathomless softness which on a woman can mean almost anything. All she heard of Arthur's remark was "Gym," but that was enough to set her conscience thudding loudly. She had meant to tell him before dinner, and had rehearsed several variations on the way home, ranging from "promise not to laugh," to applying wifely thumbscrews approach. "You said you didn't care what it cost, so naturally I took you at your word and registered today, and I'll have to go ahead with it whether you approve or not." Even in these rehearsals, she had never got quite so far as saying "Beautiful You" to him outright.

"You act as if names were all that mattered." It was a relief to use the radio as an excuse to yell. "I already told you it has a good reputation."

"How do you know it has a good reputation if you can't remember the name?"

"Are you implying I'd throw away good money on some crackpot scheme?" There is nothing so easy to fan to flames as righteous indignation, and she had felt good to Lucilla removing the last chill from her conscience. "I'm not a half-wit, you know."

Arthur said he hadn't said she was a half-wit, but simply one can be fooled. I thought if you gave me the name, I could check up on the place at the office. Miss Nitz or some of the other girls are bound to have heard of it."

His wife said coldly she didn't need secretaries to tell her what was good. "I already know it's a lot better than the YWCA."

Remembering the discussion on bloomers and the YW, he was emphatically avoiding another short circuit. "I can't understand what all they do that takes five hours a day."

With his passion for orderly facts, it was a pity she couldn't come right out with the New Girls' schedule, as announced that afternoon.

On the following day at 1:10 p.m., Miss Dottie was lecturing the New Girls on stimulating the blood to achieve that inner glow. Listeners were neither standing sitting nor lying. They were suspended by their heels on objects resembling parallel bars, stopped at a 45 degree angle. Their heads dangled toward the floor; their faces were covered with fast hardening pink clay; their muscles were clenched with the effort of hanging on by their heels to the top end of the board. "All your lives, you've been fighting against a certain something," Miss Dottie announced. "You've been fighting it during every waking hour— resisting, struggling, struggling oh, so hard. And what is that something you've been fighting?" She paused for dramatic effect. "Gravity!"

Lucilla, rigid with the strain of staying in place on the board, heard the words with a vague sense of surprise.

"Gravity makes your muscles sag toward the ground instead of soaring upward, produces those dreary chins and abdomens, those horrid facial lines. You're not fighting any longer— you're defying gravity. When you relax like this at the divine angle, you're getting back at gravity for everything it's done. The blood is rushing to your head. And all those lines are smoothed out. Underneath your clay, pore-refiner mask, your face is as relaxed and unlined as a baby's, and just wait till you see the inner glow your complexion will have."

She was uncomfortable in an entirely different way from two to three. During personal manipulation. On one side of the Hall of Mirrors, the Bulgies were playing spanky-wanky, which consisted of lying on floor, rearing their buttocks into the air, and then slapping them against the floor with terrific force. In the opposite corner, Miss Willit explained to Lucilla that it was necessary to create tension in order to strengthen the muscles. She held Lucilla's arms overhead and then urged her pupil to pull down while she pulled up, which was nasty going. "Stretch those pectorals. Feel them stretch," Lucilla heaved and strained, her spirit uplifted by the cheery promise, "this does wonders for flat chests."

The instructors remarks were punctuated by the resounding slaps of Bulgies buttocks. Occasionally she would go over to superintend the spanky-wanky. "Harder Miss Green, you want to break down that fleshy tissue. Mrs. Clergy, you're only spanking your left side! You must treat them both alike, for best results."

Lucilla continued to think of them curves from 3 to 4, while the new girls under the instruction of Monsieur Jellieu brushed their hair out and away from their heads. Mrs. Colps, sitting in front of Lucilla, attacked her abbreviated black curls furiously. Once she whispered, "doesn't her scalp feel kind of raw, after awhile?" Part, one seat away, rippled her brush carelessly through her beautiful mane. "I don't know any more which end's up," she complained. "My fanny's killin' me after that spanky-wanky." Lucilla made a faint noise of sympathy.

The next morning Arthur woke up several minutes before the alarm was due to go off, and was sleepily surprised to see that his wife's bed was already empty. His mind drifted in the luxurious waters between sleep and reality, and he was in the middle of a pleasant yawn when he saw Lucilla, nude, hanging in the doorway. The sight nearly unhinged his jaw.

His first horrible thought was that she was trying to do herself in. Her back was to him, she was clutching the door jamb, and her feet dangled just above a stool. Even as he let out a hoarse cry, intended to convey "hold on till I get there," she jerked oddly in mid-air, one flailing foot caught the edge of the stool, knocking it over, and she dropped, landing heavily on her bare feet. As she leaned against the side of the door, panting, she said something that sounded like "I'm practicing it's stunning." Her usually neat hair streamed wildly, her face was flushed, and this with her nudeness, made the remark doubly ominous.

The alarm went off with a cackling suddenness. As if it rang a bell in Lucilla's head, recalling her to the conventions of middle-class living, she grabbed her nightgown off the chair, discarded it for her terry cloth robe, and thus wrapped, said coolly, "I didn't expect you to wake up so soon."

Arthur sat on the edge of the bed speechless. "Why did you yell at me?" she asked, sounding less cool than cross. "It's hard enough to chin, without your frightening me till I fail."

This time, Arthur caught the word "chin," as opposed to "sin," and was somewhat reassured, but he still felt groggy through Lucilla's explanation of chinning to build up muscles on which to build flesh. "If you only want to chin, why would you just as soon use the other bathroom?" she finished.

He nodded, but carefully, so that his head wouldn't roll off and under the bed. Lucilla regarded him critically: the sleep-puffed eyes, the lock of hair straying over his forehead, the soft bulge of abdomen above the drawstring of his faded cotton pyjama pants. She thought he ought to exercise, and felt a malicious pleasure in keeping the idea to herself. If he insists on bulging, her thoughts ran, then that's his own fault.

Later Hoopy, sprinkling sugar on her cereal asked, "where's mommy?"

Arthur answered civilly, "chinning herself no doubt."

Hoopy squealed in appreciation. "Oh, Daddy, you're so funny." Arthur's smile was a trifle pained. "I'm going to tell Mommy what you said." She galloped off, her plaid skirt swinging high as kilts above her knobby little bare knees, Arthur could hear her calling, "Mommy," and the rattle of a doorknob. She returned at a sedate canter, "Mommy's got the bathroom door locked and she won't let me in." She sat down, reached for the sugar bowl again, and said thoughtfully, "I think she's sick."

Arthur took the steps as if he were on skis, and covered the distance to the bathroom. He could hear a sort of groaning. "Lucilla" he knocked. "Lucilla, are you sick? Do you want me to call Dr. Lavell?" There was a silence so vast he was convinced she had fainted. He pounded with his fists on the sturdy wooden frame. The door was opened so suddenly he almost fell on all fours.

"What on earth are you pounding for?" Lucilla was still in her robe.

Hoopy said you were sick."

"How silly! Why did she say that?"

"What was that noise you were making?"

Lucilla looked puzzled. Arthur gave a sample retch and groan "like this."

"Oh! I was doing an exercise to strengthen my—my diaphragm. She started to close the door. "I'll be out in a minute."

"You've already been in there over 40 minutes."

She was honestly startled. "Why, I..."

Arthur consulted his watch. "Exactly 47 minutes and 30 seconds," he said, as if his wife thought with an upswing of resentment, he was clocking a horse. "I started shaving at 7.55 and it's now 8.42 and . . ."

"Then why are you still here? You'll make Hoopy late for school." Hoopy appeared in sweater and tam.

"Monkey bars, that's all we need." Arthur was gesturing toward the washstand. "Are all those jars and bottles of stuff supposed to strengthen your diaphragm, too?"

The secret garden of beauty was turning out to be rather full of rocks.

But for encouragement there was the special role she played as the lone Bony at the spring term with 14 Bulgies, like 14 Charlottes, to make her feel wonderfully fragile and girlish.

Even the youngest member of the class, the hockey-muscled girl who couldn't have been more than 20, treated Lucilla as a fascinating problem child. "I just never saw such a skinny waist," she would marvel. "And your wrists look as if I could snap them in two."

Other classmates greeted Lucilla with the indulgent smile one reserves for a company mascot.

SHARK "NIBBLED HIS TOES"

Found alive after floating for 22 hours in the Pacific, hundreds of miles off Hawaii, Ted Sielka (left) of Los Angeles, had been swept overboard from the sloop L'Apache. He was picked up by a U.S. navy destroyer escort and told its skipper he had fought choppy seas and even killed a shark which was "nibbling his toes". Before the accident, Sielka and the sloop's crew, cooling with him, had sailed from Honolulu in a race to Los Angeles. Initial efforts to find him were futile.—Central Press Canadian.

RECAPTURE JAILBREAKER

Montreal, July 17 (CP) — Provincial Police Monday night said Fernand Dumont, 23-year-old escaped convict, was re-captured Saturday in Barrie, Ont., by an Ontario Provincial Policeman. He is being held for police here.

Dumont escaped June 10 from St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary 20 miles north of Montreal. This was his third jail break in a year.

Dumont flitted in and out of Sorel jail almost at will. His escapades resulted in an investigation by the attorney-general's department and the retirement of the jail governor.

U.S. CONSIDERS SPAIN IMPORTANT IN DEFENCE LINK

Acheson Admits Split With Britain on Policy

Washington, July 18—(AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson announced today that the United States has opened talks with Spain's Franco government on its possible role in the defence of Europe.

He conceded that the United States is split with Britain and France on the question.

Acheson said the statement read to his press conference that "military authorities are in general agreement that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defence of western Europe."

Acheson said he understands the Spanish government may make an announcement concerning possible changing some of its policies, which have been criticized in the U.S. as dictatorial.

Information Sought

Referring to Admiral Forrest Sherman's talk with Franco Monday, Acheson said it was "natural" that talks should be started to find out what Spain "might be willing and able to do" to build up the common defences against possible aggression. Sherman, chief of naval operations, is on a European tour concerned mainly with Mediterranic Pact defences. Spain is not a member of the defence pact.

In his statement Acheson said:

"We have been talking with the British and French governments for many months about the possible role of Spain in relation to the general defence of western Europe.

"We have not been able to find a common position on this subject with these governments for reasons of which we are aware and understand. However, for the strategic reasons outlined above, the United States has decided to begin these exploratory conversations."

Acheson said:

"It has been and is our firm intention to see to it that if western Europe is attacked it will be defended—and not liberated."

Rumor Britain Asking Action On Suez Blockade

London, July 18—(Reuters)—Britain is seeking United States co-sponsorship for a resolution asking for Security Council action in connection with the Egyptian "blockade" of the Suez Canal, a usually well-informed source said here today.

A British draft resolution has been circulated to a number of countries including the United States the last few days including those of the United States, France and the Netherlands, and some have acted.

So far no definite United States opinion on the British resolution has been forthcoming.

Diplomatic quarters here thought Britain might go ahead and table it on Monday.

Hail, Wind Batter Western Crops

Saskatoon, July 18. (CP)—Hail battered grain crops and caused 50 to 100 per cent damage Monday in scattered strips of territory between the Alberta boundary and Saskatoon.

Reports of damage came in Tuesday. Apparently it was the same eastward-moving storm that ripped southern Alberta crops earlier.

At Cando, midway between Biggar and North Battleford, hail stones were reported lying six inches deep on the ground, with 100-per-cent damage along a narrow strip.

Crop temperature dropped from 82 to 56 degrees within a few minutes. Winds of hurricane strength accompanied the hail.

In southern Alberta, hailstorms during the last three days have destroyed thousands of acres of crops. In Calgary last night, a 15-minute storm broke thousands of windows.

Scientists Doubt Crater Found In Algonquin Park Caused by Meteor

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)— Two federal scientists who examined a massive circular depression in the north in Ontario's Algonquin Park reported there is no direct evidence that it was caused by a meteor.

Dr. H. M. A. Rice of the Geological Survey of Canada and Dr. J. F. Millman of the Dominion Observatory, who journeyed to the site of the recently discovered crater, said it may have had an origin other than by a meteor striking on the earth at this place. They did not speculate on what that origin might have been.

They said they had found none of the nickel-iron type of magnetic material normally found around meteoritic craters.

They added that their examination was only preliminary and that a further investigation, including both geological and geophysical studies, is planned.

The crater, a few miles south of the town of Brent in the centre of the park, came to light recently in aerial mapping photos of the park. It is nearly two miles in diameter.

The scientists reported that the crater, though it is depression on the surface, contains glacial deposits which establish its origin as pre-glacial and which tend to obscure the original features.

The rim is not as pronounced as in the huge meteoritic crater discovered last year in Northern Ungava, although the circular outline is clearly apparent in the aerial photographs.

As a result of both airborne and ground observations, no magnetic material has been found in the meteoritic sense. However, hence there is no direct evidence of meteoric material of the nickel-iron type commonly found around other known meteoric craters," the scientists said.

Dr. Rice noted "some peculiar features" on the southern edge of the crater, where rock outcrops occur, but so far no outcrops close to the circular edge have been found on the northern side.

Expect Soviet Peace Promotion To Increase Next Few Weeks, Plan Throw West Off Balance

Washington, July 18—(AP)—American diplomats look for Russia to put forth a major diplomatic proposal in the next few weeks to promote its current "peace offensive" and raise new hopes for easing east-west tensions.

One possibility foreseen in speculation here is a proposal for a big power meeting, including red China, to settle far eastern questions. This would logically follow any firm agreement to end the fighting in Korea.

In a statement on an English-language magazine which has just been published in Moscow, the State Department asserted last night that current Soviet "peace propaganda" efforts are designed to "lull free nations to sleep."

U. S. government experts in Soviet maneuvering say the Kremlin now apparently intends to try to gain by demonstrations of friendliness, a slow-down, or disruption of efforts by the free nations to strengthen their power.

Discredit Peace Treaty

One obvious specific objective for such Kremlin tactics would be to delay or discredit the signing of a Japanese peace treaty which is proposed by the U. S. for San Francisco in September.

Another objective would be to try to weaken the anti-communist alliance in the West, among the Russians may hope to accomplish (1) by exploiting differences in American and British far eastern policies and (2) minimizing fear of communist conquest in Europe and exploiting French distaste for German rearmament.

The issuance of the new Russian magazine "News" is only one incident which diplomats here take into account in estimating what the Russians are up to. Another is that Russia took the lead in suggesting Korean armistice negotiations.

Actually the Russians have always put forward, since the end of the Second World War, parallel policy and propaganda lines. They have alternately emphasized their belief in "peaceful coexistence" of communist and non-communist countries and have pressed what U.S. officials consider to be their real long-range aim of spreading communism over the world.

Closer Understanding

The new magazine is dedicated to its own words, to promotion of "closer understanding between the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States of America."

State Department press officer Michael McDermott said it is devoid of the usual communist line and language, and he suggested things to provide guidance for the communist party in the western countries.

On the broad question of basic differences between western powers and Russia, the present belief is that neither side is ready for war, even in either the diplomatic or the military sphere and that Russia's conciliatory gestures are timed only in trying to throw the programs of the west off balance.

Willing to Have Turkey, Greece In N.A.T.O., Britain Decides

London, July 18—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison told the House of Commons today Britain was ready to admit Turkey and Greece to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Morrison said the decision came after long study.

The United States has been pressing for some time for including the two Mediterranean countries in the western European defence set-up as full-fledged members.

Britain at first said she did not oppose the move, but wanted to see if there might be a better way to do it.

Morrison said the main difficulty regarding Turkey had been to reconcile the desirability of those to join the N. A. T. O. with her position in relation to the general defence of the Middle East.

Washington — (Reuters) State Secretary Dean Acheson today welcomed the statement by Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison, that Britain is willing to admit Greece and Turkey to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Asked if Britain's attitude represented a change in previous statements concerned, Acheson told a press conference he was not able to say.

Queen Juliana Will Tour Canada, U.S. Next Year

The Hague, the Netherlands, July 18—(Reuters)—Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands will make an official visit to the United States and Canada next year, it was announced here today.

The invitation to the United States, the communique said, came from President and Mrs. Truman, while the invitation came from Governor-General Viscount Alexander and Lady Alexander.

Both invitations have been "accepted in principle."

Dates of the visits will be decided latad.

This will be Queen Juliana's first visit to the United States since she ascended the throne. She spent several years in Canada during the Second World War and visited the United States when she was Princess Juliana.

SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIPS

Gravenhurst, July 18 — (CP)— The annual Ontario open — water swimming championships will be held in Gull Lake Park here July 21, the Gravenhurst recreation commission announced today.

The events will include a ½ mile open race and several 100 yard senior and junior competitions.

Gravenhurst is about 80 miles north of Toronto.

GENEROUS AID FOR STRICKEN AREAS PROMISED

Truman Makes Aerial Tour of Flooded Sections

Kansas City, Mo., July 18. (AP) —The federal government today moved to rush generous aid to the flood-stricken areas of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

President Truman, who made an 800-mile aerial tour of the water-logged States, pledged quick action.

Charles E. Wilson, defence mobilization director, said key federal agencies would work swiftly to alleviate "the awful conditions the flood has caused."

Congress has voted a $25,000,000 fund. Truman said this was only preliminary money to meet the immediate situation.

Vast Scene of Desolation

During his trip the President saw at least 1,000,000 acres that were inundated or has been under water. His plane flew over flooded industrial districts, checkerboard farms, smashed residential areas and ruined farms.

Missouri, Kansas and Kansas alone has been estimated in excess of $750,000,000—and receding waters are uncovering additional losses daily. The death toll is 91.

High waters continued to drop in the Kansas City area, and in flooded eastern and central Kansas and northeastern Oklahoma.

But the swollen Missouri and Mississippi Rivers menaced lowlands from the Mississippi. Damage already has reached an estimated $750,000,000.

The Missouri empties into the Mississippi north of St. Louis. Although the Missouri is cascading tons of water into the swollen Mississippi now, its crest is only about halfway across the state.

Clean-up Job Begins

In the Kansas City area and in Kansas, the clean-up job is underway in certain areas of Kansas City, Kansas.

An emergency ban on non-essential businesses in Kansas City, Mo., has been lifted and normal industrial operations were resumed today.

There still was a water shortage, however. Flood waters knocked out the city's main pumping station. Gasoline, oil and gasoline, seeping from damaged tanks, still endangered some areas.

Young Couple Pulled From Blazing Car

Aurora, Ont., July 18 (CP)— A young couple were pulled from a burning automobile Tuesday after a head-on collision.

Provincial police reported Mrs. Jackson Smethurst, 26, and Peggy Higgins, 23, both of Toronto. Police said Smethurst's car was in collision with a Toronto-bound one driven by Gerald Marshak, 42, of Birmingham, Ala., near this community 14 miles north of Toronto.

Smethurst suffered a broken thigh and injuries to his face. Miss Higgins' pelvis was broken and eight of her teeth were knocked out.

No Safe Place in Thunderstorm But Some Places Safer Than Others

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

Pittfield, Mass., July 18—(AP) There's no safe place in a thunderstorm—only some places are safer than others.

That lightning rods are no use, that you're safer in an open field than under a tree, that you're safer in a car than in a house, that you're better turn off the electric switches and the radio, that lightning rods are no use, that you're safer if you don't listen to Julius H. Hagenguth, general Electric director of the laboratory which has been making lightning for years.

Safest by far, he says, are open fields. If a surprise thunder shower catches you on the golf course, take shelter in a fairway. If none is available, you will be safer, though damper and dirtier, lying on the ground.

Why is an isolated tree a bad spot? Because the lightning can begin its fiery dive from the tree to you. Also because the stroke may spread underground where you stand through the roots of the tree.

If you are travelling in an all-metal car, stay inside. If you have to get out, never stand with one foot touching the ground, while the other touches the car. In that position you will make a good conductor for lightning from the car to the ground.

It won't do much good to rush around dodging electric lights and switches, or even to go outside in a storm. Lightning which has jumped 2,000 feet from clouds to ground will not jet sidestep by the fraction of an inch break in turning off a switch.

One Major Point Blocks Start of Cease-Fire Talks

Reach Agreement on Two Other Items in Agenda

Seoul, Korea, July 18—(AP)—Allied and communist envoys agreed today on two points of the cease-fire agenda but a dispute over "at least one major point" is blocking the start of actual Korean war armistice negotiations.

The United Nations announced this tonight after negotiators returned from their longest session this week. It was the first report of agreement on any part of the agenda.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. cease-fire team, accepted communist wording for two agenda items at the close of Tuesday's conference, the announcement said.

Grateful Reaction

When he did so, "the entire communist delegation seemed to show gratification, perhaps mixed with a certain element of relief," said Brig.Gen. William Nuckols of the air force. Nuckols attended the session in Kaesong.

And when Joy presented the allied view on the major unresolved point, Nuckols said, the two "Chinese members of the communist delegation nodded and appeared to appreciate the United Nations viewpoint.

Neither Nuckols nor the Korean headquarters announcement disclosed the points agreed upon in the sixth day of conference. Nor did they say what was the major stumbling block to reaching a "mutually acceptable agenda."

But Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Supreme Allied Commander, described it as "essential" to the success of the cease-fire conference.

Agreement Essential

The U. N. Communique said:

"At least one major issue remained unsolved when the conference recessed for the day.

"Agreement on this point is essential to the successful completion of the first phase of the negotiations.

Observers speculated that the key question was the Reds' demand for withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea. The communists want this on the agenda, the United Nations negotiators do not.

Failure to reach early agreement on the scope of actual cease-fire talks.

The two delegations held three sessions Wednesday to speed their work.

Associated Press correspondent Nate Polowetzky, who visited Kaesong, reported that other correspondents and the U.N. public relations officer said "they could feel the growing hostility in the city."

The Reds claim North Korean soldiers strode through the streets in pain, shooting civilians away from allied reporters and cameramen.

Few Weapons Seen

"Only a few weapons were seen throughout Kaesong," Polowetzky said, "the communists obviously keeping to their pledge to demilitarize the city and arm only a small number of soldiers for policing duties."

Reliable sources have said the United Nations want the agenda to include a cease-fire, a buffer zone approximately where the battle lines are (extending 10 spots 20 and more miles north of them) the parallel exchange of prisoners on a man-for-man basis, and freedom of movement behind the lines for neutral observers.

German Emigrant Condemns Work In Canada

Bonn, Germany, July 18 (CP) —A German emigrant in Canada, in a letter published today in Die Welt, leading west German newspaper said work given emigrants is "of the lowest and dirtiest kind."

Unwe Schuster writing from Winnipeg, said he was attracted to Canada two months ago by promises of jobs for farmhands at $100 to $130 a month and up to $320 for specialists.

In actual practice, he said, things did not work out that way. The specialist was sent to a farm where as a farmworker "he is supposed to get $130."

"For half of this," Schuster wrote, "he gets any old job along with bad food and miserable living quarters. And for that he must work from four in the morning until nine at night."

(Canada's External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, said here yesterday that next year Canada plans to take 150,000 emigrants from Western Europe, including Germany.)

Charles Weighs In 12 Pounds Light

Pittsburgh, July 18 —(AP)— The weather bureau said today that threatened thunderstowers are expected to hold off until after the Ezzard Charles - Joe negotiation for heavyweight championship fight tonight.

Warm and somewhat humid weather is forecast with temperatures expected to stay in the low 80s. It was cloudy during the morning but later the sun broke through. Champion Ezzard Charles will spot Walcott 12 pounds tonight when the fight starts at 10 p.m. At the official weigh-in today, Charles scaled 182 pounds to Walcott's 194.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 18. (CP)—Synopsis—Skies are cloudy in northwestern Ontario and western sections of southern Ontario, and sunny over the remainder of the province.

A disturbance moving eastward from Iowa has produced showers and scattered thunderstorms from Iowa northward across Lake Superior to Hudson Bay. Showers and thunderstorms will begin in northern Ontario by noon today, and showers and scattered thunderstorms will spread to southern regions tonight. Drier air from the northwest will bring clearing weather on Thursday.

MONTH-LONG ORDEAL

Prospecting brothers James, 49, left and Michael Walsh, 56, were near exhaustion when they were found in north-east Quebec after being lost for more than a month. The aircraft that was to have picked up the Toronto brothers June 10 was unable to land and they struck out down the Moisie River. During their 33-day ordeal, they were reduced to eating an occasional rabbit, toads, frogs' legs, lizards, shrubs and berries. They are shown in a hotel room in Sept Iles, where they were taken after the rescue.—(CP Photo.)

25,000 Radar Men Guard Canada and U.S. Against Surprise Hostile Attacks

Washington, July 18—(AP) — nearly 25,000 air force radar men are on steady watch at stations and control centres in the United States and Canada to detect the approach of any strange and hostile planes.

The aircraft warning system has reached the point where it is 87-per cent manned, the Associated Press was told today.

The 102 stations the air force's air raid warning organization is composed of 12 groups of regular troops and three of federalized air National Guard units. Each group has personnel to man a number of stations.

The exact number of warning stations and control centres and their locations are secrets.

The stations in the U.S. and Alaska work with those of Canada under the mutual Canadian-U.S. defence plan.

Several Possibilities

In setting up the enemy plane warning system and the air defence system or fighter interceptor aircraft, planners have had to reckon with several possible methods of long-range bombing missions by Russia.

The possibilities upon which the system is based include these:

1. One-way flights by red bombers of the TU-4 type (copies of the American B-29). These flights may be carrying atomic bombs, might not necessarily be "suicide" missions, the crews could bail out with chutes, take a chance on hitting anyway.

2. Regular formations of bombers taking off from red bases to make strikes in Europe and to break up into small missions at some point along the route.

3. Bomber missions with aerial tankers to refuel them to and from American targets.

From defence viewpoint, the ideal point of detection would be far north, before the enemy mission had broken formation to aim at such separate target cities as New York, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Washington.

Mutual Defence

Ottawa — (CP) — Canadian-American mutual defence arrangements have been extended to allow U.S. air force radar men to come to Canada to man part of an early warning network of listing posts.

The U.S. is pouring more than $100,000,000 into radar stations in Canada and sending a considerable group of men to man them. How far this program has gone is part of the highly-secret story of the network's development.

All the R.C.A.F. will say is that the development of stations and of trained men — and women — to handle them is proceeding at a satisfactory pace.

The U.S. men and money are going into stations whose main benefit will fall on the U.S. In other words, those stations probably wouldn't be built if Canada's own defences was all that was being considered.

There already are American stations in Canada at various spots including defence bases in Newfoundland and Labrador as well as at the Churchill, Man., Arctic experimental establishment.

Armed Forces Manpower Now 81,000 -- Claxton

Ottawa, July 18. (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton with the Korean fight raging, said the armed forces have boosted their manpower to 81,000 or 70 per cent more than the 47,-000 men they had when war broke out in Korea.

He coupled that report on the Korea-provoked expansion program with a declaration in the House of Commons that "the end of aggression in Korea, if and when it comes, will not mean the end of it throughout the world."

The sacrifice of lives in Korea and the great concerted effort began a year ago may well be the means of preventing a third world war, Claxton said, recalling that the Korean war has been to drive home to the western world its relative lack of preparedness.

Belleville firemen were called to 219 Station Street this morning where a short circuit had caused a blaze in the [illegible]. They responded with no damage other than to wiring being reported.

FALL GRAIN READY FOR BINDER SOON

Held back for a week or more as result of continued wet weather, fall wheat and rye in the Bay of Quinte district will be ready for the binder in a few days, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Farmers state that in the normal year rye cutting would have commenced at least a week ago. Ripening of fall wheat has also been retarded as result of the rainy weather.

In Prince Edward county orchardists claim that scab control has never been so difficult as this year. The wet weather has also been disastrous to much of the tomato acreage.

Walker Hardware Chalks Up 6th Win

Walker Hardware pee-wees won their 6th straight without a defeat on Saturday night when they defeated Lattimer's Drugs by a score of 6-4.

Lattimers came from behind twice to tie the score at 3-3 and 4-4 but Walkers finally pulled away in the final frame.

Evon Korado bested Jimmie Vaughan on the mound credited with both pitching equally well. Korado struck out seven.

Walker Hardware, augmented by players from the remaining five teams will play an exhibition game against Peterborough on Thursday July 26.

Hydro Approves Debenture Sale For Sub-Station

Stirling — (Special) — The Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission has given assent for the issuing of debentures by Stirling village council for up to $115,000 for the erection of a new sub-station and for extension of hydro services in the village.

At the last meeting of council council was requested by the Stirling Public Utilities Commission to issue the debentures and later notice of motion was given that the by-law issuing the debentures would be introduced at the next meeting.

Reeve H. J. Wells, with councillors Wm. Montgomery, R. West, W. T. Elliott and Don Rodgers, attended the meeting.

Plans Approved

Council approved of plans of Wartime Housing on the Marmora Road on condition of payment by Central Mortgage of an account for $20.55. Approval of the sewage system for the development has been given by M.O.H. Dr. A. E. Carleton.

The parks committee was authorized to look after having a flag pole and flag provided for Coronation Park.

Council will pay 50 per cent of the cost of repairing a cave-in at a drainage ditch on the property of Mr. E. T. Ward following presentation of bills to the council.

The work of repainting and repairing of welcome signs at the village limits was left in the hands of the property committee.

Mr. Gordon Bailey was named as manager of the Stirling theatre.

The field at the cemetery was leased to W. C. Pryor for a three-year-term at $15 per year.

Forty Neighbors, Welcome New Bride

Stirling — On Monday evening about 40 neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Akers (nee Dorrea McMurray) who were recently married, gathered at their home to welcome the bride into their midst.

Mr. Harper Rollins acted as chairman for a short program. Mrs. Ray Eggleton led in some community singing. Mrs. S. Demorest gave a reading "Driving from the Rear" and Mrs. S. McIntosh gave a reading "Neighbors". Messrs. Charles Vance, Herb Stewart, William Webber and Sid Demorest gave short speeches and wished the bride and groom much happiness.

Presentation Address

Mrs. Russell Woodbeck read the presentation address and Doreen and Douglas were presented with a lovely table lamp and two small crystal vases. Both made fitting replies thanking everyone for the gifts and invited all to come and see them.

Mrs. Woodbeck then staged a musical romance contest and then refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

STOCK STREAMS

Brampton, July 18 — (CP) — Good news for fishermen comes from Peel county where, for the first time in many years, streams and rivers are being stocked with speckled trout. Some 30,000 young trout will be distributed from hatcheries in the next few days, says conservation officer Victor Seddon.

Municipal Band Bids Farewell To Bandmaster

Last evening after the regular rehearsal of the Belleville Municipal Band a party was held in honor of Bandmaster Ted Robbins who is leaving the city in the near future. Mr. Robbins is leaving in order to re-enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force and will be stationed in Ottawa.

Mr. Paul Bradley, vice- president of the band, extended to Bandmaster Robbins an expression of appreciation and best wishes for the future on behalf of the executive and members of the band and a presentation of a baton with suitable inscription was made to Mr. Robbins on behalf of the band. A suitable gift for Mrs. Robbins was also presented. Following the presentations refreshments were served.

Mr. Robbins more than two years that Mr. Robbins has been bandmaster the band has made good progress and has shown a marked improvement in musical proficiency. This is borne out by the remarks made by Professor C. F. Thiele of Waterloo, Ontario, at the recent band festival held there when the band was very favorably compared with the R.C.A.F. band and the R.C.R. Band, both of which are permanent force service bands. Mr. Robbins will be greatly missed by his many friends and acquaintances in the city.

Musical Duet Features Meeting of Kiwanis

A euphonium and accordion duet by Sgt. Wm. Brown and Major Herb Honeychurch of the Salvation Army featured the weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club held Tuesday noon in Lewis Centre.

A standing vote of the members of the club was taken as authorization to complete arrangements with the Music Corporation of America to bring Guy Lombardo and a stage show to Belleville on September 12.

Asks Service Stations To Honor John Innes

Toronto, July 18 (CP) —Service station operators throughout Ontario have been asked to observe a five-minute silence Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in honor of Controller John Innes.

Mr. Innes, who died Monday, will be buried at that time.

In making the request of the Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association of Ontario, known, Secretary Douglas J. Fletcher of Toronto said:

"We feel he is responsible more than any other man for the improved working conditions in Ontario service stations."

The request was made "out of sincere respect for the work done by John Innes in his capacity as chairman of the advisory committee of the retail gasoline service industry."

Canadian Troops Arrive in Korea

Yokohama, Japan, July 18 — (CP) — The regular monthly draft of reinforcements for the Canadian Brigade in Korea arrived here recently it was announced today.

The contingent of some 550 men included the 25th field dressing station, a medical unit, infantry men, armor and service troops. The troops entrained for the Commonwealth training centre at Kure, whence they will be sent to Korea as needed.

BUY CANADIAN SALMON

London, July 18 (Reuters) — Britain has agreed to buy $6,000,000 worth of Canadian canned salmon from this year's catch, the Food Ministry announced today.

This was larger than the quantity bought last year.

Canning operations have just started and the salmon will not be available for distribution in Britain until next year, the ministry added.

ASK CIVIL BONUS

Ottawa, July 18 — (CP) — A delegation urged the government Tuesday to establish a cost-of-living bonus for Canada's 125,000 civil servants. Representing the Civil Service Federation and the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada, the delegation asked Finance Minister Abbott to consider payment of a bonus at a rate of $181.80 a year for the period from Dec. 1, 1950, to May 1, 1951.

Catching a big muskie is no trick at all according to Vic Morris, Station Street, who estimates he has hooked at least 40 of them in the Moira River north of Belleville. With his son Billie he is shown above holding his Sunday's catch hooked near O'Brien's Bridge. The big fellow weighed over 40 pounds and with no gaff at hand was landed with the use og Billie's shirt.

Three Persons Injured

Car Careens 325 Feet Along Curb And Over Lawns at Devil's Elbow

Travelling 325 feet along the curb and over lawns after missing the curve at the Devil's Elbow on Dundas Street, West, a Peterborough car this morning tore out a piece of guard rail and cement curb, ripped out shrubbery and bumped into a parked car before smashing against a tree.

Injured in the accident which occurred shortly before six o'clock was Joan Beckwith, 27, 64 Benjamin St., in hospital with two fractured ankles, back injuries and multiple bruises. Driver of the car John I. Folster, 143 Princess Street, Peterborough, injured his knee, and Dorothy McCabe, Reynolds Crescent, suffered chest injuries. Fourth occupant of the car Mrs. Elliott of Peterborough, was uninjured.

The car ripped out part of the guard rail on Dundas Street at the Devil's Elbow, then tore out a chunk of curbing at Highland Ave. and cut across George Dewyust's lawn and crashed into the Devuyst car. The verandah on the next house was slightly damaged before the car struck the tree, bouncing back several feet before coming to rest.

The Folster car was badly damaged while the Devuyst car was also damaged considerably. The driver has been charged with careless driving.

New Idea for Commercial Area In Parkwood Heights District Proposed at Special Meeting

An entirely new idea, suggested as a means of finalizing the two and a half year controversy regarding the proposed commercial area in Parkwood Heights, was put forth at Tuesday's special hearing on the matter held in the city hall by the Ontario Municipal Board.

The meeting of the board was held to see if some final solution could not be obtained for the commercial area problem, and also to hear petitions against the construction of sidewalks in the city by the public works department. The board received the decision on the last matter after hearing many objectors.

Homeowners in the Parkwood Heights area and the late Bert Doctor had discussed for many months the boundaries of the proposed commercial without coming to any satisfactory agreement. The original plan called for three blocks in the northeast corner of the area to be designated for commercial use. Homeowners wanted the commercial area confined to one block, claiming the commercial area would be detrimental to the value of their properties.

At yesterday's hearing, Frank Cushing, K.C., local solicitor, acted on behalf of the Doctor estate while J. E. Rannon, K.C., represented the local planning board, Interests of the homeowners were represented by Ronald Cass, of the law firm, Robb, Ross and Cass.

Compromise Idea

The two members of the Municipal Board, acting chairman D. Howard Yeates, and George A. Lister, member, viewed the Parkwood Heights area, and also sidewalks intended to be replaced, and later Mr. Lister came up with the compromise idea.

Under the proposed plan, the commercial area would be considerably smaller than was originally intended and it would be so planned that in no case would the fronts of present residential properties front the commercial area. Thirty lots would be included in the new area, at least half of which would be expected to be reserved for parking purposes.

According to the proposal, the commercial area would extend east across Blumwood Drive to the city limits, and on the west would be bounded by the back lane of lots facing Bertram Blvd. The northern boundary would be Elmwood Gardens and on the south the back lane included in the plan for lots on Victoria.

The parties concerned were requested to discuss the new suggestion and if passed by council, the board members indicated they would approve of the plan.

200 Enrolled In 'Y' Fun Club

Nearly 200 boys and girls have enrolled in the Summer Fun Club held at the YMCA. Last week both the boys and girls enjoyed a day's nature hike to Canniffton, where they had swimming and hiking.

On Thursday afternoon they were the guests of George Forhan at the Belle Theatre; the girls motored to Oak Lake on Thursday morning with the boys making the same trip on Friday. Saturday a swim meet was held at the Y.

Sunday afternoon at one o'clock, more than 40 boys left for a two-day camp at the farm of Mr. Waite near the Point Anne road, accompanied by Wally Bent, program director at the Y. A nature hike, softball, and rugby, were enjoyed by the boys with a special evening program on the second day. The boys roughed it for the two days, retiring to a barn on the second evening owing to heavy rains fell.

Transportation was supplied by Mr. Parkhurst, Mr. A. C. Campbell, Mr. Cowle and Mr. A. MacDonald.

Plans are being made for a similar camp overnight hike to a different location in approximately two weeks time.

Tuesday morning, at nine o'clock, 60 girls left from the Y, accompanied by Wally Bent for a day at Oak Lake. Approximately the same number of boys will take the same trip later in the week.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 18 (CP) —Moderate buying pushed industrials higher as the session progressed on the stock market today. The rest of the board remained in a fairly mixed and narrow price path.

Industrial advances ranged from fractions to the odd increase of a point or more. Steel and utilities led the section in gains. Papers, constructions, foods, textiles, refining oils, liquors and manufacturing companies followed.

Base metals were fairly mixed. Callinan Flin Flon came to life at noon and chalked up a volume of almost 193,000 shares. It advanced 13 1-2 cents to 33 cents then slipped to 32. Rolled Asbestos, a recent feature, was again extremely active but down 30 cents. United Keno Hill, Quemont, Quebec Manitou, Consolidated Smelters and Falconbridge eased while Sherritt Gordon, Labrador, Normetal and East Sullivan posted small gains.

Western oils were mixed.

Golds were mixed with price changes mostly limited to small amounts.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, July 18 (CP) —Produce prices on the spot market here today: Churning cream: No. 1, truck 55 cents; delivered, 69 cents.

Creamery prints: First grade 65-66 cents.

There was some revival of interest in buying at the egg market this morning. Graded eggs cases free were: Grade A large 69; grade A medium 67; grade A small 63; grade B 59-60; grade C 49-50.

Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 74-75; grade A medium 72-73; grade A small 68-69; grade B 66-67; grade C 56-57.

Butter solids: first grade 63 1-2 to 63 3-4; second grade not established.

Western (asked) 64 1-2.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 18—(CP)—Prices were steady on a small supply on the Ontario Stockyard market today.

Receipts: Cattle, 260; calves, 50; hogs, 130; sheep and lambs, 50. Estimated holdover of cattle was 650.

Common to medium steers and heifers sold for $29-$33, with a few good weighty steers at $34-$35.

Medium to good cows brought $27-$28.50.

Good bulls traded from $31-$32.50.

Medium quality stock calves sold upwards to $33; veal calves were $34-$35 for choice vealers. Common were downward to $26.

Hogs brought $40-$40.50 for grade A, with sows at $32 dressed.

Sheep and lambs were steady. Ewes and wethers were $37; bucks brought $26.

Good light sheep sold for $18-$22.

Cheese Prices Ease From Season's Top

Cheese prices settled back from last week's record as cheese buyers showed little enthusiasm at last week's meeting of the Belleville Cheese Exchange.

Colored cheese sold at 37 1/16 down 13/16 from the season's top figure set last week, while white cheese dropped 5/16 to 37 cents.

The Ontario Marketing Board increased its appropriation of cheese taking 50 per cent of production boarded.

All told 23 factories, listed as specials, produced 3,094 cheese; 2,083 boxes of colored from a production of 2,981, and 340 boxes of whi' cheese from a boarding of 1,940, were sold to the domestic trade.

It was announced that at next week's Exchange meeting the Ontario Marketing Board would requisition 75 per cent of the cheese boarded.

Production by factories is as follows:

Safe Crackers Get Only Papers In Night Raid on Foxboro Store

Would-be safe crackers had their efforts for nothing when they broke into the R. B. Hamilton and Son store at Foxboro and made off with private papers kept in the store safe.

Outside the store, the night operators "investigated their haul, and finding the papers were of no use to them, discarded them behind a nearby shed. Nothing in the store was taken.

Clayton Hamilton, store proprietor, discovered the breakin when he opened the store for work this morning. He noticed an office door slightly ajar, and investigating, found the safe door open. The safe door is kept closed at night but not locked. No money was kept in the safe.

Entry to the store was gained through a window in the back storehouse, the clasp of which was broken. The thieves left by a side door leaving the door ajar.

Attlee May Visit Truman Next Month

London, July 18 (AP) —Well-informed sources reported today Prime Minister Attlee may make another trip to Washington late next month for talks with President Truman and other American leaders.

Attlee is expected to go over the whole range of British-American relations and world issues with American leaders.

Britain's worsening financial situation is likely to figure high in any top-level discussion of Anglo - American affairs, the sources said.

High Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, probably will be in Washington around the same time. He is due to represent Britain at the September meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

Donkey Meat Hides in U.K. As 'Escalope of Veal'

London, July 18 — (AP) — On the menu in some British restaurants it says "Escalope of veal."

But it's donkey meat, Maj. Guy Lloyd, Conservative member for Renfrew, told a startled House of Commons today.

"In view of the fact that the amount of donkey meat being sold at the present time is exceptional," Lloyd said, "and in view of the fact that most people who order dishes of veal are getting donkey meat, will the secretary give an assurance that the government is taking the matter very seriously?"

F. T. Willey, parliamentary secretary for the Food Ministry, indicated that the government is not clear on all aspects of the subject raised. He said the ministry is not dealing with donkeys—they are the responsibility of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries. Besides, he said:

"The provisions of the Food and Drug Act of 1938 relating to the sale of horse flesh apply."

J. D. Profumo, Conservative, urged Lloyd, demanding to know:

"Will Mr. Willey consider asking whichever department deals with donkeys, in the interests of both consumers and donkeys, if they will consider prohibiting this degrading and uncivilized traffic?"

It is up to local authorities to say whatever the regulations may be, Willey said.

Two Per Cent Milk Said 'Pipe Dream'

London, Ont., July 18—(CP)—Suggestion that milk containing two per cent butter fat be sold in Ontario to reduce consumer costs was dismissed here today as a "pipe dream."

Spokesmen for both producers and distributors were dubious about a proposal advanced by Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario whereby butter fat content might be reduced from 3.4 per cent presently required under provincial regulations. The minister suggested the milk with the less butter fat sell for 17 or 18 cents a quart.

Orville Sinclair, secretary of the London Milk Distributors Association, said such a move would involve procedures so complicated they would make it "scarcely worthwhile."

THE SAD TALE OF DROWNINGS

Death by drowning, during summer months, has become nothing more to the public than a never-ceasing statistic. Accounts of fatalities which occur while persons are swimming are featured in the daily papers of the province almost every day. On Monday, the toll is best described as horrifying, because it accounts for all the weekend water mishaps across the nation.

Despite these facts, there seem to be few people qualified in the art of artificial respiration. In many cases, doctors have said that the victim might have had a chance if resuscitation measures had been taken at once, and continued until official medical advice was available. In some few instances, rescuers have abandoned efforts to pump life back into the victim while the spark could still have been kindled.

Ontario is a paradise of lakes. It hardly seems reasonable, then, that many of its residents, particularly when they use those lakes for fishing, swimming, boating and other forms of summer fun for several months, should be ignorant of methods used by lifesavers and medical men in an effort to save lives. Knowledge of the artificial respiration should be as natural to the fisherman as is the use of the right bait at the right time, or to the swimmer as his favorite stroke. Indeed, there are many fishermen who cannot even swim, let alone help those who have suffered misfortune in the water.

A knowledge of artificial respiration is not hard to gain. The application of it is not a complex matter, and can be learned by a normal person in a few spare minutes. Those are the conditions that make ignorance, be it in the field of artificial respiration or any other, seem so ridiculous.

The person who loves the water and does not know what to do in the event of a drowning accident is much like the man who does not carry insurance on his automobile. He is taking a long chance that he will never have any need for it. For that matter, such knowledge is true insurance and insurance best kept type, for it may one time save the most precious of all things in this world — human life. There are qualified instructors in this city and others who would be happy to pass on their knowledge.

Perhaps the best place to start in such a program of education would be on the summer playgrounds. There are children at all the supervised sites who are old enough to understand the mechanics of artificial respiration, and if they were taught them, the effort would eventually pay dividends. The news of the world is black enough without needless deaths at home. If a little knowledge, learned early, can prevent some such calamities, some effort should be made to provide it, and acquire it, quickly.

A SPEEDER'S PARADISE

We Canadians are continually being urged to be polite to the American tourists we receive as visitors. We are told that the recipients of huge industry, and a great source of revenue to this country. We are asked to be ourselves, so that the Americans will receive a better impression of Canada. There is a great deal of talk that Canadians should develop native dishes that will appeal to the delicate American palate . . . dishes that would make them come back for more, year after year.

But what the men in high places do not seem to realize is that some education and training is needed on the other side of the border, too. We have all heard countless stories of the American tourist who comes to Canada in July, expecting to have fine skiing. Or of the woman from New York who has been told that Timmins will operate a thoroughly cold-blooded manner in Canada — and she believes it.

Our quarrel, however, is not with these people. It is with people like the woman who motored to Napanee, Ontario, into legal tender in a Central Ontario city. She had a fistful of Canadian bills. Or it is with the woman in Michigan whose sole knowledge of Canada was that it was the place where "when you step out the back door of your house, you're standing in the water; and out the front door; it's the same thing." These things happen, believe it or not.

But mostly, our quarrel is with the Americans who insist on using our highways as a speed demon's paradise. These are the people who seem to have the silly idea that they are still driving on one of their great speedways. They cut in and out of line as if the devil was riding their rear bumpers. They pass on curves, on the top of hills, and in the face of oncoming traffic.

Fortunately, however, there are many American drivers who do use a little common sense on the road. But their efforts are overpowered by the reckless types whose meat and drink is the roar of a heavy motor and the squeal of hard-pressed tires.

We agree that the tourist business is a most lucrative one. We agree that every courtesy should be extended to Canadians to the visitors, and that there should be developed and promoted a true Canadian hospitality. But we cannot be polite about American driving habits. For the most part, they are dangerous and disgusting. The sooner they have them at home, the better and safer driving there will be on Canadian highways in the summer months.

RAFFLE TICKETS

Raffle tickets can't be sold.
So, I make this explanation
For the chances that I hold:
They're "A small donation"
From a dollar to a penny,
And the penny one's weren't free.

I have tickets for a car,
For a city lot and dwelling,
For a nickel-plated bar
Meant for giving drinks, not selling;
For all paintings, highly rated
To an art club I've "donated."

In a selfish sort of way
I'm not unwilling I've striven,
For a "royal Danish tray"
To a noble cause I've given.
Taking chances, microscopic
I've been lucky, philanthropic.

Did the motor car I get,
Or the solid silver platter
Or the television set?
No; but still it doesn't matter.
'Tis enough to have it stated
I have liberally "donated."

THE VISION OF GOD

According to classical mythology, Zeus, the king of gods, admired a mortal woman named Semele, and visited her often, but always in some disguise, and she insisted that he appear in his own majestic form. Zeus was most reluctant to do so, but Semele nagged him until he consented. The result, as Zeus had foreseen was that his dazzling brightness was too great for a mortal to stand, and Semele was burned to a crisp.

The mark on modern Christians by the vision of God is not so destructive, but it is just as clear. Here and there among us are people who have truly seen God, and their lives are never the same afterwards.

The missionary who lives and dies in a foreign land, bringing physical and spiritual aid to his people, risking persecution and death, is such a man.

The physician who heals the sick in a rural community or in the slums, working day and night without worrying about his fees, loved by his people for his kindness as much as for his skill—here is another man who has seen God.

That neighbor who works so hard, who lives his life with and brings up his children so well, whom anyone in trouble can count on for help, who is honest, faithful, cheerful, devout—surely he, too, has seen God.

Youth Surrenders To Montreal Police

Montreal, July 18—(CP)—Norman (Red) Roy, 19-year-old escapee from Penetang who formerly lived in Toronto, surrendered to homicide police Monday night in the presence of his mother and his lawyer.

He had been sought as a material witness in connection with the rooming-house death of Robert Fowler, 55-year-old cafeteria counterman.

Fowler's body, the neck broken, was found July 5 a few hours after he had registered at the rooming rails.

England—Then and Now

By Fred Hart

Newmarket is the very centre of horse racing and race meetings are held here from the early spring to the late autumn—usually from November. So the other day we hied ourselves by bus to this town of Newmarket to see some of the finest race horses run in thrilling competition.

Previously, we had been on this race track but twice, in 1911 and in 1927, the former year before we left for Canada, the latter when on a visit home. The scene has changed but little, there were the same type of "bookies", the same "drivers", the same chap with ostrich feather plumes and stick indicating the "artful dodger" who slides up and in a hoarse whisper says "Mister, want a good tip for a certain winner?" we handed him the needful and with his mouth close to our ear he whispered the name of his fancied horse.

Fit For Kings

And that horse won, and we backed it! And the crowd appreciated the surprising so orderly, so subdued, there was hardly a cheer from the crowd. Yes, these islanders seem to take their pleasures sadly. But there was something different about the young day, for then one saw the odd car in the parking lot but at these meetings. The vast majority of the onlookers came by train from Euston point to the Newmarket.

Now we saw hundreds of cars and dozens of buses parked within a couple of hundred yards of the grandstand. This is a peculiar form of betting is something which is not to be found in Canada. And on this huge race course are very fine refreshment rooms and all modern conveniences and again we noted there was not one person even remotely under the influence, verily these English can drink with dignity.

We Go In Style

There is a dog track here in Bury St. Edmunds, and seeing that we had never been on such a track previously, we went along to watch greyhound racing. It is a practically propelled hare. To me, it was something different from all in this land which we are re-discovering. It is a second Newmarket but on a smaller scale, with a number of "bookies" allowed to operate in the ring and we lined up before the one grandstand.

It seemed evident that the number is limited to prevent "ganging-up"—for dog racing would lose its appeal to the general public—for practically every person present seems on his or her fancy. Only six dogs are allowed to compete in each of the eight races run during the course of the meet. The distance run is from 300 to 510 yards.

With a fanfare of "recorded" trumpets through loud speakers, these six dogs parade before the grandstand held in the hand by a young lad all wearing hard Christie hats and white coats evidently the uniform of office and, at a sudden change in the loud speaker barks out "final parade", a veterinarian examines each dog's foot in turn — for what reason we can never guess. And away they go! The bookies and starting gate — the signal is given by the starter and there — the hare by this time is off to a flying start and the race is on — over in quick time. And we have to admit, quite sorrowfully, that we did not get a winner, but seeing that our stakes were small, just a couple of bob on each race, we could lose but little. But it was well worth the experience.

Again

And on the Sabbath we motored down to Felixstowe — a seaside resort on the east coast. Down through old world villages, whose cottages, each with its garden, and through Ipswich, a town in which our sports editor of Ottawa Journal has a distant connection we opine.

Ipswich, is a very fine old town, the inns ancient and the churches mostly Norman. And at Felixstowe are the remains of the forts of defence when this island stood alone and before the Romans came to discomfit. We had to join the everlasting queue for our tea — but it was worth it.

This afternoon tea business is a ritual these people follow most religiously. We have fallen into the custom in most offices and even in Canada, but here, they never stop for their spot of tea. And whether this custom is popular or not, it is one which the bees seem to think that it's a necessary evil. The tea-drinking habit now is now so engrained in the habits of the people that to discourage it is like asking for trouble.

Custom is Silly

From a purely personal viewpoint we are of the opinion that this custom is effete, silly and unnecessary. Why, from four p.m. to 12 noon — from 1 to 5 p.m. — and then the evening meal, can go that long without intermission.

Here it's a sign of the times, all seem to want to do so little for as much as they can get. There was a time when a man — or a woman, gloried in accomplishment, in a job well done. Where this state of affairs will end, we cannot foretell. These "workers" howl for more and increased wages — they howl again when the hours are cut, the months soar — all seem dissatisfied.

And when one takes into consideration the many benefits these people receive from the cradle to assistance — from free hospitalization, medical and dental care — and until very recently free glasses — two pairs at that, and free hearing aids — well, who can expect something for nothing?

It seems to us that there are a tremendous number of folk who have a young woman who decided that it would be no use to hang in for the longer, so she went to a big bridge and jumped into New York's East River. Misguided young woman was only slightly bruised and swam to shore a much happier and wiser young woman. She decided that she had made a mistake right after she struck the water, but when she began to that string a while longer.

These are no easy times for anyone. Never has the world been called upon to bear so many sacrifices, burdens and taxes as at this present time. But all this will open up a new era of peace and goodwill then it will be found all that it has cost in the end all of us can decide not to let go.

Ever since creation there have been dark days—some so dark that there have been doubts that light

Letter to the Editor

Believes Brigade Report Misleading

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

The Canadian Press dispatch in your July 14th edition entitled "Less than 2,000 Reservists Volunteer for Units, Brigade" contains true facts and figures but these have been presented in such a way that the general public may be misleading to the general public.

If, as stated, 9,200 men have been posted to the Brigade and 1,988 of these have volunteered for Active Service Army, then about 20 per cent of the present Militia Units have joined the Reserve. If 42 Reserve Units were called upon to raise the manpower for the Brigade, then each Reserve unit must have sent in on an average, 47 men from its own ranks. Surely this is a high figure. It might be mentioned that Reserve Units, with effective strengths of 150 to 200 all ranks are considered progressive.

From my knowledge, it was not the express purpose of the plan to decimate Reserve Units to fill the Brigade, but it would seem that we have been merely taking men out of one pocket and putting them in another. If this has occurred in a large way, we would not have a Militia to speak of, and the armed forces of this country. The aim, as I understood it, was for the Reserve Force Units named in the order to carry out vigorous recruiting campaigns in their own home districts which would attract men to join their sub-units "nearest the front". The Brigade. This article passes over the great efforts of the Reserve Regiments in this connection and the good work they are doing in many instances. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment with a total strength of approximately 240 all ranks, sent at least 60 of these men to the Brigade. Three were officers. But also, be it marked, through the combined efforts of the battalion over 150 others with no Reserve Force connection, were channelled through Militia Units to join the Brigade.

The 49th Reserve Force Units not "named" in the order have contributed in the recruiting campaign, both in men and money, however, that all these other units would put pressure on their Reserve Force personnel to join and thereby incur the danger of unit extinction. If the original plan was to decimate the Reserve Units and Reserve Force commanders that recruiting for these Units would have been rapidly successful.

J. M. Porritt, Lt.Col., Officer Commanding the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Personal Health Talks

HOW'S YOUR BERIBERI?

A hypothetical question that still turns up in the mail in half a dozen letters every week is this: the C-R-I goes like this: If a person suddenly changes diet because my colds, what does? — It goes straight to the chucker, for I learned long ago that the fat-heads do not mean to ask me, they just want to enlighten me about the facts of life. Incidentally they would like to extenuate, if they can, the crime of spreading their respiratory infections to innocent children and child-minded adults who believe such ailments are really due to drafts, sudden changes, wet feet and the like.

In a recent talk about beriberi I said (I hope this part was printed) that the large-scale introduction of polished rice into the Orient, replacing the formerly unpolished "brown" or "red" rice as the staple of the daily diet, led to the first known appearance of beriberi, due to recognition of vitamin B—the first vitamin to be discovered. But I hastened to add that the reason why beriberi in America is generally rare, severe as it sometimes is not recognized or diagnosed as beriberi, is simply that Americans are rarely reduced to living on a "handful of rice"; we do not know what a family can exist on in the direst state of poverty or deprivation, for there are available other foods that supply more or less vitamin B—particularly the yeasty, brewers' yeast, especially fresh fruits, greens.

I stress it is not the "underprivileged" (a detestable word) but the prosperous middle class and those who have plenty to eat who are most likely to suffer beriberi. They have it because they live largely on white bread and flour and refined white sugar and things made of these cheap, plentiful carbohydrates, and tend to (even when not particularly hungry), easy to keep in storage for long periods, easy to transport to any distance from the great monopoly mill.

Beriberi (the word is derived from the Singhalese word meaning weakness), like other deficiency diseases, is a multiple deficiency state, rarely a simple B deficiency alone. It is impossible to produce beriberi in the diet poor in B1 (thiamine) alone. The diet must be deficient in other vitamins (and perhaps minerals) as well. Polished rice, for instance, is deficient not only in vitamin B but also in vitamin A, D, E, K (pyridoxine), riboflavin, niacin (nicotinic acid), calcium, iron, choline, pantothenic acid and some of the essential amino acids.

The old chronic beriberi that occurs, quite commonly, I believe in this country, is characterized by fatigue, heaviness and stiffness of the legs with tenderness of the calf muscles and sensations of numbness or burning or pricking in various areas of feet or legs, especially bunting of the soles. Sometimes such symptoms develop in hands and arms before the legs and feet are affected.

Use of beer, wine or liquor is contributing factor because if the victim derives part of his or her daily calories from alcohol his or her intake of vitamin B and the other vitamins and minerals is inevitably reduced to a point below the minimum requisite for the prevention manifestation of nutritional deficiency disease.

The minimum daily requirement of vitamin B1 for the adult person is five, ten or fifteen times that much, but truly severe cases of beriberi in lumber jacks or physical labor or labors much exercise daily that, if he or she does only white collar work or sits around most of the time or dodges physical activity.

Ten men who were observed to do hard physical work for two weeks on a diet deficient in vitamin B1 developed severe deterioration in physical fitness muscle pains, poor appetite and insomnia who have been given a daily ratio of 2 milligrams of B1 per 1,000 calories of food intake. Nutrition authorities consider sufficient to prevent deficiency disease symptoms and signs, but not to relieve their complaints. But the ten men who were supplemented with dried yeast (rich in other vitamins besides B1), their complaints soon cleared up.

You haven't heard the half of it yet, Americans. Vitamin B1 as most as widespread as refined white flour and refined white sugar. Flour and sugar to be much may be tossed into the waste basket for lack of space, so we'll resume this spiel another day.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DON'T LET GO!

There are a large number of discouraged people in this world. Some are, as the saying goes, at the end of their string. What advice can I, or any other person, have would be to hang on to that string. Don't let go!

In my newspaper recently I read of a young woman who decided that it would be no use to hang in for much longer. So she went to a big bridge and jumped into New York's East River. Misguided young woman was only slightly bruised and swam to shore a much happier and wiser young woman. She decided that she had made a mistake right after she struck the water, but when she began to that string a while longer.

These are no easy times for anyone. Never has the world been called upon to bear so many sacrifices, burdens and taxes as at this present time. But all this will open up a new era of peace and goodwill then it will be found all that it has cost in the end all of us can decide not to let go.

Ever since creation there have been dark days—some so dark that there have been doubts that light could ever return. But it did. It will again. There are to be dark days—some so dark that there may be those who would destroy as much of the world as possible that they can take with them what is left.

I often think of the dogged perseverance of Edison. One day some one asked him if it wasn't a waste of time to try to experiment so many times, and his reply was that it was not for it proved conclusively that many things wouldn't work and so they would not have to be tried again. Edison's idea is a good one. Let him he created something useful from it.

Many and many a time it has probably been the experience of nearly every one of us to have been tempted sorely to let go of a determination, or of a way of life for a time pursued, but have kept on, come to our senses, and played the game out without complaint.

There are crises in most of our lives when we must make a decision. Sometimes we are to stick to the main path, or deviate. If we have formed the habit of straight ahead we will not deviate. We will hang on!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A wide mouth has for ages been associated with generosity. In literature, modern and ancient, a small mouth is described by such adjectives as prim, tight, sly and so forth: the inference being that a small mouth connotes meanness, while a broad mouth is the sign of liberality and charity.

It has been my impression that this belief is founded on a misunderstanding. Mouths are struck by the large number of people I have met, both women and men, who were characterized by wide and resolute mouths. In fact, there seemed to be in the gathering a predominant type who possessed this wide, determined mouth. Usually, I was not much taken with the religious expression of the gathering, for the broad development of western Canada opened one and only true faith, and a combination of contempt and pity for all others who had the same conviction. It would be a great joke if it could be proved that the wide-mouthed Germans of our cartoons. Yes Canadians, Frenchmen, Englishmen and others who look like that cartoon German are almost invariably equipped with the unpleasant characteristics we have in mind when we think of the wide-mouthed type.

Many people hotly resent the suggestion that character is revealed by facial appearances. But are they not mostly the wide-mouthed type?

Toronto Woman Plans to Swim English Channel

Toronto, July 18 (CP) — A 25-year-old suburban Toronto housewife this August may become the first Canadian woman to swim the English Channel.

She still needs $100 to take her to England. She is planning on using one of the $250 prizes for finishing the channel swim to get home again.

Mrs. Winnie Lessler of Willowdale was told yesterday her application has been accepted in the London Daily Mail's annual 21-mile channel crossing swim.

The Toronto swimmer, better known by her maiden name, Winnifred Roach, plans to fly to England July 26 in time for the first meeting July 28 of the 30 contestants. The race will be swum as soon after Aug. 13 as weather permits. First prize is $1,000.

Winnie has been training in the cold, choppy waters of Lake Ontario since April. Under the watchful eye of her father and coach, Edward Roach, she has been making daily swims in the Canadian National Exhibition course with average times of 22 minutes for the mile. Experts consider a 25-minute average the maximum allowable if a swimmer is to complete the channel swim.

Labor Conditions Generally Good In City, District

Farm labor requirements in the Belleville area are fairly well taken care of it was reported by Mr. H. H. Reed, manager, local employment service. At the moment only another five to six men could be placed with farmers.

Due to better working conditions in the western provinces fewer Westerners have come east as farm workers this year. Also, as a result, including Maritimers and workers from Newfoundland about 45 farm workers have been placed in the area.

Labor conditions in the Belleville area were reported generally good with but 224 workers of all classes "on claim." The number has been increased by 70 workers since the first of the month due to industrial plants shutting down for holidays while some workers not being entitled to two weeks holidays, with pay. It is expected that the labor slack will be entirely taken up when the tomato canning season approaches.

RAWDON

Mr., Mrs. R. Neal Honored Guests At Reception

Rawdon — Last Wednesday evening Miss Marion Carlisle entertained 45 guests in a reception in honor of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Neal, who were married on Saturday, June 30th.

The Carlisle home was decorated with baskets of roses and summer blooms and the guests were seated at quartet tables centred with bouquets of pansies.

A salad plate dinner, topped off with bride's cake and wedding cake, was served by Misses Marjens Carlisle, Della Johnston and Mrs. Helen Neal and Mrs. Gerald Carlisle

At 10.30 p.m. the charivari gang from Carmel and community arrived and gave the newlyweds a noisy serenade. The group were invited into the Carlisle home where refreshments were served.

The bride has been a member of the Bell Telephone staff for several years and is now a member of the Belleville Staff.

RECOMMEND INSTITUTE

Ottawa, July 18 — (CP) — A special committee of the Canadian Good Roads Association decided Tuesday to recommend to the Association's fall convention the establishment of a national roads research institute dedicated to country - wide highway improvement and development. The institute, which also would serve as a clearing house for information on highway improvement, would be headed by a permanent director with a secretariate. Its office likely would be in Ottawa.

MAY OFFER ISLAND

Victoria, B. C., July 18 (CP)— There's a suggestion going around in government circles here that British Columbia give Princess Elizabeth an island when she makes her Canadian tour this fall with her husband, Prince Philip. Nobody has made a guess about what she might do with it. There are scads of islands in Georgia Strait between Vancouver and Victoria. The government, which owns several, might offer one of them.

PICTON

Dozen Pickeral Weigh 94 Pounds In Picton Catch

Picton—One of the best catches of pickerel in local waters was brought in yesterday by Fred Gregorix and Howard Gorsline. They had a dozen pickerel which tipped the scales at 94 pounds. The smallest weighed seven pounds. They threw a number of smaller ones back into the bay. The fish were caught off Baggot's Point and in Pleasant Bay. The two fishermen were lucky since others in the same area did not have a strike.

Fishing in Prince Edward waters is reported generally as very good and tourists are taking home many fine specimens to show their friends.

Leaps to Safety With 2 Children As Boat Explodes

Picton— Forced to leap into the waters of the Bay of Quinte, when their craft caught fire, and though badly burned, Laurel Williams, 45, and his son and daughter were able to reach shore. They are patients in Prince Edward County Hospital here.

Mr. Williams, who resides on the south side of Big Island, was taking his children, Richard, 8, and Donna 4, to the north side of the island, in his inboard motorboat. There was a sudden explosion and the craft was in flames in a few seconds. Mr. Williams grasped his young daughter in his arms and plunged into the water. Richard followed his example, and luckily is a good swimmer. They were more than 200 yards from shore but were able to reach it safely. Mrs. Williams saw the explosion and was at the shore to meet them. She rushed them to hospital.

Donna, who received the full force of the blast, was the most severely burned, suffering severe burns on the face, arms and body. Mr. Williams suffered burns on his arms and legs, while Richard was less seriously burned. They will be in hospital for some time.

Picton—A family gathering yesterday marked the 93rd birthday of Mrs. Byron Bongard at her home in Cherry Valley. She proved a gracious hostess at this occasion, being well and active. Residing alone, she does all her own housework. She is valued member of the United Church and is seldom absent from a Sunday service. She is also active in the W.M.S., and in the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Bongard was born at Waupoos, daughter of the late Sidney Solmes and his wife, Barbara McKenzie. Her late husband was a sailor for more than 50 years. She has a son and two daughters, Harvey Bongard, Toronto; Mrs. Wilfred Scott, Picton, and Mrs. Frederick Phillips, Buffalo. She also has two sisters Mrs. D. F. VanDusen, Picton and Mrs. W. V. Bongard, Glenora.

N.Y. Paper Says Airfield Network Planned by NATO

New York, July 18 (CP)—The New York Times says today the details of an elaborate new network of naval airfields for western Europe's defence have been discussed in fact. It says the project will cost nearly 1,000,000,000.

In a London dispatch the Times says the final decision on cost sharing may be made by the North Atlantic treaty council meeting in Ottawa late in September.

France will have built 17 up-to-date fields on her own territory and five in the French sector of western Germany by the first of next year, the story says. Other North Atlantic treaty countries had smaller programs.

The newspaper says the defence development is the result of a N.A.T.O. strategy meeting which decided western Europe needs a ring of air bases stretching from Norway to Italy.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Page, Toronto, and Mrs. M. Poole, of Surrey, England, spent the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cooke, Asselstaburg.

Miss Dorothy Way Feted by Friends

Miss Dorothy Way, was tendered a delightful surprise shower, by her fellow workers of the Bell Shirt Company, at the home of Miss Marlene Donovan, on Monday evening.

The evening was spent in making a bride's book, after which Miss Doreen Groves, accompanied by Miss Eliza Bell at the piano, led in a sing-song of old familiar songs.

Dorothy was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and in her usual pleasant manner, thanked the girls for everything.

Delicious refreshments were served.

GRISLY ORIGIN

Bonfire in its original meaning meant a fire for burning bones.

Departing Member Honored With Gift

On Monday, the Women of the Moose gathered at the home of co-worker Lena Connell, to entertain one of the co-workers of the lodge, Mrs. Sadie Plane, who is leaving shortly to reside in Toronto.

Euchre was played with co-worker, Sarah Plane, winning first prize, a sterling teapot, Ruth Mintz, winning second.

A lovely compact was presented to Mrs. Sadie Plane by co-worker, Melissa Carey, on behalf of the lodge members. Following the presentation, co-workers, Florence Caruful, poured tea and their hostess served refreshments.

Appreciative thanks were tendered to Mrs. Connell for her most gracious hospitality.

Women's Activities

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

Johnstown W. A. held their July meeting at Mrs. C. E. Dickie's home, with the president, Mrs. Glenn Stickle, presiding.

The scripture lesson, taken from Matthew 17:1-21, was read by Mrs. Bush, Sr., and Mrs. Alex Vandervoort gave the explanation. Duos were sung and birthday money received from Mrs. Dickie and Joan Vandervoort. "Happy Birthday" was sung to them. The next meeting will be held at the Johnstown Church with the W.A. entertaining the Mission Band. The anniversary services will be held in September, the exact date being announced later.

The program consisted of a playo golo by Marion Bush; reading by Mrs. Glenn Stickle, "Ten Ways to Kill a Society"; by Mrs. E. Bush, "Ma Wanted a New Stove"; Wanda Mallory, "Did Christ Have a Little Dog?" Solos by Miss Gail Lehnes "On the Trail of Old Smoky" and by Miss Joan Vandervoort, "It Is No Secret." A contest was given and won by Mrs. E. Bush, and followed by a social half hour enjoyed by all.

WALLBRIDGE W.A.—W.M.S.

Wallbridge—On Thursday afternoon the W.A. and W.M.S. meetings were held in the Orange Hall with a fair attendance. The president, Mrs. James Sine, of the W.A. presiding.

Mrs. J. Sine gave a reading, "Ten Virgins". Mrs. I. Ketcheson read the scripture lesson from Matthew 7:17-29, Mrs. Cecil Sine gave a report on expenditures on the new dining hall being erected at the rear of the church. Several donations have been received for that purpose.

W.M.S.—

Mrs. Sam Nicolson, president of the W.M.S., opened her meeting with the call to worship entitled "Let all the world". Scripture lesson was read in unison.

A short story on "Trinidad" was read by the president.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Sam Nicolson and all members are asked to bring something to sell in the travelling basket.

The farmers are busy with their haying and peas are being cut as loads are seen going to the viners and the raspberries are a promising crop as already some have been picked.

A number of factory workers are holidaying from the Bata and Northern Electric.

Miss Vera Sine, of Ottawa, was a recent guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ketcheson, of Ottawa, are holidaying at the former's home, on the 5th concession where he spent all his childhood days.

Mrs. R. Logan and son, Francis of Hamilton, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris and Mrs. Martha Harris, also Mrs. R. Tucker, of Belleville, spent Sunday at their home visiting with their mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris attended the funeral on Saturday of the former's brother-in-law, Mr. Harry Cordon, who passed away suddenly in the Belleville Hospital on Wednesday last.

Claims Can-Opener No Badge Of Shame But a Magic Wand

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York — (AP) — On a round-the-world trip, a year or so ago, food writer and television star Poppy Cannon discovered the rest of the world had some pretty strange ideas about the American kitchen.

In Pakistan, for instance, she was asked repeatedly if it was true that American meals consisted entirely of vitamin pills washed down by glasses of water. All over the old world, housewives and homemakers asked how husband felt about "can-opener meals."

Since then, Poppy has made something of an avocation of telling the world how America eats.

Imagination Important

The magic ingredient in any good dish, she maintains, is something that can't be purchased — the cook's imagination.

"I know — I've proved to my own satisfaction that you can be a gourmet with a can-opener," she says earnestly. "The can-opener actually permits the woman with little time in the kitchen to become an artist.

"Think of canned foods and frozen foods this way: Often people have the responsibility for the selection of the raw materials, cleaning and preparation. When you open a can, you move into the kitchen the way a chef does after a corps of kitchen maids have done the preliminaries."

"It's old-fashioned and uninformed to sneer at the 'can-opener,'" Poppy maintains stoutly. "Open the can of soup," she suggested. "Other hands have made the roux, others have pureed the vegetables. You start from there with added ingredients, herbs and spices."

For an easy lobster newburgh — take canned cream of mushroom soup, dilute it with a quarter cup of dry sherry, add frozen lobster cut into large diced chunks and add seasonings to your taste.

Fruit Sauce

During the summer months, Miss Cannon occasionally goes in for fruit soups, dear to the hearts of Scandinavians and Scandinavians. She buys cans or pureed fruits, put up for babies, adds white wine, cinnamon, sour cream and grates nutmeg over the top. Or she serves cold chicken soup, a can of cream of chicken, some lemon juice, salt and freshground pepper.

Even complicated dishes like chicken Tetrazzini aren't hard with a can-opener for a kitchen aid. Start with chicken fricasee out of a can, add mushrooms, chopped hard-boiled eggs to the sauce.

Cook thin noodles separately, pour the chicken mixture over the noodles, add grated cheese and give it a few minutes under the broiler. The whole thing can be done in minutes.

Or take a can of beef stew, add red wine, herbs and other seasoning. Miracles can be done with a can of meat balls. It can be turned into a Swedish dish by adding all-spice and sour cream; into a Peruvian dish with a raisin and ripe-olive sauce, simmered slowly.

She thinks the busy modern housewife can get along just fine with a big canned goods and preserves closet, a spice-and-herbs shelf and a liquor cabinet.

Spices Needed

"Of course, you need to rely heavily on herbs and spices and condiments, because most canned goods are necessarily very lightly flavored to meet all ranges of tastes."

The kitchen liquor cabinet should have dry sherry, a good white table wine; a good red table wine, rum, brandy and beer. She occasionally uses two tablespoons of beer in a beef stew, and also in a shrimp sauce.

She practices what she preaches. The kitchen of her 66th Street home in Manhattan where she tests recipes for her writing and daily, ABC television show has shelves for spices, condiments and herbs. There's a tiny back yard garden where Miss Cannon has her fresh herb supply — mint, sweet basil, dill, winter savory, marjoram and parsley.

"All I'm trying to tell the world is that a can-opener isn't a badge of shame," she explained. "It's a magic wand."

RAWDON

Young Couple Feted With Many Gifts

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended a miscellaneous shower last Friday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Pitcher, Murray, in honor of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. David Charlesworth, who were married recently.

Lovely Gifts

Mrs. Gordon Chase presided over the ceremonies and Mrs. MacMullen contributed three readings to the evening's entertainment. The young couple were the recipients of a large array of lovely gifts which included several electrical items, Kenwood blankets, china and linen.

The groom is a member of the Trenton R.C.A.F., having served several years in World War 2 and the bride is on the Bell Telephone staff in Belleville.

The young couple will reside in Belleville. Relatives were in attendance from many points which included the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Charlesworth, of Smithfield, and his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charlesworth of Trenton.

The newlyweds graciously thanked their relatives and friends for the lovely gifts after which refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Who has learned the secret of successful marriage

Dear for a change, how would you like to read a letter from someone who is really happy?

Usually, this column is so filled with problems that one sometimes wonders if there really are people in the world who don't have any. So we asked those engaged in work them out enough to be able to live with them without letting them spoil their lives.

Here is a letter that I'd like to share with you because it made me feel so good, and because I believe it will give all the rest of you a lift, too.

It starts out happily. "This is not a letter with a problem in it. It is a letter from a very happy and contented wife. I don't know if you get many letters from happy people. It seems as though we only read the ones with trouble in them in your column, so I thought for a change I'd send a happy one.

"My husband and I have been married over five years, but we went steady for four years before we were wed. I know that most people would say four years is too long for a courtship, and I grant you that for many it would be too long. But we were young—he was 20 and I was 18—and he hadn't decided what he really wanted to do. It was during the war and he didn't know what was going to happen to him. He had had a poor life and had seen his mother go through a great deal of trouble trying to raise eight children and going to work at the same time because his father was not well. Because of this, there was discord and not much happiness in his home, and he didn't want us to run the risk of something like that. So we waited until he was sure of what he wanted to do.

"On April 14, 1946, just four years from the day we met, we had a lovely wedding. Now we have two children a girl who will be four in December, and a baby of new baby boy, three months old. We have just begun building our own house. My husband is a carpenter, and has a good job, and I don't think he could be happier. To tell you the truth, my heart still pounds when I hear his car and he comes whistling into the house at night after work.

I think our four years courtship helped to draw us closer together, and that we learned during that period to understand each other big and small. We are very close, even with the little squabbles that every couple has. We seem to get closer when we make up. They stay love grows stronger with the years, and it is true. It does."

Isn't that a heart-warming letter? And even better, it make you wish that more young couples would learn in time that "to talk everything over, big and small," is the real secret to a successful marriage?

The trouble is, that instead of talking over problems and disagreements, so many people simply quarrel over them. Then they get further apart, instead of being drawn closer together.

Married love does, indeed, grow stronger with the years, provided it feeds upon loyalty, affection, trust, an unselfish desire to make the other person happy, and the willingness to see the other person's point of view, and so, to compromise when disagreements arise. If a marriage is given these things on which to grow stronger, it will not fail. If denied these things it grows weaker instead of stronger, and eventually dies of malnutrition.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Pembroke, Ont.—(CP)—The bride's mother, Mrs. Charles Whitmore, wore a shoulder knot of pink roses. The bride, Mrs. Harry Howard, we celebrating her golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. Whitmore is 90 years old.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Old fashioned breakfasts make wonderful dinners today.

Scrambled eggs with kidney stew, a holdover from the period when the squire returned from the hunt, is not only fine fare, but a low priced dinner as well.

The kidneys may be prepared hours beforehand and merely reheated before serving. The eggs must be scrambled at the last moment to be steaming hot. When scrambling 6 or 8 eggs at a time, it's a good idea to use a wide pan so that the eggs actually touch the pan bottom, and are not merely steamed on top of each other. Also, the pan should be removed from the fire before the eggs are firm, since the heat of the pan will continue to cook them somewhat. The eggs should be stirred constantly with 5 long pronged fork while scrambling.

Beef, veal or lamb kidneys may be used in today's recipe.

Scrambled Eggs with Kidneys
Serves 4.

2-4 lb. beef kidneys
Half lemon
Salt—pepper
Vegetable fat
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
8 ounce can tomato sauce
1-4 teaspoon chopped dried basil
1-3 cup bolling water
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
8 eggs
Butter or margarine
Toast

Cut the kidneys into 1-2 inch cubes or small slices. Put the kidneys in cold water to cover. Add the juice of half a lemon. Let the kidneys soak three hours. Remove kidneys from water. Drain well.

Melt 2 tablespoons vegetable fat in a heavy saucepan. Add the kidneys. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Saute slowly until kidneys are brown.

Add the onions and saute a minute more. Add the tomato sauce, basil, boiling water and parsley. Simmer very slowly over the lowest flame until kidneys are tender, about 1 hour. Stir frequently. If sauce becomes too thick, thin out with additional hot water or tomato juice. Skim excess fat from surface. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Scramble eggs in butter or margarine until eggs are semi-soft.

Spoon eggs onto serving plates. Put slices of toast, cut diagonally, alongside eggs. Spoon kidneys over eggs. Garnish with parsley.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Right, sensible way to address an envelope: city and state on separate lines

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In one of our last English classes, in May, our teacher told our class that it is the best form to write (when addressing an envelope the name of the city on one line and the name of the state on the line beneath. She said that not only is this best form for social use, but that also many business and professional firms and individuals insist on this form. But my brother, now home from his second year of college, always addresses a card or envelope with the city and state on the same line. Insists that many people do this, that it is best form. Today we decided to ask you which form you prefer.

W. L.

Your teacher is right — absolutely and sensibly right. Every one of us should get the habit of writing the name of the city and the name of the state on separate lines. This makes a vastly better address-appearance, more balanced; more practical, and, in much, much easier for the postal attendants and the postman to read. Also it leaves the right kind of a clear space for the writing of the Zone Number . . . after the name of the State.

And your teacher is right in telling you that many business and professional firms and individuals insist on this form . . . and lines for the address (name, on the first line, street-address on the second line, city on the third line, state on the four line). And, incidently, no abbreviations except "Mr" and "Mrs.". (Tell your brother that he shouldn't be so "old-fashioned" as to write the city and state on one line . . . he should use the "modern", up-to-date form of a separate line for each!)

To send wedding invitation to groom's parents?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to send formal invitations to a church wedding, to the groom's parents?

2. We are to have an informal reception, at our home, following the ceremony. It's to be a buffet luncheon, the guests serving themselves to everything except the dessert and fruit punch. In this case should there be a bride's table, which the wedding party is served separately?

3. Is it customary to have a receiving-line at an informal reception?

A. R.

1. Usually it is the gracious gesture of the "bride-to-be, immediately after she receives the invitations from the engraver, to enclose several of these (complete with double envelopes) in a large envelope and send them to her bridegroom's mother and father, with a graceful little note or endearing thoughts or her devotion to them and her anticipation of seeing them at the wedding.

2. It is proper to have all the service buffet; or, proper also—and very delightful, if convenient to have a bride's table.

3. At an informal reception there may be the customary receiving-line or the bride's mother, as hostess, may stand near the door of the room in which the receiving is to take place, the groom's mother next to her; and opposite them the bride and groom (bride always at the right of the groom) and the bride's attendants.

IN MEMORIAM

Medicine Hat, Alta.—(CP)—Names of 80 pioneers have been branded into the walls of the new Medicine Hat Museum.

Fashion Flashes

CRISP AND COOL, Paper-thin silk taffeta is a favorite fabric for smart town evenings. Black silk taffeta, with a woven tiny red rose design, makes a handsome short-skirted, dinner dress with spiraling wrap-around skirt that has pocketed drapery at one side. Cuffed, off-shoulder neckline.

A GOOD SELECTION for travel, resort or just stay-at-home wear is the short-sleeved dress done on soft, shirtwaist lines. If you choose it in an appropriate fabric, you can't go wrong, no matter what the setting. Sheer nylon, in a voile weave is used for a shirtwaister with permanently pleated skirt.

MORE APPEAL is evident in the new mouton coats than in many a year, making this budget fur a good buy. The most famous fur designer in Paris has done a mouton coat in a very flared model with sloping shoulders and voluminous push-up sleeves. It is lined in contrast taffeta, and has a matching taffeta ascot that pulls through slits under the collar and may be draped in many ways.

REFRESHING dresses in printed silks and cottons add to the season's attractions. Crinkled silk organzie is used for a short-skirted white dinner dress, printed in full-bloom red roses and green leaves. Strapless bodice is intricately draped, and there is a matching stole.

A WARM WELCOME is being given to smart fashions developed and made in Israel. Handsome indeed is a three-piece suit in a heavy-knit jacquard in a rich shade of terra cotta. The suit has a slim, wraparound skirt, and the semi-fitted jacket has a fringed scarf tab front. With it is a black, hand-knit pullover. A good country number!

EVER SO SMART are the town tweed suits that you'll be seeing next season. Many have long-jackets, 27 inches being a favorite length for the new, dignified design. Dot-checked charcoal and white tweed makes the long, slim jacket of a handsome suit with a plain charcoal grey tweed skirt. Jacket is double-breasted below a high, curved closing.

C.C.F. CONVENES

Saskatoon, July 18. (CP) — About 500 delegates are expected to attend the C.C.F. provincial convention opening here today. Secretary Russ Brown said Tuesday. Mr. Brown said reports presented at a pre-convention meeting Tuesday indicated membership ground lost last year has been regained. Last year it was announced membership had dropped by 10,000 members.

Wonders of Chemistry

Abundant Food, New Fuels And Clothing Seen For Future

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York — (AP — Coming through chemistry:

Abundant food for everyone, by discovery of the secrets of photosynthesis.

Fuels for trips to the moon . . . heat-resistant materials for faster jet planes.

Clothes that won't wrinkle or lose a crease.

Fresh water from the sea to offset water shortages . . . new foods and more minerals or metals from the oceans.

Drugs to control cancer, polio and other diseases.

Artificial proteins, maybe . . . and maybe even creation of life.

Fantastic? Chemists already are on the way to bringing many of them true. And on the basis of past performances, the predictions should be treated with respect.

Take a moment for a look back, and a glance ahead.

Jubilee Year

The occasion is the diamond jubilee year of the American Chemical Society, founded 75 years ago and now the largest professional society in the world. Special ceremonies will include a world chemical conclave this September in New York and Washington, bringing top chemists from over the world.

Seventy-five years ago, chemistry was a small industry in the United States.

Today, chemicals are the foremost industry of the country, in multi-billion dollar operations.

The parade of new and better and once-undreamed of things from chemistry is staggering in variety.

Processed foods and more nutritious foods; vitamins, salts, drugs and antibiotics, synthetic gems, synthetic tires for autos, long - lasting, bright - colored paints.

Plastics to the tune of 1,500,000,000 pounds a year now; oils and gasoline, synthetic gasoline, dyes creating new rainbows, synthetic fertilizers boosting food supplies, insecticides, weed killers, synthetic soaps, and bromine and magnesium mined from the sea, plastics and greases made from sand and carbon.

Man-made fibres from rayon to nylon and half a dozen much newer ones with special advantages; shrink-proofing of clothes, moth-proofing, rain-proofing; movies and photography and TV, synthetic hormones, modern cigarettes, better baseballs, cosmetics, cheaper and better books, more potent war weapons.

Had Hand in A-Bomb

And the atom bomb. Chemists had a huge hand in making the bomb possible. They have the major role in bringing about atomic power for peacetime use.

For centuries chemistry was a collection of arts and crafts. But the magic of research was taking form slowly.

The wand created, among other things, a giant of chemical research, still young and vigorous No one can predict what the coming years will bring. But some things are clearly on the horizon.

There will be better plastics, better clothes for coolness or warmth and comfort and appearance, better homes, more and better drugs to control diseases; better preservation of foods.

An old worry is whether there are or will be too many people, too many mouths to feed, too many people to clothe and supply with material things.

Some chemists are confident they will find answers — maybe by using inexhaustible raw materials of sand, air and water in place of metals and coal and oil. Sugars may come from wood; proteins from yeasts or artificial blending of protein building blocks; fats from coal and other things. Earth may someday be used in new ways to form bricks and slabs for home.

Secrets of Plants Studied

There is progress now toward solving the secrets of photosynthesis, the process by which plants create foodstuffs from sunlight, carbon dioxide, water and nitrogen. Man could create limitless supplies of food once he can duplicate photosynthesis in his own factories.

Much of the terrific energy of the sun now is wasted. It is partly a chemical challenge to learn how to use it more efficiently for heat and for power.

The human body is made of an inexpensive amount of chemicals. In biochemistry lies the answers to many secrets of health and life.

Hope to Get to Canada

Bonn, July 17 — (Reuters) — L. B. Pearson said today some west Germans are travelling to Britain in the belief that it will make it easier for them to emigrate to Canada.

Canada's external affairs minister said Canada plans to take 150,000 west European immigrants next year. The number who wanted to live in Canada far exceeded "the shipping space available."

Pearson, touring Canadian diplomatic missions in Western Europe, said in Sweden he found Finns were coming all the way to Stockholm on the off-chance of getting a passage to Canada.

Motorcyles, Spuds Help Couple To See World

Regina — (CP) — Potatoes and motorcycles can be very important in life when you want to see the world and haven't much money.

Globe-trotting artists Lorelli and Arthur McKay found that out during the two years they just spent in England, France and Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. McKay, married four years ago in Calgary, have a joint ambition: to see the world and continue their studies in art.

Their shortage of cash didn't deter them when they decided to go to England two years ago.

To cut travelling expenses they bought a motorcycle and rode to Montreal with their bed rolls strapped behind them, then sold the cycle.

In England they took cook jobs at a prep school where the regular cook had abandoned his job in a hurry.

Lorelli's artistic fingers peeled hundreds of potatoes and Arthur scraped pots and pans for six months until their finances recovered.

After bicycling over England they went to Paris and enrolled at an art academy.

Lorelli thinks that was the best part of the trip because of the friends they made. "Now we correspond with Parisians, Africans, Americans, English and Swiss," she says.

The 24-year-old couple worked for United States army officials at Orleans for a while, then went to Switzerland where they bought another motorcycle and toured the country thoroughly.

They brought the motorcycle back to Canada with them and rode back to Regina from the east coast.

The cycle will be used for "future trips."

Blood Transfusion Found Unnecessary

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 17 — (CP) — A blood transfusion rushed 35 miles from Hamilton by a police escort — was found unnecessary today.

The blood was intended to replace the blood of a new - born "RH positive" child. When the baby was born it turned out to be "RH negative" and perfectly healthy.

Niagara Falls doctors requested the blood from the Hamilton Red Cross Society early this morning. City police escorted a car containing the blood to the outskirts of Hamilton and provincial police sped it to Niagara Falls.

(The "RH factor," contained in the blood of a small percentage of persons, sometimes causes jaundice and kidney diseases.)

SPECTACULAR FIRE LEVELS LAURENTIAN VILLAGE BUILDINGS

Firemen fought a losing battle to save four buildings in Rawdon, a Laurentian village 40 miles north of Montreal. Crackling flames licking their backs and fanning them with heat were not out of control in a few moments so that firemen had to concentrate on saving the rest of the village from destruction. — Central Press Canadian.

Predicts Jet Airliners in 8 to 10 Years

New York, July 18—(CP)—Jet airliners will be in use in the United States for long-distance flights in eight to 10 years, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, predicted Tuesday.

They would have come into use sooner but for the Korean war and the subsequent set-up in the arms program, he said.

Britain is far ahead in plans to use jet airliners for civilian transportation. British Overseas Airways Corporation already has ordered several British Comet Dehavilland jets for long-distance service.

The Comet, the world's first jet airliner, now is in the advanced stage of long-distance flight tests. But it probably will be at least a year before they can put into civilian operation.

Canada, which has shelved development of a jet airliner of her own to make way for the defence program, will use the British comets. Canadian Pacific Airlines plans to replace two North Star aircraft on its Pacific run with comets early next year.

Work on the government-subsidized Avro Canada jet airliner at Malton, near Toronto, was stopped recently. Avro now is concentrating on production of all-weather jet fighters.

WATER, WATER ALL AROUND . . .

With millions of gallons of water flooding their homes, residents of the Kansas-Missouri flood area have to queue for water fit to drink. To prevent pestilence, medical men have begun inoculating everyone in the area, dole out water by the quart. —Central Press Canadian.

Offer of Woman Controller Ends Male Opposition

Ottawa, July 18 (CP) —Maybe it was controller Charlotte Whitton's announcement that she would contribute "up to $1,000 myself" that influenced the board of control of Canada's capital.

Anyway the budget-conscious board last night gave grudging approval for an "official entertainment" for Denys Lowson, Lord Mayor of London, England.

"I'm against it," said Controller L. L. Coulter, "run to a lot of money. Think of the bill with a mob like that."

"Nonsense," said Miss Whitton, "if the city can't spare the money I'll contribute up to $1,000 myself. This is no ordinary junket. This is an historic event and we must see to it that he is given a proper welcome."

Mayor Grenville Goodwin settled things by saying he will see that the Lord Mayor is suitably entertained by Ottawa.

The Lord Mayor will arrive here Sept. 5 accompanied by his Lady, two sheriffs, a sword-bearer and two footmen.

FOUND DEAD IN CELL

Barrie, July 18 (CP) —A 22-year-old man, identified as Peter Huebner of Virgil, Ont., near St. Catharines, was found dead in his jail cell here Tuesday. Police said the man, held on a vagrancy charge, hanged himself by his trouser belt tied to his cell door.

U.S. Combat Team Will Train Along Alaska Highway

Ottawa, July 18 (CP) —A United States Army regimental combat team—about the size of a Canadian brigade group — will conduct a training exercise along the Alaska Highway next month the Defence Department said today.

The Canadian government is co-operating with the U.S. in that portion of the manoeuvres which will take U.S. forces through Canadian territory, an army statement said.

The Canadian area takes in most of the Haines cut-off, a highway which links Haines, Alaska with Anchorage, Alaska but for the most part goes through the Yukon.

This 750-mile trek will be one of the longest overland manoeuvers of U.S. troops since the Second World War.

The unit is to be the 196th U.S. Army regimental combat team from Camp Carson, Colorado.

To be known as "Totem Pole" the exercise is to test the ability of units this size to move overland under Arctic summer conditions. It is also to complete the training of the 196th.

The exercise will begin in the Seattle area, troops travelling by ship to Haines, the northern terminus of the inland passage to Alaska.

The whole operation is to take one month.

Anthony Eden Sails Tuesday for Canada

London, July 18 — (CP) Anthony Eden, deputy Conservative leader, will sail for Canada next Tuesday on the Empress of Canada, it was learned today.

Eden will be in Canada only about three-or four days en route to Denver, Colo., where he is to address a world affairs institute Aug. 2. He expects to visit Montreal, Port Hope, Ont., and Winnipeg.

He will be accompanied by Robert Carr, Conservative member of Parliament for Mitcham, Surrey.

MAIN LINE BLOCKED

Galt, July 18 — (CP) — The main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway track here was blocked for four hours early today after an east-bound freight, travelling slowly, collided head-on with a stationary switching locomotive.

One freight car was derailed. A fireman, Wilfred Walsh of Toronto, suffered an abrasion on one leg.

Bushman and Airman Heroes To Lost Prospector Brothers Now Convalescing in Toronto

Quebec, July 18 (CP) — A wiry little bushman and a stout-hearted north-country airman were heroes in the rescue of prospectors Jimmy and Mike Walsh from Quebec wilderness where they were missing 24 days.

The brothers, here yesterday on their way by air to Toronto to recover from their ordeal, said they owe their lives to 62-year-old Christophat Collin, who found them by the Molale River, and Roland Samson who directed the search.

Jimmy Walsh said that only a man of Collin's experience could have picked up the trail he and his brother left in their starvation march from Lake Ashuanipi towards Sept Iles, 180 air miles to the south.

Traced on Lake Shore

Collin, who kept insisting in broken English that search parties would find "man by river," finally picked up traces of the Walsh brothers on the east shore of the Molale and caught up with them two days later.

Samson, head of the Ailes du Nord Limitee, an air transport company undertook personal direction of the search. He used the expert canoe crews which were landed by plane in lakes near the Molale.

The airmen also searched the river line by air in the hope of spotting the prospectors.

The Walsh brothers— Jimmy, 49, and Mike, 56—went into Lake Ashuanipi country in northeastern Quebec late in April to prospect for the Bourbo Mining Company of Toronto.

They had arranged to be picked up in June, as soon as lakes were free of ice and planes could land on them.

By June 20, no plane had come. Fearing they had been forgotten, perhaps because a war had broken out, they had set out with what little food remained on their desperate journey towards civilization.

Lived off Country

Their food ran out five days later and they lived until last Friday on what they could find in country almost barren of game. They caught two trout, and three rabbits and concocted a stew of toads and mint leaves.

The brothers were close to starvation, 90 miles from Sept Iles when Collin and Lodget Eleman, his young companion, found them.

HE'S FUZZLED, TOO

Looking more than slightly bewildered is Gen. Matthew Ridgway, U.N. commander, as he is relayed information by telephone from the U.N. truce committee in Kaesong. Like everyone else, Ridgway is probably wondering what's coming up next. While negotiations continue he stays in Munsan, a few miles from Kaesong.—Central Press Canadian.

Dollar Crisis Again Returns To London as Sterling Area's Gold, Dollar Reserves Dwindle

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 18. (CP)— That old black crow of post-war economics—the dollar crisis—has come back to plant a baleful foot on the British body politic.

For the first time in more than a year, the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves are going down instead of up. The phrase "dollar gap" is medically buried this summer, is heard again.

A third crisis, perhaps as acute as the convertibility crisis of 1947 or the devaluation crisis of 1949 may be in the making.

Higher Import Prices

Rising import prices are the new villain. A leading government authority told newspaper men he regards the increase as unprecedented in peacetime. Britain now pays 42 per cent more than in 1950 for imports as a whole and 72 per cent more for imported raw materials while export prices have risen by only 18 per cent.

This is what politicians mean when they talk about "deterioration in the terms of trade". Some financial commentators in leading newspapers profess to foresee a slight future easing in these terms now that the prospects of peace in Korea seem brighter. But it will probably be necessary for Britain to make another cut in dollar imports.

This Canadian business may have to defer one of its fondest hopes—that the British tariff may soon take some of the wraps off sterling.

The awakening of concern over British finances dates from last week when it was announced the country's adverse visible trade balance in June totalled £151,600,000, the biggest gap recorded in one month.

May Seek Controls

Now that the dollar gap is back again, one of the first results may be an attempt by Britain to introduce friendly controls in a system of world controls over prices.

Hugh Gaitskell, the present chancellor, broached the topic at a recent meeting in Paris. More may be heard about it in the commons, where Gaitskell is expected soon to make an important statement on the economic position.

N.Z. Minister To Visit R.C.A.F. At Trenton Station

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)—Defence Minister T. L. Macdonald of New Zealand, due in Canada Saturday will visit eastern Canadian communities before leaving Wednesday for the United States.

The farmer-politician, an overseas veteran of two wars, will land in Montreal at 9 a. m. from the United Kingdom and spend the day there.

He comes here Sunday and on Monday will meet Defence Minister Claxton and the chiefs of staff, Transport Minister Chevrier and others. Tuesday he will visit R. C. A.F. bases at Centralia and Trenton, Ont.

At Trenton he will see the memorial gates commemorating the commonwealth air training scheme under which thousands of New Zealand airmen became fliers.

Wednesday he will visit defence installations at Kingston and Barriefield and address students at the national defence and army staff colleges. He will go to New York from Kingston that afternoon.

Navy to Recruit 150 Women for Radio Work

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)—The navy will start recruiting July 23 for about 150 women needed as full-time members of the Women's Royal Canadian Navy (reserve) in naval radio stations, it was announced today.

The initial intake will precede a general recruiting drive for approximately 800 "Wrens" for service in the reserve. Successful applicants will attend the local drills of the local navy divisions, and for basic and trades training.

Immediate plans call for the Wrens to fill posts in R. C. N. radio stations, H. M. C. naval radio station Coverdale, near Moncton, N. B., will absorb the first recruits.

The women who enter as "Communicators" will be enlisted for five years three of which they will serve on continuous naval duty as radio operators. Their pay will be the same as for men of equivalent rank.

The navy announcement sale comfortable living quarters will be assigned the Wrens, and full winter and summer uniforms "of a smart new design and color" will be issued.

The navy expects to recruit its first 150 Wrens in three weeks.

Women entering as communicators must be between 19 and 25 years of age, in good physical condition, with grade 10 or equivalent education. For women with experience as radio technicians and operators, the age limit will be extended to 28. Applications will be considered from former Wrens of other categories up to 28 years of age.

Prisoners From Burwash Farm Being Sought

Sudbury, July 18 (CP) —Two prisoners who escaped from a work camp at Burwash industrial farm in a hail of shotgun pellets Monday afternoon were sought today in dense bush country here.

Leslie David Shepherd, 28 and Allan William Ball, 22, both of Toronto, were working under armed guards in a rock quarry a quarter of a mile north of the main buildings when they dived for the bush.

They were serving 24 to 30 months long one day on charges of breaking and entering, theft, shop breaking and possession of an offensive weapon.

$10,000 Damage Done To Dorchester Hotel

Dorchester, Ont., July 18 (CP) — Fire gutted the two-storey frame Dorchester Hotel early today. Firemen from Dorchester and nearby London battled the flames for more than two hours with water drawn from the nearby Thames River.

The more than 20 residents of the hotel were forced to grope their way through smoke - filled halls in their night clothes and from the street watched the flames destroy their possessions.

The alarm was turned in about 12:30 a. m. by Ross Soper. He was in bed when he smelled smoke.

The owner or the hotel, Maurice Testart, estimated damage to the building at $10,000.

Famous Cure-All Bear Grease Back

Ramore, Ont. — (CP) — It's had news for bears, but one of the original, although almost forgotten, cure-alls and hair-restorers is coming back.

"Bear grease," says Kelly Chamandy, the big bear man of Northern Ontario, "is good for every ailment of man, but it's particularly good for human hair. Baldness is unknown among the Indians because they use it," he claims.

Kelly, a fur trader in this little bush community north of Kirkland Lake, is building a small industry based on the sale of "bear" grease to customers located from Mexico City to British Columbia. He will reduce about two dozen bears to grease this summer and will buy all the "essence de bear" that surrounding trappers can supply.

This year he has already run out of merchandise and it is still too early for bear rendering. "There's no use trying to get grease from a bear during the spring. He's skinny as a rake when he comes out of hibernation. Now he is beginning to get nice and fat again," he said.

Bear grease reached the pinnacle of fame during great-grandpa's day. His hair and mustache would be all slicked up with it when he took grandma sparking in the buggy. Some years later their children could be seen marching off, well-greased, to Sunday School.

But it sunk into obscurity as the bears got rendered right out of existence in the civilized parts of the country.

Now Kelly, himself sporting a new crop of hair, is putting it back on the market.

All the Luxuries of Home Enjoyed By Crew on Fine New Freighter

Vancouver (CP) — A ship sailed into Vancouver harbor recently that marks the last word in accommodation for seamen.

From the captain of the motorship Lylepark, built on Scotland's Clyde, down to the lowliest galley boy, each of the 38-man crew has his own private cabin, modernistic oak furniture, soft bed, matching window drapes.

There's even a hotplate arrangement so that each man can make himself a pot of tea without stirring from his room.

The remarkable thing about it—the first freighter in the world to boast individual cabins for members of the crew — is that the owners are no bunch of upstarts, lacking in respect for the traditions of the sea.

They are a pair of Scotsmen whose forbears started the Denholm Line with a wooden schooner in the sugar trade.

The two modern Denholms took a lively interest in the building of the Lylepark, even though they gave the naval architects a "free hand."

And the two Mrs. Denholms rummaged Glasgow searching for the attractive materials of gay tartan check and thistle design used for window drapes.

As for the individual cabin idea, you've only to chat with Captain Alex. Brown, O.B.E., to find out what a resounding success it is.

"When a man's room is his own he takes real pride in it," the veteran skipper said: "It does big things for his morale. He has a bit of privacy, and when 38 men work together on one ship for six weeks at a stretch, that can mean a lot."

Old salts along the waterfront are dropping in at the pier and coming away with their eyes popping at some of the other remarkable new ideas to be seen aboard the freighter.

The cargo winches, normally belching steam and making a shuddering clatter that echoes throughout the ship, are silent on the Lylepark.

Her winches are "splash-lubricated" housed entirely in thick steel cases. The gears work in an oil bath like the engine of a Rolls Royce. Hence, no noise.

"Nice when a ship's unloading at night," said Chief Engineer Robert Huggan. "A man can get some sleep."

And in the hold, the Lylepark has something new in diesel engines. Instead of the regular oil, they run on much cheaper residual heavy boiler oil.

The oil is processed in purifying and centrifugal separators and fed pre-heated to the fuel pumps.

Engineers all over the world are watching this one because it may change the whole economics of marine diesel operations.

DEMOCRATIC STRONGHOLD

No Republic presidential candidate has polled half as many votes as his Democratic opponent in Louisiana since 1864.

New Oil Find Made in Montana

New York, July 17 — (AP) — Shell Oil Company announced it has discovered oil in northeastern Montana, "indicating the possibility of an important new oil producing area in the Williston Basin of Montana and the Dakotas." The new well is on land leased by Shell from the Northern Pacific Railroad and is surrounded by a large block of Shell-leased land.

"A 40-minute drill stem test was made between depths of 7,183 and 7,253 feet and the well flowed high gravity oil at a very substantial rate," officials reported.

Ramsay Paints Down Plumbers Glen Roy Backs Into Pennant

Ramsay Paints made nightmares of all Howe and Hagerman's pennant dreams last evening when they plastered the Plumbers with a 9-7 setback in the final scheduled game of the season.

The defeat left Howe and Hagerman in second place in the Commercial League A standings one point behind Glen Roy Athletic Club which lost the leadership on the strength of the Painters victory. Ramsays wound up in third place in the standings three points ahead of Point Anne.

Ramsays jumped on Plumber starter Lum Carson early to take a commanding lead. After the second inning they were never headed.

Jack Whiting got things off to a flying start for Ramsays as he pounded a home run into left field in the first inning.

Howe and Hagerman used Leo Goyer's lead-off triple, an error, a fielder's choice and a passed ball to run in two counters in the top of the second but Ramsays replied with three runs in the bottom of the second on two singles, a walk, and an error.

They threw more wrenches in the plumbing machinery in the third as they piled up four runs on three singles, and four errors.

Lum Carson, who started for Howe and Hagerman retired with two men out in the third and Al Adams came on to douse the fire. He toiled the rest of the way giving up three hits, one a home run by Glen Young to centrefield for the only other Painter tally of the game.

The Plumbers who left two men on base in the fourth, which cut scoring finally pushed over three runs in the seventh inning as Ramsay's defence and the Plumbers lapses cut off a more serious rally. Locke and Wardhaugh walked to open the inning but Locke was thrown out trying to steal third. Al Adams looped one into short left field which Ed Donovan let fall safely. However, Donovan, who apparently dropped the ball deliberately, fired to second base to beat Wardhaugh on the force play. Mac Carson then crashed a home run to centrefield. Don Adams' single and an error by centrefielder Lunberg, on Goyer's holst gave H. and H. another run.

Both teams loaded the bases in the eighth but failed to score.

In the ninth Don Adams led off with a double and came all the way home when Vern Goyer hit a line drive home run to the fence in centrefield.

Leo Goyer walked and at this point Earl Bush, who had gone all the way for Ramsays retired in favor of Connie Harris, who proceeded to get out the side without further damage.

Best at the plate for the winners was Jack Whiting with a home run and a single in five appearances. Leo Goyer with a double and a triple in four tries led Howe and Hagerman.

As a result of the loss Howe and Hagerman will meet Ramsays in a two-of-three series for the right to challenge Glen Roy for the intermediate A OASA spot for the league. The Painmen will be at home to the Plumbers Thursday evening at the Alemite Field, while H and H will play host Saturday evening.

Ramsay Paints: E. Donovan lf; Whiting 3b; Sinclair 2b; G. Young c; Lefevre ss; Lunberg cf; C. Carr 1b; B. Young rf; E. Bush p.

Cellar Dwellers Taking Aim On First Division

(By The Canadian Press)

There's an upheaval brewing in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League.

St. Thomas Legion and Guelph Maple Leafs, bogged down at the bottom of the league since the season started are starting to move up and they're beating the upper storehouses at the game to do it.

Last night Guelph came through with a 12-inning 2-1 win over Galt Terriers to move into fourth place—the last playoff spot. St. Thomas hammered an 8-5 victory over Waterloo Tigers to win their fourth straight loss.

Phil Marchildon pitched canny ball for the entire 12 innings to gain credit for the Guelph win. The ex-major leaguers pitched nine-hit ball to show his recovery since he was first troubled with arm worries several years ago.

Joe Consoli's single to centre with two men on broke up the ball game for Guelph. Galt notified the umpires in the 11th inning that they were playing under protest. The Terriers objected to the tagging out of Dale Markert on the grounds that the first base beg wasn't tied down.

Hollywood Ending

Pitcher Bob Gordon gave the St. Thomas game a Hollywood ending when he came to bat in the 12th and pasted a home run with the bases loaded.

Waterloo, leading 5-4 before the husky righthander hit his homer, could do nothing to get back in the ball game in their remaining time at bat.

St. Thomas has now climbed to within four games of the sixth place Kitchener Legionaires.

Tonight Guelph takes on the second-place London Majors at London, Waterloo travels to neighboring Kitchener, and St. Thomas plays at Galt.

St. Catharines Stags moved into a tie for first place in the Niagara District Senior League, defeating the Tonawanda Dodgers 6-1. Pitcher Frank Martin fanned 14 men and gave up only four hits to gain credit for the win.

In other Niagara action, Welland Stokes whipped their pacleading Niagara Falls Fords 8-3.

Rochester Yachts Win Freeman Cups

Chaumont, N.Y., July 18 (AP) — Yachts owned by Rochester men won the two major trophies in the annual Lake Ontario yacht races.

The race started at Presqu'ile Point, Sunday afternoon, and finished at Chaumont Bay, near here Tuesday.

The Venture, owned by George Ford of Rochester, won the Charles Freeman Cup, in the cruising class. The other major trophy, the Louise Freeman Cup, was taken by the Shadow, owned by Newt Castle, also of Rochester, it is of the universal class.

Winners' times were not available for the 160-mile race, which extended from Presqu'ile to Rochester and then Chaumont Bay.

'AL Tough' Says Old Satch Paige Back in at St. Loo

St. Louis, July 18 (AP)—They come tougher in the American League than where I've been this year, but I think I'm ready for them."

That was Leroy (Satchel) Paige talking as he prepared for his first starting assignment with St. Louis Browns.

"I've been here before and I think I can handle them," the Negro righthander added.

Paige will face Washington Senators tonight.

The veteran hurler—most estimates of his age place him in his 50's—signed his contract yesterday with Brownie owner Bill Veeck looking on. It was Veeck who brought Paige into the majors with Cleveland Indians in 1948.

Paige said he expects to stay in the game as long as he can. Most predictions are that he will stay about four innings, then be lifted for a relief hurler.

That's what he has been doing with Chicago Giants, a Negro professional team. Using that system, Paige pitched every two or three days.

In 1946 Paige was second in the league with an earned-run average of 2.47. His record was 6-1. He walked 25 men and struck out 42 in 73 innings.

A year later his E.R.A. jumped to 3.04—eighth in the league. He walked 32 and fanned 54.

Veeck hopes Satch will do as well with the Browns, And he also hopes Paige will be a crowd puller. The Browns need both spectators and victories.

Kingston Mare Wins Third Start In 10 Days

Toronto, July 18—(CP)—Edna Volo, a four-year-old mare which never started in her life until 10 days ago, had harness-racing followers muttering to themselves Tuesday after she won her third race in three starts.

Edna Volo, owned and driven by J. E. Seguin of Kingston, accounted for both divisions of the trotting stake and set eyes a-popping when she trotted a mile in 2.11 3-5.

She paid $21.40 in her first outing of the afternoon and came back to pay $4.80 in the day's final event.

Another unbeaten mare, Hazel Grattan, from the barn of Granit Galbraith, of Tara, Ont., gave herself a new record when she nosed out Leon Baker from A. D. Harrison's stable of Brandon, Man., in the first dash. Hazel Grattan paced in 2.17, nearly five seconds faster than her previous mark. She combined with Theora, owned by Neil S. Pringle, of Sarnia, for a daily double of $61.60.

The collapse of the Border Baseball League after a six-year existence is not an isolated disaster at the grass roots of organized ball. But it is of particular interest to baseball fans in this district because Kingston also has a team in the COBL. Kingston fans will support baseball. But as money becomes more and more scarce, and as it becomes more and more difficult for lower classification teams to meet expenses, the question arises, will Kingston fans support C ball? And not only Kingston, but will the other Border League teams support C ball next season? And that vexing question still is the air, would it be unfair to suggest that possibly the time is ripe for the old COBL to be reformed? Peterborough and Oshawa are one, two, in the Vindent League and are unhappy that they cannot get strong enough opposition. Both these clubs have lighted parks. So have Belleville and Kingston. Why not have a four-team league, with night games for all grands? Senior baseball is not as expensive as Class C. It is not as good either. But we venture to bet that strong senior clubs in each town could produce a brand of ball that would stimulate spectator enthusiasm sufficiently to give the new league a prosperous existence for the same complainers many years ago. As it is, Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough have a "sentimental" alliance in the senior B hockey grouping. Why not make it a year-round rivalry?

Lord Athol Layton, the pride of Picadilly, who was so horribly jobbed in his joust with the Zebra in the main bout of the wrestling show at Memorial Arena last night, has received a rematch with the striped horror and is fully confident that he will have his revenge. The courtly Layton, who had the Zebra trussed in the ropes in a convenient position for removing his mask ostentatiously was robbed of the chance on the outside of the ring and so lost a well-earned decision on a mere technicality. His 'Scimitar Slash', and his 'English Octopus' hold apparently had reduced the Zebra to helpless where an unwitting error, a matter of routine but technicalities reared their ugly heads and Layton lost. The Zebra, who claims that he will absolutely pulverize Layton with his 'Flying Body Smasher' is determined to remain anonymous even if he has to use ring posts on the Layton noggin.

Turk Broda's NHL All-Stars, who have been jogging about the province these past few years playing softball with themselves, switch to baseball Saturday night when they play the Belleville Redmen under the lights at the Fair Grounds at 9.00 p. m. The amiable Turk, whose hockey prowess last year enabled Al Rollins to win the Vezina Trophy for the Maple Leafs, is no mean man with a bat and ball. The All - Stars include Cal Gardner, Gus Mortson, Jim Thompson, Sid Smith, Harry Watson, Al Dewsbury, Max and Bill Quackenbush, and Ray Timgren. The All-Star hurler has not been announced but it really makes little difference. He will be good. Broda picked up some fellow by the name of Charlie Justice for his softball team last year, and a substitute hurler called Percy Hoskins who incidentally later did season three ten to a no-hit, no-run game ever seen in the World Series of football 1948 in Texas. If Broda brings down John Hetki of the Leafs or you-know-who from old St. Leo, don't be surprised.

There is a possibility that the Napanee Athletics of the COBL may not complete the season. The hapless Naps, who have won only two of their 14 starts, have been hit hard in the pitching department as well; Stan McTaggart who had his finger torn in an industrial accident early in the season left the bulk of the mound chores on the shoulders of veteran Ed Hooper and youthful Tar Bradly. Now Hooper is complaining of a sore shoulder. The harassed Athletics, who can see no way out of their present plight may have to suspend operations unless they can corral some of the disbanded Kingston Ponies. It is rumored that Napanee 'aces are already swinging over some of the Ponies.

AL Race Tighter Than Ever White Sox Beat Yanks in 10 Feller Whips Bosox 13th Win

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The White Sox fold? Don't tell that to Casey Stengel and Rip New York Yankees.

They know better after what happened to them last night.

They had Chicago whipped only to see Paul Richards' amazing Sox mash victory right out of their mitts with a three-run blast in the eighth inning and the "decider" in the tenth.

Chicago won, 4-3, after trailing 2-0 in the eighth. The triumph gave the Sox sole possession of second place in the American League, only two percentage points behind the pace-setting Boston Red Sox.

Cleveland climbed into a virtual third-place tie with New York, defeating the Red Sox, 8-6, as Bob Feller became the first pitcher to rack up 13 triumphs. Only a game and a half separate the four clubs.

The outlook was gloomy for Chicago as the Sox faced Allie Reynolds (16-3) tonight in the eighth trailing because of Hank Bauer's two-run homer in the seventh.

But Nellie Fox opened the inning by Nellie Fox, Eddie Stewart and Sherman Lollar singled and the score was tied at 2-2. Eddie Robinson grounded out and Stewart crossed the plate with the tying Chicago run.

The Yankees knotted the count at 3-3 in the ninth on a pair of walks, a double by pinch-hitter Bobby Brown and Johnny Hopp's infield out.

In the 10th, however, with Stubby Overmin on the Yankee hill, Stewart doubled. After Minoso was given an intentional pass, Robinson came through with a single to centre, bringing Stewart home with the winning run.

Wins Despite Homers

Feller yielded eight hits including home runs to Lou Boudreau and pinch-hitter Charley Maxwell as the Indians moved to within three percentage points of the third-place Yankees.

The smallest night-game crowd ever to play a game in Detroit—5,746 fans—watched the Tigers whip the Philadelphia Athletics 8-5. Johnny Groth paced the Tiger attack with two doubles and a single.

Tommy Byrne of the St. Louis Browns shut out Washington, 2-0, on four hits after Sandy Consuegra had pitched the Senators to a 1-2 victory over the Browns in the first game of a twin bill.

Brooklyn Loses

Pittsburgh's last-place Pirates nipped Brooklyn, 4-3, but the Dodgers regained the night-game lead in the National League as both New York and St. Louis were beaten. Chicago Cubs defeated the second-place Giants, 7-4, and Boston Braves shut out the third-place Cardinals, 4-0. Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 9-8, but the fifth game back is no win the second game, 10-0.

Bill Howerton singled home George Metkovich in the eighth with the run that beat the Dodgers. A triple by pinch-hitter Pete Reiser and a long fly had brought in the tying run earlier in the inning.

Cal McLish recorded his first victory and his first complete game since May 5 as he pitched the Cubs to victory over the Giants. Roy Smalley homered for the winners.

Max Surkont blanked the Cards with nine scattered hits for his eighth Boston victory. Earl Torgeson drove in three of the Braves' four runs.

Outfielder Joe Adcock of the Reds pounded out four hits in four times at bat, scored four runs in the first game and three out the potential tying run at the plate in the ninth inning to cut short a five-run Philly rally. Lefty Jocko Thompson blanked the Reds with six hits in the nightcap as the Phils collected 11 hits off loser Ken Raffensberger and his relievers.

Charles Favored To Beat Walcott At Pittsburgh

By MURRAY ROSE

Pittsburgh, July 18. (AP)—A threat of late evening showers hung over the outdoor Exzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight as the gladiators sweated out the hours for their third title clash at 10 p.m. E.D.T. tonight.

This is Pittsburgh's first heavyweight title scrap and the Forbes Field card has caught on in the smoky city. The only answer to the unusual stir over this road show is Charles. The 30-year-old Cincinnati Negro considers this his second home town and his appearance here in defence of his crown is a fulfillment of an' old promise.

Otherwise the furore would be difficult to understand. Lean Exzard, in the sharpest condition of his life, is a 4 to 1 favorite in a light betting market to whip the 37-year-old perennial challenger as decisively as he did in their other collisions in Chicago and Detroit.

Over $154,000 is already in the till and a crowd of 20,000 is expected to contribute over $175,000 for the 15-rounder. The bout is being televised over a 49-station hookup by the Dumont network and will be broadcast by CBS.

In the event of a postponement, the bout will be staged tomorrow. Tom Gallery, Dumont executive, said the telecast would be put on the next day, too. Gallery said the TV network is the largest ever for a fight and he estimated over 60,000,000 people will watch it.

A group of TV set manufacturers offered $100,000 for air rights.

Thus Charles and Walcott will cut another fat melon. Charles will get 40 per cent of everything and Walcott 20.

Jersey Joe Optimistic

Old Jersey Joe, who is getting a record fifth crack at boxing's fine prized fistdle—more title fights than half the previous heavyweight kings ever got—voiced his usual optimistic remarks.

"I'm going to knock him out," said the ancient battler from Camden, N.J. "It seems that's the only way I can win. I should have gotten the decisions in the first Louis fight and both of my fights with Charles."

There was much agreement regarding the Louis bout but unanimous dissent with Jersey Joe's opinions on the two Charles affairs.

Charles, cautious as usual, said only "I'll win. Maybe by a knockout."

Joe Louis will be on hand to watch his two former foes in action. If Charles should win and come out undamaged, he will face the ex-champion in New York on Sept. 26. A Walcott upset would force a return with Charles and push Louis out of the picture again.

It will be Charles' ninth defense of the crown he won by whipping Walcott in Chicago in June 22, 1949.

Fleet Fillies Go for Gold At Arlington

Chicago, July 18 (AP)—A star studded field of 11 fillies, including the undefeated Princess Lyris, was ready for the 23rd running of the rich Arlington Lassie Stakes today at Arlington Park.

It all entries go postward the race will gross $57,215 and will return $46,080 to 1t winners.

Princess Lyis, owjed by Mrs. Harry Trotsek, appeared the chief threat in the six-furlong dash. The swift daughter of Roman-Roman matron by Pompey was after triumph No. 5 in today's richest test for two-year-old fillies. She has won four successive races including three stakes events.

Princess Lygis, owned by Mrs. with another fleet 3 daughter, P.A.B (Pete) Widener's Cat Key, who scored easily in her first test. The entry was 3-5 overnight favorite.

Brownell Combs' Bella Figura, royally bred daughter of Count Fleet-Mrs. Dogwood, appeared as the greatest threat to upset the favorites. She has won both of her only two starts at Arlington impressively.

OshawaMerchants Down Redmen 5-0 At Fair Grounds

Pitching two-hit ball, playing manager Mike Mills of the Oshawa Merchants hurled his charges to a 5-0 victory over the Belleville Redmen at the Fair Grounds last night.

The Oshawa team are currently occupying second place in the Toronto Viaduct Senior League, while the locals are tied for fifth with Picton in the Central Ontario League.

Oshawa broke the ice early in the game with a run in the first inning on a bunt, stolen base, infield out and a long fly. They added two more in the third on a walk, a bingles, two bases on balls and a hit batsman. No more scoring resulted until the final inning.

The Redmen did not so much as get a man on base until the bottom of the fourth when, with two men retired, Johnny Dean hit a sharp grounder to left field. Buck Reeves got the other Belleville hit in the eighth when he opened the inning with a bard-hit ball to right that fell in, but was cut Berning to Napolitano, where he tried to make two bases out of it.

Merchants scored two unearned runs in the ninth getting a pair of blows after three men should have been retired.

The locals only serious threat came in the bottom of the ninth when Fitzpatrick led off by being hit with a pitched ball, Buchanan, batting for Strahan, drove one to deep right for the first out and Slim Mulholland reached base on a fielder's choice, forcing Bower who was running for Fitzpatrick at second. Carson drove a terrific smash at Wood, on third for Oshawa, and was safe at first when Wood could not handle the ball. However, Soules, who had replaced Dean, grounded out to end the game.

Johnny Dean was forced to retire in the 8th when he split the middle finger on his throwing hand.

Wood led the visitor's offence with three base knocks in five official appearances. Two of these were infield hits. Rogers, Napolitano, Barnes, Rowland, Berning and Mills each acquitted one.

Defensively, the whole Oshawa team worked well with the second baseman being particularly outstanding. He robbed Bob Geary of a sure hit in the eighth when he went far over to his right to pull in the ball and throw Geary out at first.

Playing-manager Mills hurled a masterful game on the mound for the victors striking out 11 and not issuing one base on balls. Youthful Billy Strahan also chucked well in going the distance striking out two and walking three while allowing nine hits, only two of which were for extra bests. Three others were of the infield variety.

The Teams:

Oshawa Merchants: Napolitano 1b, Wood 3b, Rogers lf, Walsh c, Morales 2b, Barnes cf, Rowland rb Berning rf Millis p.

Belleville Redmen: Mulholland cf, Carson lb, Dean c, Goyer lf, Reeves ss, Geary 3b, Gilmour rf, Fitzpatrick 2b, Strahan p, Soules replaced Dean in the 5th. Bower ran for Fitzpatrick in the 9th, Buchanan filed out for Strahan in the 9th.

"MASS. MAULER" SEEN AS THREAT TO HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

Rocky Marciano, undefeated heavyweight fighter from Brockton, Mass., has become the No. 1 contender for the heavyweight title, now held by Ezzard Charles, in view of his amazing boxing record to date which included a knockout over Rex Layne, much touted slugger from Utah, in sixth round of scheduled 10-rounder, held recently in New York. It was this victory that Marciano showed form which is deserving of crack at Charles. Above, "conquered" is seen as hit ground following a crushing right to the temple delivered by "conqueror"—Central Press Canadian.

Fight Scoreboard Steps up Action Pleases Fans

Portland, Ore., July 18 (AP)—Fight fans said they liked the new boxing scoreboard tried out here last night when Harry (Kid) Matthews, leading heavyweight contender, knocked out Baby Dutch Culbertson of Los Angeles.

The board measures about six feet square and lights up to let the crowd know how the judges and referee score each round.

One fan said he liked the board because it gave him a chance to boo the judges after every round instead of having to wait until the end of the bout.

Another pointed out that it gave the fighters a chance to see how they were doing and, as a result, stepped up the action.

That appeared to be the case last night when Matthews went in for the kill after he saw that the judges and referee had awarded the second round to Culbertson.

The machine works something like a huge pinball game, lighting up scores of each round in colored lights.

Davis Cup Team Of Macken, Main, Rochon Named

Montreal, July 18 —(CP)— Brendan Macken and Henri Rochon of Montreal and Lorne Main of Vancouver were named Tuesday to Canada's Davis Cup team in the tie against Cuba.

The announcement was made by Dr. Georges Leclerc, chairman of the Davis Cup selection committee of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

The board measures about six The trio, all veterans of Canadian Davis Cup play, will face Cuba's entry on the courts of the Mount Royal Tennis Club in Montreal Aug. 3, 4, 5.

The selection committee also nominated H. Gordon MacNeil of Montreal as non-playing captain of the team.

The committee has not yet decided whether a fourth player will be named for the matches against Cuba. A decision will be reached within a few days.

Brendan Macken is the present Canadian champion and No. 1 ranking tennis player in this country. He has played on all Canadian Davis Cup teams since 1948.

Jack Giffore Hurls 17 Frames To Clip Red Wings

(By The Associated Press)

A few more pitching performances by managers like Jack Griffore turned in last night and Syracuse Chiefs might make a fight of the International League pennant race.

Griffore went 17 innings to whip the Rochester Red Wings 4-3 while five opposing hurlers all took to cover in the marathon contest, the longest of the current campaign in the loop. Griffore fanned 10 and permitted 11 hits.

Jack Collum started for the losers. He was relieved in the ninth by Bob Stefenauer who went until the 16th. John Wittig came on in the 17th, and John Yuhas also in the 17th in an effort to stop the winning marker.

The Chiefs loaded the bases with one out in the 17th. Ed Sholes forced Frank Fiala at second but Lou Ortiz threw wild attempting a double play and Angle Bergame crossed with the winning run.

The triumph slipped Syracuse into second place, a half game ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who dropped a 3-2 decision to the league-leading Montreal Royals in the second game of a double-header after winning the opener 4-2.

Tom Simpson went all the way in the opener for the Bisons. In the nightcap, the Bisons could do little against the slants of Bob Alexander, who whitewashed them with four hits.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Ottawa Giants split a pair of ball games on shutouts. Hal Hudson hurled the Leafs to a 2-0 triumph in the opener and Whitey Konikowski flipped a 2-0 triumph for the Giants in the second game. Stan Jok batted in both runs in the afterpiece.

Springfield and Baltimore were rained out.

Balmy Beach Not Worried About Cancellation

Toronto, July 18 (CP)—Manager Paul McGarry of the Balmy Beach Canoe Rugby Football Union entry isn't the least bit worried about cancellation of an exhibition game with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four League.

Commenting on a report that the Hamilton team might cancel the game, McGarry said: "That's great."

"We've got a contract with a guarantee. Voyles (Hamilton's manager and coach) can just send us the cheque and forget about the ball game."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, July 18 (AP) — Jack Schwarz, who looks after the Giants' farm clubs, doesn't do much talking about his work. He has guys like Willie Mays, Dave Williams and George Spencer in talk for him—not to mention Bobby Thomson, Don Mueller, Wes Westrum and a few others. . .the first three are the newest and brightest prospects of an unpublicized but apparently efficient farm system.

Mays, brought up after the season started, has established himself firmly in centre field. . . Williams, promoted from Minneapolis to give Eddie Stanky a rest, looks like a cinch to become Stanky's permanent replacement in a year or so. . . Spencer, without fuss, has pitched in 27 games in relief roles this season and is credited with five victories.

"These fellows just didn't walk into the Polo Grounds; they were produced," Schwarz points out. "But we don't like to talk too much because we might lose some players. We're not in the business of selling players, so there's no need to advertise them." With a little persuasion, Jack loosened up with some other who look good. . . Chicago White Sox attendance, boosted by Tuesday night's estimated 30,000 at the Sox-New York Yankee game, has surpassed the club's entire 1950 home record of 781,330.

Prior to Tuesday night's opener of a three-game set with the Yankees the Sox had 772,994 in 37 home games. The Sox all-time home attendance was 968,500 in 1946.

Representing Ontario this year in the interprovincial team match in connection with the Canadian Ladies' Golf championship will be Marlene Stewart of Lookout Point Club, Anne Sharpe, her chumate, Mrs. J. H. McCarter of Lambton and Mrs. N. J. Carson of Toronto Ropedale.

Miss Stewart was automatically a member after winning the Ontario ladies' title. Miss Sharp was runner-up for the provincial crown. Mrs. McCarter will act as captain. Mary Gay from Galt will be the spare.

The championships will be played at the Montreal Laval Club Aug. 2 to 11.

Moe Young, Regina hockey star who plays for Tulsa Oilers in the United States Hockey League, led the field Tuesday when the provincial trials ended for the Willingdon Cup golf team at Regina.

He was followed by Gordon Beattie, Harry Burns and Claude Dbackell, to make it an all-Regina representation on Saskatchewan's team in the Willingdon inter-provincial tournament at Aug. 25.

The American Hockey League concluded a two-day meeting Tuesday with the announcement that there is "a very good possibility" that a 10th team will operate in Syracuse, N.Y., next season.

President Maurice Podoloff refused to elaborate beyond indicating that a provision had been made for the 10th team in drawing up a tentative schedule for 1951-52. Another meeting will be held here Aug. 4th., at which time the Syracuse franchise may be granted.

Golf's big names followed the "common men" into Milwaukee St. Catharines, Ont., in the Milwaukee Arena in a non-title affair.

Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League will be sent to Kingston Penitentiary Friday.

The Leafs, forming the major part of the NHL All-Stars baseball team organized by Toronto sportswriter Turk Broda, will play an exhibition match against the prison softball squad. The game was arranged following a suggestion by Broda.

Judge J. Elliott Hudson, president of the newly-formed Maritime Major Hockey League, said Tuesday night he plans to make an announcement today regarding the circuit's makeup.

N.Z. Offers Free Passage To Newcomers

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — Now that the post-war rush of immigrants is slackening New Zealand is paying more attention to assistance for needy couples and families wishing to enter the Dominion.

Since the war the government has concentrated on obtaining unmarried migrants under the acute housing shortage. Under state-assisted schemes it also has adopted a strictly selective policy under which priority has been given to workers for industries for which the labor shortage has been greatest.

So far free passages are granted only to families of workers in a few industries where the need is especially urgent, but these categories are likely to be extended. Most families are being brought out for work on hydro-electric construction projects, and to house these temporary transit housing is being built. Encouragement is also being given to importation of prefabricated houses, the customs duty on which has been temporarily abolished.

The government aims at obtaining 10,000 immigrants a year, under free passage schemes. One ship, the Atlantis, has been under charter to the government for some time but as it is due for overhaul at a high cost a newer and larger ship, the Empire Brent, has been chartered instead. Negotiations are in progress for a second vessel.

The government hopes to get as large a proportion as possible of new settlers from Britain, but it will not be possible to get all the migrants needed from there.

About 2,000 Dutch settlers are being brought to New Zealand this year and the number may be increased in subsequent years. In addition the Dominion is taking several large drafts of settlers from displaced persons camps in Europe. Among these it has agreed to accept a proportion of elderly people who have been rejected by other countries taking displaced persons.

Memos Stretch League Lead To Four Games

Brockville, July 18. (CP)—The high-flying Brockville Memos stretched their Central Ontario Baseball League lead to four full games over the second-place Smiths Falls Tuesday night when they defeated the fourth-place Kingston Leafs 7-2 behind the seven-hit hurling of southpaw Jimmy Hayes.

Bill Kasepchuk slammed a 415-foot home run into the left field wall for one or Brockville's runs while Brownie Woods scored two others with a triple.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Responses to defensive bids need the delicate touch. This is particularly so in answer to the two most frequent types; simple overcalls and takeout doubles.

A double for takeout shows five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks. A simple overcall promises five tricks, too. But it says it may have only two high cards and one sure.

With this as a basis, compare their response needs. You can readily see that the takeout double needs less help than does the simple overcall. Especially in high cards and sures.

In answer to a simple overcall, partner is not forced to bid. In fact, he is usually expected to pass. In answer to a double for takeout, partner is forced to bid even with nothing.

If answer to takeout doubler has two tricks or less, only his first bid is expected. If he has more than two tricks he may raise one for each trick in excess of two.

When south opened with a bid of one diamond, west and east had the hands you see here:

EAST	WEST
♠8 5 4 2	♠A Q J 3
♥K 9	♥A Q 5 4 3
♦6 4 3	♦8 5 2
♣A 7 5 3	♣K

West doubled for takeout. North passed. East must now bid something in answer to the takeout double. He is asked to show any unbid major suit with four cards. His bid was one spade.

West bid two spades. What should east do now? He has a count or three tricks; two high cards and a short card in hearts. So he has enough for one call. This he shows with a bid of three spades.

This tells west that his partner has three tricks. With the seven tricks in his own hand, west can see ten tricks in the pair. Ten tricks are enough for a game in spades. So, west bids four spades, thus using up all his tricks.

This comes from understanding a partner.

Union Charges Company Speedup

Windsor, July 18 (CP)—Officials of the Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited and Local 200, UAW-CIO were scheduled to meet Tuesday to discuss union charges of production speedup.

Resistance to the company production rate by Ford workers has resulted in sporadic layoffs during recent weeks.

Local 200 announced Tuesday the policy committee which met Monday night had decided "to give full support to the workers' resistance movement."

Jack Taylor, president of the Ford local said the full weight of the union would be thrown into the fight against what he termed "company efforts to cut manpower without a proportionate cut in production."

COUNCILLOR ENTERS APPEAL

Montreal, July 18 (CP)—Harry Binder, disqualified as a member of the Montreal city council by a superior court judgment last Friday, entered an appeal Tuesday. Mr. Justice Elphege Marier ruled that Binder was not qualified because on two occasions he had served jail terms on criminal charges. His Lordship held that a section of the Montreal city charter is applicable.

Movie Column

By JACK QUIGG
(For Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, July 18 (AP)—How closely do you follow the Hollywood news? Here's a way to find out.

Today's offering is a movie quiz game. Each sentence gives a clue to the identity of a well-known picture star. There are 30 altogether, and if you guess 20 or more you qualify as a pretty-close observer of the Hollywood scene.

Here are the hints, with the ladies first:

1. She has six children.
2. She won fame as "the little girl with the big voice."
3. She wore her blonde hair over one eye.
4. She was once a radio quiz kid.
5. She uses fruit, flowers and umbrellas as headgear.
6. She said: "If you want anything, just whistle."
7. She was once an Olympic ice skating champion.
8. She wants to be alone.
9. She was the original platinum blonde.
10. She was the wife of the detective who hunted "The Thin Man."
11. She's queen of America's royal family of the theatre."
12. Divorced from a clarinetist and a pint-sized actor, she's now romancing a crooner.
13. She invented "oomph."
14. She's now top grown up to wear her famous pig tails.
15. She developed her curves in a swimming pool.
16. He pushed a grapefruit in Mae Clark's face.
17. He's known in Hollywood as "the king."
18. He was radio's Sam Spade.
19. His most famous line: "Mr. Christian, come here!"
20. "Little Miss Marker" divorced him.
21. As a navy pilot, he sank several Jap ships in the South Pacific.
22. He plays private eyes, now. Once he was a crooner in musicals.
23. He's billed as "King of the Cowboys."
25. He invented the telephone (on the screen).
26. He's famous for his white beard.
27. His time is your time.
28. He's the screen's tenth Tarzan.
29. He began a new career at 57—playing a baby sitter.
30. He has won a record three academy award "oscars."

The answers:

1. Maureen O'Sullivan; 2. Judy Garland; 3. Veronica Lake; 4. Vanessa Brown; 5. Charlotte Greenwood; 6. Lauren Bacall; 7. Sonja Henie; 8. Greta Garbo; 9. Jean Harlow; 10. Myrna Loy; 11. Ethel Barrymore; 12. Ava Gardner; 13. Ann Sheridan; 14. Margaret O'Brien; 15. Esther Williams.

16. James Cagney; 17. Clark Gable; 18. Howard Duff; 19. Charles Laughton; 20. John Agar; 21. Wayne Morris; 22. Dick Powell; 23. Roy Rogers; 24. Rudolph Valentino; 25 Don Ameche; 26. Monty Woolley; 27. Rudy Vallee; 28. Lex Barker; 29. Clifton Webb; 30. Walter Brennan.

AT THE CAPITOL — Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall and William Benedict are the reluctant draftees in Monogram's "Bowery Battalion", latest comedy in the Bowery Boys series, opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program in color by Chicolor, "Cavalry Scout," starring Rod Cameron and Audrey Long. Both hits are first showings.

PINNED UNDER TRACTOR

Tillsonburg, July 18. —(CP)— Steve Sabo, age 50, prominent tobacco grower of south Norwich was killed Tuesday when pinned beneath a tractor. Sabo had just started the machine when it plunged through the side of the barn, dropped 15 feet to the ground pinning him underneath.

HUNT FOR TRUCK

Sarnia, July 18. (CP)—City and provincial police were on the lookout Tuesday night for a Canadian National Express truck, stolen earlier in the day.

Driver Earl Johnston had dropped into a nearby store to make a routine pickup, the truck was missing when he emerged.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, July 19

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Fine influences for financial matters, general business, making sound contracts (though this can be tricky, check!) Suggest social or other congenial activities for relaxation needed.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Analyze items on day's agenda before attempting to fathom or act. Indications point to confusion if there isn't system, tact, the use of personality to pave way for gains possible.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Most undertakings demand much care now, especially those involving money, valuable contracts, buying. The practical will fare best. Cut action to essentials' if you expect success.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Opportunity may be wasted unless you urge self to top effort. Forget personal, social matters for the time you are striving. Make your best impression with associates, friends, everyone.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Can be fascinating and productive day. If you are awake and carry on the way Leo can when in right mood. Unusual circumstances may tend to confuse; be calm, think clearly, you'll gain.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Don't be over concerned with jam and irritating obstacles, you will find them mostly gone by Noon. Handle moods and conditions ably; don't try outlandish, risky ideas. Be sensible.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Swing along in steady, sound pace. Abstain from over-spending, giving opinions which may not be wanted. A little of Libra's practical sense will turn tables in your favor.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Aspects pick up considerably after Noon to promote a real progressive day. Most conditions scarcely, with true Scorpio astuteness. News in p.m. can mean much, check well.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—While your chart does not say wholly benefic vibrations, still there are other influences favorable to your efforts. Industrial and government matters offer new advantages.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—A healthy, promising day for the energetic, shrewd worker, businessman or woman. Solid, meaty matters rate most attention. Travel, romance, business contracts favored now.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Though you may try hard and think a lot, there is little you can force today. Take things as they come. In doubt, seek sound advice, or mark time. Don't compromise about principle.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Find day dull, things not just as you'd like? Turn in spare time to other healthy activities. Remain in friendly mood. Money, worldly gains only a small part of even passing happiness.

YOU BORN TODAY have strong love for home and dear ones. Are generally reserved, sympathetic, often very sensitive (sometimes, without cause, you have been slighted). Innately conservative (though appreciate anything new if it's worthy. You hold to principles and dislike trying the unknown quickly. Can ..../ through ideas tenaciously. You are fun-loving and often spend your money freely. Cancer natives have fine memories, make good business executives, bankers; also actors, when rightly educated.

Birthdate: Samuel Colt, American inventor.

Toronto Dealers Start Price War On English Cars

By FORD RUDE
(Canadian Press Motor Editor)

Something of a "Price War" has entered into competition among Toronto-area dealers for the sale of low-priced English cars. Price slashes reaching close to $600 a car.

Virtually all the offers have centred around the British Ford Prefect model, with a Toronto price of $1,585, including taxes.

One dealer advertised Prefects, together with licence and 5,000 miles of free gas, and with new car warranty, for $1,295.

A second firm, heading its advertisement "price war," offered them at $1,098, with licence, and added: "We will not be undersold."

Still another dealer offered for $1 a television set valued at $675 for each Prefect bought. Other selling quotations have come from other firms.

Though the rash of special offers centred around the Prefects, the slow-down in sales is felt by virtually all car makes, following increased taxes and credit restrictions calling for higher down-payments and higher installments.

Turn Stocks Into Cash

One dealer, explaining the Prefect puts, said there had been heavy sales of this model last year, and orders had been placed in expectation of a similar business this year.

Then, he added, along came the credit restrictions, and the Prefect was especially hit because most of its sales are to people in the moderate-income group. Now, the dealers need to turn the stocks into cash to take care of their financial commitments, and to get their money into faster-moving lines.

It is not thought that the actual loss is being taken at the lower prices. One dealer, at least, said he is making a profit, though operating on a narrow margin.

For one thing, some of the cars were bought before the tax raises of the last budget. And, for another, each dash to basic car prices brings a slash in tax, and thus a part of the lower price is at no cost to the dealer.

Several dealers said they are getting good response at the lower prices.

Splashers and Sponsors Head West for Meet

Fergus, Ont., July 18 (CP) — This western Ontario town of 3,000 does things Big-city style when it comes to supporting local athletes.

Next week, when four girls from the Fergus Swimming Club head for Dominion championships at Vancouver, two special train sleepers full of fans will travel with them to lend vocal support.

The youthful swimmers, Shirley Campbell, 14, Doreen Howatt 14, Elaine Chapman, 14 and Joan Campbell, 14, will compete in the women's junior 400, 200, and 100 yards free style and the 400-yard free style relay.

MAY GET RAIN

Victoria, B.C., July 18 (CP)— A tentative forecast for rain Thursday or Friday was issued Tuesday night as 80 forest fires burned in parched British Columbia.

Rain has steered clear of Vancouver Island and the coastal mainland—at least in measurable amounts—for 41 days.

Large crews were fighting the still-dangerous fire on Sooke Lake logging company property on Vancouver Island.

EX-POW IS HERE TO STAY

Erwin Beler spent six years in Canada as a German prisoner-of-war but he's back now to become a naturalized Canadian as soon as possible. Working on a farm at St. Thomas, Ont., as a P.O.W. he found he liked farming better than his chosen career at see. So, when he was due to be returned to Germany he tried to evade detection, left the farm on which he was working. Caught by police, he was returned to Germany, lived one mile from the Russian zone. The farmer who had hird as a P.O.W. sent $320 passage, so now Beler, his wife and daughter are in Canada to stay, "and some day own a farm of my own." Mrs. Beler, shown with him, knows only enough English to say "Canada better than Germany."—Central Press Canadian.

Biggest Poultry Farm in Canada Turns Out 3,000 Broilers Weekly

Okotoks, Alta. — (CP) — The biggest poultry farm of its kind in Western Canada is located just southwest of Okotoks on the farm of Peter Gerlitz.

Mr. Gerlitz keeps more chickens than you'd ever hope to see—between 30,000 and 40,000 of them.

The farm turns out 3,000 two-and-a-half to three-pound fryers and broilers every week of the year.

And every week, 3,000 one-day-old chicks are received by the farm from various hatcheries to keep the supply going.

Mr. Gerlitz was a railwayman working out of Calgary when he decided to give up city life and go farming in 1927.

He raised grain and cattle until seven years ago he decided to go into the poultry business in a big way.

Things weren't too easy at first. He was harassed by labor troubles, excessive losses, and a fire which destroyed his big brooder house and thousands of birds.

But the establishment is running smoothly now and the quality and flavor of his broilers attract countrywide attention.

"It has been a long, hard struggle," he says, "but I think we are over the hump now and the plant is in high gear."

The chickens are housed in huge two-storey brooder houses, penned in cages. The pens are brilliantly lighted day and night, and are heated and air-conditioned.

Chickens are fattened for 10 weeks, and by then have increased in size to between 2½ to three pounds and are ready to be killed and dressed for market.

Mr. Gerlitz favored White Leghorns at first but he is slowly turning his entire output over to New Hampshires.

RAINS DAMAGE CHERRIES

Hamilton, July 18 —(CP) — Heavy losses to the sweet cherry crop are expected in the Niagara Peninsula as a result of splitting caused by heavy rain last night and a hot sun Tuesday. Farmers are doing what they can to salvage as much of their crop as possible. At Beamsville, one farmer has offered his crop at 30 cents a six-quart basket to persons who will pick the fruit.

Long Time Yet Ere Mosquitoes Can Resist DDT

Ottawa — (CP) — Canadian mosquitoes, unlike some of their relatives in the United States, have not become immune to DDT. They just haven't had the time.

According to Dr. C. R. Twinn of the Household and Medical Entomology Unit of the Department of Agriculture, it takes many generations for a mosquito or any other insect to build up resistance to an insecticide.

Canadian mosquitoes, he states, with only about one generation a year, aren't keeping pace with some of their southern cousins who have been able to take on a biological armor to the sprays. And too, the little stingers don't breed in concentrated areas so they don't get exposed to DDT in large numbers like the insects in Florida, for example.

But this is the catch. If Canadians continue to use DDT at the present rate, resistance of the pests to DDT is expected to widen. Already, says Dr. Twinn, housefliles are becoming slightly toughened to our insecticides.

Dr. Twinn says DDT is still the best mosquito control. But if that doesn't work, he suggests trying a spray with five per cent lindane, gunning it on the insects pests or their hideouts at three-week intervals during the fly season.

If results still aren't too good, you could try a solution of two per cent chlordane, which must be kept away from food because of contamination.

Dr. Twinn also issues a warning not to mix all three insecticides together because mixing them will speed up the development of resistance in the pests.

CHIEF RED DELEGATE AT TRUCE CONFERENCE

Sour-faced Maj.-Gen. Nam Il, of the North Korean army, chief Communist delegate to the current peace talks at Kaesong, is shown leaving conference house. The latest meeting was reported as "progressive" by the U. N. negotiators.—Central Press Canadian.

Mooching Moose Gets Food From Striking Miners

Timmins, July 18 (CP) —The strike of 1,600 miners at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines doesn't interest Donald the Mooching Moose.

Tomato sandwiches with lots of salt, however, do.

He stood at the south gate of the mine property Monday night for more than an hour while workers fed him. But despite the fact he's mascot of management and workers alike, Donald is lonely.

His mother, who bore him on mine property one spring night a year ago, trotted off during the mating season last fall in answer to the trumpet of a bull moose far back in the bush.

Since then, Donald has roamed the large, heavily-wooded tract alone, bumming what he could from the men.

The strikers have been idle for eight days now, enforcing demands for wage increases and a union dues check-off.

When should a family borrow
A family should borrow only when a loan is the best solution to a money problem. For example, to pay old debts, medical expenses, taxes, fuel, education, car or home repairs. Loans for these reasons are not inflationary, for the money is not used to buy goods in short supply or increase indebtedness.
SOLVING MONEY PROBLEMS
At HFC—Household Finance—we believe a family should borrow only when, by careful planning, the money problem can be resolved, and the loan repaid in an orderly manner. When a family borrows under these circumstances, it is simply "renting" money on terms it can afford. At HFC you may borrow $50, $250, $500 or more on your signature, without bankable security.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

For the Bulgies at the Beautiful School, lunch at the Ritz is over on the third floor of Macy's, but such delicacies as cottage cheese or a large glass of mineral oil, with a sliced orange. In contrast, Lucilla's lunch as suggested by her diet list, contained "fluffy baked potato with pats of butter and cinnamon, cream, crushed, in creamy soups, lavished on double portions of puddings, mixed half and half with milk or ginger ale."

It would be false to say that a baked potato on a tray caused as much stir as if it were the head of John the Baptist; false, because the baked potato was covered with melted butter and therefore far more sensational.

Paris Green, sitting on the stool next to Lucilla's would eye every forkful with ravenous interest.

Under these circumstances, it can't be denied that Lucilla ate like a pig. Added to her surface desire to gain energy, and her sub-surface desire to have firm curves (before the first class in Brain Cosmetics) there was the savor of having something all her classmates wanted desperately: food. She had always had a regular, if small, appetite, but in these first days of cramming she experienced the sensation of a dirigible being fueled for a record flight.

Mary Meadows urged the Bulgies gaily to "drink lots and lots of black coffee, so that you'll stay awake at night and lose even more weight." This accounted for the purplish smudges under Mrs. Colps' robin's egg blue eyes. As she stood in the dressing room smearing cream over her face, she reported, with pride, that her husband had noticed she wasn't eating any dinner.

"He sat you halfway through the meal!" Paris paused in her creaming, one cheek still glistening with globules. "Why, I never squawked to my boy friend before we even got a menu at Lindy's. He's the one had this bright idea I ought to reduce," I told him, 'and if you think you are gonna sit there and eat' that in front of me, you're crazy.' So he took the fried pigs' feet on account of I don't like them so good."

"Has your husband noticed anything yet?" Mrs. Colps asked. "I mean, has he asked you why you're eating so much or something?"

"He wanted to know why I took the box of saltines to bed" Lucilla said. "But I still had to eat seven more to make my daily 25."

"Where do you do your exercises?" Mrs. Colps went on. "It's kind of hard in an apartment to get any privacy." She and Lucilla exchanged a look of the purest understanding.

"My boy friend likes to watch," Paris said. "He nearly kills himself laughin'."

Lucilla felt suddenly lonely and even neglected. Having locked Arthur out of the sanctum and done her best to keep him from knowing what she was up to, she resented his not responding with the same companionable zest as Paris's boy friend.

One of the strongest advantages of Posture Poise and Body Molding was that for every hour and a half the students were too occupied to think of anything else, such as sex.

There was an astonishing number of anatomical parts one had to think of simultaneously for posture. It was like the trick of trying to roll six little balls into six holes, but whenever four got in, two popped out. When the students rose and marched around the room in a circle, this was even more of a problem. Not only were they supposed to remember the correct position for head, chin, shoulders, and various protrusions fore and aft, but they were being urged to walk what Miss Willit called "exaggerated duck-foot" in their stockinged feet. "This exercise will teach you to throw the balance of weight on the outside of the foot." At the moment, it seemed to be teaching them to walk like Charlie Chaplin. To heighten the rather unusual effect, each student was balancing a gold-colored brick on her head, and had one hand flat on her stomach and the other on her posterior.

Bricks toppled like ancient Rome. Poor Mrs. Colps lost hers four times. Once it landed on the stockinged foot of the woman behind. The woman who had been wounded now walked a limping duck-foot and leaped apprehensively whenever a brick teetered on the nearest comrade's skull. Miss Willit mercifully called "at ease class." She left the room, saying "I'll be back in a sec."

Paris was poking at Mrs. Colps' hair. It had burst from the gauze band and was curled in wet black tendrils on her perspiring forehead. Lucilla, rubbing a stiff neck, watched as Paris took hold of plus "rom her own piled-up tresses and made a kind of rat's nest by letting Mrs. Colps' top locks. "I'm makin' a place for the brick to sit in," Paris explained. "When it can't slide off so easy." Mrs. Colps was enchanted. After trying out the new coiffure Paris brick she happily urged Lucilla to adopt the style at once. Eight or nine of the other women were busily mating their own nests.

The newest member of the class, who had appeared halfway through the second day, was a white-haired dumpling of perhaps 65, a Miss Midge; she kept saying in a grandmotherly tone, "Now, if that isn't the smartest thing." She beamed at Paris. "My dear, I was watching you, and you walk like a goddess." Paris seemed a trifle baffled by this Olympian praise, but said amiably, "You didn't do so bad yourself."

During breakfast on Saturday Arthur remarked jovially, "you are looking very chipper this morning Mrs. Webb." Lucilla mentioned hurriedly that this was the Saturday she was taking Hoopy to the Children's Theatre She started guiltily. She would have liked to tell him right then about Beautiful-You.

CEASE-FIRE NEGOTIATIONS NEAR SHOWDOWN

Electrical Storm Causes Extensive Damage in Ontario

Slashing Rains, Hailstones Flatten Crops in Many Areas

(By The Canadian Press)

Severe electrical storms accompanied in some cases by hailstones and high winds, struck across Ontario Wednesday night and caused damage that Agriculture Minister Kennedy estimated at "several millions of dollar."

Weather officials said the storms, accompanied by slashing rains, thunder and lightning were reported as far west as Sault Ste. Marie, as far north as Sudbury and eastward past Trenton.

Parts of Southern Ontario are particularly near London, and Dundalk suffered lightning fires power blackouts and crop damage.

Large Hailstones

Hailstones 'as big as hens' eggs' smashed windows, killed chickens and flattened ripening wheat and oat crops.

In the Ennan district, six miles north of Owen Sound, a 20-minute storm cut a three mile swath destroyed 70 percent of the grain crop on 15 farms and damaged fruit trees.

South of Owen Sound, the storm flattened grain crops and ruined gardens. Hailstones broke 70 panes of glass in one home.

Near Walford in the Sudbury district, lightning started a fire in a farmhouse owned by Glen Withers. The seven-roomed house burned to the ground.

Powerlines Broken

At Sault Ste. Marie cellars flooded over and many overturned trees were broken by falling trees as the driving rain and lightning swept across the city. Two electrical storms hit the Dundalk district and a barn owned by George Armstrong was burned by a fire started by lightning.

In more than 15 minutes two storms broke about midnight and brought the second-heaviest downpour this year—1.1 inch. The heaviest was on June 22 when .9 inches of rain fell. No damage to trees or property was reported from either the city or suburbs.

Canadian Seaway Seen Certainty By Toronto Paper

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — An Ottawa dispatch to the Toronto Daily Star today says that an entirely Canadian-built St. Lawrence Seaway is now a certainty, regardless of the outcome of the battle now going on in the United States' House of Representatives public works committee.

The dispatch says plans have been drawn up to put the seaway entirely on the Canadian side and studies have been made of the availability of labor, material and equipment. Legislation authorizing construction has been drafted to be placed before the Commons, it adds.

The dispatch continues:

"It is now likely the legislation will be introduced at the fall session of parliament and it has been reported it will set up a Crown agency to direct and control the work.

"Government leaders who have been following the daily voting reached by the committee say various proposals to support or kill U. S. seaway legislation and power scheme are satisfied that Congressional approval is now out of the question."

Toronto Man Given Remand

Ottawa, July 19—(CP)—Charged with rape in connection with the abduction and criminal assault on a seven-year-old Ottawa girl last week, George E. Tilley, of Toronto, today was remanded one week when he appeared in county magistrate's court.

He appeared in city court Wednesday and was remanded one week on a charge of vagrancy.

Tilley was accompanied in court today by his wife. Visibly moved by the brief hearing, Mrs. Tilley remained with her husband throughout and wept openly in the corridor as he was returned to jail.

Canadians Hold Slot In U.S. Canoe Derby

Little Falls, Minn., July 19—(CP)—Orla Sage and Roy Jackson of Flin Flon, Man., today maintained their sixth position among the dozen duos left in the 450-mile Mississippi canoe derby.

The Canadian pair had an elapsed time of 49 hours, 25 minutes for the approximately 350 miles of paddling from Bemidji to Little Falls.

Richard Peck and Harlow Thompson of Deer River, Minn., still lead the pack with a time of 42 hours and 25 minutes. The race ends tomorrow at Minneapolis to officially open that city's annual summer festival.

Appoint New Officer To Trenton Staff

OTTAWA, July 19—(CP)—Wing Cmdr. A. T. Mason, 39, of Brantford, Ont., and Montreal, Que., on the directorate of personnel administration at Air Force Headquarters, has been appointed Chief Administrative Officer at Trenton, Ont., it was announced today.

He will be replaced here by Wing Cmdr. W. H. Schroeder, 39, of Ottawa, who now commands the headquarters administrative unit.

AGREEMENT GIVES SPANISH BASES FOR U.S. USE

No Outright Alliance Involved in Plan

Madrid, Spain, July 19 — (AP) — The United States was reported driving ahead today toward American use of Spanish air and naval bases — despite French and British opposition.

Authoritative sources last night said the U. S. and the Franco government had reached a basic agreement to use Spanish bases for western defence. A special U. S. mission, they added, soon will come here to work out details.

The informants said the agreement, which does not involve an outright Spanish - American alliance, was reached Tuesday during a conference between Generalissimo Francisco Franco and Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, American chief of naval operations.

Britain, France Opposed

Britain and France not only oppose the U. S. plan to acquire Spanish bases, but have objected to Spain's association with any member of the Atlantic Pact.

(Dispatches from London and Paris said both the French and British felt any association by an Atlantic Pact power with the Franco government would greatly stride Russia with a prime propaganda weapon.

(The French also are reported to fear that aid to Spain will reduce the amount of material they will receive from the United States.)

In Washington last night, State Secretary Dean Acheson offered Britain and France reassurance that they will lose neither arms aid nor their defence position as he defended if the U. S. makes a military arrangement with Spain.

Strategic Importance

Acheson said the talks were going forward because "military authorities say the strategic importance that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defence of western Europe."

Informants here said Sherman asked Franco for the use during that time of Cadiz, Cartagena and Ferrol, as well as at Santa Cruz in the Canaries, and air bases at Barcelona, Madrid, Seville and possibly Valencia and Lugo, southeast of Ferrol.

It was not definitely learned what Franco asked in return but it is believed that he wants help in improving Spain's antiquated defences, its railroads, industries, air force and army.

ONE INJURED

Quebec, July 19 (CP) — Provincial police said today that only one man was injured and an automobile was damaged when debris showered the crowd during a parade at St. Sylvestre de Lotbiniere Monday night following the spraying of mosquito breeding in the village.

Police said Maurice Savoie, riding in an open car, was struck on the head by a stone and taken to hospital for treatment.

The case will be reported to the attorney-general's department, police said.

Vast Areas of Dry Farm Lands in US Provide Test for Rainmakers' Efforts

Denver, July 19 (AP) —This is a critical period for weather-modification activities, a federal official declared today.

The future of the whole program will be determined by results from cloud seeding weather modification attempts in the Great Plains, The U.S. west is a giant proving ground.

The target terrain covers from 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 acres, Projects in 17 western states add up to more than 13 percent of the United States area.

This is the first big year for the federal-state weather-modification industry. The judges of the experiments must decide if it succeed will be thousands of farmers, ranchers and others backing individual projects with at least $3,000,000.

One commercial rainmaker, Dr. Irving R. Krick of Denver, estimates his own contracts alone include 300,000,000 acres.

Even if the far flung rainmaking efforts are generally successful, there will be any miracles. Weather modifiers don't make rain — "we aren't magicians," Krick says emphasized. Only nature can put moisture in a cloud. The weather modifiers try to help her let loose.

The heart of the effort to make weather is the dryness of parts of the west, but between just scrap and range lands teeter year after year. The difference is just barely enough and not quite enough rain.

To do that job, dry ice, silver iodide and other material are scattered from airplanes or sent up in rockets from the ground.

The theory is that in nature, there are not enough nuclei to freeze drops of water, dust, bits of soil and rock. The thing to do is to furnish extra amounts of them.

Commercial rainmakers are confident moisture may be increased from 50 to 500 percent and that hail and heavy rains may be tamed. But some scientists and meteorologists feel that there is insufficient evidence that weather can be modified except on laboratory and local scales.

Revived After Heart Stops, Boy Dies Later in Hospital

Port Colborne, Ont., July 19—(CP)—A five-year-old boy who was brought back to life yesterday after his heart had stopped beating for four minutes died in hospital early today.

Ronald Lepine of Port Colborne failed to regain consciousness although he lived for many hours after an emergency operation started his heart beating again.

Remembering a lecture on cardiac arrest they had attended two months ago, two general practitioners made an incision in the boy's chest and massaged his heart for 15 seconds yesterday.

Lived 17 Hours

Their action gave the boy an additional 17 hours of life but he failed to regain consciousness. His temperature began to rise about eight hours after the operation and could not be arrested.

Death was believed to have been caused by damage to the brain during the time the boy's heart was still. An autopsy was performed to determine the exact cause of death.

The lad collapsed under an anaesthetic which was administered in preparation for a tonsillectomy.

"We was dead," said Dr. Ewen MacKenzie jr. "There wasn't a heart beat for four minutes."

Dr. MacKenzie who gave the anaesthetic and Dr. J. C. Wilson who was to perform the operation, immediately recognized the condition.

Three-Inch Incision

A three-inch incision was made in the wall of the boy's chest and Dr. MacKenzie put his hand in, pulled back a rib and reached the heart. He massaged it until it began beating.

Meanwhile, Dr. Wilson called the Port Colborne fire hall, just around the corner from his office. An inhalator was brought in to administer oxygen.

The child was later taken to Port Colborne General Hospital where doctors said he was showing signs of improvement although he still was not out of danger.

Heard Lecture

The two young general practitioners—both are 33—were in St. Catharines, Ont., two months ago to hear a lecture on cardiac arrest by an expert on the subject from the Cleveland, O., Clinic.

After they massaged the boy's heart back to life yesterday, they called the lecturer "to find out if we had done all right and to ask what to do next." The expert apparently approved their action.

Dr. MacKenzie said cardiac arrest is a condition which occurs about once in 5,000 cases. The patient simply dies under the anaesthetic for unknown cause."

He added that the Lepine child was perfectly healthy.

'Pipedream' Says Kennedy of 2 PC Milk Marketing

Seaforth, July 19. (CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy Wednesday condemned on an equal basis with the federal government by a London dairy distributor that an announced proposal to market milk with two per cent butterfat content in this province was a "pipedream".

Mr. Kennedy, at the Progressive Conservative picnic here said in an interview, "I would support the distributors to be against such a plan. It will mean a little work for them."

He announced Monday that he favored proposals to market three per cent milk since it would be cheaper than the average 3.4 per cent whole milk which must test for sale in Ontario.

NO APOLOGY

Hamilton, July 19 (CP) — A woman, arrested when she refused to obey a constable's order to move along, appeared in court yesterday. Magistrate Beamer Hopkins thought an apology would be sufficient. "Will you accept this lady's apology?" he asked the constable. "No, Your Worship, I won't," was the reply. "You wouldn't," retorted the magistrate. "Then case dismissed!"

Napanee Farmer Breaks Neck, Dies in Field

Napanee, July 19.—Barely conscious after he broke his neck in a fall, farmer Clarence Neville lay in his hayfield for two hours Wednesday evening before his wife, son and family, kneeling around him, waited with him. When it arrived Neville was dead.

Working on his farm 13 miles north of here, he toppled from the hay wagon. Summoned by a hired man, his wife and children came to his aid. At first Neville was able to speak to them but by the time Dr. George Hunt had arrived, an hour after the fall, he had lapsed into semi-consciousness.

Dr. Hunt said he was unable to move the injured man until ambulances were called from Tamworth, about three miles away, and from Odessa, 20 miles distant. The Tamworth ambulance was unable to answer and the Odessa ambulance came too late. No calls were placed with ambulance drivers in Napanee.

Neville was the owner of a prosperous 200-acre farm, and a breeder of pedigreed Ayrshires.

ST. LOUIS EXPECTS FLOOD CREST DURING WEEKEND

Extensive Preparations May Reduce Damage

St. Louis, July 19—(AP)—The highest flood waters in more than a century rushed down the Missouri River valley toward St. Louis today.

The levees are sweeping down from the flood-stricken areas of Kansas and eastern Missouri where overflows caused an estimated $750,000,000 loss.

The ever-spreading already damaged river front industry here.

But the biggest mass of water still was harassing central Missouri.

At Jefferson City, the state capital, about 30 blocks were submerged.

The Mississippi here has been high for two weeks. There it has drowned in backwaters of that river south of east St. Louis, Ill., yesterday, bringing to 26 the number of dead from floods in the midwest.

Worst to Come

The worst is yet to come here. The weather bureau expects a flood stage of 40.5 feet Sunday—highest since the all-time official reading of 41.39 June 27, 1844. The expected crest would top the 40.3 reading set here in 1947 when flooding caused 9,000,000 damage.

At Kansas City and in Kansas rescue workers and others continued their task of cleaning up the damage left by the flood last week. Water still covered many areas.

A last-ditch fight to save a major railroad bridge at Kansas City appeared successful.

Fire Hazard Great

But the danger from fire was great as gasoline and oil floated on the remaining water. Officials said a tiny spark could set off a major disaster.

Several hundred persons have been taken from their homes in the western part of Jefferson City and across the flooded area in Cedar City.

An estimated $1,000,000 already has been sent in the St. Louis area largely for sandbags, pumps, dehumidifiers and supplies and other preparations for high water.

While the two-week warning received here city officials believe the actual flood damage may be held down.

Transportation and communications were generally affected all across the state. Only one major highway remained open.

DIES IN FALL

Hamilton, July 19 — (CP) — Lionel St. Louis, 48, died in hospital Wednesday shortly after falling 50 feet from a mill roof at the International Harvester plant here. He was helping to repair a hot air pitch, reports said when it spilled and burned his hands. He lost his footing and fell to the ground suffering head injuries and a broken left leg in addition to the burns.

Secrets of Great Barrier Reef Will Be Probed by Australian Scientists

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, July 19 — (CP) — The secrets of the Great Barrier Reef, the world's biggest single coral area, will be open to scientists when a permanent research station is erected on the reef shortly.

Among research projects that are now being to attract Australian, and international biologists will be studies of the natural currents in connection with influenza virus and research into poisonous fish, such as the cone and stone fish, of which almost nothing is known.

A $3,750 grant from the Queensland state government has paved the way for construction of the station on Heron Island in the heart of the reef area which extends more than 1,200 miles along the northwest coast of Australia. The Queensland government also will pay £750 a year toward operating costs.

Dr. I. M. Mackerras, secretary of the marine station sub-committee, said the granat meant that the station could now proceed immediately.

Australia has the greatest single extent of reef in the world one of the richest in animal and plant life.

The station will cost from £6,000 to £10,000 to build and furnish, and will be made of coral brick on the spot.

It will have laboratories, sea water circulated tanks, and living accommodation for scientists. The work will be done in two dinghies with outboard motors.

Only permanent staff will be a technician-caretaker to look after equipment. Scientists and university student groups will visit the station to do research.

"We know they will come from Queensland, Sydney, and Melbourne. There is keen interest in Australia, The Queensland government also will pay £750 a year toward operating costs.

Issue Develops Over Demands for Troop Withdrawal

Each Side Very Emphatic In Stand Says Spokesman

Munsan, Korea, July 19 — (AP) — Korean cease-fire negotiations neared a crisis in a two-hour session today. "No progress" was made, the United Nations said.

Tomorrow's meeting will tell the story, an official spokesman predicted.

"We'll come to an agreement or there will be an air of finality about the disagreement," said Lt.-Col. W. J. Preston.

Neither the communist nor the United Nations delegation would budge from its previous position on the one basic issue under debate, said Preston. He attended the sessions at Kaesong.

The issue is believed to be the communist demand that foreign troops withdraw from Korea, although no one has said so officially.

Both Sides Firm

"Each side was very emphatic in its stand," said Preston. "Never have I heard the same things stated so many different ways than today.

"Each statement was just as emphatic — even more so — than the previous one."

Preston said his remarks had been approved by the United Nations command. Presumably this included Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. The supreme allied commander flew back to Korea from his Tokyo headquarters to respond to a message from his armistice negotiators.

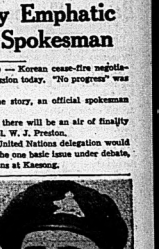
In Quebec the effects of the crisis was indicated by the official U.N. communique. For the first time since talks started July 10 it reported "no progress".

There is one basic issue that the north Korean-Chinese delegation is holding out for," Preston said. "It was the subject of debate all day."

Brig.-Gen. William Nuckols, deputy information chief of the U.N. command, said:

"I believe tomorrow will be an important day."

Despite the sharp cleavage in views, Preston said he would not call it a deadlock.



KILLED IN KOREA — Maj. J. L. Y. Dube, 33, of Quebec City, was killed in Korea when a mortar-discharged accidentally. Major Dube only recently was appointed second in command of the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment, he succeed Major J. P. L. Gosselin — killed in action early this month. (CP from National Defence).

U.S. Starts New Move To Get Oatis' Release

Washington, July 19. (AP)— The United States has started new diplomatic moves to get William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent, out of a Czechoslovak prison, State Secretary Dean Acheson disclosed Wednesday.

Acheson told a press conference that he expects the Czech government to reply sometime this week.

This development followed growing demands in Congress for drastic retaliatory action against Czechoslovakia for jailing Oatis, AP Bureau chief in Prague who was sentenced July 4 to 10 years in jail after a Prague court convicted him of alleged espionage.

Announce New Links In Fighter Program

Toronto, July 19 (CP) —Two new links in Canada's fighter-aircraft and engine production program, aimed at achieving aeronautical self - sufficiency, were announced yesterday.

Orenco Steel Products Ltd. of Tilbury, Ont., announced that it had been awarded a contract from A. V. Roe of Canada to manufacture parts for the CF-100 long-range jet fighter. Officials said about 1,000 men will be hired to begin production on the parts for the RCAF fighter.

At suburban Scarboro, it was announced that Canadair Ltd. is under way for a $2,500,000 plant to produce accessories for the CF-100's Canadian-made engine.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 19 (CP) Synopsis: A band of showers and scattered thunderstorms are moving westward across Northern Ontario Wednesday and across Southern Ontario Thursday. Fine and cooler elsewhere from the northwest has new brought sunny skies to southwestern Ontario. Cooler elsewhere in central regions.

There will be considerable cloudiness in central and northern regions today with lower temperatures. Showers today and mainly sunny skies with seasonable temperatures in Southern Ontario.

BLUE RASPBERRIES SELL FOR 35 CENTS

A differential of five cents per box in the price of red and blue raspberries prevailed on the local produce market today as farmers quoted 35 cents for the blue and 40 cents for the red variety. Earlier in the week the same price for both varieties had been asked.

Huckleberries remained at 50 cents per quart with basket lots at $2.50. Blackcaps were 40 cents and black currants 45 cents. Mountainberry cherries were $1.30 per basket and black Schmidt cherries $1.10.

Potatoes sold at $2.25 per hamper or 55 cents per basket.

Brockville Edges Batawa Shoemen

Brockville, July 19—(CP)—The front-running Brockville Memorial Centre eight continued their mastery over Central Ontario Baseball League opponents, edging the third-place Batawa Shoemen 3-2.

Bill Keepchuk went the route for the winners, allowing Batawa seven hits while Gord Moffitt, the loser, limited Brockville to only five.

A flare-up in the eighth inning over a called third strike on Batawa player Bill O'Shaughnessy, resulted in O'Shaughnessy and Memo manager Andy Hershock being thrown out of the game.

Lombardo and His Orchestra to Visit City Sept. 12

City keeping with their policy of bringing to the citizens of Belleville and district the finest names in the entertainment world, the Belleville Kiwanis Club has been successful in completing negotiations to bring to this city one of the most famous names in the entertainment world, Guy Lombardo, and his Royal Canadians.

In order to allow people wishing to hear and see this famous aggregation of musicians and entertainers the maximum of seating comfort, the event will take the form of a two-hour show, rather than a dance. Arrangements are being completed to be able to seat thousands in the Belleville Memorial Arena, and if the present outlook is any criterion, the largest crowd ever assembled in the arena will greet Guy Lombardo.

The regular orchestra will be augmented by special star acts, and as soon as possible, announcements in this effect will be made through this newspaper. The Kiwanis committee, under the chairmanship of Ernie Harmsworth, is working on the ticket sale and seating plan.

The date? Wednesday, Sept. 12.

Bridge or Free Ferry Sought By Delegation

A delegation from the county councils of Hastings and Prince Edward together with the reeves of the municipalities concerned went to Toronto today to confer with Hon. George Doucett, Minister of Highways, with respect to government aid in the provision of either a bridge or a free ferry connecting Deseronto with Prince Edward.

Members of the delegation included Warden Harry Coulter, Hastings; Warden J. A. Clemison, Prince Edward; Deputy Reynolds, roads chairman for Prince Edward and Verney Heath, roads chairman for Hastings. Also included in the delegation were Reeves Ross Reid of Deseronto, and Reeve Harold Barker of Sophiasburg.

Residents in the Deseronto-Sophiasburg area claim that the present ferry across the Bay of Quinte at Deseronto is inadequate to serve requirements and either a bridge or free ferry is being sought.

Holloway Street Consolidates Lead In Tennis League

Holloway Street beat Quinte 3-2 in a Bay of Quinte Intermediate Tennis League fixture last evening on their own courts to consolidate their hold on first place in the league standings.

Results of the play are,

First — Men's Doubles — Ken Woodley and Bill Spencer, Holloway, defeated Dave Bevis and Dick Worden 6-0.

Second — Men's Doubles—Terry Joyce and Cliff Joyce, Holloway, beat Ron Fox and Mac Haig, Quinte, 6-1.

First—Mixed Doubles— Diane Gibson and Les Digby, Quinte downed Jean Dracup and Bill Harback, Holloway, 6-4.

Second — Mixed Doubles — Frances Finkle and Larry Black, Quinte beat Jacqueline Avery and Bruce Page, Holloway, 6-4.

Ladies' Doubles— Joyce Woodley and Agnes Oxner, Holloway, defeated Mary Jane McNally and Bev Cowan 6-3.

The rattlesnake is the only poisonous type of snake among nearly 20 different species found in Canada.

STAMPEDE WEATHER

Calgary subways and basements were flooded when heavy rain proved too much for the city's sewers. This bus was stalled in one of the subways and 40 passengers had to wait for this makeshift bridge before getting back to dry land. Sgt. Bob Moffat of the Calgary traffic squad helps passengers along the plank. (CP Photo).

Purchase of $17,000 Fire Truck Gives Progressive Wellington Fine Protection

Wellington — (Staff) — Proud folk of the pretty Lake Ontario village are keeping up with the slogan "Onward."

In fact in some respects they are a jump or two ahead of their "slicker" cousins. While they have a modern arena, public library, continuation school, all standard city equipment, as well as "tot boot", prolific fishing grounds on the front doorstep, a "climate" that differs from 10 to 15 degrees in summer and winter, and a one-for-all - all-for - one community spirit that augurs well for the future.

Foresighted village fathers, headed by Reeve Jim Clemiinson, Clerk-Treasurer Ken Wright and Prince Edward County, looked over the general situation recently, and decided to do something about fire protection.

Obsolete Equipment

Up to this time the village fire-fighting equipment consisted of two almost obsolete man-powered chemical dispensers. These had proved effective in quelling small blazes, but what if something of a major conflagration took place? The "powers" would have as much effect on a "big blaze" as a pea-shooter against a battleship.

They put the question goldily to the taxpayers. Sure it might mean a hole in the taxes, not much perhaps, but something. Naturally there were dissenting voices. A few diehards held out. Meetings were held and the proposition put squarely to the folks who pay the village bills, Came the vote and all but four gave a resounding "Yea".

Now within the next few weeks a brand-new fire truck with modern equipment will grace the village fire-hall in all its flaming red beauty. The cost?, $17,000.

The new equipment, it is said, will cover practically all sections of this somewhat sprawling community. An auxiliary engine pump will push water some 500 feet from the lakeshore to Main Street to a 500-gallon tank aboard the truck.

From here the truck-pump lines over and through six hydrounules can gush water to practically any part of the village.

Creek Supplies Water

A creek that bisects the community through the centre will be a source of water supply for fires that might break out in the west fringes except in the hot summer months when it sometimes runs dry.

However, the water source is the least of the village's troubles. If they use up all that Lake Ontario can supply they have Niagara Falls and Lake Erie to fall back on.

It is planned to form and train a volunteer fire department consisting of from 14 to 20 men. Each man will be trained to drive the truck. Hose drill and other necessary instruction will be carried out. The Ontario Fire Marshal's department has given the green light to the proposition and will assist in training and other important features in connection with fire protection.

Few Bad Fires

While fires of a minor nature have caused some damage to village property during the last thirty years nothing of a real serious nature has taken place. The last "bad fire" occurred in the early twenties when the office of the Bell Telephone Company was wiped out along with two adjacent houses and a barn.

With the acquisition of the new equipment, villagers feel they can cope with anything — or Mr. Nature. Water supply is readily available due to the fact the main street runs parallel with the lakeshore for the entire length of the village, and in fairly close proximity.

Dozen Companies Compete For Alberta's Black Gold

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa—(CP) — One of the greatest gold rushes in Canada's history—the race to tap Alberta's fabulous oil-gas wealth to the full —is on in full swing.

Hundreds of millions of dollars on potential profits are at stake as almost a dozen companies compete for the rights to pipe Alberta's fuel resources to the lucrative markets of central Canada, the west coast and the United States.

With these glittering riches in prospect, the companies are ready to lay out investments ranging individually up to $250,000,000 to get a piece of the action stretching from the oil-gas fields to the fuel-hungry markets outside the foothills province.

Main prizes are the right to transmit:

1. Gas and oil to the northwestern United States.

2. Gas and oil to Canada's Pacific coast.

3. Gas to central Canada—as far east as Montreal under present plans.

Up to now, only one major pipeline is in operation beyond the Alberta boundary, carrying oil across the United States and down to Superior, Wis. From there it is taken by tanker to a refinery at Sarnia, Ont.

Seek Franchise

Elsewhere the field is wide open and 10 companies—many of them backed by large U.S. financial interests—are after franchises to operate in one direction or another. An 11th group is trying to get incorporated.

None so far has got beyond the preliminary stage of applications before the federal board of transport commissioners, which has the final say in granting permission to operate pipelines and laying down the routes.

A delaying factor is a current ban by the Alberta government on the shipment of natural gas outside the province until known reserves are larger. This decision is due to be reviewed in September, and so the transport board has set down Sept. 25 for the start of hearings on four gas-line applications now before it.

It also has designated Sept. 24 for new hearings on four oil applications.

All four of the oil-pipeline companies want to carry the black gold westward, some directly to Vancouver and some hitting the northwestern United States markets on the way to the Canadian west coast.

Three of the gas applications before the board also are pointed towards the west coast. The fourth company aims eastward as far as Winnipeg.

But the most ambitious venture is not yet before the board. Incorporated only at the recently-concluded session of parliament, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., aims to set up a $250,000,000 gas-pipe network stretching from Alberta to Montreal and possibly later to Quebec.

Magistrate Says Case Beyond His Jurisdiction

Holding that as police court magistrate he had no jurisdiction to hear the case, the assault charge against Arthur Palmer of Cannifton was not dealt with today by Magistrate T. Y. Willis.

The magistrate ruled that under the wording of code he had no jurisdiction to deal with a charge of common assault where the question of title to property was involved.

The charge against Mr. Palmer was laid by Mrs. John Downey, neighbor of the defendant. The alleged assault took place following a dispute over the disposal of garbage.

Last week when the matter was before the court, the crown attorney declined to act stating the matter was a private prosecution and the case was laid over to allow Mrs. Downey to secure counsel. Today Mrs. Downey was represented by A. J. Folkwell, while Mr. Palmer was represented by Malcolm Hobb. The case is now left open for civil action.

LOTTERY LOOT LOST

Montreal, July 19 —(CP)— Louis Philippe Beaudin was fined $500 including costs, or three months in jail when he pleaded guilty Wednesday to printing 400,000 baseball lottery tickets.

Beaudin operated a printing plant on Laurier Avenue East where police Tuesday seized 400,000 baseball lottery tickets.

CONSTABLE ON TRIAL

Hull, Que., July 19 (CP) —A member of the Quebec Provincial Police, Constable Lionel Paquette, Wednesday was ordered to stand trial on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death last May of six-months-old Ghislaine Robertson of Lake Que. The child died following a collision between two cars one driven by Paquette.

BACK IN BRITAIN

London, July 19 (Reuters) —L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, who has been touring Scandinavia, flew back to London Wednesday night for a short stay before returning to Ottawa next week. Pearson came to Britain earlier this month to receive an honorary degree at Oxford University. He is expected to meet with Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and other cabinet members.

Masons, Shriners Will Hold Parade Saturday

More than 100 local Shriners are expected to parade in the city Saturday morning, led by their Potentate and Divan, Reg. Shaw, of Toronto. Shaw, along with other Shriners, will stop long enough on the way to Smiths Falls and Brockville to march in a parade bearing the railroad station at approximately 11.20 a.m.

The parade route has been so designed as to bring the marchers in front of city hall, where a saluting base will be set up. It is expected that Acting Mayor A. M. Hall will be on the saluting base. D. L. Stewart, president of the local Shriners, said this morning that the visitors would be guests of the Shrine Club during their short stay. They are expected to leave the city at 12 noon, by train.

Goodwin Case Laid Over Until Sept. 20

Scheduled to proceed today, the wounding charge against Gerald Goodwin, Trenton, charged with wounding LAC Ally of the R.C.A.F. some weeks ago, today was laid over until Sept. 20.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills received a communication from the station physician stating Ally had suffered complications as result of his injuries and would be unable to attend court.

The charge against Goodwin was laid by provincial police following LAC Ally being shot in the shoulder. It was stated that Ally had been prowling around the Goodwin residence late at night. A second charge of wounding through criminal negligence has been laid against Goodwin. It being understood the original charge of wounding under section 230 of the Criminal Code will not be proceeded with.

AMERICAN FINED

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 19—(CP)—An American beer salesman was fined $164 in magistrate's court here, today on charges of violating the Liquor Control Act, and carrying an offensive weapon.

Constable Norman Chevers testified he found a rubber billy and 16 pints of American beer in the car driven by Albert Mara, 23, of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

BIRTHS

ATKINS — Mr. and Mrs. Owen Atkins, 216 Victoria Ave, are happy to announce the birth of a son, Donald Edward, Friday, July 13th, 1951, at Belleville General Hospital. 219

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank my friends for the get-well wishes, flowers and cards I received while in hospital and since my return home, also to anyone who assisted in anyway, especially Dr. Hamilton and the nurses while a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Helen M. Doolittle. 219

IN MEMORIAM

BODY — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mary Body, passed away July 19th, 1950.
Sweet memories linger around her still,
Love who was better, God never knows.
Memories are golden, memories are dear,
One in a million, that mother was here.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and tireless with all your might.
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew,
Sadly missed by those that mourn you.
Mrs. Leonard Hamilton. 219

MUNNS — In loving memory of a dear husband and dad, who passed away July 19th, 1950.
He hadn't no time to bid farewell,
He hadn't no time to say,
He closed his eyes and went his way.
A loving voice said come,
Death is hard to part from him,
Some day we know not when,
A place is fixed, we know not where,
Never to part again.
Sadly remembered and sadly missed by his wife, daughters and son. 219

The department said that the reductions in output were part "of a downward trend which has prevailed throughout the year."

SMALL BEGINNINGS

The first graduating class of Acadia University at Wolfville, N.S., in 1843 numbered four students.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — A handful of base metals and western oils chalked up large volumes in an otherwise mixed and little changed stock market as the session progressed today.

Calliman Flin Flon added four cents. United Asbestos slipped quickly at the opening but then came back for a five-cent increase.

Trading in the rest of the market was dull and with little trend.

In industrials steels, agricultural and foods showed a majority of gains. Manufacturing companies, textiles and constructions weakened and the rest of the board was mixed. Price changes were mostly held to small fractions.

In base metals Consolidated Smelters dropped $1.35 and the rest of the group eased fractions. Western oils found moderate support and showed advances ranging from jeanlies to the 20 - cent gain of Federated Petroleum.

A few senior golds added fractions while secondary golds were mixed with little notable change.

North Bay, July 19 — (CP) — Tourist traffic in the North Bay district is up 30 per cent from last year, officials of the North Bay Chamber of Commerce said today. In the last 23 days, more than 1,100 tourists signed a chamber guest book.

ROTATION RATE INCREASED

Washington, July 19 (AP) — The army announced Wednesday it is speeding up the return of American troops from Korea under the rotation plan. The announcement said the rotation rate should reach 30,000 a month and be maintained at that level for the next three months.

FAMED NEWCOMER

Little Current, Ont. — (CP)— Branch Rickey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Baseball League has bought an island in McGregor Bay near this Manitoulin Island town.

Dreamy Music Comes From Old Instrument

Winnipeg, (CP)—The dreamiest music imaginable, some out of a strange old instrument standing at the foot of the staircase in a suburban Winnipeg home.

The instrument, owned for 25 years by a publicity-shy Irishman, stands nearly seven feet, and is encased in a carved and polished cabinet. It is called a symphonion, and works on much the same principle as a pianola. The music, for comparison, resembles that of a giant musical box.

The notes are made by tiny pegs, striking on metal, the pegs being set in motion by a slotted metal disc which is turned in position across the front of them. The instrument is then wound up, and for minutes will strum out soft, tinkling music.

There are 24 discs measuring about 24 inches across. They give a clue to the instrument's birthplace as "J. W. Curner" and "made in Germany" are stamped across them in gothic letters.

The simple tunes — "Home, Sweet Home" extracts from Gilbert and Sullivan, pieces by Mendelssohn, and hymns—are carved out on the discs and are elaborately and skilfully orchestrated.

A deep, resonant bass beats the rhythm, a singing treble outlines the melody, and a trilling descant adds ornamentation.

The only thing which the mechanism cannot control is the dynamics. The symphonion cannot play loud and soft. Like a harpsichord it can indicate fortissimo by playing extra-thick chords and then pausing. In the same way, a single note can sound as pianissimo.

The machine is widely-travelled. Its present owner, when in Ireland, inherited it from a relative who in turn inherited it from his forefathers in the United States.

Indian Calendars Record 100 Years

Regina — (CP) — Halfway around the world, people have a different idea of calendars than we have in Canada.

They are made of brass and record periods of 30, 40 and 100 years.

Some of the hand-made calendars imported from India are now in Regina.

The largest — the 100 - year calendar — is a circular piece of hammered brass about eight inches in diameter. The middle of the plate revolves according to the years.

Due to the repetition of years, approximately once every 25 years, the whole century can be found on one dial.

It shows every one of the 36,-525 days from 1950 to 2050.

To show the right month, the dial is moved to the proper year and the days appear at the bottom.

And Leap Year hasn't been forgotten — the dial with the red enamel is used instead of the black one.

The 30 and 40-year calendars are smaller and have one and two rows of year figures while the century calendar has three and four rows.

LOSES FINGERS

Galt, July 19 — (CP) — Ross Oliver, 16-year-old Galt factory worker, lost most of the fingers of his left hand Tuesday when it was caught in the blades of a hay mower. He was vacationing on a farm at beatby Branchton.

ATOM SECRECY IMPROVED

London, July 19 (AP) —The foreign office said Wednesday that American, Canadian and British experts had completed talks on ways to protect secret information about atomic research. The meetings, a continuation of conferences held by the three countries in Washington last year, ended Friday.

CAMPBELLFORD

Citizens Meet, Consider Action On Beer Vote

Campbellford—A meeting of the Citizens' Committee to consider what action is to be taken with regard to having a beer parlor in Campbellford this fall to consider the question of establishing a brewer's warehouse was held this week with a large number of the citizens and business men present.

Three years ago, the "dyes" won the election by the narrowest of margins and it was not until after a judge had recounted the ballots that the final decision was announced. The "wets" lost the question by two-fifth of one per cent. with a 10 and three-fifth majority, but not quite enough to carry, as a 60 per cent majority is needed.

A petition has been circulated among the people of the town during the past few weeks, and if the number of signatures on it is any indication, as to how the votes will go next fall, Campbellford may cease to be the "dry" town it has been for years. The petition at present has almost twice the number of signatures as did the petition three years ago.

Claim Town Re-Passed

The business men of the town are concerned over the loss of tourist trade caused through the town not having an outlet. Tourists, they claim, by-pass the town because of their inability to purchase spirits in it. The increase in business in various lines throughout the province that had voted "wet" is one of the biggest arguments for the wet side of the campaign. The business men are not in favor of a beverage room, but see no reason why those who want to purchase spirits must drive to neighboring towns and cities to do so.

The argument was presented at the meeting on Monday evening, that people who are going to purchase spirits will do so, no matter where they have to go, and it is to the advantage of the town to have the business remain in the town, when they make their "wet" purchases.

A committee was formed to handle the question, with Glen Taylor or Campbellford as chairman. Howard Rogie was voted vice-chairman, Frank Reid is secretary, Clarence Massey is treasurer, and George W. Brahan will be the campaign manager.

The executive will name ward chairmen to look after the various wards of the town.

Miss Colleen Smith Chosen Beauty Queen

Campbellford — Miss Colleen Smith of Campbellford was chosen "Miss Campbellford" for the second successive year on Saturday night during the beauty contest in the closing hours of the giant Rotary Home Week Carnival.

Miss Ruth McCann placed second and Miss Donna Jones was third. There were six entries in the contest.

The judges were all out of town people, among them Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare. He placed the "Miss Campbellford 1951" banner on Colleen Smith, and presented her and the other two successful contestants with cosmetic kits, a silver cup, a purse and chocolate and corsages.

A large crowd watched the judging as the girls paraded on an elevated platform erected on Front Street.

Struck by Auto, Boy, 7, Suffers Critical Injuries

Campbellford— Seven-year-old Richard Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dunham of R.R. 3, Campbellford, was critically injured on Tuesday morning when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home on Highway 30, one mile west of Campbellford.

The little fellow had crossed the highway to get the family mail from the mail box. He was returning and waited until a car driven by Lorne Mutton of R.R. 6, Brighton, had passed, and started across the roadway. He was struck by a car travelling in the opposite direction, and driven by V. L. Dixon or Bond Street, Fenelon Falls, Ontario.

The impact tossed the lad to the side of the roadway, where he lay critically injured until the arrival of medical attention. Doctors were hesitant about moving the lad in his shocked condition, and possible serious injuries, and administered to him on the roadway.

He was later removed to his home, still unconscious. He was placed in an oxygen tent erected over his bed, and given blood transfusions. The full extent of his injuries have not yet been determined, he was said to be slightly improved, and had an excellent chance of recovery.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine investigated the accident.

Baptist Young Adult Fellowship Group Holds Outdoor Service

Campbellford — An out-door church service was held at the Woodland Estate, Healey Falls, on Sunday evening under the direction of the Young Adult Fellowship of the Campbellford Baptist Church.

The first portion of the service consisted of fine sacred recordings over a public address system, which enabled those in boats and cars as well as those on the spacious lawn to enjoy the service.

President Roy Ford welcomed the large crowd which gathered and paid tribute to his co-workers for the success of the out-door service.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Miss Beryl Nicholas with her piano accordion, and Mrs. H. S. Staples led in the singing of several hymns.

Mrs. Clarence Young read a passage of scripture, and the Rev. H. S. Staples gave a short but very inspiring message entitled "It depends on you." Mr. Staples reminded his listeners that the church is the greatest influence for good and that the church is only as strong as its members.

Many who find it impossible to attend regular church services find these out-door meetings ideal.

Seymour Lad, 12, Saves Life Of Older Chum

Campbellford — Twelve-year-old Robert McCulloch of Seymour township is being acclaimed as a hero today, after the story of his successful rescue of a chum while swimming was brought to light.

Bob saved the life of a Toronto boy, 17-year-old Donald Campbell of 140 Cadorna Avenue, East York, Toronto, Tuesday, when he plunged into the waters of the Trent River near the Healey Falls bridge, and after some difficulty, succeeded in bringing the drowning youth to shore.

Donald Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Campbell of Seymour, was visiting his parents at their home, and had gone to Healey Fall, only a short distance away for a swim.

Donald, who is a weak swimmer, stepped into a hole and disappeared. He thrashed around in the water for several seconds, then bobbed to the surface, only to go under again. This happened many times, and the youth was noticed by young McCulloch, who plunged into the water and brought the youth to shore. Thomas Campbell, father of the victim waded out into the water and helped the two men on to the bank. They then put the youth into their car and drove to nearby Healey Falls power house, where Hydro employees, under direction of supervisor, Percy Delaney, applied respiration for nearly a half hour. An inhalator and respiration apparatus was rushed to the scene from Campbellford Hospital to finish the job, but the lad recovered almost fully through the efforts of the employees of the power house.

The older boy had lived at the McCulloch farm at one time, but had left high school in Campbellford to seek employment in Toronto.

The accident occurred just east of the Healey Falls bridge over the Trent River.

Bill McCulloch Wins Soap-Box Derby

Campbellford—Fourteen year old Bill McCulloch of Seymour was the winner of the Soap-Box Derby, sponsored by the Rotary Club here recently. Bill, won the race, and the silver cup that went with it, in a race he designed and built himself. This was the first time he had entered a derby.

There were a good list of entries in the race down the public school hill, and tension among the youthful contestants ran high both before and during the event. One spill added to the thrills of the occasion, but the youthful racer righted his chariot and went on to place second in the junior event.

First in the 8 years and under class was Mike Holmes. Paul Linton was second. In the 12 to 14 year old event, Bill McCulloch placed first; Jim McComb, second; Ted Newman, third, and Roy McMillan, fourth.

The race attracted a goodly number of spectators, many of them Dads who had helped construct some of the soap-box racers that were careening down the long hill.

Bill McCulloch, winner of the senior event is a brother of Bobby McCulloch who figured in the recent rescue of a drowning youth at Healey Falls. Both the McCulloch brothers won fame for themselves in two widely different ways over the weekend.

Lucky Draw

In the lucky draw for a Crosley Shelvador refrigerator or a television set, Bobby Bright of Campbellford was the winner, and could hardly believe it when his ticket was announced.

The Rotary carnival, the biggest event of its kind to be held in Campbellford for a number of years, attracted many out of town visitors, and was declared a huge success. It entailed a great deal of work by members of the club. Funds gained through the event will go to help the work of the club in the community.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

London, July 19—(AP)—The engagement of Mary Bowes-Lyon, 19-year-old niece of the Queen, will be announced today, Press Association reported Tuesday. Her fiance is Navy Lieut. Timony Colman, 32-year-old son of the late Capt. Geoffrey Colman and Mrs. Colman of Norwich. Miss Bowes-Lyon is the daughter of Col. Michael Bowes-Lyon, a brother of the Queen.

Miss W. Judge Attends Royal Garden Party

Word has been received from Miss Wilma Judge that she attended the Royal Garden Party held in Buckingham Palace July 12th.

After arriving at the inner courtyard, the guests were shown through the palace. Later, they joined an informal tea-drinking with members of English nobility.

The Queen wore a beautifully embroidered rose gown. She was joined by the Queen mother; the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and Lord and Lady Mountbatten, who assisted her in receiving the guests under the Royal canopy.

The King, who is convalescing following his illness, was unable to be present.

On July 11th Miss Judge attended a garden party in the gardens of Westminster Abbey. The party was given to give overseas teachers their choice of meeting Their Majesty, the King.

The party was held in the College Garden of St. Peters, which is the oldest garden in England. Part of the wall was built by Monks in the 13th. century.

Beautifully Attired

About 4 o'clock the Queen arrived, escorted by the Archbishop of Canterbury. She had tired in dove grey and wearing a matching hat with ostrich plume trimming.

Miss Judge was presented to the Queen by Sir Graham Savage, When Her Majesty conversed with Miss Judge about her experiences in teaching.

During the summer, Miss Wilma Judge and friends have flown to Ireland, and Scotland to view the many historic structures. At the present time they are touring the continent.

Smart Australian Woman Politician May Visit Canada

Written for the Canadian Press By Margaret Zeher Francis

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Nancy Wake, doughty Australian woman politician, would like to visit Canada to see friends she made in France during the Second World War.

Running as a Liberal in the recent Australian federal election, she was defeated in a Sydney constituency by fewer than 300 votes after waging a hard fight against Dr. H. V. Evatt, the popular Labor leader.

"My dear, dear friends," she calls several dozen men of the Canadian army and R.C.A.F. whose lives she saved during the war.

New Zealand-born, Mrs. Wake was raised in Australia and went to Europe as a free lance journalist just before the war. She married a Frenchman, Henri Flocco and with him plunged into underground work when France fell. Flocco was shot by the Nazis when captured, but his wife escaped and made her way to England for training in further underground work.

After she returned to France by parachute to organize the trans-France escape route for captured allied servicemen. More than 1,000 airmen alone were brought to safety by Mrs. Wake.

"A large number, I don't know how many, were Canadians, and they were among my favorite people," said the casual, tomboyish woman with a humorous twinkle in her grey eyes.

"Their letters urge me to go to Canada and visit them, and I'm going to soon. I can never thank them for the great contribution they made to freeing my adopted country."

She had trained in underground work in England with Canadians, "some of the bravest, most resourceful operators we had."

Dieppe Big Thrill

One of her most thrilling experiences resulted from the arrival of some escaped Nazi Germans at Dieppe at her underground depot.

"They reached my depot in the south of France even before we knew the attack on Dieppe had taken place. You have no idea how it boosted our morale in those days to know that at last the liberation was beginning."

Mrs. Wake has another reason for the visit she will soon make to Canada.

"I want to talk to women in politics there," she said. "From meeting people like Mrs. Tillie Rolston of Vancouver, member of the British Columbia legislature, I realize that politically women have advanced further there than in Australia.

"Women here just won't realize that nothing will be done about the things they complain about unless they have government representation. They are lethargic. They feel men are far superior to them, so they sit back and let the men run everything. I want them to realize that they too could play a part."

Mrs. Wake is a strong defender of democracy, with all its imperfections.

"From my life in France, I can realize what a threat there is to the free world today. If more women realized this, they would be willing to try to do all in their power to defend our system. From what I hear, women in Canada realize this more than do Australian women."

MAIL RATES BOOSTED

Sherbrooke, Que., July 19 — (CP) — The Sherbrooke Daily Record today advised its mail subscribers that rates will be increased from $8 to $9 a year when present subscriptions expire. The record increase in publication rates—in the case of the Record approximately $1.30 a year per subscriber — was cited as the reason for the higher rates. Carrier and single-paper rates remain unchanged.

BANANA CREAM

St. Catharines, Ont. — (CP) — A grocer's warehouse left a barrel of spoiled bananas outside overnight. By the next morning neighborhood children had smeared a liberal coating of banana as high as they could reach or climb on the company's trucks and walls.

London People Hunt Bargains At Shoe Sales

By MURIEL NARRAWAY (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — London's bargain-hungry crowds made a bee-line for shoe counters when the summer sales got under way this month.

Stores advertising shoe bargains had long queues well ahead of opening time and men were eager-buyers at a west end store (Footlings) and Dolcis, Oxfords, Monks and casual shoes at moderate prices.

The main reason for the rush, apart from the pull of cut-price articles, was a government announcement that maximum prices of utility shoes would rise approximately 25 per cent soon. This means an increase in prices of the only footwear that can be bought without sales tax.

The higher prices affect shoes for all members of the family. Men's shoes which previously cost £4 5s 3d. now have a maximum of £5 13s. Women's shoes show a rise of £1 13s 9d, and shoes for children and infants will cost about 5s and 3s. more a pair.

A government spokesman, however, said that the rise in price has been accommodated in economies of manufacture by many firms throughout the last few months. Most manufacturers do not intend to do so. The general rise in the cost of living makes it advisable to keep prices to a minimum due to tight purse-strings.

Plenty of Customers

Since the announcement, however, shoe sales have been brisk. Housewives and workers alike are thinking in terms of the general upward trend in shoe prices since the start of the year.

Summer sales are early this year after a long rainy winter and women are taking advantage of the late purchase of white shoes, light sandals and other holiday wear.

For the women of fashion, Bond Street and Regent Street stores are featuring an attractive selection of end-of-line shoes by three and four guineas. For instance, a classic court with open toe and three-inch heel, in red and tan calf, and a few pairs of navy and black suedes sell at five guineas, reduced from 8½ guineas.

Clothing stores are clearing summer stocks at reduction prices to avoid big losses due to bad sales throughout a fitful summer. This gives many of London's holiday millions the chance of summer wardrobes reduced by less than half-price. Summer dresses find much wear cost as little as 15s. for washable cotton and linen outfits.

ALLAN'S MILLS

Bride Welcomed By Many Friends

Allan's Mills — About 200 friends and neighbors of Mr and Mrs. Glenn Morton, met recently at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Morton to welcome Mary to the community and to wish them good luck, long life and happiness in their married life together.

The following program was enjoyed; chairman's address by Wilfred Spencer; solo, Ken Bain; readings by Mrs. Harold Stapley, Mrs. E. Jones and speeches by Mr. Heath, reeve of Rawdon, Messrs. Fred Barnum and Bill Morton and a piano and guitar duet by Marjorie and Bob Spencer.

The Heath read the address to which Glenn and Mary graciously replied. They will reside on the groom's farm.

How to make milk into Baby's Favorite Dessert

RENNET DESSERTS WITH MILK:
2 cups milk (not canned)
1 package "Junket" Rennet Powder (any flavor)
2 Tablespoons sugar (omit if Rennet Tablets are used)
Heat milk to lukewarm (98°F. to 110°F.—just warm to the finger). Stir in sugar and Rennet Powder (or Rennet Tablets dissolved in 1 tablespoon cold water). Pour into dessert dishes and set undisturbed in a warm place (70°F. to 80°F.) until firm—about 15 minutes. Then chill in refrigerator. Top with whipped cream, fruit or nuts, if desired. Serves 4 to 6.

RENNET DESSERTS ARE SO SIMPLE TO MAKE . . .
Make custards, desserts . . . so creamy, so delicious . . . with lukewarm milk and either "Junket" Rennet Powder (seven flavors, already sweetened) or "Junket" Rennet Tablets (unsweetened or flavored) . . . add sugar and flavor to taste). Try this recipe . . . then watch baby's face!

Guest Speakers Give Fine, Comprehensive Reports at W.I.

Wallbridge—Mrs. Cecil Smith was hostess for the regular meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute; there were present 12 ladies and 13 children, president Mrs. Phillips, president, opened the meeting.

Business part of the meeting considered the booth of interest at Belleville Fair. This was left to the ladies to decide, in the absence of the secretary treasurer, Mrs. George Read acted as secretary and read the reports, correspondence, cards and letters of thanks from those sick.

At this time, the president introduced the guest speakers for the day, Mrs. Fred Campbell from Pinegrove W.I. and Mrs. Clarence Holmes of the Bay of Quinte W.I. These gave reports on the 3rd Ontario Women's Institute convention conference at the O.A.C., Guelph, on May 24th.

Mrs. Campbell reported on "Historical Research and Current Events, stating that with ideal weather of sunshine, perfect to kept lawns, budding trees, and flowers, the O.A.C. made an ideal place for a conference such as this. The Guelph citizens opened their homes, accepting 400 delegates but 900 came. However, the situation was met and all were well with the general hospitality.

Opening Session

At the opening session, the new F.W.I.O. president, Mrs. R. C. Purcell, of South William, presided. Mrs. Purcell has high hopes for the progress of the W.I. during her term of office, establishing a permanent memorial at the birth-place of Women's Institute at Stoney Creek and perhaps a museum bearing the name of the founder.

There is much interest shown in handicrafts, which are being marketed through the new standard committee that will advise and guide W.I. members in grading, pricing and marketing. With the new scholarship for girls, she is carrying on where Mrs. Futcher left off.

Historical Ontario

Miss Lewis, director of the Women's Institute branch and home economist, brought greetings, and gave an illustrated talk on "Glimpses of Historical Ontario", saying, "We have a great future before us; we have a leading influence because our roots are in the past; our minds and hands are working in the present and our eyes are looking clearly into the future."

Dr. J. A. MacLachlan, president of the Ontario Agriculture College, welcomed the visitors as did Dr. Margaret McCreary, who stated that family life is the biggest industry today, even larger than agriculture.

The Rev. W. A. Young, college chaplain, led in community singing with Mrs. R. Kidd at the piano. Mrs. Sandford Aikens, provincial convener, introduced the subject of compiling the Tweedsmuir History Book and the value of museums.

Mr. W. E. Hanna, of the Ontario Historical Society, was judge of this year's history books, and was loud in his praise and emphasized the importance of preserving the local history records. Current Events should be confined to a history of current events as they transpire in the district. To compile an account, the community took in the wars of one country, World War I and II, Mrs. Gates, Regional Vice-President, quoted, "It is better to do one small deed than have a hundred good intentions."

Necessity of Kindness

Maud M. Kerr, in her "Thoughts by the Way," emphasized the necessity of kindness and courtesy with, "It is a good idea always to be a little kinder than necessary; it is a blessed thing to be the second rolle or even the third or fourth."

Mrs. Holmes reported on the second day, which dealt with community activities and public relations. The opening session was an address by Dr. Maria Lance, of Italy, who represented the W.E.S.C.O. in Canada, urged Canadian women to continue to welcome strangers to their land and when you say, 'you are welcome here,' really live it!

Miss Ina Hodgins, of Carp, provincial convener of community activities, gave many timely hints to conveners of community activities in assisting them in their reports.

Mr. John Paton, director of Community Welfare Council of Ontario, brought a message to the Women Institute members, telling them that they had received a world inheritance; that they should leave the world a better place than when they came into it. He also indicated specific forms of welfare work but admitted that if the needs of man were met, it would be costly.

A panel discussion conducted by Miss Collins, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Hossack and Mrs. Houch, conveners of community activities for Canada, proved informative. The figure at the W.I. is a bright as a star, for opportunity for service for now, after 50 years, it is better equipped.

Effective Publicity

Effective publicity for the Women's Institute functions was ably dealt with by Mr. Jack McPherson, director of Publicity for Ontario, Department of Agriculture, assisted by Mrs. Kerr, Women's editor of the "Family Herald and Weekly Star," Miss Katharine Maliston, editor of Elora Express; Miss Gladys Houck, representing "London Free Press"; and Miss Margaret Brophy, from CKNX, Wingham, all stressed that press reporting should be brief, effective, correctly spelled names, legibly written, telling the people what interest and molding public opinion in the organization. Forty-seven thousand women should be able to move a mountain if they get behind it and push!

The president, on behalf of all present, moved a hearty vote of thanks for the two splendid reports given.

Mrs. Nicol favored with a vocal solo with her own guitar accompaniment.

Mrs. Holmes was presented with pictures of the 50th anniversary of Wallbridge W.I. for her help in so many ways at the time of the anniversary.

After the close of the meeting, the lunch committee served refreshments.

A vote of appreciation was tendered Mrs. Smith for her hospitality, as well as to all those who had helped with the program and the refreshments.

Plan Arms Talks For Washington

Ottawa, July 18 — (CP)—Top-level four-power Atlantic Pact talks on standardization of small arms will take place in Washington July 26 and 27, Defence Minister Claxton announced today.

The countries to be represented are the United States, Britain, France and Canada — are members of the Pact's standing agency on arms standardization.

Mr. Claxton will head a Canadian delegation expected to include Gen. Gen. G. G. Simonds, Army chief of staff, and arms experts. Defence Secretary Marshall of the U. S. and Defence Minister Shinwell of Britain are also expected to attend.

The meeting is being called at Mr. Claxton's request to discuss the split between the U. S. and Britain over a common rifle. Britain is adopting a .28 calibre weapon, the U. S. wants to stick with the .30.

Canada, caught between the two, wants the split repaired if possible. If that cannot be done, she wants to see it stopped before it spreads to other small

Sex Legislation Vetoed by Governor

Sacramento, Calif., July 19 — (AP)— The California legislature's unique proposal to let sex offenders against children choose between life in prison or surgery and freedom—will be vetoed.

Governor Earl Warren listened to objections to the castration provision from a panel of experts, then announced yesterday: "In view of the testimony, I would feel I would be leaving the public unprotected if I signed this bill."

The bill had two main provisions: it permits sex criminals to be locked up for life and to give those who molest children under 14 the option of life imprisonment or submitting to castration and three years of study by doctors.

NAPANEE PICTON STIRLING TWEED

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

She arrived at the Canteen Entertainment on Washington Crest, Hoopy already had it on, and rushed to grab mother around the waist. "Mommy, we mustn't be late for audition," she cried, though it was said theatrically, for Linda's benefit. Lucilla was flattered. She felt mighty sorry for poor plump Linda, whose mother evidently didn't give charming special treats with her child.

Lucilla's theatre-loving heart responded to-late in her daughter. "We'll get some candy or an ice cream cone at intermission," she promised.

As they sat in the auditorium of the Children's Theatre at 2.25 she thought proudly that Hoopy was almost the only well behaved child in the place. There were children racing up and down the aisles, clambering over grown-ups' laps, ejecting bubble-gum with derisive plops. The air seethed with questions. "When will it start? You said it would start in a few minutes, and it's already been a hundred years!" Near Lucilla and Hoopy, a small boy banged his seat up and down with growling intent, as if he'd been hired specifically to wreck it before curtain time.

Hoopy eyed him admiringly.

The program not only listed characters and scenes, but gave a strong hint of the action: "In this scene Little Red Riding Hood's grandmother goes out to pick mushrooms, and while she is gone, the Wolf sneaks in and hides in her bed, disguised in her nightcap and shawl, so that . . ."

Hoopy interrupted, "In the book, the grandmother was sick and the wolf ate her up. Why isn't it the same in the play?"

Lucilla explained about dramatic license. Her daughter looked dubious. "I think they ought to do it just like the book." Already she was aligning herself with that sturdy group of theatregoers who resent the meddling with old favorite plots because of some such nonsense as modern realism or streamlined action. "Besides," Hoopy continued pensively, "I wanted to see the wolf eat the grandmother right on the stage."

Lucilla was chilled at this manifestation of a child mind. She tried to think back over Hoopy's relationship with her grandmother; they had always seemed amicable to the point of falsity. "Just think how you'd feel if the wolf ate up your Nana Webb or Gramma," she said.

Hoopy pointed out that it was not her grandmothers who were in the play. "The wolf would surely be eating an actress."

Lucilla was about to say stern-ly, "Just actresses are people too!" a statement she herself didn't altogether believe—when it was the wolf's costume, consisting of a yellow fur union suit, long rattles tail, and toothy wolf's head, strolled out before the curtain, presumably to welcome the audience. The small boy who had been banging his seat grabbed his governess around the legs and screamed: "The wolf will come down here and eat me."

A loud whisper from the wings commanded the wolf: "Take off your head." The actor removed his wolf's head, and this at least had a certain shock value. As he stood there an innocuous blond boy with perspiring pink cheeks, a child yelled, "he's only pretending to be a wolf."

Eventually the auditorium settled into what, for the children's theatre was quiet. The lights flickered slowly, Lucilla switched her child's sweetly uptilted face in profile, as the curtain went up, and the scene of the theatre had never moved her more.

Audience participation reached a fevered pitch in the second act, when the beautiful wolf lying in grandmother's bed and Little Red Riding Hood approached him. A hundred or more voices screamed, "look out! He's not your grandmother. He'll bite!"

On the way home Hoopy discussed the play endlessly, asking over and over "and didn't you like the part where . . ." but also thoughtfully analytical of weak spots. "I think Red Riding Hood should have seen right away that the wolf didn't look like her grandmother. And instead of squealing so much, she could have carried a gun and shot him, but then, the play wouldn't have lasted as long." Lucilla felt that no drama critic could have expressed it more pungently.

At dinner, Hoopy gave her father an account complete even to stage directions, and generally explanatory: "In the first act—that's the act before you go out for candy . . ." Arthur said fondly to his wife, "she's your daughter all right."

Lucilla greeted the Beautiful-You operator and dressingroom attendant as eagerly as a sophomore returning to school after a dull holiday. She was even happier to see her classmates, and resented the fact that Paris and Mrs. Colps didn't altogether share her enthusiasm at being back. Mrs. Colps said she had indigestion. Something "How could I get indigestion when I didn't even eat?" she asked Lucilla plaintively. In her freshly laundered flannelette pajamas, she looked like a child who has just been allowed out of bed after a siege of grippe. As they waited for Paris, who was in her cubicle changing clothes, she leaned listlessly against the cream-and-jade table.

Paris' voice came out to them in a muted squeak. "I was at a stag party till 4 a.m. Was that ever a party!"

Lucilla and Mrs. Colps looked at each other startled. Mrs. Colps said, "I thought a stag party was only for men."

Paris sounded surprised at this limited definition. Her upper half appeared between the monk's-cloth curtains.

"Sure a stag party's for men, but they need a few girls to jump out of a pie and put on a style show or something." Her head vanished. "It's an easy way to pick up 50 bucks. All I had to do was sashay around modeling one of those French diaper swim suits."

"My heavens," Mrs. Colps murmured. She raised her voice. "Doesn't your boy friend object?"

"Object! He got me the job!" She emerged, yawning. Against the grayed monotone of the monk's cloth, her hair had the improbable beauty of Technicolor. She explained that Harry always called for her after any such engagement.

Lucilla examined Paris hopefully for signs of dissipation and found none.

She was disappointed that that neither Paris nor Mrs. Colps commented on her own new costume. Earlier that morning she had bought a high-necked, black jersey pullover to complete the ensemble for Derek Marlowe. The whacked-off cream linen shorts had turned out rather well as she went into the Hall of Mirrors, she took surreptitious peeks and felt that the shorts were wonderfully chic, the sort of thing a sleek-limbed American heiress would wear in Bermuda. She sighed. Arthur would not notice that she'd used his razor. It had always baffled her how a husband could tell.

The floor mother, with the aid of a Glamour Guide was pushing the scales into the centre of the Hall of Mirrors. "Monday check-up, girls. You're to weigh in before Body Molding. We'll soon know how many of you have been naughty over the weekend." She picked up a pile of large mauve cards, and rapped them smartly against the table.

Mrs. Colps approached the scales timidly and with reverence, as if presenting herself before an altar. The floor mother, as high priestess, presided over the balance weights, shifting them with fitting solemnity. "Oh good girl!" she exclaimed, "You lost two and a quarter pounds." Mrs. Colps looked at the scales sadly. "Is that all? The way I feel I should lost 10."

Inclusion of Turkey, Spain And Greece in Defence Pact Favored by Key Senators

Washington, July 19 (AP) — Influential Senators today generally approved moves to bring Spain, Turkey and Greece into closer association with the North Atlantic Defence Alliance.

Reports that Spain has agreed in principle to establishment of U.S. naval and air bases there won applause from Democrats and Republicans.

However, the disclosure by Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison that Britain favors taking Turkey and Greece into the defence pact found a few lawmakers cautious about moving too quickly in that direction.

Senator Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) said he thinks it desirable for the U.S. to have the agreements Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, is reported to have made with Generalissimo Franco of Spain.

But Taft, told a reporter he wants to learn more about what will be involved if Turkey and Greece are added to the North Atlantic Treaty organization countries.

Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, said Britain's gesture toward Turkey and Greece also should include Spain. Britain and France have opposed Spain's entry into NATO largely because of Franco's non-Democratic government.

"If we had Spain in the setup, it would be the king of European defence military leaders have been recommending," Wherry said.

Chairman Richard Russell (Dem. Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committees said Britain's proposal that Turkey and Greece ought to be followed up by other pact members without delay.

Russell said, "we know the Turks will fight. Our best arms aid investment has been made there."

Russell said he favors the "very closest collaboration" with Spain but added he does not believe the U.S. should "point a gun" at Britain and France to force Spanish adherence to the pact.

Dispute May Close Chrysler Plants

Detroit, July 19 (AP)—Picket lines ringed the Dodge main plant today in a dispute that threatened to shut down all other Chrysler Corporation plants in the Detroit area.

The long dispute has centred around union charges of speed-ups at Chrysler plants. It finally led to the placing of the picket lines early today around the big Dodge plant which employs 20,000 workers.

Ward automotive reports said that Dodge Local No. 3, United Auto Workers Union (C.I.O.), voted last night to go on strike at the big plant, which employs 29,000 workers.

It was expected that the walkout would quickly involve some 35,000 other workers at other Chrysler Corp. plants in the Detroit area, because Dodge is a principal supplier of component parts.

Shallow Lake Gets Solid Pitching

Shallow Lake, Ont., July 19—(CP) —Highlander Keith Weese of the Shallow Lake Ranchers Wednesday night crashed baseball's hall of fame for the second time in less than a month. He pitched a no-hit no-run game as the Ranchers trimmed Neustadt 13-0 in a WOOA Intermediate contest here.

Weese came within a hair's breadth of pitching a perfect game. He faced only 28 Neustadt batters, one runner reached first base on an error, Weese struck out 16.

On June 23, Weese pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Mount Forest. A week later, June 30, his mound mate, Ken McCartney, had a no-hitter against Hanover.

Weese, a former Napanee hurler, added his own cause with two singles Wednesday night.

Mouth breathing is often the cause of irregular teeth. Nose breathing warms the air properly and sifts out particles of dirt.

UNDERSIZED TROUT

London, Ont., July 19—(CP)—Sidney Kicks of London today was fined $15 and costs by Magistrate Donald Menzies when he appeared charged with having 15 undersized speckled trout. The trout ranged from four to six inches while the legal length is seven inches.

The fish were confiscated.

Former Cabinet Minister Makes Barren Soil Pay

Preston, Ont. — (CP)—Norman O. Bipel, former Ontario Lands and Forests Minister, is busy these days practising what he used to preach.

Shortly after his retirement from active politics, the former member of the Hepburn Liberal cabinet bought a run-down 100-acre farm near this Western Ontario town.

It was as hopeless a proposition that he got the land for only $25 an acre.

Now, through practise of the conservation rules he helped devise, he's reaping his harvest.

In one field last year, rye grew to a height of six feet before mid-June. This field had been abandoned because the topsoil was gone. Mr. Bipel dragged the topsoil back from the gullies and ponds at the base of the field.

This year it will produce three crops of clover.

Another barren area has produced a flourishing walnut grove that has a record of 100 per cent growth of the original seedlings. Another is covered with a heavy, healthy stand of mixed evergreens. Still another plot bears 400 of the original hardwoods planted there nine years ago.

Mr. Bipel credits his success to proper planting, clear water, with a good leg mulch — and the building of ponds wherever possible.

The proof of success is in Mr. Bipel's profession — he is now a prosperous lumber dealer.

No Beaches Contract, Carl Voyles Claims

Hamilton, July 19—(CP)—Manager Carl Voyles of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union said Wednesday his club is not obligated by a contract to play exhibition games against Toronto Balmy Beach.

He was commenting on a report that the Ontario Rugby Football Club had a guaranteed contract to play an exhibition game against Hamilton.

Toronto Balmy Beach manager Paul McGarry said the Tiger-Cats would have to pay the guarantee whether they played or not.

CATTLE OCCUPIED LIVING ROOMS IN FLOOD

Stockyard cowboys are shown rounding up cattle that had strayed during the terrible flood that had been sweeping Kansas and Missouri. Though the water in the streets of Kansas City, Mo., is still knee-deep in many places, the flood has receded sufficiently to allow the rescue of cattle that had wandered away, seeking high, flood-protected hiding places. Many were found inside suburban houses. The recent floods have killed hundreds of cattle, but most of those rescued have been in good condition, though some were so weak that they required the assistance of trucks to enable them to reach dry ground. (Central Press Canadian.)

25,135 Persons Emigrated From Canada Last Year, 19,470 Went to United States

Ottawa, July 19 (CP) — An estimated 25,135 persons emigrated from Canada in 1950, compared with 25,063 in 1949, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

The report was the first ever issued by the Bureau of Emigration, Hereforce, emigration totals have had to be obtained from the immigration records of other countries.

The bureau explained that its figures were based on applications to the exchange control board for permission to transfer assets out of the country. Before leaving Canada, emigrants must obtain permission to take their funds with them.

This basis of estimating emigration has limitations, said the bureau. Some persons leave the country without applying for a transfer of funds. Others apply and then do not leave the country.

Most of the emigrants went to the United States—19,470 in 1950 and 18,763 in 1949. Approximately 3,530 went to the United Kingdom last year, compared with 4,000 the year earlier. Smaller numbers went to other British Commonwealth countries to Europe and to Asia.

ASKS ST. LAURENT RESIGN

Saskatoon, July 19 — Hazen Argue, C.C.F. member of parliament for Assiniboia, said yesterday that the resignation of Prime Minister St. Laurent would be "the best thing that could happen to the farmers in western Canada."

Mr. Argue addressing the annual provincial C.C.F. convention, also called for the early resignation of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Mysterious Death Investigated At Fort Frances

Fort Francis, Ont., July 19 — (CP) — The mysterious death of a tourist operator and his dog is being investigated by provincial police.

They said today they had found the body of Percy Monaghan, 52, mining for six days, on the edge of Lac Lacroix in the Rainy River district.

The man had been shot in the back of the head but no bullet was found.

The body of the man's dog was discovered concealed with rocks in a crevice. Police said the animal had been shot.

An autopsy was performed on McCleanghan's body by a doctor in Fort Francis but a more detailed examination has been ordered.

Police found $200 in McCleanghan's pocket.

POPULAR IMPORT

Introduced to the country by Emerito Argudin, a Cuban, in 1889, baseball has become Venezuela's most popular sport.

No Evidence of More A-Blasts in Russia

Washington, July 19 (AP) — President Truman said today there has been no evidence that Russia has achieved another atomic explosion since the one he reported in September, 1949.

A reporter asked Truman at the outset of his weekly press conference today if the United States has any such evidence.

Sept. 23, 1949, Truman issued a statement saying "we have evidence that within recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in the USSR."

The nature of the explosion never has been officially announced.

TAKES OWN LIFE

Callander, Ont., July 19-(CP)— A man identified by police as Ralph V. Heun, about 39, of Chicago, apparently took his life near here Wednesday night.

His decapitated body was found beside the C. N. R. soon after a southbound passenger train pulled out of the Callander station. Police said Heun apparently lay down and placed his neck on the rail.

Death Sentences Handed Five South Koreans

Taegu, Korea, July 19 (Reuters)—A military court today sentenced five top-ranking officers of the South Korean national defence corps to death for embezzling $2,000,000 worth of government funds and malitreating $90,000 defence trustees.

Prior to the trial, publicity on the embezzlement of defence corps funds and the deaths of trainees led to the resignation of vice-president Lee Si Yong, and the dismissal of Defence Minister Shin Sung Mo, vice-defence minister Chang Kyong Kun, and the South Korean chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Chung Il Kwon.

Most of the money went to people who were not members of the corps, now disbanded.

RAWDON

Young Couple Recipients of Gifts

Rawdon—On Monday evening about 150 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Carlisle, Stirling, and honored his daughter, Nina and husband Mr. Roy Neal, a recent bridal couple.

Besides the Carmel community the guests included folks from Trenton, Frankford, Campbellford, Mount Pleasant and other points. A beautiful vase of roses was used as decoration.

Mr. Russell Pyear was master of ceremonies and during the evening three presentations were made.

Address, Presentations

Mrs. Mary Vandervoort read an address of appreciation to the bride on behalf of the Past Noble Grands' club of Laurel Rebekah Lodge and Mrs. Arthur Vandervoort made the presentation of pink silk dresser scarf.

Mr. Don Scott presented the newlyweds with a lace tablecloth on behalf of the chatrivari gang.

Mrs. Harry Brown read an address of appreciation on behalf of Carmel community and the honored couple were the recipients of a large array of gifts.

At this point Mrs. Archie Bailey and Mrs. Helen Neal assisted the newlyweds in opening the parcels which revealed many china glassware and a host of useful articles for their new home in Belleville which included a gift from Laurel Rebekah Lodge members.

Nina and Roy graciously thank their friends and the Carmel ladies' served refreshments.

Rawdon—Wellmans LOL No. 173 attended the glorious 12th at Madoc. Their fife and drum band was outscored on a truck. One of their members, Mr. Jack Sharp took in the trip to Watertown, N.Y., along with other Rawdonians.

Tanner, LOL attended as a group in Shannonville. Several Rawdon Orangemen visited Bancroft, Peterborough and other points. The heavy rain in the afternoon curtailed the speaking at many places but at all points the lodge members marched regardless of the weather.

Mrs. A. Kaye, Vancouver, B.C., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sager, at the Radio Range Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Clancy were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy at Madoc Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan entertained on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rivers, Gary and Colleen, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Ryan and Linda of Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Fisher of Oshawa.

Mr. Milton Hagerman, county preceptor, recently visited Marmora I.O.F. and gave an address. The Black Knight celebration will be held at Havelock on Monday August 11th.

Miss Ruth Linn, president of Mount Pleasant Young People's Union and several of the members enjoyed a delightful picnic at Presqu'Ile last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ruttan and Marie returned to their home in Kingston on Sunday. Miss Marie Ruttan has spent the past six weeks with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine.

At Mount Pleasant United Church on Sunday afternoon, Misses Lois and Marilyn McConnell sang a duet "I Is No Secret" Rev. R. R. Bonsteel spoke on "Faith of Our Fathers."

Meets Serious Fire

What might have been a disastrous fire was narrowly averted last Friday afternoon when the barn of Mr. Clarence Scott was badly scorched. Around noon while Mr. Scott was in Stirling a loud report was heard by Mr. Raymond McConnell and several nearby folk, caused from combustion in the hay mow.

Mrs. Scott and Mr. W. H. Scott immediately covered the hay with horseblankets and grain sacks and neighbors formed a bucket brigade from the nearby well and gave the material a good soaking and extinguished the blaze.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell was busy sending messages to the various telephone lines and soon 100 people had gathered at the Scott home. Wilmot and George, the two young sons, moved the horses from the stable, carried the milker pails and covered loose articles from the building in case the fire did get out of hand. A pen of fattening hogs were in the stable and would have been burned if the barn had gone up in smoke. It was most fortunate that the combustion did not take place the day previous when so many Rawdon folk were celebrating at other points. The Anson telephone line was out of commission that day. It is understood there were two loads of hay in this mow which had been put in earlier that week.

Redmen Rally for 7 in 6th To Down Kingston Leafs 8-6 Mulholland Hits 3 Run Homer

Coming up with seven runs in the sixth inning after being down 4-0, Belleville Redmen last night defeated Kingston Disney Leafs on the latter's diamond by a score of 8-6.

The win for the Redmen hiked them up in the standings to third position behind Brockville and Smiths Falls. A win over the second place Fallsmen on Monday evening here would move them up another ring in the ladder toward the top.

Belleville knocked the bottom out of the game in the upper half of the sixth inning coming up with seven runs on seven hits, all runs being scored after two men had been retired. Singles by Carson, Soules and Bower, produced the first tally and brought Sammy Mulholland to the plate. Sammy promptly powered a ball between the centre and right fielders for a circuit clout that sent three runners ahead of him. Gilmour followed with a bingle to left and that was all for starter Stone for the Leafs. He was replaced by right-hander Norm Harry who promptly passed Huck Reeves on four straight pitches. Buchanan and Goyer followed with singles driving in the remaining three tallies of the inning before Carson grounded out to end the inning.

Kingston had taken a big four run lead in the bottom of the fifth to open the scoring, neither side having plated a man previous to that time. McCormick led off one to center but Soules had hop over Mulholland's head and the runner went all the way to third. Harry followed with a single before Bower made the first putout. Then Stone errors, two outs by Geary and Mulholland and singles by Scarrow and Ferguson brought three more runs in. Aitken grounded out to end the inning, a very bad one for the Redmen.

Two more runs crossed the plate for the Disney Leafs in the 7th as the result of an error, another triple and an infield out to tighten the game up considerably.

Neither team scored in the eighth, although Kingston threatened before a double play from Bower to Buchanan put out the fire.

Carson plated an insurance run for the Reds in the final frame. He opened the inning with a clean single to centre and took second as Ferguson had trouble picking up the ball. Soules rushed him up a sack with a left field hit and when the throw in went into the crowd "Red" was waved home by the umpire.

The fielding features of the game were the three double plays two of them by the Redmen. Geary to Carson to Buchanan stopped a Kingston threat in the sixth and Bower's bullet like relay to Buchan of a popped bunt in the eighth doubled Leonard out of first. Possibly the neatest on of the three was pulled by Aitken, the second baseman for Kingston, when he stretched away up into the blue to bring down Vern Goyer's smash and when he came down, he landed on second base doubling Reeves.

Soules and Mulholland led the hitters, each getting three bingles while Carson, Geary and Buchanan also knocked two each in the biggest batting spree by the locals in several games. Lorne Ferguson, centre fielder of the Leafs, had three singles in four trips while Mackenzie had two for four including a triple. Only other extra base knock was a triple by Rank.

The earned run tally on the game was scored for the Redmen and three for the Leafs.

Petes Lengthen Lacrosse Lead Trouncing Fergus

(By The Canadian Press)

Peterborough Petes pounced on last-place Fergus Thistles Wednesday night as a means of strengthening their hold on first place in the seven-team Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior League.

The Petes beat Fergus 13-7 and the victory extended their lead over idle St. Catharines to four points.

Top scorers for Peterborough were Harry Wipper, Don Ashton and Curly Mason with two goals each. Jack Chambers had two for the losers.

Third-place Hamilton Tigers also lost ground on the leaders, taking a 9-5 setback from Minico Mountaineers at the Drummond Bowl in Minico. Ken Dixon scored four goals to lead the Mounties. Jack Dorney had a pair for Hamilton.

In a third-league game, at Brampton, the Tomahawks came through with a four-goal rally in the last period to eke out an 11-10 win over Oakville West Yorks. The win extended Brampton's fifth-place margin over Toronto to four points.

The Yorkers led until three minutes from the final bell when Al Garbutt got the tying goal for Brampton. Then with 15 seconds to go Bob Blakely scored the winning goal. Garbutt had three goals for the winners.

Only one game is scheduled for tonight, Minico meeting West Yorks at Weston.

CLEAN SHORE OF OIL

Parry Sound, July 19 (CP) The rocky shores of Georgian Bay here are being given a cleaning — just like the buildings in smoky cities. The bursting of a 2,000-gallon oil pipeline and storage tank last September covered the shores with a thick oily scum. The oil company, to make amends, hired nine barge - mounted steam outfits to steam-clean the oil from the bay this summer.

Suffered Many Years -- Gas, Sour Stomach, Headaches

Got Bad Rheumatic Pains, Backache, Kidneys, "Found Best Relief Since Taking Few Bottles of Syntona," Says This Man.

MR. B. BROWN

How often have you heard someone telling of the good results they got by taking Syntona Herbal Compound? The chances are that nearly everybody knows of someone or even several acquaintances who have used this medicine with gratifying results. New cases are reported every day, such as the experience of Mr. Barton Brown, 20 Garwood Street, St. Thomas, Ontario, who said recently:

"I have suffered for many years with stomach disorders, constipation, and became badly run down. I would get awful gas, heartburn, sour stomach and a dull headache almost every day in my stomach. I was sometimes so bad I could hardly eat, and had these rheumatic pains in my back, kidneys and muscles. They would get stiff and sore and the whole condition upset and my nerves so on edge I couldn't get to sleep at night.

"One day a friend told me about Syntona and this medicine has done me the best relief of all I've used in many years. Can say better now as the gas, sour stomach and headaches is cleared up. Constipation is also relieved and my aches and pains do not trouble me now, so I feel almost 100 per cent better and am getting more sound and restful sleep at night."

Why not give this great medicine a chance to help you, too? Get a bottle and try it today.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Jewellers Stage Garrison Finish, Nip Bakelite 8-7

Avon Jewellers staged another garrison finish last evening as they extended Bakelite's losing streak to five games with an 8-7 victory.

The win left Avon tied for second place in the league standings with Bakelite with a 5-3 record.

Once again it was some remarkable back-to-the-wall action that paid off for the Jewelers. Bakelite had erected a 6-0 lead in the third inning, by taking advantage of several Avon errors and two singles, and appeared to be headed for a lopsided win.

However, Avon starter Frank Baldwin was backed out to centerfield and Rogers moved to the hill from third base to douse the fire and hold the Bakelite's to one more run over the rest of the game.

Meanwhile his mates teed off on Jetty Bob Green in the fifth for a double and a single, which went nicely with three walks and an error for five runs. Green apparently settled down in the sixth as he retired the side in order, but he served up a gopher ball to Yank McBride in the seventh with two on and it went for a home run and the ball game.

One Double Play

Bakelite tried to rally in the ninth but were cut down on the only double play of the game.

Frank Baldwin started on the mound for Jewellers and in two and one third innings, walked five, struck out two, and gave up two hits for six runs as a porous defence provided meditocre support. Rogers came on in the third and over the rest of the distance walked four, struck out one and limited the Bakelite bludgeons to four scattered safeties.

Bob Green went all the way for the losers walking six, striking out eight and giving up five hits for all the runs.

Best at the plate for the winners was Vince Murray with a single and a double in four attempts but McBride's home run in the seventh was the payoff blow.

Umpires: Tyrrell (b); Nichols (b).

Scorer: M. H. Reid.

Time: 1.30.

Ontario Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

A traffic jam in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League has the players talking to themselves and is giving scorers their busiest headache in years.

The league standings change overnight, and usually does.

Last night, Waterloo Tigers snapped their six game losing streak by downing the Kitchener Legionnaires 8-6 and bounced over the Kitchener squad into third place.

Brantford Red Sox maintained the only stability in the gathering by dumping the St. Thomas Legion squad 8-5 to end the Legion's four-game surge from last place. The win solidified Brantford's position in first place with a 6 1-2 game lead over London Majors.

At London, rain helped the Guelph Maple Leafs hold their place Kitchener, Guelph, .003 points out, was trailing London Majors 2-1 in the game when rain stopped the baseball in the fourth.

The Brantford home crowd saw the Sox beat out 14 hits to settle the St. Thomas upstarting. The Legion squad added to the evening's entertainment by committing a record nine errors. Their pitcher, Len Dube, was thrown out of the ball park by a police escort when he slugged first base umpire for a call at the bag.

Other Ontario baseball games saw Kingston lose to Belleville Redmen 8-6 in the Central Ontario Senior League.

Up North, Copper Cliff Redmen eased past Garson Greymonks 1-0 in Nickel Belt Senior play.

Henley Hopes Higher With Cummings in Crew

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa's hopes for a major triumph at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta at St. Catharines July 25-28 rose Wednesday night with the announcement that Bruce Cummings, star football and rowing athlete, will go along with the Ottawa contingent.

George Sprague, president of the Ottawa Rowing Club, said Cummings will be in his regular seat as stroke of the Ottawa junior eight at the Henley Regatta with approval by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League, for whom he kicks.

Sprague said his squad is in excellent condition.

The added significance of the regatta this year is that the 1952 Olympic trials are scheduled for that time. To qualify for the trials, Canadian clubs must have a representative crew at Henley.

Babe Ruth, highest-paid baseball star of his era — and a big spender, too—left a net estate of $280,000, his filed three years after the age of 53.

Baseball's immortal home-run king stands an estimated $1,425,000 during 24 years in baseball.

He left his widow, Mrs. Clara Mae Ruth, $5,000 plus a life interest in a $170,611 trust fund and in the estate after all bequests were paid out.

Robert B. Ridder, president of the Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association, has been named manager of the hockey team which will represent the United States in the 1952 Olympic winter games at Oslo, Norway, it was announced Wednesday. The U.S. team will be selected and organized next December.

Water (Turk) Broda, goal tender for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Wednesday underwent a successful operation for the removal of gallstones.

Broda is expected to be released from hospital in a week.

Here Come Leafs Hottest Club In the League

(By The Associated Press)

How's this for winning a ball game the hard way: build up a 7-0 lead in 5 1-2 innings, blow it in one inning, then win out 8-7 in the ninth.

That's what happened to Toronto last night—and it was a big victory for the Maple Leafs, hottest club in the International League.

Joe Becker's crew finally reached the .500 mark, at 47-47, with its victory over Ottawa, but, more important, it left the Leafs only three games out of fourth place, final qualifying spot for the playoffs.

Les Fleming's double in the ninth inning knocked in the winning run, giving reliever Ira Madlinger his eighth victory. Scoring in every inning but the fourth and fifth, Toronto constructed a 7-0 bulge going into the bottom of the sixth.

Then Ottawa erupted for seven runs and things were all square. Madlinger came on in the seventh and chilled the Giants' hot bats, holding them hitless for the last two innings. Wally Cox, last of three Ottawa hurlers, suffered the second loss.

In the only other games, Baltimore swept a doubleheader from Springfield, 6-0 and 3-0; behind the shutout pitching of Kent Drews and Jack Schmitt.

Drews, a sidearming shinker specialist, scattered nine hits in the nightcap after Schmitt hurled a nifty four-hitter in the opener. It was victory No. 11 for Drews and No. 8 for Schmitt.

Rochester at Syracuse and Buffalo at Montreal were rained out.

UNLUCKY EXPLORER

Flin Flon, Man. — (CP) — A mysterious tunnel attracted seven-year-old Bobby Absr. Some 2½ hours later a posse found it managed to extricate him from a narrow opening between a sewer pipe and its wooden casing in which he had become wedged.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Don't count on much sea this Sunday. Not that we have switched to prophesying the weather just when we were sure of our prediction in the American League race. We are just remembering that rather damp afternoon when yacht racing returned to the Bay of Quinte after an absence of several years, and four foot chop on the whole west end of the course rain and all, that possibly the powers-that-be might sail up another stand or two to make things interesting.

The second match race for the W. C. Mikel Challenge Trophy is being held this Sunday afternoon with all entries in but that of J. J. Morch and his "Dorian", winners of the opening day festivities. Not only have all the standing head craft been entered, but in addition there will be two punts, "After You" and "Joke". Originally the race was for standing keel craft only but Maurice Callaghan, after a harrowing experience in one of them, pleaded with the committee to let him race in the "After You" and silence the rather obvious jokes which have been whistling about his weather-beaten brow ever since. (Incidentally, Maurice, the boys at the boat house tell me that if you will only come back they will scrub their teeth!). The upshot of a special meeting to re-draft the rules concerning the trophy was that all punts on the bay were eligible.

* * *

Absence of the defending "Dorian" is a result of Mr. Morch's holidays. He is away at his summer cottage. While there is keen rivalry among the standing keel boats, the old feud between the punts "After You" and "Joke" is going to be revived. Gooseye and John Maggs who now own and sail the "Joke" are quite confident that they can stave off Callaghan's challenge, and give the other craft a bit of "after" at the same time. Harold Ketcheson will not be sailing his "Halcyon", which was forced to drop out of the initial contest when her forestay broke in a squall but his daughter Betty will be at the helm in an attempt to bring back some of the glory lost then.

* * *

There are very few rules which the participating yachtsmen will have to observe, but they must be obtained from Captain John Watson who has mimeographed copies or the North American Yacht Racing rules and a diagram of the course. He will be available at the start of the course. Only other regulation that affects the skippers is that each boat, to qualify for the race, must include a sea cadet in the crew.

* * *

As if this is not enough for a Sunday afternoon, there will also be runabout races. Rae Roblin, Jack Sills, Mr. Crail, Dr. Harold Craig and Art Young are all in the draw. Several of the committee heard Art say, anyway or nothing, that he was certain that he would be the first runabout in the bay. Needless to say there are dissenters, all of whom will be out to prove it Sunday afternoon. The runabouts will make two circuits of the shortened yacht racing course to a heat, and will race two heats.

* * *

But that isn't all. There will also be races for dingy and snipe class boats. The standing keel boats will open the afternoon with the starting gun slated to blast at 3.00 p. m. Fifteen minutes later the runabouts will get away in the first heat of their race, and fifteen minutes later the dingys begin. At 3.45 the snipe class boats start after the rest in their own contest. Starter for the race will be John Black and Judge of the Course will be Morley Smith. And now the hook. The winner of the yacht race will receive a handicap from the racing committee, which she will have to carry into future challenge competitions. When asked how the handicap would be worked out, one of the committee gally remarked that everything would be arranged so that there would be "no chance of the same boat winning two consecutive races". Sailing, sailing over the bounding waves, tra-la.

The weekly quiz show in Memorial Arena in which the fans are kept guessing as to the identity of the Zebra, will have another buck added to the $64 question tomorrow night when Chief Sunl War Cloud will attempt to unveil the Masked Marvel. Meanwhile in the feature, Lord Athol Layton, that pillar of virtue who was given such a bad time by circumstances last week when it appeared he had won his struggle with the Zebra, will be back to prove his ability to tame the hooded horror. The Zebra, who insists that he was the rightful winner despite Athol's claims, states quite frankly that their return engagement will be different only in that he will, finish Layton sooner than he feels he did last week. Layton, who had the Zebra ready for the tamers last Friday only to be called off because he was doing his skinning outside the ring is firmly convinced that he will reveal the Zebra's identity. In the opener George Kosti meets Pat Flanagan.

Left Hook in 7th Round Brings Crown to Jersey Joe After 20 Years Campaigning

By MURRAY ROSS

Pittsburgh, July 19 (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott, an amazing old man who wouldn't be licked, today held the world's heavyweight championship in an astounding climax to an almost unbelievable saga of the ring.

Today plans were in motion for a September return meeting between the brown cinderella man of the ring and the beaten champion, Kinard Charles, Pittsburgh, with a fight record almost as long as 372 for its first heavyweight title show, looked the likely site.

At 37, Jersey Joe became the oldest man ever to win boxing's most prized bauble when he flattened the superbly-conditioned Charles in 95 seconds of the seventh round of their 15-rounder with a smashing left hook to the jaw.

It was the ancient Camden battler's fifth crack at the heavyweight championship and twice seen the crown slip out of his eager fingers. "I'm going to be a fighting champion and Charles will get his chance."

"I got him with a left hook to the jaw," said Joe with a big grin on his face. Only moments before Joe endured even his brown cheeks as he realized his glorious moment of triumph.

"I just got hit," said the crestfallen Charles in the stillness of a loser's dressing room.

"Did I hear the count? I heard five—I guess," said Charles, who had a lump under his right eye and a cut on his lower lip that required two stitches.

"I could have gone on and on", said Walcott.

Ninth Title Defence

Charles was defending his crown for the ninth time. He was a nominal 3 to 1 favorite but there was hardly any betting—the Cincinnati Negro was considered a cinch.

He had whipped Walcott in Chicago to win N.B.A. recognition as retired Joe Louis' successor on June 22, 1949. The lean, supple Charles repeated the triumph with even more or an edge in Detroit last March 7.

"I can beat Walcott anytime—I've got his number," is the way Charles put it even before plans had been made for this Pittsburgh fight.

The old man crossed them up last night. His main power was supposed to be in his right hand —the hand that had dropped Joe Louis three times in two fights. Charles watched that right but he forgot to watch the left and that's the story of the fight.

A perfect left hook crowned Charles on his face. The stricken champ tried to pull himself up at the count of nine. He partially raised himself up and then toppled on his back—out.

Walcott was ahead at the time of the knockdown. The referee had Jersey Joe in front, 5-1; Judge Charles Daggert had Walcott ahead 4-1-1, while Judge Stewart (Red) Robinson had it even, 3-3. The AP scoreboard had Walcott in the lead, 4-2.

Both Boxers Cagey

Up until the end, it had been a tame fight with both of the boxers eyeing each other cagily, each waiting for the other to lead. Early, most of the punching was to the body and there were scattered boos from the crowd.

Walcott opened up in the third and brought blood from Charles' mouth and started a lump under Ezzard's right eye. In the sixth Walcott unlimbered his big artillery. He clipped Charles twice with left hooks to the jaw. And then the finishing left came, a beauty of a punch.

Old Jersey could hardly believe the fight was over. He started to slump forward and when they hauled him over to the radio microphone, tears welled from his eyes.

Old Joe will collect a cheque of about $50,000 for the fight. Charles will receive about $100,000. For the return match Walcott will split even with Charles, 50 cent each. That was in the contract which called for a return bout within 90 days.

The fight grossed $349,004, and th $100,000 for the air rights made it the highest grossing fight show of the year.

Charles weighed 182 to Walcott's 194.

Tony Trabert Rising Star Of U.S. Tennis

Louisville, July 19 (AP) — In your estimate of future United States tennis greats put a large circle around the name of Tony Trabert of Cincinnati.

The big blond boy with the booming shots can't miss, say the court faithful who are gathered here for the United States-Japan Davis Cup series, opening tomorrow.

"Tony is the finest prospect I've seen since Don Budge—and I rate Budge the greatest of all time," said Walter Pate, captain of the U.S. cup forces from 1935 through 1947.

The freckle-faced, 20-year-old University of Cincinnati athlete —he's also a basketball star—is a member of the four-man American team that will face the Japanese in the first round of the American zone eliminations.

However, his duties are of a comparatively subordinate nature. He will team with the veteran Billy Talbert in doubles.

The more glamorous singles assignment go to Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., who earned the spot with spectacular triumphs in the Australian and Wimbledon championships, and Herbie Flam of Los Angeles, the nation's second-ranking amateur.

Trabert is ranked only 12th nationally but he has been the standout in warmups this week on the sun-baked clay courts of the Louisville Boat Club.

Some experts predict he'll be pressing Savitt for No. 1 recognition before the summer is out.

Bosox Lengthen Lead By Whipping Indians 4-3 Yankees Down Chisox 5-1

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Clouting Clyde Vollmer boosted off his home-town Cincinnati team, is the new Boston glamour boy, outdazzling such Red Sox stalwarts as Ted Williams, Dom DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr and Dom DiMaggio.

A rough-shuttled part-time flychaser and pinch-hitter through seven discouraging big league seasons, the 30-year-old Ohioan has finally established himself as one of the best pinch hitters in baseball.

Climaxing a two-week batting splurge, the strapping outfielder last night paced the Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Vollmer accounted for Boston's first run with his fifth homer in the last 10 games to snap a scoreless deal between Lou Boudreau and Cleveland's Bob Lemon. He scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth when he walked and raced all the way home as Ray Boone threw wild to third on Buddy Rosar's single.

Red Sox Lengthen Lead

The victory gave the Red Sox a full game lead over Chicago's second-place White Sox and increased their margin to a game and a half over the New York Yankees. Cleveland remains in fourth place 3½ games off the pace.

The Yankees moved to within a fraction of a percentage point of Chicago, whipping the White Sox, 5-1 behind the pitching of Vic Raschi and Bob Kuzava.

Washington spoiled Satchel Paige's 1951 debut with the Browns by cuffing him for 11 hits in eight innings to trounce St. Louis, 7-1. Philadelphia's Athletics amassed 20 hits to overcome Detroit, 15-5.

The St. Louis Cardinals climbed past the New York Giants into second place in the National League by trampling the Boston Braves, 8-4. Meanwhile, idle with Pittsburgh's 12-13 triumph over Brooklyn reduced the front-running Dodgers' lead over the Redbirds to eight games. Ralph Kiner blasted three home runs for the Pirates, one with the bases loaded.

More Home Runs

Two-run homers by veteran Hank Sauer and rookie Chuck Connors gave the Chicago Cubs a 6-3 victory over the Giants. Cincinnati and Philadelphia exchanged shutouts. After Willie Ramsdell pitched the Reds to a 2-0 win over the Phils, southpaw Ken Johnson hurled a 1-0 victory over the Reds.

Big Vic Raschi singled in what proved to be the winning Yankee run in the seventh of the New York-Chicago game. Hampered by a sore throat he had to retire in the seventh and Kuzava preserved the victory for Raschi's 16th. Johnny Mize clinched the win with an eighth-inning homer. A crowd of 34,713, largest weekday throng in Comiskey Park history, attended.

Chicago, shortstop Chico Carresquel booted his first fielding chance to end his record run of errorless chances. He had handled 97 consecutive chances in 53 games without a misplay.

Bob Porterfield outpitched the old Paige, yielding six St. Louis hits for his third Washington victory. Catcher Clyde Kluttz batted in three Senator runs.

Gus Zernial and Lou Klein batted in four runs each for the winning A's over the Tigers. Zernial clouted his 23rd homer as Dick Fowler staggered to his fourth win.

Kiner Supplies Power

Kiner drove in seven Pittsburgh runs with his trio of four-baggers. His third came in the eighth inning to knot the count at 12-12. Ervin Dusak followed with a double and scored the winning run on a single by pinch hitter Pete Reiser. Kiner missed a fourth homer by several feet.

Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter drove in two runs apiece to lead the Cards to victory over the Braves. Frank Hiller hurled a four-hitter over the Giants for his sixth win. Joe Hatten and Grady Hatton drove in both Cincinnati runs in the Reds' 2-0 victory. Ed Waitkus singled in Ed Pellagrini with the Phils' run in the second game 1-0 win over the Reds.

Canada Direct Wins Feature At Thorncliffe

Toronto, July 19 (CP)—Callie's Counsel, the smart trotting mare owned by W. Earle Howe and driven by Bill Howe, trotted one of the fastest miles of her career Wednesday to defeat a speedy field of pacers and trotters at Thorncliffe Raceway.

She travelled the distance in 2.06 3-5, less than a second behind her all-time record, and easily defeated Peter Aubrey, Dale H. and four other rivals.

The consistent Canada Direct won the day's featured pacing stake.

Longest price of the afternoon was paid by Miss Chipso, owned by J. L. Waples of Pheipsten Cut, which scored at $21.20 for $2 in the fourth dash.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting: Ralph Kiner, Pirates—Clouted three homers, one with the bases full to lead the Pirates to a 13-12 victory over the Dodgers.

Pitching: Ellis Kinder, R. Sox—Hurled one hit, runless ball in two and two-third innings of relief to gain credit for the Red Sox' 4-3 victory over the Indians.

Louis Disgusted, Title Shot Delayed 6 Months

Pittsburg, July 19. (AP)—Marshall Miles, manager of Joe Louis, said tonight the Brown Bomber went to bed "disgusted" after watching Jersey Joe Walcott knock out Ezzard Charles on television.

"It puts Joe back at least six months in his plans to regain the title," said Miles after he had talked to the Louis camp at Belle River, Ont. Joe is training there for his August 1 fight with Cesar Brion in San Francisco.

Louis has been all set to meet Charles in New York in September. Now he must await the return bout between Walcott and Charles. The 37-year-old Louis better than he had been in years when he knocked out Lee Savold last month, has been raring to get his title crack.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoslap Oxpert puts two and two together and thinks he can see a total of more than four. With a bridge hand in which he can count no more than five, he bids as if he can take eight tricks.

The deal that was sent me is shown here:

NORTH
♠Q 5 3
♥Q 4
♦K 10 9 8 4 2
♣K 8

WEST
♠J 10 2
♥10 3
♦A Q 7 6
♣A 7 10 6

EAST
♠8 7 4
♥K 8 6 2
♦7 3
♣Q 9 3 2

SOUTH
♠A K 8 6
♥A K 7 5
♦5
♣7 5 4

The letter explained that the bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	2 D	Dbl	Pass
Pass	3 C	Pass	Pass
Dbl	Pass	Pass	Pass

West was vulnerable at the time and was defeated four tricks for a loss of 1,100 points. When they started to pick up the pieces, west glared at south and remarked:

"You were lucky to nick me for a big set with that bad double of yours. Ordinarily a double like that would be wrong. My hand has three plus honor tricks in it which should have been enough for my bid."

The letter asks me if west was correct in the contention that his was a sound bid with the values he counted. My answer is that the west hand was too weak for the bids he made.

In the first place he should not have bid defensively with a suit that contained only four cards. At least, not with a simple overcall which promises five cards in a suit.

In the second place, he did not have enough tricks in his own hand for a bit of two in anything. So, when he bid three in clubs it was certainly too high for the values he had.

There are many angles in the explanation of why. Perhaps you would like to see my reasons. So I'll build it up from a basis of where the reasoning should begin. Meanwhile, form your own opinion.

ALLISONVILLE

Allisonville—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Chase and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Osterhout and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Oram, all attended the wedding of Miss Barbara Chase to Mr. Robert Lean, on Saturday in the United Church, Oshawa. Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Caskey and Mr. and Mrs. Claud Tucker, of Stirling, were Saturday overnight guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Chase and Vernon.

Mrs. Clare McFaul accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall on Tuesday and motored to Kingston to see little Gayle at the hospital. Glad to report Gayle is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Chase attended the "Happy Gang" picnic on Sunday at Presqu'ile.

Movie Column

By BILL BECKER

(For Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, July 19 (AP) — "Two Loves Have I," chants Josephine Baker on her triumphant tour. "My Coun-tree and Pa-ree."

And the United States' most famous between-wars expatriate sings it like she means it. La Belle Josephine has been so heartened by the reception on her return that she says she intends to divide her time henceforth between the United States and France.

"I am so happy—I open my own night club, the chez Joseph-ine Baker, in New York in October," she said with gallic inflections. "And then, perhaps, there may be Hollywood."

After her smash two-week stand here, movie moguls are bidding high for her services. The film colony flocked to her local performances.

She broke all records for the Hillstreet theatre, netting $45,000 in two weeks for her troupe. Her take was at least $30,000.

Her business manager, Ned Schuyler, who has been mulling over the movie offers says:

"It isn't a question of whether the movies want Josephine, but whether they want her enough to make the kind of movie consistent with her way of thinking on the matter of segregation."

In other words, no all-Negro musical.

The pride of Paris wowed Hollywood audiences with a subtle mixture of sex, sophistication, high fashion and smooth showmanship.

No one recalled a performer who could sing and shimmy in five languages—English, French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese.

Her highly stylized performances are set off by a wardrobe of 43 gowns insured for $250,000.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Friday, July 20

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—The practical, useful and urgent are favorites. Good day for improvements, bettering quality of work, seeking wise advancement. Artistic matters ask more care. Know yourself.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Same obtains for you as for Aries. You are encouraged to study, develop spiritual needs. Patience, levity are urged in family relations, handling children. You can make it your day.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Greatly up to you today how far you go in day's program, plans. It may not be easy for mental work, study and the like, but it can be fine period for trades, all practical activities.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your Moon's position stresses need for extra cheerfulness, patience and no moods. Keep head, heart high. Remember, you may be strong example for others now, so show your finest spirit.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—The Sun and Saturn are the planets in major benefic aspects today; you are fortunate with the freshly encouraging vibrations from these powerful planets. All sound, useful matters rate high.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Don't spend too long on the artistic touch or forcing private opinions and you will get farther, and quicker. Today may not be easy for mental keenness, is fine for solid, enduring matters.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)—"A little with contentment is great gain"—good slogan always. Do your tasks whatever they are as efficiently as you can and you will come out on top. Enjoy free time wisely.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Your Mars warns all to be of good disposition, not to overdo your opinions. Time's done, day can be helpful and productive of much good. Hard work will pay big dividends now.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — May not be altogether satisfactory here for personal demands, attaining wishes wholly, but no one can quarrel with one doing his best and with one who is not selfish. Cheer up!

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Again your stars favor you industrious, faithful folks. That is, of course, if you are true to fine characteristics. Day won't brook nonsense, but does favor all honest endeavor.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—If truly on the beam today and willing to accept tedious tasks, as well as the more interesting ones, you can have sound success, even though it may not be showy.

February 21 to March 20 — Your Neptune says to be most careful in confidential issues. Today is generally friendly and a great deal of good can be accomplished. Recreation sponsored.

YOU BORN TODAY: Very fine business ability, and steadiness of purpose and effort are innate. If careful not to be boastful or too aggressive, you can reach top position in your chosen trade or profession. Realize that harmonious co-operation and sound advice can be means of quicker, surer success. We all can learn and improve. Try new ideas, methods, equipment of proven worth. Balance of '51 and most of '52 hold fresh opportunities of value for you. Pray daily for guidance, and in thanksgiving, too.

Birthdate: Francesco Petrarch, Ital. poet, humorist; Alberto Santos-Dumont, Brazilian aeronaut.
